Westside dream ending in court

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

It began with great expectations: A modern industrial park would rise on 350 redeveloped acres in West Long Beach. An influx of new business, 12,000 new jobs. Prosperity would surge across the entire city.

That was the optimistic forecast less than two years ago.

Now the plan for prosperity is the subject of a bitterly contested lawsuit, filed by people who live and work on the Westside.

Their lawsuit seeks to kill the plan as it now exists. It contends that the plan was created illegally and is being administered illegally.

The suit also makes dark allegations that the members of the redevelopment project's board of directors are poised to use their inside information for profiteering when land starts changing hands.

That is denied by the directors —21 influential community businessmen, many of whom have frequently taken leadership roles in past civic projects—and by the city and those who administer the plan.

Both sides will clash in a Long Beach Superior Court face-off May 6 that could make or break the plan.

The city and redevelopment administrators must show cause at the hearing why the plan shouldn't be put in the deep freeze while opponents try to legally invalidate it.

The battle is being waged over a wedge-shaped area on Long Beach's southwestern fringe.

It is bounded on the north by Pacific Coast Highway, on the south by Ninth Street, on the east by the Los Angeles River and on the west by the jagged city limits.

Within the area, residential blocks abut business blocks in an odd mix reflecting a gradual move toward industrialization.

No residential additions or new homes have been constructed there since a zoning change in 1963.

The city hoped to spur that industrial trend with the redevelopment project.

That meant relocation of some residents and firms with either their willing participation or the city's power of eminent domain.

It also meant compliance with the state's Community Redevelopment Law, which says a city must take pains to involve area residents in such a project from its inception.

The result was a complex network of agencies and organizations at work on the project.

At the top of the government pyramid overseeing the project is the City Council, which formally adopted the West Long Beach Industrial Redevelopment Plan last July 1.

Supervising the project for council members were the city's Planning Commission and Redevelopment Agency.

The Redevelopment Agency, which oversees similar projects for the downtown and central areas, in turn delegated the work of actually concocting and administering a workable Westside redevelopment plan.

The group given that responsibility was a special creation—a private, nonprofit firm with quasigovernment status called the Long Beach Economic Development Corp. (EDC).

Directors of the EDC, according to documents on file in connection with the suit, include high executives of such firms as the Bixby Land Co.; Douglas Aircraft Co.; Western Mortgage Co.; Southern California Edison Co.; Petrolane, Inc.; Independent, Press-Telegram; Farmers and Merchants Bank; Rex L. Hodges Realty Co., and Buffums.

Also listed in those documents as directors are R.E. Baldwin, president of Federal Steel Corp., which is located at 1500 W. 16th St., in the heart of the redevelopment area, and Millard J. Hines, president of Industrial Paper Distributors, 903 Fairbanks Ave., across the river from the target area.

Ex-officio directors include City Manager John Mansell. The EDC's general manager and executive vice president is James Hankla, on loan to the EDC from his position as Mansell's executive assistant.

It was this group that in April 1974 entered into agreement with the city to cope with the redevelopment work.

Good news for Reagan campaign

Outpaces Ford for Southern delegates

Associated Press

Ronald Reagan's campaign to wrest the Republican presidential nomination from President Ford took an upward turn Saturday as the former California governor fared well in delegate selection in areas where he said he would — the South and Southwest.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, meanwhile, rolled to an easy win in the informal Democratic primary in his home state of Arizona, picking up about three-quarters of the vote with roughly half the returns in.

REAGAN WON 27 of 29 national convention delegates at the Arizona Republican convention, outdistanced Ford in Oklahoma county conventions and picked up 23 delegates to six for Ford at the GOP convention in South Carolina, where he may eventually get 27 of the state's 36-member delegation.

In addition, the former California governor was running strong in Missouri precinct caucuses, which have been going on since Tuesday.

Ford recouped somewhat in Minnesota, where candidates supporting him won nine of the 12 convention seats picked. Reagan had one delegate and the other two were uncommitted.

Udall and George Wallace were the only delegates to seek votes in Arizona, where the 25 convention delegates are apportioned according to a candidate's percentage.

WITH 14,675 votes counted, Udall had 10,998 votes or 74.9 per cent and was leading in all four of the state's congressional districts.

He was followed by Jimmy Carter with 1,391 votes or 9.5 per cent; Wallace with 684 or 4.7 per cent; Henry Jackson 719 or 4.9 per cent, no preference 385 or 2.6 per cent, Frank Church 232 or 1.6 per cent and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack, 180 or 1.2 per cent.

Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and two relative unknowns from New York State — attorney Frank Bona and the Rev. Donald Jackson — had less than one per cent each.

'Rubber stamp' Viet vote

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Sirens, brass bands, lion dances and priests played roles in "rehearsals" for a key step toward reunification of North and South Vietnam, the first combined election today for a national assembly.

But most Western observers expect the new body to rubber stamp programs presented to it by Vietnam's Communist Party, especially its northern branch.

A Japanese news agency reported from Saigon that "election rehearsals" were held Saturday to prepare voters amid a holiday almosphere provided by brass bands and lion dances parading down the city's streets.

Mass also was held at all Saigon's Roman Catholic churches Saturday so voters could take part in the vote today without having to miss services, a Hanoi broadcast said.

Officials ordered sirens to sound three times at 7 a.m. today to call voters to the 4,500 polling booths in Saigon, Kyodo news service said. Portable booths for the sick and aged would be provided, it added.

In Hanoi, Kyodo reported smiling portraits of Ho Chi Minh, and national flags were seen all over the city, giving it a festive air. Crowds of pedestrians enjoying outdoor performances blocked traffic, it said.

"From this election, a new regime will emerge, a regime of the people, for the people and by the people, a regime that will rebuild Vietnam into a strong and truly Socialist nation," Radio Hanoi said Saturday.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong and party First Secretary Truong Chinh are among the top Hanoi men running in the elections, and all are expected to win.

Hanoi is expected to be the capital of a unified Vietnam of 49 million persons. Although no date for reunification has yet been announced, the 492-member National Assembly is expected to began its tasks quickly.

THESE TASKS, according to North Vietnamese leaders, will include adopting a new constitution, passing laws, and coming up with "the new name of the state, the national flag, the national anthem, the national emblem (and) the capital city."

Eligible voters have been urged to choose 249 deputies from North Vietnam and 243 from the South to serve in the assembly.

There are 281 candidates running in the South and an undisclosed number in the North, all of them selected over the past few months by various revolutionary committees.

Campaigning for various candidates was forbidden in Saigon on the grounds that the choices have already been made.

In a related development, South Vietnam accused the United States Saturday of evading its obligation to help in its reconstruction.

TRAN Duong, the leader of the South Vietnamese delegation to the Asian Development Bank meeting in Jakarta, Indonesia, said the U.S. "went too far" by placing an embargo on Vietnam and by freezing all assets and accounts of South Vietnamese banks and individuals.

"These measures taken by the U.S. government have ... brought protests even from a number of American political figures and in particular from banking and business circles," Duong said.

He added that "in deciding to freeze substantial part of our international reserves, the U.S. government hoped to be able to suffocate our international economic relations. Such an act has indeed caused us certain difficulties."

Shiro Inoue, president of the Asian Development Bank, said the bank was ready to make efforts for reconstruction and rehabilitation of Vietnam regardless of the changes taking place there.

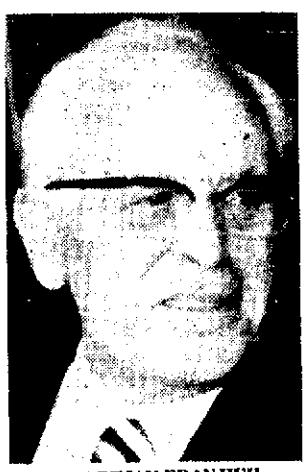

Inoue said the bank could either have Vietnam make a new application for membership after the country is unified or simply continue to accept South Vietnam as a member with an understanding that North Vietnam is included.

Franjieh OKs election for his successor

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Suleiman Franjieh, symbol of stiff Christian resistance to Moslem demands in Lebanon's bloody civil war, signed a constitutional amendment Saturday allowing immediate election of his successor. Joyous Moslem gunmen fired off machine-gun bursts in celebration.

On the fighting fronts, authorities estimated 54 persons were killed during the day, swelling the toll in the year-long war to more than 17,000. Beirut airport was closed for seven hours after the field was shelled for the second time this week. No one was killed or wounded.

Kissinger backs Africa majority

By BARRY SCHWEID

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — With a warning that "time is running out" for Rhodesia's white rulers, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Saturday began a two-week tour of Africa to demonstrate firm U.S. support for black majority rule and economic progress.

At the same time, sources in Kissinger's party denied they had said military aid to black nationalists was under consideration. They said possible economic support was not being ruled out.

Earlier, the Associated Press erroneously reported from London that U.S. officials said Kissinger might offer indirect military aid to black liberation movements.

A SENIOR official on Kissinger's plane told newsmen the United States had received no specific request for military aid from national movements or countries friendly to them.

When asked about reports, particularly in a Zambian newspaper, that military aid is being considered, the official said economic aid is possible and he did not want to make a judgment about precisely what the administration was going to do.

The official emphasized that Kissinger would not be receptive to any ultimatums from nationalist groups for military aid.

The administration has repeatedly warned the Soviet Union and Cuba against introducing troops in Africa for another Angola-like action, but it as never spelled out specifically what the U.S. response would be in that situation.

"THE FUTURE of Africa must be shaped by Africans," Kissinger said as he stepped from his silver and blue jet. "But I am here to assure you, unambiguously, that the United States will support Africa's aspirations and concretely assist your endeavors.

"I am not here to line up one group of African nations or one group of African movements against another. We believe that the problems of Africa, the aspirations of Africa can best be achieved through the unity of African nations and African movements," Kissinger said.

Kissinger arrived in Nairobi about an hour late because earlier talks with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland at a Royal Air Force base in Britain ran long.

Crosland reaffirmed the British government's intention not to take any action until "there is some sign that the white Rhodesians are prepared to accept an early move toward majority rule" in the colony, which declared independence from Britain in 1965.

Seal Beach couple killed in air crash

A Seal Beach couple was killed when their single-engine plane crashed while they were attempting to land at an abandoned airfield near the Grand Canyon, authorities said Saturday.

Dr. Phillip Creese, 59, and his wife Patricia, 52, of 333 First St., were pronounced dead shortly after 8 p.m. Friday by Coconino County sheriff's deputies at the old Grand Canyon Airport, about 15 miles southeast of Grand Canyon, Ariz.

Dr. Creese, a retired Air Force colonel with an instrument rating and more than 1,200 hours of flight experience, and his wife were on a "fly-in" to the Grand Canyon with a group of four other planes from the Beech Aero Club at Long Beach Airport.

Authorities at the new Grand Canyon Airport said it was not known why the Creeses had attempted to land their Beech Sierra at the field, which had been abandoned eight or nine years ago. The runway was torn up shortly after it was abandoned.

Deputies said the cause of the crash was still under investigation by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Dr. Creese operated the Manhattan Beach Medical Clinic at 515 N. Sepulveda Blvd. The Creeses had no children.

$500 offered for 2 in holdup-shooting

At 1:15 p.m. on April 1, a masked man and woman armed with pistols held up the National Environmental Corp., a food stamp headquarters at 22848 S. Western Ave. in the Torrance strip.

A woman started to enter the building, saw what was happening and started screaming. Joseph H. O'Connor, 35, proprietor of a grocery store next door, heard the screams and ran over.

SECRET WITNESS

The bandits, unnerved by the screams before getting any money, ran out of the store and bumped into O'Connor, who was approaching the door. One of the bandits shot him in the chest. The pair fled.

O'Connor still is alive at Harbor General Hospital, despite the fact that the bullet severed an artery.

Witnesses described the male gunman as a Latin or Caucasian in his late 20s, about 5 feet 10 inches tall and about 155 pounds. The woman was described as a "very attractive" blonde about 30, around 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighing about 130 pounds.

Secret Witness will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bandits.

If you have such information, call Secret Witness at 436-2526 between 8 a.m. and midnight on weekdays, or between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90803.

Shirley buoyed by response to 1-woman show

Combined News Services

Shirley MacLaine bubbled around New York this weekend proudly proclaiming that her one-woman show has broken every record at Broadway's prestigious Palace Theatre.

"Isn't it thrilling?" she asked, relaying management figures showing a gross of $154,000 to $155,000 for the first week. Bette Midler, ranked second as a money-getter at the Palace, pulled in only $103,000. Such great Palace names as Judy Garland and Liza Minelli weren't even close.

"On stage I feel the wonderful joy of interplay with the audience," Miss MacLaine said. "I can read their moods, feel how their spirits are. You can't do this in a movie."

Nor, when making a movie, can she get the crowds of 50 to 100 fans who wait for her at the stage door every night as she sweeps out after what are now routine ovations.

The box office and the acclaim, she admitted, are especially sweet since the show, which won raves at London's Palladium and on the West Coast, drew lacklustre reviews in New York.

Price spiral

Herbert Bienstock, regional commissioner of the Department of Labor's bureau of Labor Statistics, says most major Western European countries experienced greater consumer price increases than "did the United States in the period between 1970 and late 1975."

Bienstock noted that the U.S. consumer price index rose 41.5 per cent in the 1970-75 period but that price rises in Portugal, England, Greece, Spain, Finland, Italy, France, Belgium and Denmark "where above that."

Bankrupt

Pop singer B.J. Thomas faces creditors Monday in a bankruptcy hearing in Dallas to examine his list of debts and assets.

Thomas, who has had several hit songs in recent years, and his wife Gloria have listed debts of $265,028 and assets of $34,600. The list shows $113,000 of the debts to be taxes owed the federal government. Other debts include money owed to hotels, rent car companies, department stores in New York and the Southwest, and song writers Hal David and Burt Bacharach.

Among Thomas' more popular recordings have been "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head," "Hooked On A Feeling" and "Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song."

Myres S. Douglas, 69, who taught President Ford real-property law for three years at Yale Law School, received the American Society of International Law's Manley O. Other former students of the professor emeritus include Supreme Court justices Potter Stewart and Byron White, and Carla Hills, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Editor

Ralph Graves, last managing editor of Life magazine before it folded, has been named corporate editor for all Time Inc. publications. In his new job, Graves, 51, will be deputy to Editor-in-Chief Hedley Donovan.

Graves, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Harvard, joined Life as a researcher in 1948.

Miscast

Opera star Joan Sutherland's performance as Anna in the Vancouver, B.C., Opera Association production of the operetta "The Merry Widow" is being panned here as classic miscasting.

"Sutherland turning her talents to 'The Merry Widow' is the vocal equivalent of Charles Atlas attending to the problem of opening a new jar of pickles," wrote Susan Mertens of the Vancouver Sun, an evening newspaper.

Jamie Portman of Southam News Services said it was tempting to equate Miss Sutherland's debut Thursday with the first voyage of the Titanic. "But such a parallel would not be completely accurate," wrote Portman. "The Titanic, after all, did sink. Miss Sutherland, because of the invulnerability of her reputation ... is one of the unsinkable ones."

Timing

Barbara Walters said Friday that she would meet Monday with Richard Wald, president of NBC News, to discuss the timing of her departure from the network following her acceptance of a million-dollar contract from ABC. Miss Walter's current contract expires in September, but there has been speculation that she may leave NBC within the next few weeks. She says, "I'll stay as long as they want me to."

NBC spokesmen said no decisions would be made on a replacement for Miss Walters' spot on the "Today" show until her plans were definitely settled. It is expected that Betty Furness, the consumer reporter for the local News Center 4 on WNBC-TV, will fill in at least temporarily for Miss Walters.

Starring

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger will be one of the stars of a television film about the Supreme Court. So will Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. and retired Justice Tom C. Clark.

The half-hour color film is being prepared by the Young Lawyers Section of the Virginia Bar Association as part of the observance of Law Day, May 1. It will include a tour of the court hosted by court curator Catherine Skefos.

Rap improves

Activist H. Rap Brown, an inmate at Green Haven Correctional Facility, was listed in fair condition Saturday at the Putnam Community Hospital in Carmel, N.Y., where he was reported recovering from an abdominal infection.

Brown was expected to remain at the hospital at least another five days before returning to the state prison in Stormville. He is serving a term of up to 15 years on assault, robbery and weapons charges in a 1971 armed robbery in New York City. He becomes eligible for parole this October.

Shirley Temple and porno— an academic look at culture

By C. G. McDANIEL

CHICAGO (AP) — Question: What do Shirley Temple and pornography have in common?

Answer: For better or worse they're part of today's culture, and a thriving group of academics says they're worth studying.

Some 500 members of the Popular Culture Association wound up their three-day annual convention Saturday, presenting papers and talking about the meaning of such current phenomena as science fiction, blue jeans, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and country-and-western music.

The participants were serious academicians — specialists in history, English literature, journalism, speech, sociology and other fields.

What can such studies teach?

For one thing, the advocates say, all sorts of information can be obtained about a current hero or phenomenon that can't be learned about someone or something 200 years in the past.

One researcher referred to her subject — Shirley Temple, American hero — as "myth on the hoof."

Then, too, says the association's founder, Ray Browne of Bowling Green State University in Ohio, popular culture lets students examine the development of their own values. That throws the values into question, shaking students up and making them think.

"People are terrified sometimes of the world around them," says Ralph Carnes, philosophy professor and dean at Roosevelt University in Chicago. "If we deal with the present, we have to deal with change."

One common theme at the conference was that images are important in current society — sometimes more so than reality.

Carnes' wife Valerie, an English professor at Roosevelt, said in her paper that promoters of denim clothes, once made for the poor and working classes, are exploiting the young by charging outrageous prices for cheap goods. Carnes maintained that today's body builders are more interested in appearance than strength and health.

English teacher Michael Scott Cain of Catonsville, Md., Community College, said country-and-western music is being destroyed by Madison Avenue image makers. And Phyllis Boring of the Rutgers University Spanish department found that as a grownup ambassador to Ghana, Shirley Temple Black has failed match the success of child star Shirley Temple — partly because images of child and adult conflict.

Browne says popular culture studies are catching on and that the "open hostility" from traditional academics that he found 10 years ago is dying down.

The association, founded in 1969, now has about 2,000 members, with perhaps another 1,000 who belong only to regional groups. At least 1,000 colleges and universities are offering 5,000 courses in subjects which can be considered popular culture, Browne said.

The Carneses and Browne agreed on one reason for the increasing acceptance of popular culture: It is good business. Students enroll in these courses in large number, they said, and that is where the money is.

Foreigner gets Bicentennial job

U.S. fireworks firm does slow burn

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A $200,000 contract for a Bicentennial Fourth of July fireworks spectacular in the nation's capital has been awarded to a French firm.

And that angers the president of the nation's largest fireworks manufacturer, who says America's 200th birthday should be celebrated with fireworks from an American company.

"Ironic," says George Zambelli, head of Zambelli Fireworks Manufacturing Inc. in New Castle, 40 miles northwest of here.

"We never had a chance to bid competitively...It's the nation's capital and on public grounds and paid in part from the federal government.

"And we're further upset that as taxpayers with local unemployment of 11 per cent, a foreign company gets this contract."

Ruggieri, the French firm, was awarded the contract on April 1, a month after Zambelli met with Happy Birthday USA officials.

"There were no plans, no specs, no budget," Zambelli said. "I had no idea what they wanted."

Pat Pellerin, a spokesman for Happy Birthday USA, said in Washington that Ruggieri is the largest fireworks manufacturer in the world.

"Hmm, a lot of people would dispute that," said Zambelli. His firm has 35 employes.

Happy Birthday USA is a private Bicentennial company which received $100,000 from the government's American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) and donations from private corporations, said Pellerin.

"The money from ARBA is not being used for the fireworks," said Pellerin. "It's earmarked for other things."

Pellerin said five firms — three French companies, Zambelli and California Fireworks — were considered for the contract.

"We were looking for design capability, experience in producing a display on this scale," he said. This is the largest that's every been done." He said Zambelli's biggest job for Washington was $8,000 or $9,000.

Wrong, says Zambelli, his company has had contracts with Washington totaling $75,000 over the past 15 years. "We did an Honor America Day program in Washington in 1970 on two-week's notice. Got a crash assignment from the White House. The contract was for $17,000."

Zambelli says Lawrence Stinchcomb, president of Happy Birthday USA, argues that the contract was awarded to the French firm for several reasons, among them France's contribution to the Revolution and their giving the Statue of Liberty to the U.S.

"I love this, I love this," Zambelli said. "This overlooks that we're Americans and all that we as businesses and laborers and taxpayers have done and are doing for this country."

Teamsters locked into showdown with Busch

Knight News Service

The giant Teamsters union and August A. Busch III, head of the world's largest brewery, are locked in an economic showdown matching each other's capacity to stand up to the effects of a prolonged beer strike.

Nearly 8,000 Teamsters struck nine Anheuser-Busch Inc. plants two months ago over greater job security and unresolved grievances as Busch stood his ground warding off what he considered an infringement on management affairs.

As a result, Chicago is virtually bone dry on supplies of Budweiser and Michelob beers and taps are reduced to a trickle in many suburbs.

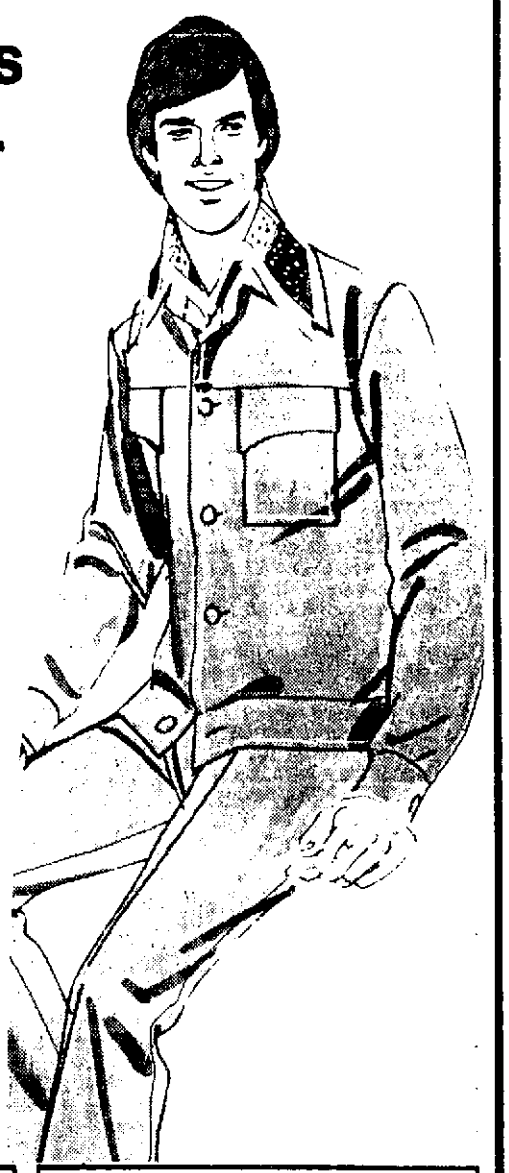

The battle, which started out as a labor-management confrontation on a new contract has spilled over into a bitter internal feud within the Teamsters union.

Robert F. Lewis, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 6 in St. Louis, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 6 in St. Louis, stands accused of aiding Busch's fight against the Teamsters' strike and undermining efforts of Frank Seban, head of the Teamsters National Conference of Brewery and Soft Drink Workers, to reach a national agreement.

Busch announced last week that the company is producing beer at 60 per cent of capacity and had made money in the last quarter. He said the company is ready for a long strike.

County cuts include L.B. General

Fate of elderly, alcoholic to be determined Monday

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

The County Department of Health Services will decide Monday the fate of the elderly and the alcoholics who turn to Long Beach General Hospital for help.

Its alcoholism program, one staff member pointed out, is the only one of its kind in the county's entire hospital system.

The health services department is $16.7 million over budget, however, a department spokesman said, and services may be reduced severely. Just how much will be allocated will be decided Monday by department leaders at their offices in Los Angeles.

LONG BEACH General Hospital is regarded as the step-child of the massive Los Angeles County Hospital system, even though it offers a general treatment program as well as services to the elderly and the alcoholic, said a medical administrator who asked that his name be withheld.

"It's a place where they put the programs they just don't know what to do with," he said. "You've heard the phrase 'out of sight, out of mind'...well, that's us.

"Alcoholism-detoxification is one of those programs people would just as soon forget," he continued. "There's nothing pretty about being drunk.

"BECAUSE WE live in a drug and booze-oriented society," he said, "alcoholism is a gut level problem that hits pretty close to home."

Dr. Vernelle Fox, chief of the hospital's alcoholism-detoxification program, had this to say:

"When we talk about alcoholism in Long Beach, we're not talking about the walking dead from skid row. We're talking about friends and family."

"About 50 per cent of our patients are from the Long Beach area and we treat about 2,000 a year.

"SOCIETY wouldn't tolerate knowing so little about a physical illness as they do about alcoholism," she continued. "There's a cultural attitude we have to deal with.

"We don't have pills or surgeries to treat alcoholism. Most people think of treatment as just sobering up.

"Recovery, however, is a three-year process.

"The average age of our patients is 37. When I first started working with alcoholics 26 years ago, the average age was around 50."

In addition she said "about 45 per cent of our patients are mixed substance (alcohol and perscription drugs) abusers.

"THEY'RE STILL stoned," she said. "Their breath just smells different.

"Let's face some facts," she continued.

" We (society) drink but we don't like to think we drink. Alcohol is deep-rooted in our culture and as cultural beings, we're pretty damn tough on each other.

"We condemn psychological problems rather than understand them."

The average stay for inpatient care is 28 days, Dr. Fox said.

About 70 persons are treated each day as out-patients, she added.

THE SUCCESS rate, according to Dr. Fox, is 55 per cent — slightly above the national average.

But the program's contribution is even greater than the 55 per cent figure indicates, she said.

"We are also actively engaged in educating the public about alcoholism and you can't measure what you prevent."

Later, outside the administration building, the sun was shining and the day was comfortably warm.

A group of women sat in a circle on the lawn. They had two things in common: They were alcoholics and they had decided they needed help.

"I'd be a damn liar if I told you I don't crave booze now. But I'd be damn crazy if I went back to that kind of life. That's why I'm here, to keep from going crazy."

"I USED TO wake up ill every morning," one young woman said quietly. "I knew I had to do something, but hell, there was a whole day of loneliness out there just waiting to gobble me up.

"It would start as soon as I opened my eyes in the morning. And it would eat at my insides until I had that first drink.

"I'd be a damn liar if I told you I don't crave booze now. But I'd be damn crazy if I went back to that kind of life. That's why I'm here, to keep from going crazy."

She wiped a wisp of honey-blonde hair out of her eyes and looked over at the traffic on Redondo Avenue and Willow Street. "I was 16 when I started drinking. I dropped out of Wilson High School. I'm 22 now."

IN ANOTHER part of the hospital, Dr. Robert Sandhoff, an administrator in the medical sector of the facility called Area 1, walked down the hall.

Several patients greeted him by name.

He paused occasionally to speak to them. He knew them by name, too.

He's a popular man, and this hospital is a large chunk of his life, an aide explained later.

Sandhoff was deeply concerned about the threatened cutbacks.

"We're a small hospital," he said. "We know our patients by name — there's no referring to a patient as 'the ulcer in bed eight' at this facility.

"WHAT'S GOING to happen to the people here... who knows?" he shrugged. "Most people in the Long Beach area don't even know what we do here... let alone that we run a full medical program."

An elderly woman walked down the hall, fingers gripping the steel bar that runs the length of the hospital corridor.

Her thick gray hair was swept up into a top knot held in place by a small comb. She looked at the floor with liquid blue eyes, opened her mouth as if to say something, and then changed her mind and walked slowly away.

"WE HAVE a lot of isolated, lonely people here," social worker Mary Siegfried said. "They have nowhere else to go... so they come here."

The threatened cutback would eliminate one-third of the hospital's 300 beds.

Included would be the elimination of ambulatory health care at El Cerrito Hospital (the old Seaside Hospital on Magnolia Avenue) that currently cares for the bulk of mental health patients in the Long Beach area.

According to Dr. Eton Blum, Long Beach City Health officer, El Cerrito handles about 2,500 ambulatory-care patients a month.

BLUM TOLD the City Council early last week that the city health department sees about 2,200 patients per month. He warned that county patients could not be absorbed into the city health care plan without a substantial increase in (city) staff.

If the budget, which will be presented to the County Health Services Department, is severely cut, it will put a strangle-hold on county mental health care in Long Beach, those involved in the program believe.

It also will probably mean the loss of long-term patient care at Long Beach General.

"There would be no room for the gray-haired ladies," one staff member said.

"The old and the alcoholic," he continued, "are two of society's step-children. They've been finding help at the hospital — and it's going broke in a society of plenty."

Time's only relative

So you lost an hour last night

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

Time flew this morning, which explains why that basketball game on television was an hour early.

The explanation is really quite simple:

Daylight saving time (DST), an idea credited to Ben Franklin and propagated early in this century by British builder William Willett, started today at 2 a.m., as it does every spring.

Well, almost every spring. It didn't start last spring because it hadn't ended. Congress decided to extend DST as an energy conservation experiment.

Congress later decided one year was long enough for that experiment, and the nation returned to standard time last October.

As a result of DST's return, 2 a.m. was 3 a.m. this morning.

Spring forward, fall back, you'll remember.

Time, as measured by clocks and designated by law, literally jumped a beat this morning, just as it stands still each October.

This is possible because time is subjective.

In fact, modern physics recognizes time as being a relative matter in the universe, thereby opening the door for a whole school of science-fiction writing.

PROF. Nando L. Balazs, former research associate of the Enrico Fermi Institute of Nuclear Studies, wrote this to explain Albert Einstein's theory of time for the Encyclopedia Britannica:

Einstein, in explaining the nature of the space-time continuum, wrote that the change from "subjective" time to prescientific concepts of time was tied to the emergence of the idea "there is a real, external world independent of the subject." (For example, alarm clocks.)

In this world, says Balazs, time is measured by clocks, whose nature is clear if the event "occurs in the immediate vicinity of the clock in space."

However, he says, once the nature of the propagation of light in space was known, it was clear as light that "no absolute meaning can be assigned to the conception of the simultaneity of events that occur at points separated by a distance in space," which seems a very lucid defense for those who are late to work.

In other words, time is relative. Or, to use a literary approach and quote Shakespeare: "Vat is de clock, Jack? Tis past the hour."

6 arrested, $330,000 in pot seized

Six men were arrested and $330,000 worth of marijuana seized Saturday as narcotics officers wrapped up a four-day investigation with three El Monte area raids.

Investigators said part of the 169 kilos of marijuana was seized and three of the men arrested when officers from the El Monte and Los Angeles police departments raided homes at 14101 and 14102 Proctor St., La Puente, about 12:15 a.m.

Two others were arrested and the rest of the marijuana seized at a home at 11520 Magnolia St., El Monte. The sixth man was arrested near the Five Point Bowl in El Monte.

Police said they were led to the homes by an informant who told them he had purchased marijuana from the men.

ANIMAL DUNG PILES UP AT SAN FRANCISCO ZOO, CLOSED BECAUSE OF STRIKE
—AP Wirephoto

Strike hits S.F. life-style

By TIM REITERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The famous cable car turntable at Powell and Market Streets is deserted, and garbage gathers where thousands of people normally do.

A new stream runs through Golden Gate Park, fed by one of 90 broken pipes leaking 1½ million gallons of water a day.

Tons of animal dung are piled along zoo walkways, usually crowded with tourists.

At International Airport, portable outhouses are set up in parking lots; many bathrooms are closed, and the restaurants are washing dishes in cold water.

Downtown workers hitchhike, high school students walk or bike miles to classes, and the elderly generally stay home.

No one disputes that the 3½-weekone strike by 1,800 city crafts workers has cramped the style of "the city that knows how." Inconvenience and expense have been the major impact to date, but city officials express concern that more serious effects might occur if the dispute continues.

"The water department situation is of grave concern," said a city official who declined to be identified. "Some of the men still working are working 16 hours a day. Any reasonable person wonders how long this can go on. It's a risky situation. Suppose a pumping station needs to be shut down for repairs?"

Only 14 of more than 300 water workers are on the job.

Ed Brodie, superintendent of construction and maintenance for the Water Department, said, "If there's a major emergency, all we can do is shut down the mains and ask the strikers, 'What're you going to do?' "

"The situation's critical," said Burton Dougherty, general manager of the Electricity Department, where only 31 of 116 workers were on the job. "If we had a serious emergency, we have inadequate personnel to cope with it."

Since the strike began March 31, shutting down the city's Sierra Nevada power plant at Hetch Hetchy Dam, San Francisco also has lost about $850,000 in revenue from electricity sold to other communities.

Revenue loss also is the major strike impact at the city zoo which has been shut down by 25 striking animal keepers. Director Saul Kitchener, who is working along with several nonstrikers, projects that $100,000 in gate and concessions revenue will be lost in April.

"It's not affecting the animals," he said. "We're cleaning the animal cages and feeding them as usual." But, he ads, "The dung, debris and hay is piling up. Hippos, rhinos and elephants produce quite a bit, you know."

The city plumbers, electricians, carpenters, machinists, laborers, gardeners and streetsweepers struck to protest pay cuts ordered by supervisors. Attempts to set up negotiations have failed, and the Board of Supervisors has refused to agree to mediation until workers return to their jobs.

The shutdown of the city buses by a sympathy walkout of drivers has inconvenienced not only the 250,000 daily riders but also thousands of motorists who must put up with new traffic and parking headaches.

Municipal Railway officials said they received about 2,000 calls in the first 1½ days of a car pool system. But they said about 80 per cent of the callers were seeking rides, not offering.

On Monday, school officials say teams of teachers will be stationed at eight public library branches to give assignments, makeup work and tutoring for strike-stranded students. Students also can do makeup work by listening to the school district's educational radio station.

No state approval reported

Burke health-plan pay told

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Companies controlled by the husband of Rep. Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, D-Calif., got thousands of dollars from a prepaid health plan last year without State Health Department approval, the Sacramento Bee reported Saturday.

The newspaper said some department officials said the payments appeared to violate department regulations, but another official said the payments did not appear to violate state law.

The Bee said William Burke of Los Angeles was paid the money through two companies which got it from the health plan, Omni-Rx.

In addition, the newspaper said, though both of Burke's companies are incorporated, it could find no evidence that one of the two was operating.

Burke is listed as marketing director of Omni-Rx, the Bee said. There were no allegations in the article about Mrs. Burke.

The newspaper said a federal audit of Omni-Rx began after Thomas Moore, then the state's top investigator of prepaid health plans, said he had found evidence that $2,000 a month was purportedly being funneled into a company which really did not exist.

Moore has since been fired by State Health Director Jerome Lackner. Moore blames the firing on political pressure from Omni-Rx. Dr. Lackner says one reason for the firing was that Moore's proposed regulations for the plans were too rigid and unrealistic.

Federal officials have not yet commented on the findings of their audit.

Prepaid health plans were instituted under former Gov. Ronald Reagan as an alternative to state-run Medi-Cal. The 30 existing private plans provide health care to needy persons and are reimbursed on a per-patient basis by the state.

REP. YVONNE BURKE

The Bee said Moore disclosed that Omni-Rx paid $2,000 a month for 10 months last year to Burke's California Physician Consultants.

The newspaper said California Physician Consultants was not listed in Los Angeles-area telephone books, and it said health-care investigators and others in the field said they had never heard of the firm.

Burke said both his companies were properly incorporated and declined to comment further, the Bee said.

The article quoted state health officials as saying OmniRx paid "sizable" monthly amounts to the second Burke firm, Comprehensive Planning Consultants, Inc., including $2,500 checks to Burke.

The latter payments were said by Omni-Rx officials to pay the salaries of employes who enrolled Medi-Cal patients into the health plan, the Bee said.

The newspaper said its sources reported neither firm had a subcontract from OmniRx. It quoted some Health Department officials as saying department-approved subcontracts were required for such payments.

But Robert Ledbetter, chief of the department's program-compliance section for prepaid health plans, said there appeared to be nothing illegal about the payments under state law.

Omni-Rx Vice President Merve Nowell confirmed payment to California Physician Consultants but declined other comment about his company's relationship to either Burke firm.

In another development, the Bee said Rep. John Moss, Sacramento Democrat, reported that Nowell distributed a 17-point fact sheet among members of Congress attacking Moore.

The document said Moore had been promoting a $5.3-million federal grant for a Sacramento public-health plan which lacked safeguards against racial discrimination.

That plan was a central issue in Moore's firing. Moore says it would be a pilot project that set standards for health plan rates, illustrating his contention that many plans are making inordinate profits. Nowell contended that minority-run plans like Omni-Rx aren't treated as well.

Several published accounts say Burke has been lobbying his wife's congressional colleagues against federal money for the plan and has received the support of the congressional Black Caucus.

Lackner's superior, Health and Welfare Secretary Mario Obledo, has resisted approving a portion of the grant money for the plan.

"A lot of minority foundations are being treated differently than the others," Obledo said.

"It seems unjust that minority PHPs should go under while the foundation has been overpaid (a reference to a critical federal report on the Moore-affiliated Sacramento plan), and still we give them more money."

ALRB chief denies bias, says most votes unanimous

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The chairman of California's bankrupt farm labor board says that, despite allegations of bias against him and two other members, virtually all of the board's rulings were unanimous.

Only five of the 72 decisions by the five-member Agricultural Labor Relations Board had dissenters, and in only one instance did the three accused members side against the other two, said the 82-page "white paper" released by Bishop Roger Mahony, the ALRB chairman.

The unanimous rulings included the ALRB's access rule, a focus of grower protests. It allows union organizers to enter fields three times a day.

Grower opposition has cut off the ALRB's funds in the Legislature and halted farm labor elections. Growers and the Teamsters Union contend the board is biased in favor of Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers of America, which has won a majority of the elections.

Board members Joe Ortega, Leroy Chatfield and Joseph Grodin and the board's top staffer, general counsel Walter Kintz, have resigned. Many of the board's employes have already found other work.

Ortega, Chatfield and Mahony are the three board members accused by growers of bias. Mahony says he has no intention of resigning.

An ALRB funding bill is stalled in the State Senate despite support from Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., and backers say they are still about three votes short of passage.

Meanwhile, the UFW is trying to qualify a farm labor initiative for the November ballot. It would protect the law — including the access rule — from amendments or a future cutoff of funding.

The report released by Mahony said many allegations against the ALRB "were simply vague and sweeping generalizations."

It said others "were generally based on misinformation or confusion about the board's processes — and were generally contradicted by available facts."

It denied allegations that an ALRB employe wore a belt buckle with a UFW insignia, that other officials wore UFW buttons and that ALRB members and employes put UFW bumper stickers on their cars.

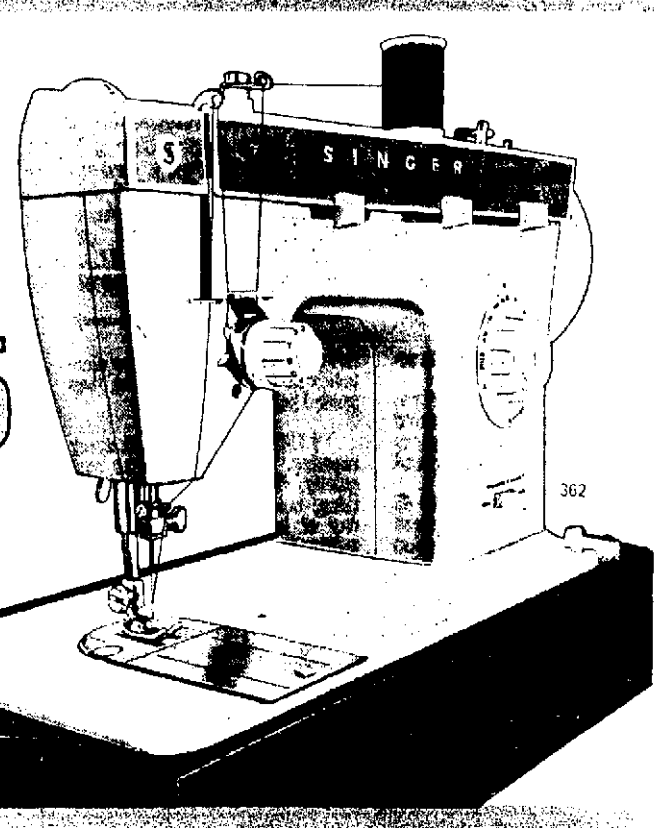

The belt buckle insignia was an American Indian eagle, not the UFW thunderbird; the buttons were worn by UFW poll observers, not board officials; and union members of both sides often stuck their bumper stickers on state cars without the officials' knowledge, the report said.

The report said the board had to hire hearing officers hastily and without always following civil service procedures, but denied that they were inexperienced or pro-UFW.

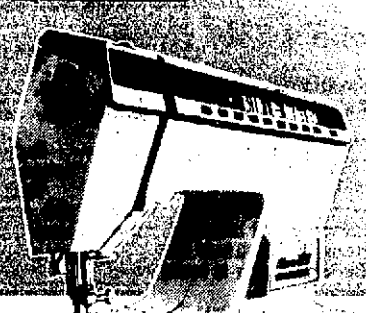

The report also conceded some elections were not held within the legally required seven days of a requesting petition, but said only one instance was found to be unfair and that election was set aside.

Brown set to decide on trips

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will announce this week when and where he will travel outside California in search of Democratic presidential delegates, his campaign director said Saturday.

"He's reaching a decision this weekend, and we'll make an announcement (this) week," said Mickey Kantor.

But he denied a report in the Sacramento Union that Brown has tentatively decided to go to Maryland Tuesday and stay at least three days.

"AT SOME point, I have to go out of state — that's clear," Brown told the Union Friday.

At another point, he said, "Obviously, I'm considering Maryland and Nevada."

The 38-year-old governor has not left California since he took office in January of last year. His campaign for president, announced March 12, has consisted so far of press interviews, speeches and fund-raising appearances.

Some Maryland political figures, including Baltimore County Executive Ted Venetoulis, have been urging Brown to visit the state and campaign actively for its 53 convention delegates in the May 18 primary.

ONE WEEK later, Brown is on the primary ballot in Nevada, with 11 delegates at stake. He is also entered in California's 280-delegate primary June 8.

The Union said former New York Congressman Allard Lowenstein, leader of the 1968 dump-Johnson movement in the Democratic Party and now a Brown political adviser, has spent the past few days in Maryland.

Cal State faculty eases feud

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A policy of "noncooperation" with Sacramento State University President James Bond has been rejected by the school's faculty.

With 70 per cent of the teachers voting, the count was 349-285 against the proposal by the Faculty Senate.

The proposal, the latest attack in a long-standing feud, said noncooperation might entail refusing to tell the administration about student grades, refusing to serve on campus committees or boycotting graduation ceremonies.

Teacher groups have warred with Bond over the authority to name department chairmen and other issues. The most recent dispute involved the Bond-engineered firing of Eugene Morris, head of a campus foundation.

Bond said Morris wasn't able to work with the university administration. But Morris said Bond was trying to block Morris's investigation of expense-money payments.

Bond, who has been negotiating with faculty leaders, said the vote "shows that the voice of reason still exists on the campus."

A Victoria flu takes high toll

ATLANTA (AP) — The A Victoria flu, now below epidemic threshold in most of the United States, claimed more victims this year than any influenza epidemic since 1969, the Center for Disease Control said Saturday.

The CDC said preliminary estimates indicated there were 11,000 more flu-related deaths because of the epidemic than would have been expected in nonepidemic times.

That represented the highest number of "excess deaths" since the Hong Kong epidemic of 1968-1969, when there were 12,700 more deaths than expected in the U.S., the CDC said.

The CDC said in its weekly report that the outbreak has fallen below the epidemic threshold nationally for the first time in 11 weeks and is at or below the threshold in all but two of nine reporting areas.

The CDC, working with statistics from previous, nonepidemic years, establishes an expected number of flu-related deaths and considers the epidemic threshold to be reached when deaths exceed the expected number by 50 or more.

The Pacific and West South-Central regions were the only two areas that remained above the threshold in the CDC's latest report.

The CDC also reported what it said appeared to be the first recorded incident of contamination of a public water supply by chlordane, a pesticide, with toxic symptoms appearing in several persons.

The incident occurred in Chattanooga, Tenn., March 24 when several persons noticed a change in the color and odor of their tap water, the report said. A survey reached 45 of the 49 affected households and found four persons with probable poisoning symptoms.

The chemical possibly entered the water supply when someone using chlordane to exterminate termites attempted to dilute it with water from a garden hose and allowed the hose to drop below the level of the chemical, the CDC said.

The chemical may then have been sucked into the water supply because of fluctuating pressure.

Pacific Islands 'disaster area'

The designation makes federal funds available for relief and recovery work.

Nation hit with rain, snow, tornado watch

Associated Press

Rain prevailed over much of the nation Saturday.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over most of the Mississippi Valley, Eastern Plains and parts of the Ohio Valley and Central Great Lakes Region.

Rivers and streams were rising throughout much of the central portion of the nation.

Skies were mostly sunny, and temperatures were mild, along the South Atlantic Coast. The same held true for the Central and Southern Rockies, the Great Basin, much of the Southwest and the Central and Western Plains. It was sunny and cool in New England.

Temperatures ranged from 35 degrees at Watertown, S.D., to 92 in Goldsboro and Rocky Mount, N.C.

Oil firms discuss drilling with Viets

NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of private U.S. oil explorations resuming off the coast of Vietnam is being disussed with the Vietnamese, this nation's former enemy, Mobil Oil Corp. said Saturday night.

Despite the lack of diplomatic or trade relations between the two countries, Mobil has been meeting with Vietnamese officials in an effort to reopen exploration off Vietnam, which fell to the Communists about a year ago, an official spokesman for Mobil said.

A second source, a Mobil executive who did not wish to be identified, said the company has met in Paris with high-ranking Vietnamese leaders four times since last July.

"We have had two meetings with the South Vietnamese Provisional Government and two others with officials from Hanoi," said the source.

The New York Times reported in its editions today that several American and other Western oil companies were meeting with the Vietnamese about exploration and drilling in the South China Sea.

The Times listed the firms having been involved in drilling off the South Vietnamese Coast when Saigon fell: Exxon, Union Texas, Skelly, Marathon, Shell and Cities Service.

A spokesman for Exxon, the largest oil company in the nation, said Saturday, "We have not had any negotiations with the Vietnamese. We were not as advanced in Southeast Asia as some of the other companies were."

The other firms could not be reached for comment immediately.

The Mobil source said, "I don't know what the other companies are doing. We are studying the possibility of going in. The State Department has been informed of such conversations we have had. But the department has not been involved."

The State Department declined comment.

"The pace will depend on the Vietnamese. It will depend on the kind of deals they are willing to make," the Mobil source continued, characterizing the talks as "meetings," not "negotiations."

"I have no knowledge of any terms that the Vietnamese have put forward," he said. "I don't think anyone is negotiating yet."

Big American oil lost millions when Vietnam fell, although oil research in that part of Asia was still in the exploration stages.

Last August, Nguyen Huu Tho, chairman of the National Liberation Front's central committee, said Saigon was prepared to permit foreign countries to exploit South Vietnam's offshore oil deposits if they respected Saigon's "sovereignty and independence."

Since then, French and Canadian firms have openly asked for drilling permits in the South China Sea.

The United States placed a trade embargo on North Vietnam during the war but has granted exceptions to permit limited export of humanitarian aid, primarily medical supplies, to Hanoi by such groups as the American Friends Service Committee.

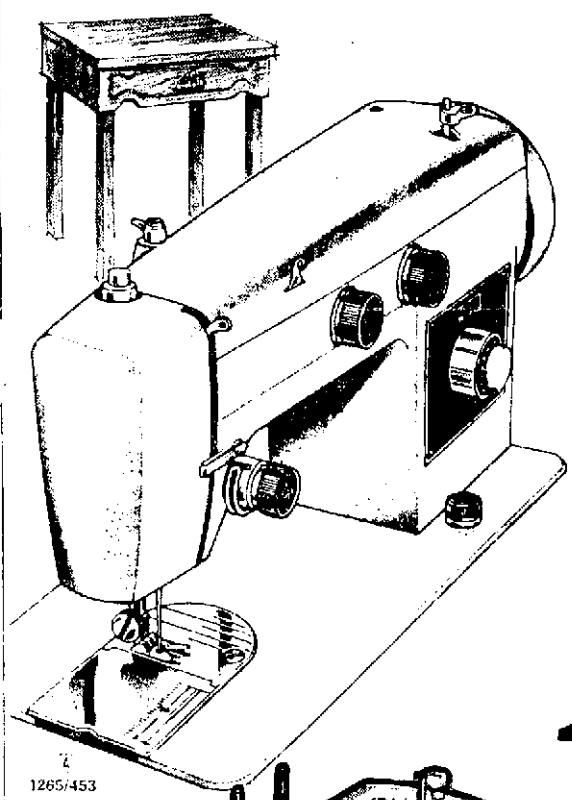

Last December, members of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia talked with Vietnamese representatives in Paris. Committee chairman G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., said lifing the trade embargo was one of the steps that the Vietnamese saw as necessary for improved relations with the United States.

Since then, there have been moves in Congress to do so.

However, on Friday, President Ford said the United States has no intention of normalizng relations with North Vietnam.

Leaders in crisis: Andrew Jackson

Old Hickory and war's dress rehearsal

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

Seventh of a series

Ludicrous, it seems, but great issues lay hidden behind the skirts of Andrew Jackson's "petticoat war."

On the surface, the battle raged over the virtues, or lack of same, of the new bride of Jackson's Tennessee crony and secretary of war, John Henry Eaton. Peggy Eaton, born to a Georgetown publican named O'Neale, had been an unholy Grail for pursuing men from teen-age, when her charms led a Navy secretary's nephew to suicide while her elopement with another was foiled only because she kicked over a flowerpot while exiting her bedroom window, awakening her father.

When Eaton took the recently widowed Peggy to the altar after apparently having taken her to bed, proper wives of Jackson's official family, particularly Mrs. John C. Calhoun, would have nothing to do with the newlyweds. Jackson, whose frontier marriage had caused such buckskin gossip that he killed a man in a duel defending his wife's honor, almost pathologically insisted his Cabinet receive Peggy as a lady.

Of deeper significance behind the "O'Neale malaria," however, was the rivalry between Vice President John Calhoun and Secretary of State Martin Van Buren over succession to Jackson. And deeper than that was the gradual emergence of the hard-eyed Calhoun as leader and theoretician of what was to become secession.

It was not a new doctrine. In 1798, Kentucky and Virginia in separate Resolves had talked of states' authority to disregard the federal Alien and Sedition Acts of John Adams. But only talked. New England states talked of secession at the Hartford Convention over Jefferson's Embargo Act. But only talked!

South Carolina, meantime, was going from riches to rags. Cotton inexorably exhausted her soil. Her once-wealthy planters suffered from high tariffs that protected New England manufacturers but made oppressively expensive the prices the planters paid for imported goods and brought retaliation abroad against their agricultural exports. The "Tariff of Abominations" of 1828, politically designed to help get Jackson elected president, which it did, only added to the woes of South Carolina. But with Calhoun, a native son, as Jackson's vice president, the Palmetto State looked for easier times.

Widening breach with Southerners

And there was reasn to hope. Jackson, the hero of the Battle of New Orleans as well as campaigns against the Creeks and Seminoles, looked the other way as Georgia encroached with impunity on the federal reserve of the increasingly civilized Cherokees. In 1832, when the Supreme Court under Chief Justice John Marshall ruled against Georgia, Jackson said: "John Marshall has made his decision: now let him enforce it."

Such sentiments gave heart to Southerners who might have overlooked the fact that Jackson, who was himself born in the Carolinas, at age 9 had read the newly-arrived Declaration of Independence to his illiterate frontier neighbors.

Had those same Southerners forgotten that at a banquet they gave at the Indian Queen Hotel in Washington in 1830 to woo the president, he had risen in toast while glaring pointedly at Calhoun to say: "The Union: it must be preserved"? Did they think a man not by accident called Old Hickory would forget Calhoun's reply: "The Union: next to our liberty, the most dear"? Did they think a man who bore the scar of a British dragoon's sword on his forehead would forget patriotism? Or a man who still carried in his arm the ball from the pistol of Sen. Thomas Hart Benton's brother in a long-ago fracas would forget honor?

If so, they were wrong. Jackson did not forget scars, physical or emotional.

Nor did Jackson forget that Mrs. Calhoun had led the boycott of Peggy Eaton. Nor that Calhoun, himself, had years ago, when James Monroe's Secretary of War, advocated arresting Jackson for overzealous prosecution of the Seminole campaign, a fact adroitly and belatedly brought to the president's attention by Van Burenites.

Such intrigue and the Peggy Eaton foolishness only symbolized the gap had widened between Jackson and his vice president. Without publicizing his parenthood. Calhoun in 1828 had sired the theory of nullification by which he reasoned that a single state — not all of them, as proposed in the Kentucky and Virginia Resolves — could override the acts of the federal government, the Constitution being a compact of sovereign entities.

By 1832, South Carolinians, misreading Jackson's tolerance of Georgia's defiance of federal authority, were audibly discussing nullifying the onerous tariff of 1828. Jackson brought a South Carolinian congressman up short, however. "Tell ... (the Nullifiers) from me ... if one drop of blood be shed there in defiance of the laws of the United States, I will hang the first man of them I can get my hands on to the first tree I can find."

Benton, who knew his man and had made peace with him, cautioned: "When Jackson begins to talk about hanging, they can begin to look for the ropes."

That September, the Nullifiers won a landslide election to the South Carolina legislature. Reports reached Jackson at his home, the Hermitage near Nashville, that federal troops were prepared to turn over the harbor forts in Charleston to state troops. Jackson sped off to Washington. "By the God in Heaven, I will uphold the laws!" he roared, crashing his fist so heavily on a table he broke his pipe. The president hastily sent grenades and rockets to his Unionist leader in South Carolina, Joel Poinsett, more permanently known for having imported the poinsettia from Mexico.

On Nov. 23, South Carolina declared all tariffs void after Feb. 1, 1833. Jackson promptly sent seven revenue cutters and a ship of war to Charleston, where they trained their guns on the fashionable homes along the waterfront. The post office in Charleston being in the hands of the Nullifiers, Jackson sent a courier to Poinsett with a message: "No state has a right to secede ... Nullification therefore means insurrection and war, and other states have a right to put it down ..."

He asked Congress for authority for federal troops to collect duties in Charleston and prepared to send up to 15,000 soldiers there in 10 or 15 days with himself possibly at their head. South Carolinians rushed to arms and conflict drew nigh.

A proclamation ordering any resisters to disperse or face a federal army was hurried south to Poinsett. It was never delivered. The courier met a northbound messenger en route with news that South Carolina had yielded, accepting a modified tariff put forward by that artful compromiser, Henry Clay.

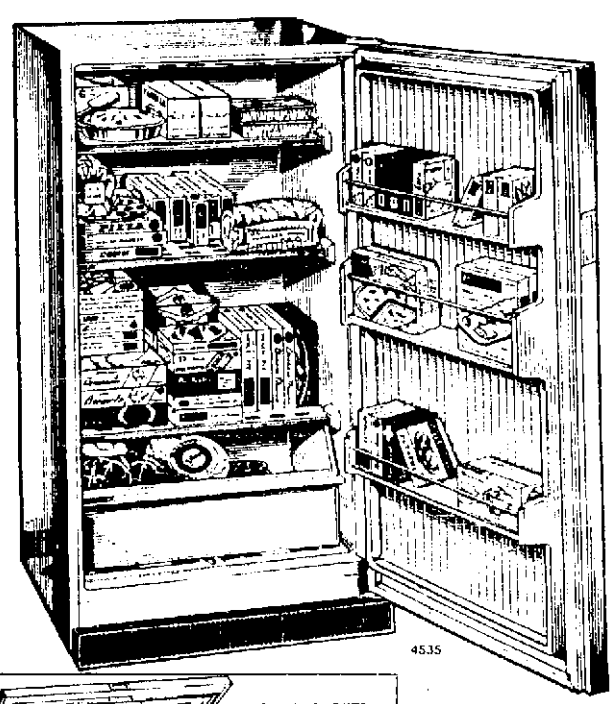

Far off in Illinois, a gangling youth named Lincoln read Jackson's proclamation with studied interest. And Old Hickory, himself, well knew what lay at the very depth of his gathering feud with Calhoun. "The next pretext," he said, "will be the Negro or slavery question." And there would be no Jackson to bang his fist, or reach for a rope, not until too late.

Democrats in Alaska finished selecting their 10-vote delegation and polling showed that most or all delegates would be uncommitted. The Virgin Islands picked its delegation and officials said their three votes would also be uncommitted.

Reagan, who claims the South and Southwest will provide the delegates to win him the GOP nomination, outdid both his own and Ford's predictions in Arizona. Reagan strategists had predicted a 3-to-1 margin in delegates, and Ford strategists had claimed they would capture about a third of the delegates.

IN OKLAHOMA, all GOP delegates, by party rules, are uncommitted officially, but unofficially the support for Reagan was reported to be overwhelming. Tulsa and Oklahoma counties, which account for 40 per cent of the total at the state convention that picks delegates, were running heavily for Reagan, with his 4-to-1 margin in the precinct caucuses holding in Oklahoma County.

Similar Reagan support appeared in other counties and in only one, Ottawa County, was Ford even breaking even.

Eighteen of the state's 36 national convention delegates will be chosen May 8 at six district conventions. The remaining 18 will be chosen May 15 at the state convention in Oklahoma City. At Saturday's 77 county conventions, 740 delegates were chosen for the district conventions and 1,481 were picked for the state convention.

All this was a preface to Tuesday's presidential primary in Pennsylvania, a major showdown in the Democratic race among Udall, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington.

The Pennsylvania primary is a two-phase election: a presidential vote, which is advisory, not binding; and selection of delegates who will make up the third biggest delegation at the Democratic national convention.

Carter, who won six of the first eight primaries, said he would win the Pennsylvania popularity contest if "the people of Pennsylvania vote fairly heavily."

Jackson entered the Pennsylvania competition saying he would win, but later said the preferential balloting would be close.

"I THINK I'm going to win the delegate contest because of a good slate of delegates and a good organization," he said.

Udall said he would be satisfied with second place in Pennsylvania. "Somebody is going to be third in Pennsylvania and it won't be Mo Udall," he said.

Pennsylvania Democrats will be electing delegates for 134 of their 178 seats at the national convention. The rest will be chosen by the state committee to reflect the lineup of elected delegates.

Reagan passed up Pennsylvania to campaign in more promising states. His next test with President Ford will be in Texas on May 1.

In other political activity Saturday:

—Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, another Democratic nomination candidate, said at an Omaha, Neb., news conference that he was encouraged by his support so far in Nebraska. Church faces his first primary test since announcing his candidacy in Nebraska's May 11 primary.

"We still have some distance to go in Nebraska, but then we started from square one," Church said as he wrapped up three days of campaigning in Nebraska.

—President Ford shook hands with tourists Saturday as the White House garden was opened to the public. Ford is spending the weekend in Washington working and relaxing before a four-day campaign trip to Texas beginning Tuesday. Reagan was in his home state of California this weekend with campaigning set in Indiana and Georgia on Tuesday.

In Frankfort, Ky., Ford's campaign chairman predicted Ford will go to the Republican convention with enough votes to win the nomination on the first ballot.

Rogers C.B. Morton, attending the Kentucky GOP convention, told newsmen, "We made a target of the election rather than the convention."

Reagan and Ford are the only national Republican candidates entered in Kentucky's first presidential primary May 25.

—In Washington, sources reported that Vice President Nelson Rockefeller suggested to Time magazine in January that it investigate Jackson's staff.

According to the sources, Rockefeller met with about 40 reporters and executives of Time magazine on Jan. 12 in an off-the-record session and implied that there was infiltration of Senate staffs by Communists.

Rockefeller refused to name the staffers, the sources said, but as he was leaving, the newsmen insisted on more details and Rockefeller said they should look into Jackson's staff.

Rockefeller and Jackson have been at odds in the past few days over reports that Rockefeller repeated this accusation at a private session in Atlanta.

—Alabama Gov. George Wallace, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said in Harlingen, Tex., that he would not accept the vice presidential nomination if it were offered. Wallace made the comment after a brief speech at the Confederate Air Force Flying Museum in Harlingen.

Wallace said at a news conference that his campaign was "not in debt, but I don't have the money to have the media campaign necessary. I don't intend to go into debt."

The Supreme Court Friday refused to allow the Federal Election Commission to pay candidates more than $1.4 million in matching funds until the Congress and President Ford agree on a bill to revive the commission. The court in January ordered that the commission must be reconstituted before more money could be paid out.

Watergate was inevitable, former Nixon adviser says

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— The Watergate scandal "was a culmination of a lot of things gathering steam that had been going on for a long time," a former Nixon administration official said here Saturday.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy press secretary for Nixon said, "Watergate would have happened sometime in our lifetime." He said it is also possible that future generations will face their own Watergates because the nation's institutions have to rely on people.

Warren, currently editor of the San Diego Union, is a Hastings native and a graduate of University of Nebraska in Lincoln. Warren, 45, spoke before the Nebraska Press Associaton's 102nd annual convention.

He said the scandal that drove Richard Nixon from the White House has led to "a redefining of our principles."

"We'll be more vigilant. We'll be more responsible in the future," Warren added in commenting on Watergate in response to questions following his formal presentation.

Noting that the public is relying more and more on broadcast media for most of its news, Warren said, "I shudder at the prospect of their being the sole protectors of our freedoms."

He suggested that "perhaps the time has come for editors and publishers to get out and rub elbows with the average person."

He noted that the number of households receiving newspapers has been steadily declining and said, "Reading is terribly hard work for many persons today" because the nation's educational system is "graduating functional illiterates from some of our high schools and colleges."

He said the rising illiteracy rate is "a national disgrace."

The news media, he said, needs to become more credible and needs "to partiepate in the rebuilding of faith in our system." He said the public will view the media as its enemy if it continues to pursue a "destructive adversary role against the government."

Taxes to take share of big Detroit sale

DETROIT (AP)— The taxman came in Friday and took a bit of the edge off the city's euphoria over its massive garage sale.

Max Haddix, director of the sales tax division of the Michigan Treasury Department, informed the city that it would be liable for the state's four per cent sales tax.

That would be about $4,600 out of the $115,000 the city grossed Wednesday and Thursday as tens of thousands of shoppers snapped up items.

FBI admits having candidate's papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI received papers taken from the briefcase of the Socialist Workers Party's 1968 presidential candidate, an FBI memo says.

The document was part of the FBI files turned over to the candidate, Fred Halstead of Los Angeles, in compliance with his request under the Freedom of Information Act. The document was made available to the Associated Press.

THE material dealing with Halstead's missing briefcase may become an important facet of the party's $27 million damage suit against the FBI and other government agencies. The party seeks damages for allegedly unconstitutional harassment of legal political activities.

Cathy Perkus, an official of the Political Rights Defense Fund, which is financing the party lawsuit, said the Halstead document raises questions about whether an FBI agent or informer stole the briefcase.

She said, after discussing the matter with Halstead, that his recollection of the incident differs considerably from the FBI version.

HALSTEAD could not be reached for comment.

The censored copy of the memo furnished to Halstead deleted the identification of the person who supplied the papers to the FBI.

In the Dec. 3, 1968, memo, the agent in charge of the Sacramento office says he is sending "two envelopes containing personal papers of Halstead and literature relating to the Socialist Workers Party" to FBI headquarters.

The name of the person who supplied the material to the FBI was deleted. But the person told the FBI that in October 1968 "he found a briefcase containing the above identified papers on a wash stand in the men's restroom, United Airlines terminal, International Airport, San Francisco."

The memo said that the person, failing to locate the owner, took the briefcase to his home in Vallejo, Calif., then turned over the material to the FBI in early November.

Contrary to that account, Halstead recalls that his briefcase and coat were stolen from his car while he was meeting with a colleague at a San Francisco church on Oct. 3 or 4, 1968, said Ms. Perkus.

She said party attorneys believe the FBI conduct, even if limited to receiving allegedly stolen property, violated California law and a federal law against interfering with a presidential campaign.

"The FBI's conduct in this matter, as I am sure you realize, constitutes a crime of theft even if the FBI was not involved in removing the briefcase from Mr. Halsted's automobile," said party attorney Herber Jordan in a letter April 22 to Assistant U.S. Atty. William Brandt.

Turnout low for antibusing rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between 2,000 and 4,000 antibusing demonstrators turned out Saturday for a rally and march which organizers had hoped would draw as many as 40,000 persons.

Waving posters saying, "Bus Politicians, Not Our Children" and "Stop Busing," the protesters gathered first at the Washington Monument, then marched peacefully to Capitol Hill for an afternoon of speeches.

The marchers came mostly from Louisville, Ky., but there were large contingents from Massachusetts and Michigan, all areas where racial tensions have been rubbed raw as a result of court-ordered busing to desegregate schools.

Organizer Jack Shore of Union Labor Against Busing had said the purpose of the protest was to influence senators and House members to pass legislation forbidding federal judges from ordering school districts to bus for racial purposes.

But the march drew more attention from curious Bicentennial tourists than legislators, who are almost all out of town on congressional Easter recess.

What Is A Catalog Surplus Store?
Many people have the feeling that it is an assortment of odds-n-ends, one of a kind items and customer returns. While this is true, it amounts to a very small portion of the merchandise available to you, our customers. Most of the goods are brand new, first quality merchandise in which we have bought more than we can sell during the life of our general catalog or similar sale catalogs. We must liquidate it as surplus—and this we do at reduced selling prices through our Catalog Surplus Stores. Our loss is your gain—Make shopping a habit at Sears Catalog Surplus Stores and save on clothing, household items and appliances for you and your family.

Chel's bill on elderly gains

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Assemblyman Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, reported Saturday on the progress of legislation for tax relief and for creation of a state Department on Aging.

Chel said "major tax relief" addressed to the plight of the elderly "being virtually driven from their homes" is contained in Assembly Bill 3204 which he coauthored and which was approved Friday by the Assembly Committee on Revenue and Taxation, of which Chel is a member.

HE SAID the bill would add a program of senior citizen renters' assistance to the existing $37 renters' credit, recognizing the fact that a person paying $91 monthly rent contributes, in effect, $220 a year toward his landlord's property tax payment.

Under a sliding formula based on household income, Chel said, a senior citizen with $1,400 annual income would get 96 per cent of the $220 or $211 more assistance. Added to the renters' credit, the tax benefit totals $248. Assistance for couples is slightly higher.

The Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance program would be revised by lifting the assessed value upon which assistance is granted, Chel said, and would recognize for the first time the citizen's ability to pay.

"A single person with a home worth $41,000 and a household income of $5,000 would gain nearly $259 in tax benefits," Chel said. "The married couple with the same income would realize a gain of nearly $317."

TOTAL additional tax relief under the program is estimated at $58 million in 1977-78. He said the measure has the support of the Brown administration.

Chel introduced a bill Thursday to remove the tax now paid on certain imported goods despite the fact they may not be actually ready for sale.

"There is no reason to subject items such as transistors to a tax when they aren't even in a condition where they can be sold on the open market," he said. "The result of this inventory tax has been that many imported goods are being transferred to Mexico for assembling....This is robbing Californians, especially those in my district, of jobs and wages."

He said this bill is one of a series he has introduced or supported this session to end taxes which jeopardize employment opportunities, including AB 3372 to exempt small business from the business inventory tax.

CHEL'S bill creating a Department on Aging passed the state Senate 29-1, carried by State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, in that body and now returns to the Assembly for concurrence in Senate amendments.

"In accordance with the recommendations of legislative analyst A. Alan Post, upgrading the present Office on Aging to departmental status will provide greater liaison among all state departments on problems affecting the elderly," said Chel.

Lungren assails Bond's brochure

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

The quest for the Republican nomination in the 34th Congressional District turned intramural Saturday as Dan Lungren charged fellow GOP candidate Bill Bond with distributing a deceptive and misleading brochure, "a mere recycling of Bond's unsuccessful congressional campaign of 1974."

Bond's brochure reprints 1974 endorsements of President Ford, former Gov. Ronald Reagan, former Rep. Craig Hosmer and former Orange County GOP Chairman Thomas C. Rogers.

Noting Bond's use of a disclaimer with the letters that they "should not be interpreted as current endorsements," Lungren said the disclaimer then adds that the endorsers' observations on Bond in 1974 are "still true today."

Lungren said the disclaimer is cleverly worded and in small type but, further, the observations do not apply today and Bond's use of them "is a calculated distortion designed to mislead the voters in this primary."

THOSE 1974 endorsements, Lungren said, came to Bond as the GOP nominee in the general election; "none of them were made during any primary when Bond was being contested by other Republican candidates.

"Moreover, the currency of the thoughts expressed in the letters themselves is in question. Mr. Bond knows that in the context of the present Republican congressional primary President Ford has not and will not endorse any Republican candidate, much less state that Bond is 'clearly better prepared to represent' the 34th District. He has to be aware that neither Ronald Reagan nor (Rogers) is publicly supporting his primary candidacy.

"Most importantly to the voters of this district, Bond is fully aware that Craig Hosmer has given me his endorsement in this primary, the first primary endorsement he has made since his retirement. Therefore, the present use of Craig Hosmer's words of former support for Bond's 'election to Congress' constitutes nothing less than an abuse and a patent misrepresentation of those very words."

Bond replied that Lungren "is straining to develop an issue."

HE DEFENDED the disclaimer statement on his brochure and pointed out that its type was larger than the type in the reproduced letters and that the 1974 dates on the letters was purposely included.

"Second," said Bond, "I don't think Lungren really wants to suggest that comments made about a person's abilities and experience would be true in 1974 but not so 18 months later.

"President Ford said I was an outstanding legislator and a fiscal conservative. My record hasn't changed, nor has my philosophy. Gov. Reagan said he developed great admiration for my ability, judgment and devotion to public service. We have had no falling out since. And (Rogers) commended me for fighting to halt tax increases and for helping to restore the death penalty. I did those things.

"Possibly what galls Lungren is former Congressman Craig Hosmer's observation: '. . .There is simply no substitute for experience. . .Bill Bond has it with 15 years of full-time experience in the State Assembly and Los Angeles County government.' I do have considerable experience in government, plus five years of college training in political science and public administration. All of these things are still true.

"Hosmer has endorsed Lungren," Bond continued, "but this isn't surprising since, as Hosmer indicates, he has personal reasons, such as: 'I have known you (Lungren) for your lifetime. The Hosmer and Lungren families were neighbors for many years.'

"Finally, Lungren is new to the voters. I am certain they would be interested to learn more about him than that he is endorsed by an old family friend."

LUNGREN, striking at the "contrived confusion" of Bond's brochure, said the district needs a candidate who can beat incumbent Democratic Rep. Mark Hannaford in the fall, adding, "This can only be achieved by someone who deals with today's issues and today's realities."

Bond said he would be happy to accommodate Lungren's request for a comparison of qualifications "because I have always felt strongly that a person who seeks public office should be prepared by way of relevant education and experience. Congress seems like a long jump for someone 2½ years out of law school.

"In any event, I see Democrat Hannaford's unrealistic and unresponsive economic and social philosophy as the overriding issue. I will continue to point up our differences because they are vast."

Deuk, wife to be honored

State Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, will speak at a Friday noon luncheon meeting for him and Mrs. Deukmejian in the Long Beach Elks Club, a $4.50-per-person event hosted by the Women's committee of the Deukmejian campaign committee.

Deukmejian is unopposed in the GOP primary for the new 31st Senate District which covers the Long Beach area. Councilwoman Renee Simon, Long Beach, is unopposed in the Democratic primary.

The Deukmejian committee is cochaired by Mrs. Lorin Smith and Mrs. Richard Smith. Mrs. Wolf deLyre is luncheon chairwoman.

Members of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera will sing. Reservations may be made by calling the candidate's headquarters at 426-DEUK.

Hayden at Arena

U.S. Senate candidate Tom Hayden, Democrat, will address the annual convention of the California Jaycees at 9 p.m. Saturday in the Long Beach Arena.

Hayden will speak at a noon rally May 3 at the speakers platform on the Long Beach State University campus.

Hayden's campaign will be the beneficiary of receipts of the Orange County premiere of the film, "An Evening with the Fondas," at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Anaheim Convention Center.

Actress Jane Fonda (Hayden's wife), her father, Henry, and her brother, Peter, are scheduled to attend the screening and a post-theater party at the Orange residence of former POW Col. Edison Miller, USMC Ret.

Tickets for the premiere and information on the post-theater party may be obtained through the Orange County Hayden Headquarters at 835-7766.

Registration

Republican Headquarters, 3386 Orange Ave., Long Beach, will remain open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday this week to accommodate persons who wish to register to vote in the June 8 primary election, according to office manager Thelma Morris.

Brown offices

Nick Betancourt, president of the Mexican American Democratic Club of Wilmington, announced that a club committee has opened a headquarters for the presidential candidacy of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. at 1152 Broad Ave., Apt. 14, Wilmington.

In charge of the headquarters will be John M. and Dorothy M. Murello. Betancourt said the headquarters will have an information service and will sell Brown buttons and bumper stickers.

Dana for Udall

Comedian Bill Dana will attend a rally for Democratic presidential candidate Rep. Morris Udall, Arizona, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Tuesday in the residence of Dianne and Frank Modisett, 1700 Cumbre Dr., San Pedro.

Aki Toyooka, a Udall campaign coordinator, said there would be no admission charge for the rally. The public is welcome.

Project survival

The Rainbow Players, a group of college students supporting Prop. 15, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative on the June 8 California primary election ballot, will present their message in the form of a musical comedy review, "Noah '76," in Long Beach this week.

Their first show is scheduled for Wednesday noon at the speakers platform at Long Beach State University. The group will appear at 11 a.m. Friday on the Long Beach City College central campus.

LWV election

The League of Women Voters of Huntington Beach-Seal Beach will have its annual meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Peek Family Colonial Terrace Room, Bolsa Avenue at Beach Boulevard in Westminster.

The group will elect officers and adopt its program for the coming year. Reservations must be made by Monday with Merle Moshiri at 536-2017.

Italian debate may aid Reds

ROME (AP) — The ruling Christian Democrats, stung by the Lockheed payoff scandal, Saturday called for a showdown in parliament that could lead to the Communists' getting a share of power.

A date for the parliamentary debate on Italy's economic, social and political problems will be set Tuesday. It was taken for granted that it would start sometime this week.

The debate will end in a vote of confidence likely to topple Premier Aldo Moro's government — Italy's 34th in three decades — and lead to early elections, in which the Communists could become the largest party.

The Christian Democrats' decision to face the debate marked the failure of their attempt to rally a majority behind Moro's 2½-month-old minority government for quick action on an economic austerity program.

The call for the debate was announced after a meeting of the party directorate. It urged Moro to "verify in parliament whether there exist the conditions that can assure the solidarity of the majority" that voted for Moro.

Party Secretary Benigno Zaccagnini had just completed a round of talks with all parties except the right-wing Social Movement on a last attempt to win support.

Soviet industrial production up 5 pct. for first quarter

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet industry got off to a good start in the first quarter of 1976 with output and labor productivity increases exceeding the official planners' goals, according to a report Saturday by the Central Statistical Administration.

The report, published in the government newspaper Izvestia, said industrial output during the first quarter rose by 5 per cent compared to the first quarter of 1975. The Spartan 1976 plan calls for a year-long increase in output of 4.3 per cent over last year.

The statistical administration said labor productivity during the quarter rose 3.7 per cent compared to the same quarter last year. The 1976 year-long plan calls for a 3.4 per cent labor productivity increase over 1975.

The report said that during the quarter the value of goods produced above the plan totaled more than $2.6 billion.

Peking incident blamed on Teng

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese who quelled a violent incident at Peking's Tien An Men Square April 5 charged that ousted Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping was the "root cause and behind-the-scenes boss" of the affair, a Peking broadcast reported Saturday.

Representatives of 447 soldiers, militiamen and security officials gave their account of the incident at rallies at two Peking indoor stadiums, the official Hsinhua news agency said.

The official heroes of the incident said bourgeois elements, reactionary intellectuals and "trouble-making hooligans" came out April 5 to "openly laud Teng and file complaints on his behalf."

The demonstrators "madly spearheaded their attack on Chairman Mao and tried futilely to split the party Central Committee headed by him," the Peking rallies were told.

The speakers warned that the class enemies behind the ousted Teng would not take their defeat lightly, expecting them to "struggle to the last ditch, and so we should not slacken our revolutionary will."

The 447 "outstanding individuals," each wearing a large red flower pinned to his jacket, were awarded works of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, banners and honorary citations at the rallies for their role in crushing the Tien An Men protest.

The Tien An Men protesters reportedly were angry that posters of the late Premier Chou En-lai, Teng's mentor, were removed from the square on April 4. They returned the following day and the protest rapidly escalated into a riot, apparently directed against Maoist hard-liners in the Peking regime, symbolized by the new premier, Hua Kuo-feng.

Calm, order urged at Portugal voting polls

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Francisco da Costa Gomes condemned political violence and urged peace in today's parliamentary voting, Portugal's first free national elections in more than half a century.

Calm and order at the polls is "the best response to those who doubt the viability of a democratic Portugal," the president said in an address to the nation Saturday, adding:

"It is not with dead and wounded that the Portuguese will succeed in building the free, porsperous and socially just country we want."

As additional insurance, Costa Gomes has ordered the army, navy, and air force on full alert to keep order as the country freely chooses a parliament for the first time since 1925.

At stake are 263 seats in a new Assembly of the Republic. The new parliament marks a major step in the transfer of power from the hands for the military to civilian politicians. The armed forces have been running Portugal since they overthrew the former rightist regime two years ago from election day.

Paint sniffing

I know of children and teen-agers sniffing spray paint, and I think it is very dangerous to their health. Please obtain a medical opinion on the dangers of this practice. J.W.A., Long Beach.

Sniffing paint, or other very toxic substances such as model-airplane glue, paint thinner and gasoline, can produce a temporary and acute state of psychosis, characterized by hallucinations and sometimes panic, according to a clinical psychologist with the Long Beach Health Department's drug clinic. "There is dispute over the chronic long-term effects on the body from this practice, but there have been reported incidents of death," he said. In other words, you can not only get high; you can get dead. When these and other substances are inhaled from aerosol cans, the propellants "cause a very fast-acting effect—usually in 30 seconds—of dizziness, giddiness, uncontrolled laughter and hallucinations." The effect usually lasts from 5 to 10 minutes. "Sniffing any aerosol product is extremely dangerous. It could cause throat and lung damage and has caused deaths." Freon propellants present a particular danger. "They are very cold when they first come out of a can, and the cold itself can cause damage to the larynx which can result in suffocation." The doctor said anyone found acutely intoxicated from sniffing should be taken to a hospital's emergency room. He called sniffing "just plain stupid" and said anyone who is sophisticated about drugs doesn't do it. It generally is limited to preteens and teenagers.

Deposit transfer

Our apartment building recently was sold to a new owner. All the tenants had paid the original owner a cleaning and key deposit plus their last month's rent. The new owner has said he isn't responsible for refunding these deposits when we move. Is this true? R.E., Long Beach.

Not according to Eugene Zechmeister, head of the Apartment Association of Southern California Cities in Long Beach. He said the new owner should have made sure these deposits were turned over to him as part of the escrow instructions. But, even if he didn't, it is still his responsibility to assume these obligations, Zechmeister said. You could take your landlord to small-claims court for any of these deposits due you if he refuses to pay when you move out.

Glass shower

I drive to and from work on the San Diego Freeway (405), and many times I have had to follow large trucks stacked with mashed cars. The trucks pelt vehicles behind them with showers of glass and metal. Is there a law that requires this type of cargo to be enclosed? G.B., Westminster.

The cargo has to be either enclosed or loaded in such a way that the contents can't leak, sift, drop, spill or blow from the vehicle. A driver whose cargo escapes from his vehicle onto the highway will be cited if a police officer sees this happening, according to Sgt. Dave Helsel, spokesman for the California Highway Patrol in Los Angeles. "This is a continuing problem, and we do write a lot of citations," he said. The antispill law, under Section 23114 of the California Vehicle Code, doesn't apply to loads of "clear water, or feathers from live birds."

Federal housing

My son and I are interested in building low-cost housing for senior citizens. We have heard that there is a government agency that will help finance such a project. Can Action Line get us information on this? L.C.M., Bellflower.

You and your son would not be eligible for the loan you refer to, which helps finance the construction of low-rent housing for senior citizens. It is made available only to nonprofit corporations through Section 202 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, and is administered through the Housing Production and Mortgage Credit Division of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. A HUD spokesman told Action Line most applications for the federal funds come from churches with a large congregation of elderly people. And he added that all the loan money appropriated for fiscal 1976-77 already has been earmarked.

Voting due in Lebanon

ed and flights later resumed.

Bowing to increased pressure from leftist Moslems and his own Christian allies to end a drawn-out political deadlock, Franjieh agreed to step down six months before his term expires.

He was supposed to have signed the amendment a week ago.

Moslem leftists have been demanding Franjieh's resignation along with drastic economic and political reforms as a condition for ending the civil war with the country's influential Christian minority.

The signature was announced first by a radio station supporting Franjieh, then by Beirut Radio, which is controlled by Franjieh's opponents.

At nightfall, an aide to house speaker Kamel Assaad confirmed he had received the document. Assaad will begin consultations to convene an emergency session of the 99-man parliament in the next two weeks for the election.

Commenting on Franjieh's move, Beirut Radio said the road was now clear for election of a successor "which, hopefully will push the war close to a settlement and end this insufferable agony."

House speaker Assaad, a Moslem, declined to say when parliament would meet to choose a successor to Franjieh, elected in 1970 and due to leave office Sept. 23. But Beirut Radio quoted several deputies as saying the election would be held sometime this week.

The new president is expected to have to deal with Moslem demands for a new formula of coexistence with the Christians.

Moslems, now believed to be a majority of the population, want an equal distribution of seats in parliament, where Christians now hold a 6-to-5 plurality. They also want civil service jobs equally shared.

Both warring sides reportedly agree the president should continue to be a Christian and the premier and house speaker Moslems.

Crash landing dampens pair's waterbed bliss

A hit-run driver made one of the world's splashiest crash landings in Paramount early Saturday morning, turning a haven of rest into a miniswimming pool.

The haven's occupants, Jane, 21, and Earl Gallup, 26, asleep on their waterbed at 14056 McClure Ave., awoke to the havoc shortly after 1:30 a.m. and paddled out of their bedroom, soggy but unbowed. Also unable to locate the driver who had fled without even a "Pardon me."

The Gallups found that the car that smashed through the wall, punctured their bed and set the bedroom awash was on the loaned or missing list. By late Saturday officers still hadn't located the owner or the driver.

Meanwhile, the Gallups were treated for facial cuts at Doctor's Hospital in Lakewood and allowed to go home for the mop-up.

Effort to aid rig crew in capsule told

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Choking back tears, a tugboat mate Saturday described his unsuccessful efforts to evacuate a rescue capsule before the capsule flipped, killing 13 of the 20 men trapped inside.

The testimony of Jimmie Lee Madison concerning the rescue operation that followed the sinking of an offshore oil rig also seemed to scuttle theories that a line from the tug Gulf Viking gave the impetus that turned the capsule over.

Madison, breaking occasionally into sobs, said his deckhands released the last line holding the capsule before the craft reared and toppled in house-high waves.

"It (the rope) was chaffing and smoking and burning their hands so they let it go," Madison told a Coast Guard board of inquiry. "Ain't no way in the world four men can hold that weight (of the capsule)."

Madison said he saw the ¾-inch nylon line being washed overboard by water, then saw the capsule upend and hover momentarily before his own feet were knocked out from under him by a wave.

Kissinger starts tour of Africa

Kissinger said before takeoff from an air base northwest of London that the United States would support new negotiations to give Rhodesia's black majority control of the country.

Kissinger said he agrees with the British position that Rhodesia's white minority must move quickly toward black majority rule.

About 274,000 whites rule 5.7 million blacks in Rhodesia.

A negotiated settlement would be in the interests of both blacks and whites in Rhodesia, Kissinger said, but the solution must be "by African methods in Africa.

"We believe that time is running out, but the opportunity for a negotiated settlement that may still exist must be seized almost immediately," he said.

Kissinger's first visit to black Africa is described as a fact-finding mission in developing a new American policy toward the continent.

HE WILL be looking particularly to President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania for advice on how to lend support to black liberation movements.

After his stop in Kenya, Kissinger is to visit Tanzania, Zambia, Zaire, Ghana, Liberia and Senegal.

Some African leaders suspect Kissinger's tour was forced by Soviet and Cuban involvement in Africa, especially in the recent Angolan civil war won by Russian-backed and Cuban-led forces.

But Kissinger said before setting out, "We are not in Africa to match Soviet efforts. We are in Africa for our own purposes."

While Kissinger was en route to Kenya, the Sunday Nation newspaper in Kenya published an editorial saying his visit appeared likely to "have a giant impact in Afro-American relations.

"IT MUST be conceded that Dr. Kissinger has adopted a Johnny-come-lately attitude in his Africa policy," the newspaper said.

But, it said, "Dr. Kissinger has said he is coming to Africa with an attitude of goodwill. It is in that same spirit that Africa must welcome one of the most skillful and adept diplomats of modern times."

In South-West Africa, ruled by South Africa's white-minority government, troops were combing the border region Saturday, hunting for guerrillas who killed four white South African soldiers.

Westside redevelopment in court

The EDC ultimately jobbed out part of its planning task — the question of how much is disputed in the lawsuit — to two private contractors: Langdon & Wilson, Architects, and later the Pasadena Research Institute.

As the city's network of agencies began to gear up for the project in late 1974, so did the Westside community itself. Under auspices of the EDC, and in conformity with state law, a 21-member Project Area Committee (PAC) was created.

The PAC, initially, was to survey area residents on the idea of Westside redevelopment. It also was to provide grassroots feedback to the other agencies involved in creating the plan.

By last April it was apparent that Westside residents and property owners—at least, that minority voicing any opinion—opposed the redevelopment project. They preferred things as they were.

On June 24, the city held a public hearing on the redevelopment plan's initial draft. It did not satisfy the opposition.

On July 1, the council adopted the plan as a municipal ordinance. On Aug. 14, 28 individuals and businesses filed suit to stop the redevelopment.

Among the plaintiffs were eight members of the PAC, including two subsequently elected president and secretary-treasurer of the community group.

The lawsuit alleged that state laws had not been complied with in creation and administration of the redevelopment plan.

It alleged that the plaintiffs, as taxpayers, were harmed because tax dollars were being spent on an illegal project.

It also alleged that some plaintiffs, as property owners, were "threatened with unlawful condemnation and use restrictions."

Specifically, the lawsuit alleged that before the City Council adopted the redevelopment plan, the plan's basis—the Langdon & Wilson report—was "withheld and concealed from plaintiffs."

Hankla, the suit alleged, withheld information from PAC and other interested persons.

It alleged that, meanwhile, EDC directors had access to the plan's draft as early as April and hoped to turn the information to financial advantage.

"Such conduct and relationships not only create an irreconcilable conflict of interest, but are wrongful and unlawful," it alleged.

That lawsuit was filed, not in Long Beach, but in Los Angeles Superior Court. According to a legal statement filed by one of the plaintiffs, that was because of the influence wielded locally by backers of the redevelopment plan.

"WE HAVE found that the people with influence who might help are either directors of the corporation (EDC) or are closely involved with, or are friends of, these people," alleged plaintiff Nick Ortega.

It took the city and its Redevelopment Agency one month to file a weighty legal response to the lawsuit.

For starters, their answer alleged, the plaintiffs were misrepresenting the laws that held sway over the redevelopment project; there had been no illegalties.

It said the PAC had been given all pertinent information before last June's hearing and had submitted its own report on that information.

When the City Council approved the plan in July, it alleged, the version it was approving included changes recommended by the PAC.

The city's response noted that the first Langdon & Wilson draft "on studies and plans for implementation of the Redevelopment Project" reached the EDC on Feb. 12, 1975.

It also stated that "after several revisions thereof the Board of Directors (of EDC) on or about June 4, 1975, approved the final draft" and that the final draft was sent to the PAC a month later—one week after the plan's adoption by the City Council.

The city's answer went on to contend that all workings of its agencies had been legal and that "no public information or record has at any time been withheld from plaintiffs, PAC, the public. . ."

OTHER allegations in the lawsuit were denied by the city in its legal response. Shortly after that, the EDC filed a sweeping legal denial of its own on behalf of its directors and Hankla.

In the months since those legal documents were filed, there have been bitter exchanges between the two sides in the courts and other public forums.

Opponents of the redevelopment plan lost a battle to keep their lawsuit in Los Angeles courts, and the suit was transferred to Long Beach; the EDC lost an attempt to have the court throw out part of the lawsuit affecting it.

Last month, before Long Beach Superior Court Judge Hampton Hutton, the sides split a decision on another pretrial matter.

And last week Hutton set the stage for the hearing which could air the central issues. The May 6 hearing is scheduled for Hutton's court at 9:30 a.m.

Chilly start seen for DST in L.B.

Southland residents can expect a familiar weather picture today—night and morning low clouds followed by hazy skies and afternoon temperatures in the high 60s or low 70s.

National Weather Service forecasters, however, predicted that afternoon winds would cool down coastal areas, giving a chilly reception to the first evening of extended light under Daylight Savings Time.

Saturday's high was 72, following overnight temperatures in the mid-50s.

Auditor wants exemption from price freeze

L.B. 'losing millions in oil revenues'

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

If the price of Long Beach oil had been equal to that paid for foreign imports or to the highest price for decontrolled U.S. oil, it would have boosted revenues by $450 million in fiscal 1974-75 alone, according to City Auditor Murray Courson.

Courson noted Friday that the city and state have been trying to get higher prices for local oil and recommended that they also seek an exemption from the Federal Energy Administration's oil-price freeze for oil owned by the taxpayers.

The auditor's office also recommended that city and state officials seek "a fair and equitable retroactive settlement of taxpayers' oil revenues lost as a result of FEA price regulations."

If necessary, Courson said, legal action should be instituted to insure that the taxpayers receive the true market value for their oil produced from the Long Beach fields.

The comments were part of the city's audit of Long Beach Oil Development Co. operations for the 1974-75 fiscal year, which will be filed Tuesday with the City Council, but they apply to all tideland oil operations.

"The price now being paid for Long Beach oil, which averaged about $4.25 per barrel during 1974-75, is only about one-third of its value," the audit said.

Oil operations reports by the city auditor's office for the past several years have repeatedly expressed concern over "inequitable" low prices paid for crude oil produced from the Long Beach tideland trust oil operations, Courson said.

"We have also pointed out the serious consequences this condition has on shortening the economic life of these operations," the audit said.

"For every barrel of oil that ceases to be produced from the Long Beach operations, an additional barrel has to be purchased from foreign producers at three times the current Long Beach oil price," it said.

The audit said the Long Beach pricing inequity has "worsened significantly" as a result of the FEA price-freeze regulations.

Most of the $450 million that the city auditor's office said would have resulted if Long Beach oil prices had been at parity with foreign or decontrolled U.S. oil would have been paid to the state, the report said.

Long Beach's share of tideland oil revenue is limited to $9 million annually, but the city would have received "several million dollars" annually from the higher prices through its "upland" oil operations, the report said.

No-campus college in the works

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The Orange Coast College District, which operates Coast College at Costa Mesa and Golden West College at Huntington Beach, has plans to start another—one without a campus.

It will be called Coastline Community College and will cater to those who have jobs but want more schooling.

The college will have at-home courses and classes in community meeting halls, bowling alleys, banks, stores or anywhere there is room.

It will have Dr. Bernard Luskin, 38, of Huntington Beach, as its president. He will take over May 3 and begin to select a staff.

THE NEW college will need a dean of admissions, a dean of instruction, a dean of students and a director of business services, Luskin said.

Luskin has been vice chancellor of educational planning and development at Coast College.

Dr. Norman Watson, chancellor of Coast Community College District, heralded the new concept as "innovative." He said it is "the American counterpart of England's highly successful Open University" and that added it will be fully accredited to grant degrees.

Watson said that Coastline's goal "will be to take educational programs to the people in innovative ways." He said this included class instruction, education by television on Coast district's own Channel 50 and use of coordinated instructional systems available at the district level.

THE COLLEGE district trustees decided to organize the college-without-campus after student growth projections showed there will be up to 50,000 more students hoping to attend community colleges within the next 10 years.

The trustees say the average age of the community college student is 27 and many need training for jobs, retraining, personal enrichment and "lifelong learning opportunities."

Luskin earned an AA degree in business administration from Long Beach City College in 1958 and a master's in school administration from Long Beach State University in 1961.

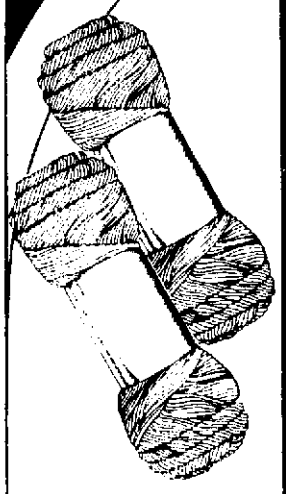

Talk set on juvenile bill

Doug McKee from the district attorney's office will speak on Assembly Bill 3121 Thursday at a special meeting of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities Youth Council.

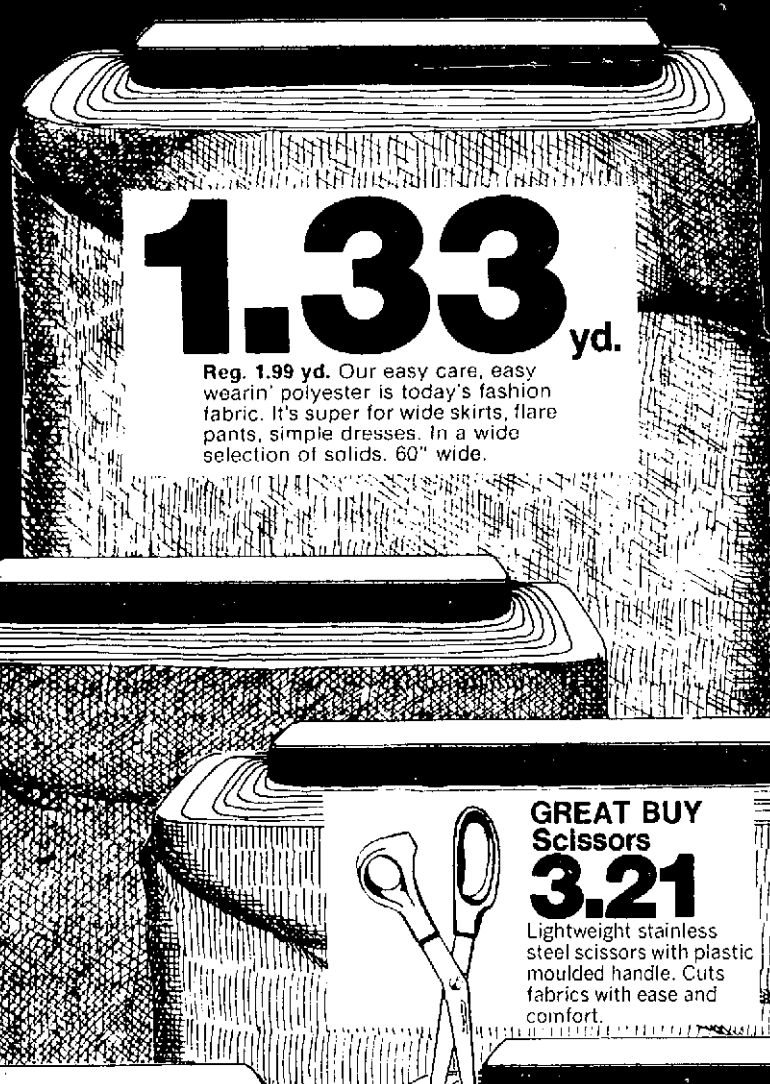

The meeting, open to the public, will be held at the Covenant Presbyterian Church, 607 E. Third St.

AB 3121, which is authored by 24 legislators, would require the district attorney to appear in juvenile court to prosecute minors who are second and third offenders, as well as those who are considered violent.

Master plan for port out

THE WATERFRONT

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Los Angeles Harbor has published its comprehensive master plan for future port development through the year 1990.

The inch-thick, 265-page book with numerous illustrations and foldout charts is available from the department at cost—$20 per copy. For those interested in only reviewing the report, copies will be made available at harbor area libraries and at departmental headquarters, Pacific Trade Center Building on Fifth Street in San Pedro.

One of the port's shortcomings, the report repeatedly points out, is that the harbor's channels are simply too shallow to accommodate the new deep draft vessels currently being built in shipyards around the world.

Los Angeles Harbor has a main channel depth of about 33 feet, depending on the tides. That's too shallow to allow the passage of supertankers, massive bulk carriers and modern container carriers.

If Los Angeles is to remain competitive with other Pacific Coast ports, including the 60-foot deep Port of Long Beach, it must deepen its channels and berthside docking facilities. If the deep-hulled ships can't enter Los Angeles Harbor, they will go to ports where they can.

Port officials want to dredge the channels and use the scooped-up sand to create new land areas. Those plans are strongly opposed by various environmental organizations on the grounds that such dredging and landfilling would have a detrimental effect on the environment.

The report submitted by Voorhees, Trindle & Nelson of Irvine, points out "the urgent and long overdue need to substantially upgrade the port." The consulting firm notes that the port's basic railroad lines were laid out 86 years ago; the basic pierhead lines were established 68 years ago; the previous master plan is 48 years old, and the last main channel deepening down to its present 33-foot depth was done 46 years ago.

While the plan was submitted by VTN it does not mean the plan will be adopted in its entirety. It may be altered, added to, or even scrapped by the Board of Harbor Commissioners. By making copies of the plan available to the shipping industry community and the general public, the commission hopes to gain some input before acting on it.

Channel pipelines

Shell Oil Co. and Gulf Oil Co. are seeking permits to dig a trench across Cerritos Channel in Long Beach Harbor to hold two pipelines linking Terminal Island and the mainland. The companies plan to dredge about a 14-foot-deep trench in which to put 42-inch and 10-inch oil pipelines.

Because the top 10 feet of the channel bottom are considered polluted, state law won't allow the material to be put back in the trench to cover the pipelines. To do so would be an act of pollution of state waters and that, of course, is a no-no. The companies plan to dispose of the material by either hauling it to a landfill dump site in Palos Verdes Hills or barging it about six miles south of Point Fermin and dumping it into a 600-foot dimple in the ocean's bottom.

The ocean floor at that location is considered a marine desert, free of life that might be affected by dumping the polluted dredge spoils. That is the Federal Environmental Protection Agency's opinion. The agency has approved the location as a disposal site for such material.

But, according to recent studies by the University of Southern California, the dumped spoils do not sink—at least not entirely—to the sea floor, much being caught in subsurface currents and drifts as seaward as Catalina Island, polluting the water between the dump site and the island.

The question raised by some port engineers is:

Wouldn't it be better to put it back into the trench in the close confines of the Cerritos Channel than to pollute the 25-mile-wide San Pedro Channel or to take it to a rapidly filling canyon in Palos Verdes and speed up the filling of one of the few remaining dump sites in the Southland?

Coastal plan hit

State Sen. James Q. Wedworth, D-Torrance, has labeled it "ridiculous, unsound, and destructive" to include the Los Angeles Harbor area in the proposed California Coastal Plan now before the Legislature.

He said he would recommend exclusion of the harbor, King Harbor, the urban renewal region in Redondo Beach and the Standard Oil properties in El Segundo.

"I just don't understand why the harbor commission should have to go to some state commission, hat in hand, for permission to replace piling or piers, or to repair docks, and other facilities—but that is what would happen if this plan were adopted in its present form," he said.

"Effects of this plan as it is presently written would be disastrous not only to the healthy economy of the South Bay and harbor areas but would, in the long run, be disastrous to the very environment we are attempting to protect."

Search for 6 Cuban refugees suspended

MIAMI (AP) — The Coast Guard suspended a search Saturday for companions of a young Cuban who said he fled from the Communist island to avoid conscription for army service in Angola.

"We're waiting for sightings or any other reports. That's the only reason we'd go back out there," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Julio Cesar Gutierrez-Cordoba drifted ashore at Key West Friday and told police of a week-long ordeal that began when he and 11 others tried to flee Cuba on homemade rafts.

He said three companions were shot and killed by a Cuban gunboat and a fourth was wounded and made it back to shore. He said he and the rest continued on four rafts tied together.

"He was crying like a baby," said Det. Robert Lastres after another officer found Gutierrez-Cordoba wandering on a Key West street. "He said the Cuban hospitals were packed with kids from Angola."

Coast Guard officials launched a 2,000-square-mile search for survivors, but suspended it after finding no rafts, men or debris.

3 weeks of high danger

By STEVE WEINER
Associated Press

VANCOUVER, B.C. — Off the rocky, storm-swept shores of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, fishermen in oilskins struggle and sometimes die to bring an ocean delicacy to Japanese tables.

They face numbing gales, snowstorms and 50-foot seas in one of the most dangerous fisheries anywhere. They are driven to their rough-and-tumble struggle because the season is so short for the herring they catch. The fish must be netted and the eggs extracted during a few weeks in late winter and early spring when this roe is at its peak of flavor.

The fishing is done, mostly by Canadians, in unsheltered and hard-to-navigate waters along a craggy area of Canada's Pacific Coast, just off the northwest corner of the state of Washington.

Fourteen men were killed fishing for herring last year — the worst death toll on record. Four died in the season just ended, 10 in 1974 and six in 1973. Over the past decade more than 50 boats have capsized, sunk or been wrecked on rocks.

Each year, 3,500 herring fishermen endanger their lives to meet the strict demands of the Japan market.

The Japanese send technicians who determine when the herring should be caught for the tastiest roe and then signal the fleet. The Japanese won't accept roe from herring caught before or after the period designated by their technicians.

Earnings up to $6,500 per man

It's usually a three-week period in March and early April, when the herring come to spawn in coastal streams, but three weeks of the most treacherous weather in these waters.

The fishermen each earn up to $6,500 for the risks they take, and once the roe is processed and shipped, the wholesale value of the annual harvest is about $30 million. The Japanese pay $15 a pound for herring roe. Only the wealthy can afford it.

The herring itself is ground up to extract oil and make fish meal.

The men go out in gillnetters — one and two-man craft as small as 30 feet — and purse seiners, which run up to 85 feet with as many as seven in crew. Most of the 1,100 boats are wooden, all are used for the summer salmon harvest, and a few are 60 years old or more.

This year's total catch was about 70,000 tons.

A government study conducted after the record number of fishermen killed in 1975 concluded: "Although each casualty had individual factors, the main cause was undoubtedly the lucrative nature of the herring-roe fishery. This, with the exacting quality requirements and limited season, brought about a climate of urgency which for some overcame customary caution."

Cap. Bill Kragback is among those who deny that herring fishing is dangerous. He said:

"You can go up and down the coast for years — I don't care — 10 or 20 years — and one day you are going to hit. It's just the kind of place it is. It's that kind of coast."

Kragback's boat Canfisco, with her cargo of 110 tons of herring, most of it picked up from other fishing boats to take to shore, was a $250,000 loss when it foundered on rocks last month. One man was killed.

One suggestion: stricter licensing

There have been calls for stricter licensing of herring fishermen to weed out the incompetent.

"Several boats were lost last year because of bad decisions," says W. F. Thomas, accident-prevention officer for the British Columbia Workers Compensation Board. "Men would go out when they shouldn't have."

Some call the fishermen greedy. The fishermen disagree.

"This is the time of the year when you have storms," a Canadian Fishing Co. spokesman says. "We lost a boat, but it has nothing to do with herring. It was a snowstorm. You can't blame it on the herring season."

Says Kragback: "If you're a good fisherman and you make $50,000 during the year, and then you run out after herring and drown doing it, that's greed. But if you're a poor guy, and you've made only $10,000 or $15,00 during the last year (usually from salmon) and you've got to make payments on your boat, call it necessity."

Ship firms doing well

International lending institutions are not likely to suffer any extremely damaging direct losses from their loans to the shipbuilding industry, a Chicago banker said Saturday in San Pedro.

George Baker, vice president of a Chicago banking corporation, also said: "Shipbuilders will undoubtedly continue to defer payments on principal while interest charges will be met...More ships, including tankers, will be needed in the future and the shipping industry in general has a strong ability to generate capital."

Baker was at Todd Shipyards to launch the 35,000 ton Zapata Courier.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 pm. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code name for yourself . . . any name, as long as it's not your own . . . and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Tear off and keep a corner of the last page, with the same code name and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, 90801.

Secret Witness case summaries

The Independent, Press-Telegram's Secret Witness program has resulted in the arrest of 66 criminal suspects and fugitives from justice since the program was inaugurated on June 10, 1972, with rewards totaling $43,000 paid or committed on conviction of suspects waiting trial. Additional reward money available for informants is specified in the case list below, one of the selected and varying summaries of Secret Witness cases printed in the Independent and Press Telegram each Sunday and Thursday.

Cases are dropped from the summaries from time to time, but rewards will remain in effect for these until such cases have been closed by police or until notification in print that reward offers have been withdrawn.

Rewards also will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of suspects in any other major criminal cases, whether covered in these summaries or not, and for the apprehension of fugitives from justice. These rewards will vary in amount, depending on the seriousness of the offense.

To ensure eligibility for Secret Witness rewards, informants are required to channel all information DIRECTLY through Secret Witness — that is, to notify Secret Witness FIRST — either by calling the special Secret Witness telephone number or by writing in care of the Secret Witness post-office box.

Today's summaries follow:

— A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the slayer of 23-year-old John Anthony Whitehurst, of Lynwood, who was found lying shot to death beside his car parked in a driveway of the 1600 block of Stoneacre Drive in Compton on the night of Feb. 23, 1976.

— A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 49-year-old deaf mute Kenneth Lawrence Willis, found stabbed to death in his Long Beach duplex at 6042 Orange Ave. on Dec. 30, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of 59-year-old David E. Smith, of Downey, shot to death during a holdup at Lucy's Restaurant, 5096 Long Beach Blvd., shortly before 2 a.m. on Nov. 24, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the torch slayer of Alice Olay, 52, of Downey, whose charred body was found in a blazing auto in a lot at Pioneer Boulevard and Rosecrans Avenue in Norwalk early on the morning of Sept. 19, 1975.

—A $1,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and manslaughter conviction of the hit-run driver who struck and killed Myrtle Taylor, 88, of Gardena, as she was crossing Vermont Avenue at 149th Street in Gardena at 7:15 p.m. on Oct. 24, 1975. The driver was described by witnesses as a tall, thin black man about 30 years old, driving a 1969 Chevrolet Impala or Caprice, blue with a matching vinyl top.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Robert L. Boone, 28, of Long Beach, who was found shot to death in a Signal Hill field at 23rd Street and Junipero Avenue on the morning of Aug. 18, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the holdup slayer of Benjamin Wallace, 48-year-old San Pedro taxi driver who was found shot to death and slumped over the wheel of his cab parked at Seaside Avenue and Terminal Way on Terminal Island at 3 a.m. on Sunday, Aug. 3, 1975.

—A $2,000 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of James Hamilton Maegenn, 50-year-old employe of King's Imperial Restaurant in Lynwood at 1664 Atlantic Ave., stabbed to death in the restaurant parking lot as he was leaving work at 3:30 a.m. on June 1, 1975.

—Rewards totaling $3,500 — including $2,000 guaranteed by Secret Witness and $1,500 pledged by store owner Christopher Saunders — will be paid for information leading to the arrest and murder conviction of the killer of Duane Fettig, 29-year-old clerk shot to death during a holdup at the Melody Liquor Store, 20716 S. Normandie Ave. in the Torrance area, on the morning of Feb. 5, 1975.

—A $500 reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest of Douglas Lee Thompson, 23-year-old fugitive from a murder warrant in connection with the holdup slaying of David W. Arouette in his television repair shop at 6465 Long Beach Blvd. on Dec. 30, 1973, with an additional reward of $1,500 to be paid when and if Thompson is convicted of the murder.

Jail's medical services hit

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The Orange County Grand Jury called Friday for additional medical services for County Jail inmates, recommending that two more physicians be hired and nurses be trained to assume more responsibility.

The jury disclosed that its recommendations followed a probe into the deaths of a female inmate and a male prisoner in recent months under circumstances indicating there might have been inadequate medical care.

The family of the male prisoner, who died after a fall in his cell, has sued the county for $4 million.

The woman's illness occurred during a time when no physician was on duty, and a registered nurse cared for her.

Inmates in the jail told grand jurors there might have been an improper diagnosis of the woman's illness.

Grand jurors cautioned Sheriff Brad Gates that nurses should "confine their activities to legal nursing procedures and let medical diagnosis and prescription of treatment become the responsibility of the jail physician."

They also stressed that prisoners have the right to adequate medical care.

Recommendations by the grand jury included an overhaul of the medical-procedures manual, last updated in 1969; definite demarcation between medical and nursing duties; a protocol of diagnosis, treatment and handling; choosing of an assistant jail physician, along with a general practioner or internist as the third physician, and additional training of nurses to serve as nurse-practioners or physicians' assistants.

Jurors praised Dr. Paul Engle, acting director of the County Health Department and director of professional services, for beginning the upgrading of the manual and considering extended training for nurses.

They also recommended a pediatrician for the county's Juvenile Hall.

POLICE BEAT

2 sought in dance shooting

Long Beach police Saturday were searching for two youths who allegedly shot up a building where a rival organization was holding a dance Friday night.

According to officers at the dance, which was held at the Escuela De La Raza, 2600 E. Seventh St., the two fired between 30 and 50 shots through the windows of the building.

The officers were keeping the building under surveillance because members of La Raza Association, a Long Beach State University organization which was holding the dance, had reported that they expected trouble from a rival gang.

No one was injured seriously, but police said one of the men at the dance, Norman Arthur Yergean, 25, of 15127½ Gundry Ave., Paramount, suffered a crease wound on the top of the head.

Suspect asleep in wrong bed

A 32-year-old Hacienda Heights woman didn't know the youth who was sleeping in her bed Saturday, but after sheriff's deputies arrested and searched him they found out why he had been in her home.

Robert Burns, 18, who told deputies he lived in both La Mirada and Hacienda Heights, was booked on suspicion of burglary after Judith Allen returned home at 5 a.m. and found him sleeping in her bed. Police said the suspect apparently had entered the home by breaking a window on the kitchen door.

Burns was searched before being booked at the Commerce sheriff's station. Deputies said they found $1,100 worth of rings, which Ms. Allen told them had been taken from her jewelry box.

1 dead, 1 hurt after crash

An Ohio man died Saturday and a Fullerton man was in serious condition after their car skidded off the road and struck a power pole in Fullerton, police said.

The passenger, Herbert Roth Jr., 22, of Austintown, Ohio, was pronounced dead at St. Jude Hospital in Fullerton at 8:10 a.m. The driver, 23-year-old Allan Bord, was in serious condition at the same hospital.

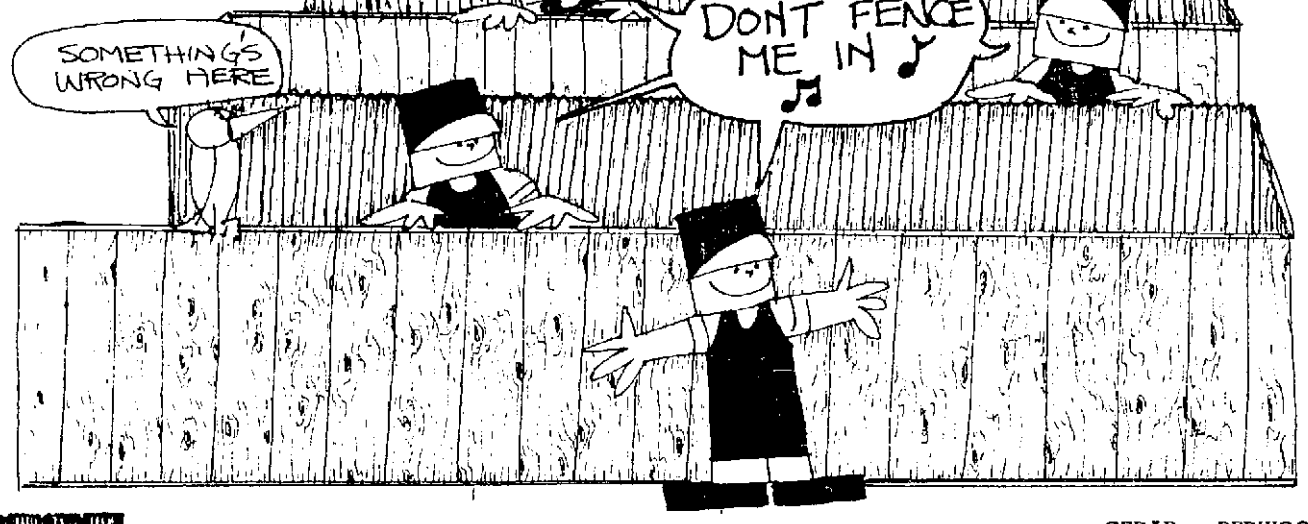

Lt. G. A. Causley said the accident occurred about 9:15 p.m. Friday at 1610 Brea Blvd. The car, southbound on Brea, skidded off the road, hit a tree, knocked over a street light and came to rest against a utility pole.

Escape to 'make-believe' islands

PICTURESQUE ST. PETER PORT, GUERNSEY, IN THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

CHANNEL ISLANDS, Britain — Sshhh! It's news you'd like to suppress.

There are bits of the earth still untrampled by American tourists and not yet in the grip of world-wide inflation — little gems shimmering out of the sea with a relatively mild climate and ablaze in spring with the brilliant yellow of daffodils, forsythia and gorse.

They aren't totally untouched. Tourists from Britain and the continent have known about them for years. But most Americans on their standard trips to Europe have not included Britain's Channel Islands in their itineraries.

At least not yet. But during what the British Tourist Authority hopes will be a mammoth Bicentennial pilgrimage ("Come home, all is forgiven") to the Mother Country, the Channel Islands will be featured as places to find a few days' idyll after the castles and the cathedrals and the "If it's Tuesday, it must be Belgium" pace.

Do the BTA people really know what they're doing in exposing the islands to the American onslaught? They think they do.

Small as they are, the islands are geared for visitors. Among the cows and the country lanes are dozens of hotels and smaller hostelries, many first class and some of the smaller ones amazingly cheap. And they're prepared to show Americans how the other fraction of a per cent lives.

They live in a vale of charm as thick as the cream their bovine populace produces. There is the 11th century Mont Orgueil Castle, a refuse for King Charles II, on Jersey, and the fascinating Victor Hugo house on Guernsey, decorated by the author during his exile.

ST. PETER PORT, the capital of Guernsey, has to be among the most picturesque ports in the world.

In other parts of the islands there are steep cliffs dropping down to dozens of hidden bays, dramatic tides and ideal places for surfing and scuba diving.

But the islands have more than an overabundance of quaintness.

They have a proud history: relics of paleolithic times, the Viking invasion, the Norman Conquest and the sudden occupation by the Germans during World War II.

As much French as British, a fact that has had a commendable affect on the cuisine, the islands have their own forms of government, the smaller ones retaining a feudal one-family rule.

Free from the power of the British Parliament, the ruling bodies make their owns laws, subject to approval of the Queen (they believe firmly in capital punishment but she commutes all the sentences to life in prison).

The tax laws are favorable. Income taxes are 20 per cent compared to up to 85 per cent that the British pay. Not only is the tax bite less, prices generally are a litle lower and there is no V.A.T. (value added tax) that is found throughout the rest of Great Britain.

SO ENTICING is the islands' financial picture, particularly during Britain's current grim financial battle, that the Crown has acted to keep the populace at home. Immigraton to the islands is severely restricted now and the islanders cooperate by making it very difficult to buy property unless one is a native or married to one.

The island residents, friendly and warm, nvertheless display the strong conservative streak common to those who have found Paradise and want to maintain the status quo.

Night life is subdued although there are some friendly bars and restaurants and a few movie houses. However, when one starts a leisurely eight-course meal at 9 and finishes it at midnght, the absence of something to go on to is hardly noted.

The chief administrative officers of Jersey and Guernsey are appointed by the queen, but the legislative bodies are composed of volunteers.

Jersey and Guernsey with populations of some 73,000 and 53,000 are the large islands, Jersey with 45 square miles the most sizeable.

Sark is the other best known, brought to prominence not only by its old-world charm but by the fierce rule of the Dame of Sark who died about a year and a half ago. Her successor, a grandson now the Seigneur of Sark, was just moving into the ancestral manor house this month and cheerfully showed a dozen American visitors about, his casualness belying his power over the tiny fiefdom.

For example, only he can own a female dog and when anyone sells property, he gets a slice. Likes his predecessors, the Seigneur has banned all cars from the island. There are a few farm tractors, but horse-drawn carts, bicycles and the human foot are the modes of travel down the incredibly beautifuly little lanes, perfumed with the coconut aroma of gorse.

Alderney is the island to the north, and there are tiny Herm and even smaller Jethou and Brechou, all three controlled by single families.

The islands make ideal popping off places for France. On a clear day the Brittany and Normandy coasts are visible from a number of points.

But then you look around. You spread some more clotted Guernsey cream (as yellow as a buttercup) on your scones. You think about another scenic lane to stroll. And no matter how hard the continent or London beckon, it's hard to decide to rejoin the real world.

Where flowers grow

The concept "Say it with flowers" was imported from The Netherlands. The Dutch grow more, give more flowers than anybody. From hotel breakfast table to stately banquet settings, fresh flowers are always there creating a smiling mood, distinctly Dutch.

Of Holland's many symbols, such as the windmill, the one the Dutch themselves use as their tourism logo is the tulip, although tulips are actually only a constellation in Holland's floral galaxy.

This graphically reflects that above all else Holland likes to project its image as the Garden of Europe, the Flowerland of the World. The Netherlands grows and exports more flowers, and vegetables, too, per capita than any country on the globe.

The tourist season in Holland peaks prematurely in Spring because the tulips and other bulb flowers burst out by the millions in a thousand colors and present, in a concentrated area adjacent to the North Sea dunes, one of nature's greatest shows.

All this happens from the beginning of April to the middle of May in the coastal area between Leiden and Haarlem. But fortunately floral Holland is not confined to these dates and to this region.

West Holland's great glass covered horticultural industry provides a year round profusion of cut flowers of every species imaginable to satisfy an ever growing domestic and world market appreciation for the gift of nature, lovingly given.

IN THE Netherlands there is dramatic evidence of this colorful traffic in the world's largest indoor flower auction at Aalsmeer, close to Schiphol Airport. Here, from early in the morning until 11 a.m., some 4 million cut flowers are brought in, auctioned in three computerized Dutch style auction halls — with buyers vying against descending price auction clocks — and shipped by land and air everywhere.

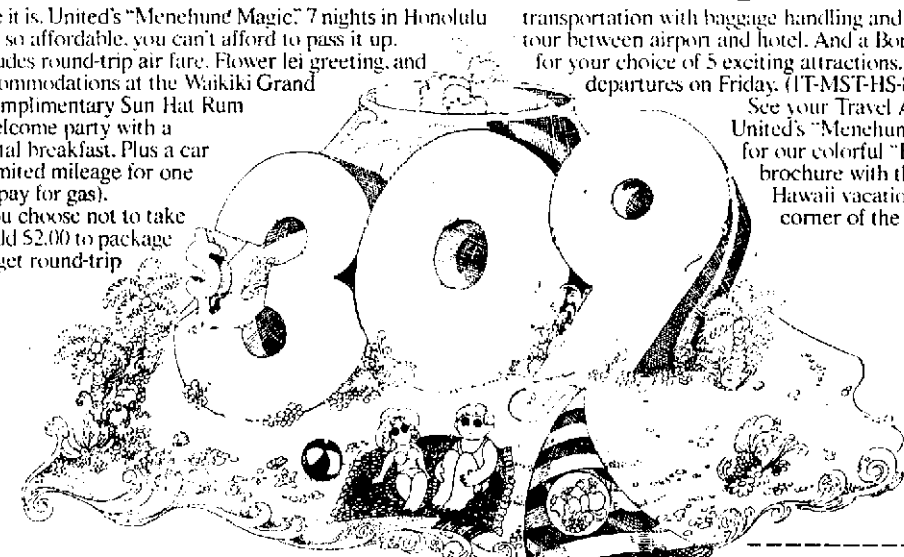

An enormous quantity of flowers and plants are bought by the Dutch themselves — and their love for flowers can be seen in street flower stalls, luxurious town flower shops, open air flower markets, and in homes whose curtains are invariably open to share with passersby their decorative arts usually enhanced by floral arrangements.

There is perhaps no other country that has special road signs designating bulb flower routes and blossom routes. The bulb routes are in the West and North of The Netherlands; the blossom routes to the East and South.

When visitors depart Holland from Schiphol International Airport they often make a quick stop at one of the flower shops in the Tax Free Shopping Center for last minute flower postal orders for friends, and take along a seasonal Dutch treat bouquet as a thoughtful souvenir from the land of windmills and flowers.

A STREET SCENE IN CONSTANZA, ROMANIA

Frolicking along the Black Sea

CONSTANZA, Romania — Ovid, the playful Roman poet who advised lovers to play the game of love without becoming involved, is celebrated at every turn here. It was to this fashionable resort on the Black Sea that he was banished in 8 A.D. for not taking his own advice.

He had fallen in love with Julia, the granddaughter of Emperor Octavianus Augustus who nourished nobler hopes for his granddaughter's mate than an obscure poet.

Ironically, Ovid still is remembered throughout the world. The licentious Julia, eventually banished also, is remembered only for her affair with the poet.

True to his fashion, Ovid did not suffer the pangs of unrequited love for long. After writing, "How little you know about the age you live in if you fancy that choral pepper

honey is sweeter than cash in hand!" he immediately switched his affections to an elegant lady of Constanza.

PERHAPS MORE than any woman, however, Ovid grew to love the wiles of the Black Sea. His epic Metamorphoses, written while he lived in Constanza, is considered one of his finest.

Today, you can sit in the sun at a sidewalk cafe on a broad plaza dominated by Ovid's toga-clad statue and sense the beauty that he found in exile. Flanked by ruins from an ancient Greek colony 3500 years old and an elaborate 17th century town hall, the plaza's cobblestone paving has endured countless changes.

During the first half of the 5th century B.C., Greek colonists from the coast of Asia Minor established an important port called Tomi here.

They were followed by the victorious Roman emperor Constantinus the Great, who changed the city's name to honor his own. His influence did not run without interruption, however. For a period around 1878 the port fell under Turkish rule and was known as Kustendje.

Extensive artifacts from all of these periods are exhibited in Constanza's grand Museum of Archaeology or left in place throughout the city. Recent diggings have produced evidence of an even earlier mysterious Getic population that Romania's archaeologists are attempting to identify now.

WHILE I EXPLORED old streets that twist along the Quay, the Royal Viking Star put into port and expelled some 500 cruise passengers.

With the babble of voices and energetic vibes of cruisers making the most of a port call, it became easy to imagine Constanza in its early days. Then, slaves carried bundles of grain and clay vessels of olive oil to deposit in the miles of underground galleries cut from rock that criss-crossed the ancient Tomi peninsula.

The vast market place, a polychrome mosaic terrace at the edge of the sea, remains today. Its stylized flowers, heart-shaped ivy leaves and concentric scroll designs are as freshly brilliant as when they were set in the fourth century.

It was here that the metal tools and slabs of marble from Tomi's ancient workshops tempted visiting traders from Scythia Minor and across the Danube. This port that Ovid described as "the fair metropolis in the Pontus" was one of the greatest trading centers of the world.

THE ENTIRE city is a museum of ancient edifices, catacombs, aqueducts, statues and broken walls, but perhaps a more popular attraction is the modern beach resorts at Mamaia on the outskirts.

Although weather is generally mild in winter, the resort season reaches its height in the summer when the three-mile-long beach attracts some 50,000 bathers a day.

They come primarily from Germany and Scandinavia. Hotels are plentiful in the resort colony.

The easiest way to reach these Black Sea resorts is via train to Constanza from Bucharest. Scandinavian Airlines has direct flights from Los Angeles to Bucharest via Copenhagen.

Hotels from Belgrade to London

Belgrade

A few American tourists spilling over from the Grand Tour find their way to Belgrade. Traffic insane, but a pretty good town.

Slavia Hotel (B class) was $10 double with breakfast. Private bath. Good deal.

Skadarlija is the place for dinner, a kind of Greenwich Village area. Whole cluster of restaurants in a crooked row.

Tri Sesir (means "three hats") is good. Place got the name from three local cats who came up short and couldn't pay the bill. Left their hats for security and split. Never came back.

Charm and color. Strolling violinists with music to cry by. Lots of smeared mascara around. Waiter looked like a short Cesar Romero.

Rissoto with oysters and paprika. Pink veal with fiery Yugoslav sauce. Vlasotince wine. About $8 for two.

BELGRADE like Munich, escalates you up and down. Corridors of boutiques and cafes underground. Good one is Verona. Dimly lit cellar. Only room for 20 coupies, all of them carrying on.

Order something called Muckalica Leskovacka. (Menu spelling rough here.) Veal. Tomatoes. Garlic. Pimientos. Peppers. Other mysterious inserts.

For salad, three whole pimientos with chopped garlic. Some wild Dalmatian wine. About $7. Love to go back.

WHAT TO do about going to Europe with the stan delaplane

dollar going up, up, up? Should we buy all our foreign currency here in advance?"

Who knows? I don't THINK the dollar is going to go down. I carry money in U.S. dollar travel checks.

Always handy for changing countries: A couple of $5 bills and 10 in $1s. You've cashed in that country's money.

Now you're in the departure lounge at the airport. You need cigarettes. A $1 bill keeps you from having to cash a $20 travel check. With all your change in unwanted currency.

And from one country to another, don't cash into dollars! Like London to Paris. You are holding British pounds. Don't go into dollars and THEN into French francs. Go from pounds to francs — either in the London airport bank or at Paris.

Each exchange costs a small fee. Time to go into dollars is your last airport headed home.

" ... some colorful hotels in London and England?"

Trust Houses (write for map and folder, 81 Piccadilly, London, W.1.) has a big chain of fine, remodeled old coaching inns. Several first class hotels in London. All stiff and starched as afternoon tea and watercress sandwiches.

CHECK YOUR BILL! Their bookkeepers are madmen. I NEVER had a correct bill. And some so far out, I didn't know what they were talking about. Neither did the manager.

TWICE I've had the manager slice unknown charges off the bill; I mean like $50 a crack.

Rent an apartment abroad

Vacation apartment rentals in Europe, difficult to obtain through normal channels, are now available by advance arrangement through a number of organizations in the U.S.

One is Idyll, Ltd., P.O. Box 405, Media, PA 19063, which lists apartment rentals in Swiss villages to be used as a base for extended holidays. The organization also provides advisory services in planning vacations, recommends economical trips to other countries in Europe and escorts in Switzerland.

The advantages of chalet rentals rather than using hotels, according to the program sponsor, include a deeper experience of the European life-style and avoidance of tourist traps.

For the first time in history: You're able to fly non-stop to Tokyo.

Until now, the only way to get to Tokyo was with a stop in San Francisco or Honolulu.
Now you have another choice: no stops.
Starting April 25, Pan Am will introduce the new 747. The 747 SP.
The SP standing for special performance.
And its first special performance will be Los Angeles to Tokyo two hours faster than ever before.
Starting May 7, we'll have flights every day. Until then we'll be going every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday. Flight 3 will leave at 12:30 pm and arrive in Tokyo at 3:45 the following afternoon.
Each flight features a choice from among 4 entrees in our expanded first class section, and 3 in economy. There will be a movie shown along the way ($2.50 per headset, no charge in first class). And at no extra charge, all the room a wide-body plane has for you to stretch out.
Naturally, the 747 SP also has our elegant first class upper-deck dining room. (As always you can arrange to have a seat at one of the tables by reserving in advance.)

Roaming streets of Paris

NOTRE DAME Cathedral has been a Parisian landmark for centuries.

travel

Almost everything is special about Paris, a city possessing a magical quality that enables a traveler to revel in its many attributes while overlooking shortcomings.

It is the home of "haute cuisine" and "haute couture" and throughout modern history has been the workplace of great artists, writers and philosophers. Paris still retains its magnetic appeal for people of all ages.

The city was designed more for walking than for driving, with numerous small back streets providing picturesque shortcuts for traveling from landmark to landmark.

The River Seine which cuts through Paris serves as a useful landmark for orientation. For streets running perpendicular to the Seine, numbers start at the river. Streets running parallel to the river have numbers going east to west.

Public transportation is clean, fast and efficient, with a money-saving Billet de Tourisme (Tourist Ticket) good for four or seven days of unlimited travel on both bus and Metro.

You get a better view riding the buses, but during rush hour Paris streets are at a standstill and the underground Metro is the fastest way from point to point.

Metered taxis are quite plentiful and can be flagged down in the street or found at any train station.

THERE IS NO shortage of hotels in Paris, ranging from small renovated townhouses to towering glass rectangles. Rates range from $50 up at prestigious palaces such as the Ritz, Meurice, Grand and Intercontinental Paris, to $25 and down in a list of 100 lesser-known hostelries available from the French Tourist Office, 9401 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, CA 90212.

Paris boasts more than 8,000 restaurants and bistros, each with its own "specialite de la maison" and most featuring a regional French cuisine native to the section of France where the proprietor was born.

There are some who say Paris has no really bad restaurants. While this might conceivably be true, it is certain that some restaurants are better than others.

When it comes to prices there is a wide spread between a three-star "haute cuisine" establishment listed in the Guide Michelin and the many neighborhood places offering first class meals at a cost most Americans can afford.

It is possible to eat inexpensively in Paris, and the favorite of many in this category is Pied du Cochon (Pig's Foot), in Les Halles district where the famous central markets stood until a few years ago. You can dine for $5 per person, including wine, choosing from such fare as steak with shallots or a hearty cassoulet.

You don't have to look any further than the nearest street corner to find a handy little bistro for a mid-afternoon respite for a glass of wine, a beer or some other lightly titilating beverage.

Sit outside, weather permitting, and don't feel obligated to run up a big bill. Bistros are for relaxing, small talk and just watching the Paris scene develop on the nearby street.

BISTROS ARE instantly recognizable by their small, round tables, striped awnings and waiters wearing white aprons and carrying trays.

Choose whatever form of nightlife you prefer, and there is more of it in Paris than just about any other city in the world.

Jazz clubs, just now returning to their previously held position of prominance in the United States, have been going strong in Paris since before World War II.

The Slow Club, on Rue de Rivoli, caters to a young, irreverent audience that dances out of time to a first-rate jazz band. It's a long-time haunt of trumpeter Miles Davis, and on Saturday night the club is so jam-packed it's impossible to reach the bar.

For strip joints, Crazy Horse and the Lido reign supreme. The first one is a bit more refined, with the latter somewhat gaudier.

UNLIKE MANY innocuous islands that sit in the middle of rivers that biseet thriving cities, Ile St. Louis is an enclave containing certain Parisian gems not found anywhere else. The ambiance is tranquil and artsy, and its residents include many entertainers.

Until four in the morning, the island's colony of night people can be found eating and drinking hearti-ly in La Brasserie Alsacienne, one of the few late night restaurants in the city.

Retail establishments run the gamut, from the world famous flea market — Le Marche aux Puces — and the numerous small specialty shops to designers' showcases and magnificent department stores.

Au Printemps and Galeries LaFayette are two of the biggest and shinlest, featuring the ready-to-wear collections of Cardin, Lanvin, Cacharel and other well known French designers.

Both of these "grands magasins" have free booklets for foreign travelers outlining the discounts available for goods purchased for export. Check into it; the discounts are between 17 and 20 per cent, depending on the article being purchased.

It's this discount that makes it all worthwhile, since without it the prices are no lower than comparable merchandise bought in the United States.

Greece to save ruins

The government of Greece has established a budget of more than $1.5 million for restoration of some of the ancient and famed ruins that are found throughout the mainland and the more than 3,000 islands of the Aegean.

The fumes of modern day industry and traffic are taking a toll of the seemingly indestructible monuments of 4,000 years of Greek history. Experts say that the unique structures have been damaged more in the past few decades by pollution than they were by weather exposure over four centuries.

The initial concern is for the Parthenon and other monuments on the Acropolis of Athens. Visitors are now banned from the interior of the Parthenon and a five-man team of Greek arecheologists is studying recommendations for the preservation of the buildings.

ANOTHER immediate concern is the Temple of Apollo at Bassae near Olympia, one of the best preserved temples of ancient times. Another team of experts from UNESCO is preparing a report containing both short and long-term measures to be taken, and to be used as a basis for financial help from UNESCO and other international organizations.

More than three million tourists visited Greece last year and it is expected that this number will increase during 1976.

Further information may be obtained from the Greek National Tourist Organiztion offices at 627 W. Sixth St., Los Angeles, CA 90017.

The pluses and minuses of a Europabus ride

jane morse

If you liked Eurail, will you love Europabus?

After a $7 sample bus ride, from Barcelona, Spain, to Perpignan, France, I felt like a one-potato-chip eater, greedy for more and cross with myself for biting off so little.

Europabus is the motor coach system of the European Railways, originally intended to supplement intercontinental Eurail service, but now spread like trailing ivy over its own 70,000 scenic miles. What turns me green is that it goes from London to Teheran and I didn't.

My little bit was still a lot, and I think I saw a light. If you can't tour Europe with your own Rolls Royce and chauffeur, a shiny, clean Europabus is a reasonably classy substitute.

On the trip I took one chilly but sparkling winter day, a hostess who spoke English, Spanish and French welcomed us aboard. Then, on schedule to the dot, our queen of the highways cruiser sped off, smoothly passing one minicar after another to assume its rightful place in the inside "fast" lane.

The road to Perpignan is curvy, with modern towns and dusty, decaying villages to focus on between hilly panoramas and dazzling glimpses of the Mediterranean. Traveling through narrow streets or plunging along highways with sudden stop-and-go traffic, there were always the eyeball to-eyeball encounters that are a built-in fascination on bus travel.

EVEN SO, Europabus is as unlike its American equivalents as cheese is sausage. For instance:

— Does Europabus go everywhere and let you see everything?

No, 70,000 miles is not as much as you might think it is, and some knee bones do not connect with thigh bones, meaning lots of blanks exist that must be filled in by trains or local bus lines. To continue from France to Italy using only Europabus service, for instance, I'd have had to backtrack clear to Belgium.

Practically speaking, what you need to do is send for a Europabus system timetable (11 E. 44th St., New York, N.Y. 10036) and try to match what you want with what it has.

— Is Europabus the lowest-priced way to go? Very rarely. Second-class rail is often cheaper and usually faster.

— What, then, does Europabus have that makes it worth thinking about? Limited though it is, it's still Europe's only transcontinental bus line.

There are a variety of local lines that link one or two countries, but arranging a trip through Europe via other brands of buses is, from this distance, a tough row to hoe. Europabus offers inter-country schedules you can buy tickets for right here.

— THEN YOU just travel as usual from one place to another? Not necessarily.

Strange as it may seem, long-distance service such as Madrid-Lisbon or London-Athens requires that passengers buy all-inclusive tickets for transportation plus prearranged food and lodging. Europabuses, you see, are not fly-by-nighters.

For the most part, they move during daylight hours only, deposit passengers at a hotel around dinner time, then reboard them after breakfast the following morning. Munich-Istanbul thus turns out to be a three-day junket.

— Can you make stopovers along the way? Yes, anywhere and easily, though it's necessary to speak up at the time you buy your ticket.

— Can you reserve seats? Forget "can" and think "must." Space is generally easy to come by in winter, but once all seats are sold, that's it. No extra sections are ever added.

— How much baggage is allowed? Two pieces per person and then only at the owner's risk. Passengers are advised to personally witness the loading and unloading of baggage. Insurance is obviously a good idea.

— WHAT kind of bus will you travel on? Any of many. Europabus is an amalgamation of different companies, each with its own makes and models of coaches. All are modern, equipped with picture windows and reclining seats for 40 to 44 passengers (30 on short runs).

Most carry drinking water but not lavatories, and there are normally hostesses aboard to answer tourists' question. If it's important, ask ahead about air conditioning; a few coaches lack it.

— Any discounts or promotional fares? No promotional fares, but often reduced rates for Eurail Pass holders and lower fares for children ages 4-12.

— Can the system stand improvements? Certainly, and when I am running the world, they will occur. Heating systems will function perfectly and never (as mine did) overcook ankles resting next to blowers.

Porters will be installed by the gross; overhead storage racks will be enlarged, and all stations will remain open at all hours, the better to function as baggage checkrooms for passengers en route.

Meanwhile, I would recommend wearing layers of clothing to peel off or put on in case the heating or air conditioning is acting up, and carrying as little luggage as possible. Buses can be beautiful, but not baggage chores that give you blisters.

TWA's East. 3 ways better than the competition.

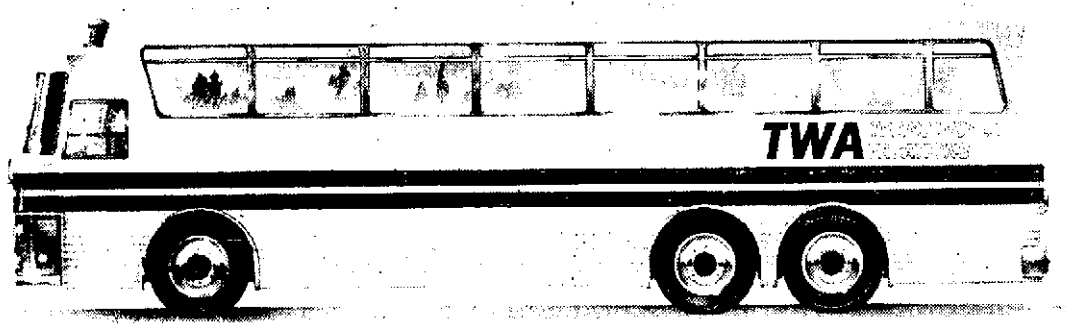

There's no better time to go back East than this Bicentennial year. And there's no better place to start making your plans than right here. Because no matter what your style—whether you prefer being chauffeured around in a spacious Motorcoach, on your own on the road, or Freestyling it in the East's history-rich cities—TWA has a tour for your pace at your price. Choose the tour and the airfare that best suit your plans. Nobody but TWA offers variety like this. Take a look:

1. Exclusive Motorcoach Tours. First class comfort, lots of extras. $277-$679.

Only TWA offers European Motorcoach comfort in the U.S. Quite simply, one of the most relaxing ways to travel. Reclining airline-type seats, big glare-proof picture windows and an expert guide who'll handle all the details for you. Choose from 8 historic tours of the East, from $277 to $679 per person, based on double occupancy.

For example, take our splashy Eastern Escapade. Starting in New York up to Newport's palatial seaside mansions, on to Boston, Niagara Falls, Hershey, Gettysburg, rustically charming Pennsylvania Dutch country; then on to Washington, Colonial Williamsburg, Philadelphia and back to New York. 13 days for $679.

Pick up TWA's Getaway* Motorcoach USA brochure from your Travel Agent for the complete itinerary of this tour and 7 other Bicentennial tours originating from Boston, New York and Washington.

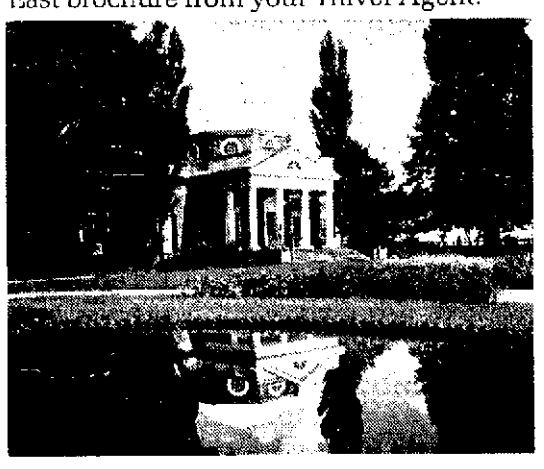

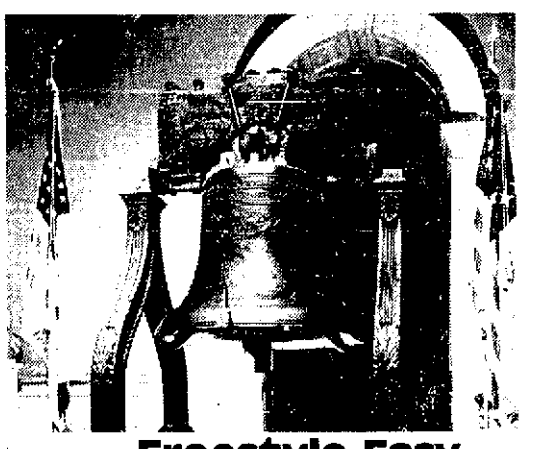

2. Freewheeler. The most flexible Fly/Drive program going. From $19 a day.

Tour the East at your own pace, your own price. From $19 to $46 a day, per person, for 7 days or more, based on double occupancy. You get a Hertz car with unlimited mileage plus a room at your choice of participating Hyatts, Sheratons, Howard Johnson's and many other fine hotels. Or, for as little as $39 to $49 a day, you get a room at participating Holiday Inns that accommodates up to 4 people and a Hertz car with unlimited mileage.

Start your trip from any of the 4 cities listed on the chart plus 10 others. For all the details, pick up TWA's Freewheeler East brochure from your Travel Agent.

3. Freestyle. Easy-going vacations with sightseeing. $20-$30 a day.

TWA's Freestyle vacations are available in Chicago as well as the cities listed below. For every day you stay at any participating Hilton, Sheraton, Hyatt, Howard Johnson's and many other hotel chains, you get a half-day's sightseeing tour or dinner at a selected restaurant—a TWA exclusive.

Visit one city or take in several. Rates are from $20-$30 per person, based on double occupancy, per night, based on 2 nights or more. For all the specifics, including detailed itineraries of the sightseeing tours, ask your Travel Agent for TWA's Freestyle USA brochure.

New USC offense: Ricky Bell and then some

JOHN ROBINSON
Still winless

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

John Robinson grinned as a dozen or so football writers gathered around a screen in a private room at Julie's, the famed USC oasis.

"I had a class in college in which I learned that if you're dealing with slow learners, you had better use films," said the new Trojan football coach.

With that, Robinson unveiled the Trojans' Hairtrigger offense, which will feature "half-roll" passing, "change-up substitution" and a strong reliance on all-America running back Ricky Bell, the Terror of Troy.

As the films showed JC transfer quarterback Walt Ransom flipping a quick swing pass to Bell, Robinson said: "We're trying to get the ball out there right now. We want to get the ball to Ricky out there and say, 'You tackle him.' "

As holdover quarterback Vince Evans hit split end Randy Simmrin down the middle, Robinson commented: "That was a helluva pass for a guy some people say can't pass. I'll say this about Vince—he's improved his decision-making a great deal this spring."

Robinson emphasized that he's not dumping the running game which John McKay utilized to bring USC four national championships before he left to take over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League.

"We want to get the ball to Ricky and say, 'You tackle him.' "

"We must have run 28 pitch (Student Body Right) a million times out there this spring," he said. "I just thought you might be interested in some of the new things we're trying.

"A lot of our thought process is based on quick short and medium passes, which we believe will control our opponents' defenses. If we can get them to lay back, we're going to run. If they come up, we're going to throw from a half-roll by the quarterback."

Among innovations will be a slot-back formation from which flanker Shelton Diggs and other receivers will line up at fullback, then shift to a wide positions.

"That would give us three split receivers," Robinson pointed out. "It's difficult for the other team to spot change-up substitutions like that. We hope to create situations in which a linebacker will have to cover someone like Diggs, who has had a tremendous spring."

Robinson said Ransom and Evans are one-two at quarterback, not necessarily in that order, but added that he expected baseball player Rob Hertel to make a strong challenge for a starting job when he reports in the fall.

"My key responsibility is to make the quarterback position successful at USC," he said. "No one in history has made the tailback position as successful as coach McKay did at USC.

"We want to create the same kind of environment for the quarterback."

But it was obvious that Bell still is Robinson's main man.

"My key responsibility is to make the quarterback position successful at USC."

As the 220-pound Bell whipped through a hole and charged through the secondary toward a lone defensive back, Robinson said: "How would you like to be the guy out there?"

He said the USC coaching staff is attempting to make it more difficult for opponents to defense Bell.

"Our hope is that the teams we play will have to worry as much about Bell on the pass as they will on runs. That way, they won't have as much time to work on stopping him on the Blast play.

"What coach McKay's 1972 and '74 national championship teams did so well was take what was there—what their opponents would allow them to take. That's what we're aiming for, too."

Robinson laughed. "You know, I haven't won a game as a head coach. The thing that's scary is that we might not be able to pass or run. A balanced offense—bad running and bad passing."

He said the keys to the 1976 season are the "intangibles—how well our good players perform."

"How well will Ricky Bell play? How will the guys we rate as outstanding play? Can we motivate Gary Jeter and Marvin Powell to play their best?

Wooden chides Bartow

CINCINNATI (AP) — Retired UCLA basketball coach John Wooden believes his successor, Gene Bartow, "is a little too sensitive" to press criticism which resulted in unnecessary pressure on the new coach.

Wooden said Bartow faced the pressures of his winning tradition but added the former Illinois and Memphis State coach may have overreacted to a few critics.

"I guess I shouldn't be saying this—he'll be coming in for this clinic and he will probably be willing to comment on it—but I thought the writers were very good to him, for the most part.

"But you're always going to have one or two critics, no matter how successful you are, and I think he allowed those relatively few critical writers to get to him."

Wooden was in Cincinnati for a basketball clinic and a visit to Dayton, Ky. where he began his coaching career.

"It's something I'm sure he'll learn to cope with and that will relieve some of his pressure," Wooden said of Bartow.

"I'll say this, it would have been much harder if he hadn't been left with a nucleus of good, extremely talented basketball players," Wooden added.

"I don't think anyone will deny we left Gene with a fine basketball team. I expected this to be one of UCLA's best teams, really...and naturally, it was."

Wooden guided UCLA to 10 NCAA basketball titles in 12 seasons.

Bartow's first year team produced a 27-5 record at UCLA, another Pacific-8 Conference championship and a third place finish in the NCAA tournament.

"Certainly, Gene felt pressures. But I think for the most part he was a little too sensitive to the situation and that added more pressure, perhaps unnecessary pressure," Wooden said.

Sutton struggles to first win, 2-1

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Don Sutton finally got his first victory of the season Saturday night—his first since last August, actually—as he clipped the Chicago Cubs, 2-1, before 26,000 Dodger Stadium fans.

Dodger of Day

DON SUTTON earned first victory, beating Cubs, 2-1.

But like the few wins the Dodgers have this year, it didn't come easily.

The Cubs had the tying run on third base in the top of the ninth inning and no one out.

"It was a nice feeling to have to bear down a little and hit the spots," said Sutton, "The last couple of times I had to do it in the fifth or sixth inning."

Sutton, who had lost seven successive decisions since that last victory on Aug. 10, pitched impressively after he walked Jerry Morales to lead off the ninth and then wild pitched him to third.

He got Andre Thornton and Manny Trillo on harmless grounders to a drawn-in infield and then fanned pinch hitter Joe Wallis to end it.

"I certainly didn't plan on walking Morales," Sutton said. "But he's a guy who can tie the game with one swing. I had to make good pitches to him. I did but they just missed."

Sutton's complete game was the first all season by the Dodgers and it was Sutton's 111th, moving him into a tie with Don Newcombe for second place on the club's all-time list behind the immortal Brickyard Kennedy (279).

It's ironic that Sutton should snap his personal skid against the Cubs, a club he's managed to beat just a half-dozen times in 22 decisions.

"I made some mistakes tonight," he said, "but when I did the next batter hit the ball right at somebody. In the last couple of games they'd hit it into the $2.50 seats."

Three times double plays helped Sutton out of what might have been touchy situations. The last time was in the eighth after the Cubs had scored a run to cut the Dodger lead to 2-1 and they still had runners on first and second with only one out.

But Bill Madlock, the National League's batting champion in 1975 and a .314 hitter at game time, lined sharply to shortstop Bill Russell, who flipped to Ted Sizemore at second for the double play and the Dodgers were out of trouble.

Sutton's offensive backing was about all the Dodgers have been capable of recently.

Toronto at Philadelphia.

"I think we've got the momentum now," Pulford said following Saturday's workout at Boston Garden. "It's a one-game series now and both teams have an equal chance to win."

"Coming back the way we did the other night gives us a great lift and I think we have the momentum to beat Boston now," Mike Corrigan proclaimed.

Butch Goring, whose second overtime goal of the series forced what seemed like a soft series for the Bruins to the limit, said, "Our win Thursday gives us tremendous momentum. We didn't want to go out quitters and we won't tomorrow night. If Boston beats us, they'll know they were in a game," Goring predicted.

Kings general manager Jake Milford said, "We're better prepared than we were the last time we played here. That overtime win was a big boost for us. I think we have a good chance of winning now."

The wizard of odds, Jimmy (the Greek) Snyder, still favors the Bruins at 8-5.

However, the Boston camp isn't quite as confident as it was 48 hours ago.

Coach Don Cherry said, "We'll be ready. We'll have to be ready.

General manager Harry Sinden analyzed his team's recovery from their emotional OT loss. "It will follow the natural course," Sinden said. "There was the absolute shock right after the game; the depression the next day (Friday); and then the revival by tomorrow night."

Well, maybe, but the Bruins have a good deal to think about.

Their recent history in overtime is, well, awful. They lost to Philly and Chicago in last year's playoffs, and twice to the Kings this year on Goring goals.

On a bright note, the Bruins are 18-1-4 in their last 22 home games. But always there's that nagging "anything can happen" notion.

World record in discus: 226-11½

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Traditionally, two of the most popular events at the Mt. San Antonio Relays are discus throwing and discus ducking.

The discus always draws a world-class field, and those world-class athletes throw their wood-and-steel implements all over Mt. San Antonio College's Memorial Stadium.

But the only thing flattened during the feature day of the Mt. SAC Relays Saturday was John Powell's world record.

Mac Wilkins, a soft-spoken former school teacher from San Jose, powered the discus 226 feet, 11½ inches to shatter the 226-8 standard set by his Pacific Coast Club teammate a year ago.

The effort enabled Wilkins to become the eighth discus thrower to be honored as field athlete of the meet in the 18-year history of the Relays.

Wilkins wasn't particularly impressed.

"It was an 'arm' throw," he said after bettering his lifetime best by seven feet. "From a technical standpoint, it wasn't that good a throw."

It was doubly impressive, however, since Wilkins competed with a back injury.

"I hurt my back last week during a weightlifting session," said Wilkins, "and it hurt when I got out of bed this morning."

While accepting the world record, Wilkins declined the favorite's role in the discus at Montreal.

"Powell still has to be favored," declared Wilkins. "He's been the national champion the past two years and he's the most consistent thrower in the world."

Wilkins and Powell are scheduled for head-to-head combat twice in the next week, Saturday at the San Jose Invitational and Sunday in the Long Beach Invitational at Long Beach State.

Saturday's other award winners were Dedy Cooper of San Jose State, who won the 110-meter high hurdles in 13.6, and Debbie Brill of Canada, who set a national record by winning the women's high jump with a leap of 6-2¾, a meet record.

The spectacular competition expected in the pole vault, which had five 18-foot vaulters in its field, failed to materialize.

Roland Carter of the Gulf Coast Track Club and Larry Jessee of Maccabi Union tied for first at 17-4¾. World record holder Dave Roberts (18-6½) was third at 16-10¾.

Long Beach State's Don Baird went out at 16-10¾.

It was a good day for Long Beach ladies.

Olympic veteran Martha Watson leaped 20-2¼ to win the long jump and Kathy Schmidt set a meet record of 211-6 while winning the javelin.

Kathy's toss broke her meet record of 192-1—and a jinx.

"I've never thrown well here, and I don't know why," said Ms. Schmidt, who has just dropped out of UCLA to concentrate on this summer's Olympic Games in Montreal.

Kathy ended the jinx Saturday by throwing 202-2, 211-6, foul, 203-0, 209-7.

"I thought that was a real good series. I've thrown 211, 215 and 209 now and pretty soon I'm going to have to make some kind of big leap into the 'teens.'

"I want to throw consistently in the 'teens' and then, every so often, 'pop' one beyond 220."

TROUBLE IN MILWAUKEE FOR ANGELS: RAIN, PAIN

MILWAUKEE—Even though the Angels were idled Saturday by a day-long freezing rain, they came up on the minus side.

Pitcher Andy Hassler was returned to Anaheim with appendicitis and will be hospitalized for two or three days.

The appendicitis is mild rather than acute. Hassler will undergo a series of tests before a decision is made on whether he will have the appendix removed.

Hassler, 0-2 this year with a 9.31 ERA and without a victory since last April 29, had lost his job in the starting rotation to Gary Ross.

He complained of a searing pain in his right side prior to Friday night's game with the Brewers and, after overnight observation at a local hospital, flew back to Southern California Saturday.

Saturday's washout was rescheduled as part of a twi-night doubleheader on July 19 when the Angels make their second and final trip to Milwaukee.

Weather permitting—and again the forecast is doubtful—the Angels and Brewers will try it once more today with Frank Tanana scheduled to oppose Pete Broberg. KTLA (Ch. 5) will televise the game beginning at 11:30 a.m.

In the series finale Monday night, Nolan Ryan is matched against Bill Champion in a twilight affair.

PREP SHUNS $1.7 MILLION; WILL $3 MILLION SWAY HIM?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville Male High School basketball star Darrell Griffith has already turned his back on a $1.7 million professional contract.

Now an agent who represents several American Basketball Association players says he will give Griffith a chance to weigh a $3 million offer.

Tommy Meehan, who said he has been commissioned by two ABA clubs to make the offer, refused to identify the clubs but did say that he was not representing the Kentucky Colonels.

According to a copyrighted story in Saturday's Louisville Courier Journal, the offer includes a $100,000 bonus for signing and an annual salary of $50,000 for 35 years.

Griffith at one time entertained notions of submitting his name for consideration in the National Basketball Association's hardship draft, but finally decided to accept a scholarship at the University of Louisville.

Meehan said he had earlier offered Griffith, through an intermediary, a $1.7 million contract. But the 6-foot-3 guard turned it down. Meehan said it was his idea that Griffith submit his name for the hardship draft in order to see what price he might command, but that "somebody got to him" to change his mind.

Meehan added that he didn't know until he arrived here this week that Griffith had signed with Louisville.

"That changes it," Meehan said. "I don't know how deep his commitment to college is. I don't know that I'll even talk to him now," said Meehan, adding that "I might try one more approach."

Crime does pay

Tom Sambrano goes into landing pattern during successful steal of second in first game of Long Beach State doubleheader with San Diego State Saturday. Sabrano's steal, and his base hit, helped the 49ers rally for five runs in eighth inning on way to 8-7 victory.

49ers take pair from Aztecs, move to 2nd

Long Beach State rallied from a six-run deficit to win the first game Saturday, then got shutout pitching in the nightcap to sweep a doubleheader from visiting San Diego State and move into second place in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

The 49ers won the first game, 8-7, and the second, 2-0, to improve their PCAA record to 9-6 and their over-all standard to 26-18-1. The losses knocked San Diego State (8-7) into third place.

The 49ers had to rally from a 7-1 disadvantage in the first game after San Diego touched Jim Davis for six runs in the first five innings.

But reliefer Ed McGraw came on to stifle San Diego's offense and the 49ers got two runs back in the seventh. They won it in the eighth when 10 men came to bat.

Bob McRae shut out the Aztecs on four hits in the nightcap, improving his record to 6-4. Steve Fenoglio took care of the runs, singling and eventually scoring on a groundout in the third and then belting his fifth home run of the year in the fifth.

Harris K's 18 in 4-0 LBCC victory

When Greg Harris pitches, his Long Beach City College teammates usually are quiet with their bats, and that's the way it was Saturday at Pasasdena City College — with one important difference.

While the Viking hurler was tossing an 18-strikeout, three-hit masterpiece, his support surprised him by getting maximum production from only four hits and the result was a 4-0 Metropolitan Conference win.

Leftfielder Brad Liebeck struck the big blow in support of Harris, a home run over the fence at the 340 mark with a mate aboard in the eighth.

Liebeck, who also had one single, and third baseman Rick Kienast who had a pair were the entire Viking offense.

Harris was never in serious trouble. He permitted balls beyond the infield and among the victims of his low-outside curve was Lancer Aurdie Culbert who whiffed three times with a man on base.

Loser Colin Danielson also made a game of it until Liebeck's blast. He gave up only three hits as 19 LBCC batters grounded out.

In running his league mark to 9-2, Harris further improved his ERA which was on the low side of 1.5 going into the game.

LBCC, which started the week one game out of the league cellar, is now 4-3 in Metro play and stands in third place.

Wilkes leads Warriors' win

DETROIT (AP)—Jamaal Wilkes was the humiliated Thursday, being the principle victim of Curtis Rowe's 33-point night. Saturday he was a hero.

Wilkes made up for the humiliation and helped pace the Golden State Warriors to a 113-96 National Basketball Association playoff victory over Rowe and the rest of the Detroit Pistons.

It gave the Warriors a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven quarterfinal series.

Wilkes, who scored only two points the first three quarters, scored 15 in the final period as Golden State took an 86-83 lead in the last 9½ minutes and won in a walk.

"He hadn't been shooting well," Warrior coach Al Attles said of Wilkes. "He was one-for-eight. But nobody got down on him and he did the job. We have a lot of confidence in our team, and the type of individuals we have doesn't allow for anyone to get down on anyone else.

"Jamaal came off a tough ball game," Attles added. "We had to keep him in there or it would have hurt his confidence the rest of the series."

In the opposite locker room Piston coach Herb Brown admitted, "Jamaal Wilkes killed us down the stretch.

"It wasn't a good game," he said. "We substituted a lot, trying to find the right combination. Under our system we ask the guys to go as hard as they can and a couple of them were tired."

Attles didn't seem to believe it was the final quarter that spelled the turning point.

"The first quarter was the turning point, when we got back from 10 down," he said. "If you don't get back then, you don't get back."

Rowe managed just 10 points Saturday, all in the second half, while Pistons' star Bob Lanier wound up with only 23. He scored only 11 points in the final three periods and grabbed just six of his 16 rebounds in that span.

DISCUS MARK—

Long Beach also had a pair of solid seconds. Albert Shorts of Long Beach State ran 46.5 behind Benny Myles (46.1) of UCLA in the 400 meters and Rory Kotinek jumped 7-1¾ to finish behind Reynaldo Brown (7-3) in the high jump.

Kotinek, the former Millikan High and UCLA standout who now represents the PCC, passed all heights until 7-1¾ and then made that on his first jump.

"I don't feel good," said Kotinek. "All I wanted to do was get in a jump or two."

Kotinek then passed again until Brown went out at 7-4. Rory had the bar raised to 7-4¼ and missed three times.

"I jumped like I was sick," Kotinek said of his final three attempts.

Brown's 7-3 enabled him to retain his Mt. SAC title for the sixth consecutive year.

"But this one was special," said the former Compton High School star, who works in Pomona and has practiced for the past three months at Mt. San Antonio College.

"I've won this meet six years in a row," said Brown, "but in the past some of the fields have been kind of weak. This is the biggest meet I've been in since I won the NCAA championships in 1973.

"It's a thrill to face some of the best jumpers around and still be able to win."

USC—

"I'll tell you this, we want to go to the Rose Bowl and we want to win a national championship. That's what USC is all about."

Robinson laughed. "Right now, our goal is to get through today's practice."

The football coach at USC still has a sense of humor.

DODGERS

They managed eight hits off Cub starter Bill Bonham but stranded 11 runners.

It was through the generosity of the Cubs that the Dodgers got their first run.

Bill Buckner doubled to open the game and, after Sizemore and John Hale flied out, Steve Garvey grounded to first baseman Thornton. But Bonham, who covered first on the play, lost Thornton's throw and Buckner scored.

How they scored

DODGERS FIRST

Buckner doubled. Sizemore and Hale flied out. Garvey grounded to Thornton at first, but Bonham lost Thornton's throw for an error, Buckner scoring, Garvey going to second. Garvey took third on a wild pitch. Cey walked. Ferguson forced Cey. One run (unearned), one hit, one error.

DODGERS FOURTH

With one out, Cey tripled to right. Ferguson doubled to right, scoring Cey. Cruz grounded out. Russell flied out. One run, two hits.

CUBS EIGHTH

With one out, Summers batted for Bonham and doubled to right. Monday was safe on Sizemore's error, Summers taking third. Cardenal singled, scoring Summers. Monday holdingg at second. Madlock lined into a double play. One run (unearned), two hits, one error.

Suburban schools set pace in Gahr meet

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Kennedy High of Barstow and two Suburban League schools, Gahr and Artesia, turned in impressive relay efforts at the third Gahr Invitational track meet Saturday night at Cerritos College.

With two 9.5 sprinters in its lineup, Kennedy did nothing to tarnish its reputation as one of the State's premier sprint teams, setting meet records in the 440 (42.2) and 880 (1:28.3) relays, then coming from behind to win a wild eight-man mile relay.

Larry Jones, Donnie Hill, Glen Kelley and Norris Jones comprised the 440 and 880 alignments and were also the last four runners on the eight-man mile, rallying their team from next to last in a nine-team field after the fourth handoff.

Host Gahr was the only other school to win more than one relay, taking the distance medley and mile.

The Arriola brothers, freshman Dennis and senior Jim ran the 1320 and mile legs in 3:13.6 and 4:21.9 to beat Arteisa and its three sophomores in the distance medley.

Donn Thompson, who had earlier pulled his team to second and third place finishes in the 440 and 880 relays, anchored in 48.3 to make up a 15-yard deficit and win the mile relay for Gahr in 3:23.3.

Greg McSeveney of Gahr won the discus at 170 feet, 2¼ inches, exceding his previous best by more than a foot.

Fred Stillings was Artesia's standout. Only a soph, Stillings ran a 1:55.7 half-mile leg in the distance medley, then a hour later came back and ran 1:55.3, going from fifth to catch 4:15 Cantwell miler Joe Aker to win the sprint medley.

Poly was was fourth in the 440 relay and missed higher finishes in the 880 and 8-man mile due to poor handoffs.

"1976" — Gibson (Hoover) 5:01.5, Pera (Hoover) 5:04.8, Casillas (Salesian) 5:06.1, Ward (Workman) 5:10.0, Allison (Buena Park) 5:17.7.

Tomida wins L.B. gym title

Long Beach State sophomore Yoichi Tomida totalled 55.65 points Saturday night to win the all-around title at the 17th Long Beach Invitational gymnastics meet at Long Beach State.

Tomida, who also won the title last year, turned in his best performances in vaulting (3rd at 9.2), on the parallel bars (tie for 1st at 9.35) and on the high bar (third at 9.55).

Long Beach City College star Joe Snee tied with Tomida on the parallel bars and former LBCC star Elliot Schnee, now attending UCLA, won the rings with a score of 9.6.

FLOOR EXERCISE — Richard Pasquale (unat) 9.3, Perry Johnson (unat) 9.15, Jake Paredes (Fullerton St.) 9.05.

VAULTING — Bill Searles (Golden West) 9.4, Sam Shaw (Fullerton St.) 9.25, Yoichi Tomida (Long Beach St.) 9.2.

POMMEL HORSE — Sean Miyake (UCLA) 9.45, Joe Ullos (Fullerton St.) 9.15, Joe Tepp (unat) 9.05.

RINGS — Elliott Schnee (UCLA) 9.6, tie between Larry Bilow (Northridge St.) and Jim York (LBCC) 9.35.

PARALLEL BARS — tie between Tomida (Long Beach St.) and Joe Snee (LBCC) 9.35, Pasquale (unat) 9.2.

HIGH BAR — Chad Nounan (LBCC) 9.65, Steve Sargeant (UCLA) 9.6, Tomida (Long Beach St.) 9.55.

ALL AROUND — Tomida (Long Beach St.) 55.65, Glenn Tidwell (unat) 54.25, Bilow (Northridge) 52.55.

San Pedro slugger fights at Forum

A woman's place is in the . . . ring?

PAT PINEDA..the athlete

All right, panel, it's time to play What's My Line?, and our first guest is Pat Pineda of San Pedro, California. She is the mother of two children and, in a manner of speaking, self-employed. The questioning will begin with Arlene.

"You're a belly dancer in a Greek restaurant."

Sorry, Arlene. Bill?

"She looks athletic to me. Hmm, San Pedro . . . you're a channel swimmer!"

Nope. What do you think, Soupy?

"I've got it—you're a professional pizza twirler at the Majestic Cafe."

Panel, you're not even close. Ms. Pineda is a professional boxer.

THE FACT IS that Patricia Linda Garcia Pineda, 20, does not look like a professional boxer . . . but, then, what woman does?

"I don't think I'm going to end up with any cauliflower ears," she says, "but you never know. Just one solid punch could do it."

PAT PINEDA...the mother

Even after her first pro fight at the Sahara Tahoe in February, she had no misgivings.

"I didn't even know I had a black eye until I looked in the mirror. Then I thought, oh well, I'll just take out my makeup. I put my eyelashes and eye shadow on."

Pat lost a decision to one Princess Red Star, 24, whose fight manager father had been training her since the age of 6.

"She was good," Pat says, "but after 18 years' experience I expected her to really knock the hell out of me. All her other fights I think ended by knockouts. They thought I'd go down in the first round, but I proved them wrong."

The proper cliche would be that Pat proved she had heart.

"I proved I had tough skin," she laughs.

HER SECOND fight will be Wednesday night at the Forum, part of the Danny Lopez-Famoso Gomez card. Her opponent will be Kim Maybee, an 18-year-old graduate of Marshall High in Los Angeles who has had no pro matches.

Pat's cause is not for women's lib, but the two young ladies are the first of their sex to be licensed to box professionally in California, the commission having ruled that women have as much right as men to get their noses flattened in public.

They will go four two-minute rounds, after which the referee and two judges will render a decision. The decision may be that the whole affair was almost as ridiculous as some of the other bouts the commission has sanctioned.

Pat hopes not, because she takes her trade seriously. She has tried working as a waitress and even studied voice — "I go from classical to pop" — until she became involved in boxing about two years ago.

"I was married at the time," she says, "and it gave me something to do. It was after I'd had my little girl, and I came down to the gym just to work out and lose some weight."

THE GYM was located in the basement of the Harbor View House on Beacon St. It used to be the San Pedro YMCA and is now a halfway house for former mental patients. Dave Goodwin, an L.A. Harbor Division police officer, was instructing housewives in self-defense and Pat became interested.

PAT PINEDA...the cook

"He said my potential was pretty good, so he introduced me to Dee," Pat says.

Dee's last name is (stay with us, folks) Knuckles and she is the physical education director of the facility. She is a remarkable lady well equipped to deal with almost any situation, including the management of women boxers.

"A male fighter gets out of the ring, goes home and relaxes. When I go home I've got my kids, the wash, the cooking and the housecleaning."

Pat has fought several exhibitions and charts her progress by the fact that "I've dropped a considerable amount of weight."

THE POUNDS came with the bearing of two children after a highly active youth in the girls' athletic programs at Dana Junior High and San Pedro High.

Pat, one of six children in her family, says, "I liked to play all the sports, but when I was in elementary school I hated it. All the girls acted like sissies . . . like they couldn't sock a ball or kick a ball. There were a few that were good, and we were usually the ones that would stay after school and play."

But there is still some doubt whether she can hack it as a fighter.

"I don't have any killer instinct," she admits. "Maybe just an instinct to win."

Dee says, "In her first fight she had too much compassion for her opponent. It's something she'll have to learn."

Her parents, she says, "are typical parents. They worry about it. But I can't blame them. They've always been overprotective with me."

SHE NOW SEEMS quite capable of protecting herself against potential mashers or ringside cads.

"If I was alone," she says, "he'd better kill me or he'd be in pretty bad pain—and I wouldn't use my hands."

She breaks up laughing at the unlikely prospect of inflicting severe injyry on anyone. Although she has shed one husband, along with an undisclosed amount of ugly fat, she is not exactly a woman alone in the world.

RICH ROBERTS

"It was something that was coming on before I even started boxing," she says of the divorce. "I'm happier now. I'm the type that always needs more freedom, and he couldn't give me the freedom I needed, so I couldn't stay with him.

"It's pretty good now. I have someone that allows me the freedom to do whatever I want, whenever I want, and that's good."

AS MUCH FREEDOM, that is, as one can manage while raising her son David, 3, and daughter Alina, 2. Pat bristles when asked whether she works as hard as male fighters.

"Wait a minute! A male fighter gets out of the ring, goes home and relaxes. When I go home I've got my kids, the wash, the cooking and the housecleaning. I don't stop until my kids are asleep, and sometimes not even then.

"I used to hear my mom tell my dad, 'All you do is go to work,' and I used to think, well gosh, that's hard.

"Then when I became a mother and from morning till night there was no break period I thought, Lord, it's not that easy."

SHE BARELY finds time to indulge herself in every housewife's escape capsule, the TV soap operas.

"I dig on soap operas. In fact, I was thinking about one today. I never found out what happened because I had to work out."

Her children attend pre-school during the day, but Pat says, "From the time they're out of school until it's time to go back they're with me."

Except when she goes to the gym or to fight.

"He (David) understands when he sees me on TV or in the papers that it's to do with the boxing, and he gets kind of excited.

"But he also understands when I tell him I have to leave, and he doesn't ask to go. They're too small to see me get hit or hit somebody else."

THE BRASS IS NOT BLAMELESS

BUD TUCKER

All items considered and placed in perspective, the millionaire free-agent super stars may be getting altogether too much credit as the parties responsible for the possible destruction of the structure of professional athletics.

That is, the likes of Catfish Hunter and Larry Csonka and Andy Messersmith may be misleading the general public.

The arrogance with which they conduct themselves during the peddling of their flesh to franchise owners tends to irk bystanders. Therefore, the importance of their carrying on is often exaggerated.

Then too, the intelligence of the average citizen is abused. When Catfish Hunter says money had nothing to do with his preference for the Yankees and Larry Csonka says he is intrigued bythe future of the New York Giants and Andy Messersmith says he is captivated by the integrity of the proprietor of the Atlanta Braves, the inclination is to throw up.

STILL, IT IS the uncluttered view from here that the high-priced athletes are being credited far too highly. They are playing a vital part in screwing things up, to be sure, but it seems unfair that they get the major portion of the finer-pointing.

Equal credit should go to the people who own franchises and control and govern the leagues in which the teams compete. These guys perform beautifully and nothing should be taken away from their efforts.

The National and American Leagues of professional baseball clubs have a commissioner who is hired by the operators to sit in judgement of local and family disputes and controversies and generally concern himself with the image of the game they continue to present to us as the national pastime.

Now there is a city in Canada to which both leagues entertain notions of placing ball clubs. Expansion is no longer a matter of a city wishing major league baseball to approach with hat in hand to romance existing franchise holders.

NORTH AMERICA is running out of likely communities and the major leagues can only be workable with a certain number of teams. Therefore, if a city such as Toronto appears to have all the qualifications as a revenue producing member of the lodge, both leagues find it desirable.

Toronto being no New York or Chicago or Southern California, it would seem an unlikely area for two major league teams. Consequently, a ruling from the commissioner of baseball appeared called for.

The commissioner announced his ruling to baseball.

Baseball, at least a part thereof, told the commissioner what to do with his ruling.

The National Football League is drowning in a sea of legal complications which have, to date, contributed to at least one vital area — the cost of a seat at an NFL game.

Whether the legal implications are such that they can cause the NFL to go down three times and come up twice remains to be determined, but there is no question whatever great trouble is visiting professional football.

The NFL people conduct their annual convention in San Diego. The agenda contains discussion on such matters as the time it shall take a team to break its huddle and a firm decision not to change the shape of the ball.

If a word is spoken on the legal agonies confronting the league, nobody hears it.

The National Basketball Association continues to snatch youngsters out of colleges and raise the average salary of its players, raise its barriers against merger talks with the other league and raise the price of tickets. Many National Hockey League owners condone brawls wherein players get arrested.

SO IT IS, then, the combined efforts of the players and owners are to be credited with the exhaustion of the patience of the general public.

Continued diligence may one day lead to the pros becoming as accomplished at creating havoc as the amateurs. The latter group has progressed through lesser events and today stands on the threshold of its greatest accomplishment — the destruction of the Olympic Games.

Of course, it should be pointed out the amateurs have an overwhelming advantage inasmuch as they are able to enlist the aid of the world's politicians.

For $225,000, one's all yours

Coliseum having suite thoughts

For almost a quarter of a million dollars you may be able to watch football games at the Coliseum in comfort some day.

The Coliseum Commission has a plan to remodel the 55-year-old facility and thereby permit you to enjoy football first-class—in a private suite with a wet bar, closed-circuit TV, refrigerator, drapes and carpeting.

But there is a big "if."

The contemplated remodeling includes:

- Addition of a number of expensive, plush boxes.
- Elimination of the expensive Tartan track which has been the scene of a number of top track and field meets.
- Moving the east end zone seating forward from the peristyles and closer to the playing field, thereby improving seating for 30 per cent of Coliseum fans.
- Improving the landscape.
- Adding escalators and elevators.

THE CONTROVERSIAL, big "if" is the planned construction of 138 suites, 70 along the rim of the Coliseum and 68 in the east end. Each suite would seat 16 persons.

The Coliseum Commission originally had sought to get 218 suites built but subsequently reduced the figure by 80.

"If the suites are not sold, the remodeling project will not get off the ground," said Supervisor Pete Schabarum, president of the Coliseum Commission. "Everything hinges on sale of the suites.

"The money accrued from sale of the suites is necessary for financing. We can't remodel any other way."

SELLING THE SUITES may not be so easy. A patron first would have to purchase a $125,000 bond. Then he would have to sign a contract to lease the suite at an annual fee of $20,000 for five years. That's an additional $100,000.

The total package thus would be $225,000 for the privilege of seeing the Rams, Trojans and Bruins play football for five years.

On Wednesday the Coliseum Commission approved the project to be marketed and Schabarum said that notices would go out to prospective buyers the first of this week.

So-called letters-of-intent would go out to interested patrons in May, at which time a $10,000 deposit would be required.

THE REMODELING PLAN has been supported for the last three years by Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom. He has insisted that the Coliseum be renovated under an implied threat of playing Ram games elsewhere.

"Rosenbloom hasn't backed us into a corner," said Schabarum. "He has merely pointed out some things that the Coliseum Commission has been aware of for a long time."

Seating capacity would be reduced to 80,000, but quality of seats would be improved. Current Coliseum seating capacity for Ram games is 91,038. Capacity was 103,000 until a Coliseum mini-remodeling project 10 years ago.

Many seats have arm rests, and additional theater-type seats for the balance of the Coliseum will be provided under the proposal before the Commission, according to Schabarum.

The Coliseum packed in 104,953 for the 1947 USC-Notre Dame football game, but because of the present "bad" peristyle-end seats and the advent of television, crowds that size are not expected any more.

SCHABARUM EMPHASIZES that taxpayers won't foot this improvement bill.

"Taxpayers won't pay a thing," said the former University of California football star. "To go ahead with construction plans, we must sell the suites. If there are no buyers, there will be no improvements.

"This financing mechanism never has been used before. We are experimenting, but we think we're on the right track.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

"The rental and bond money from the suites also would give us enough gross dollars to pay off the $5 million Sports Arena bonds. (The gross from just 20 suites alone would be enough to pay off the arena bonds.)

"If our plans reach a conclusion, we will have a very creditable stadium. It will be ultra-modern and at the same time will retain its historical value.

"But everything now is conjecture. I'm assuming that we'll get a healthy annual rental and bond money, and that the public will be interested.

"If my assumption is wrong, the construction will not get off the ground."

SCHABARUM SAID that if Los Angeles again bids for the Olympic Games, a new track would be installed. (The Tartan surface, which will be eliminated if the remodeling project gets the green light, was unveiled March 4, 1972, after being installed for a cost of $180,000.)

But would there be room for a full 400-meter track, with the old one eliminated and the space to be otherwise utilized?

"According to the architects, there would be room—the section that we're now planning to excavate could be filled in," said Schabarum. (If the Tartan track is removed, the field would be dropped 16 feet.)

But the Coliseum Commission president thinks that Los Angeles' chances of securing a summer Olympic Games in the near future are dim.

"IN MY JUDGMENT," declared Schabarum, "from talking to individual members who sought to secure the '76 and '80 Games for Los Angeles, the International Olympic Committee is interested only in politics.

"In their sort of cold war, it appears highly unlikely that the power blocs of the International Olympic Committee can be persuaded to throw their support to the United States.

"Also, since Montreal has the '76 Games, I feel that in picking order, any North American city's chances are minimized for a long time."

The Coliseum was built in 1922 and remodeled in 1932 for the Olympic Games of that year. The stadium has stayed basically the same since then and has been the focal point of Los Angeles' attempts to bid for the '76 Games and the 1980 Games, which went to Moscow.

GLENN MON, of the Coliseum staff, said that during the commission's four-hour meeting Wednesday a negative declaration was approved, which means that any Coliseum improvements would have no significant impact on the environment.

"The commission didn't approve any specific plans—it still was thinking in generalities, awaiting the suite outcome," said Mon.

Meanwhile, for their near-quarter of a million dollars potential, Coliseum suite renters can contemplate activities other than football—such things as the Billy Graham Crusade and motocross.

They also may choose to see the Watts Summer Festival rock concert and/or the Fourth of July fireworks shows.

The wet bar and refrigerator should be especially welcome during the latter two events.

Thank you, Bowie, for making all of this possible

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press

Thank goodness, commissioner Bowie Kuhn stepped into baseball's labor crisis and the season got under way on time. It would have been a shame to delay the start of all this silliness.

Baseball has been doing business for two weeks now and it's been better than ever for strange goings-on.

Already, we've had two beanball wars—on consecutive nights—a protested game over, of all things, sweatshirts, another protested game over the height of a pitchers' mound, a superstar sitting in Arizona, waiting to be coaxed to Baltimore, a swarm of bees delaying a game, a Monday night network television game that dragged over 17 innings into Tuesday morning and all manner of other developments.

The beanball battles involved first Baltimore and the Angels and, one night later, the New York Mets and St. Louis.

At the height of the Oriole-Angel argument, Angel catcher Andy Etchebarren and Baltimore pitcher Jim Palmer were doing some heavy jawing at each other. They've talked before, of course. They were, after all, batterymates with the Orioles for eight years.

Slugger Reggie Jackson missed that little set-to. He hasn't reported to the Orioles yet and he says unless Baltimore does some fast contract talking in the next day or so, he's going to stay in Arizona all summer. So there!

The Mets-Cards war started after two-run home runs by Felix Millan, Del Unser and John Milner left St. Louis pitcher Lynn McGlothen somewhat unhappy. He responded by hitting Unser and Jon Matlack with pitches. It was no accident, admitted the Cardinal pitcher.

"I threw the baseball to hit Unser," McGlothen said. "I thought the situation called for it. I felt like I was being intimidated. I felt I had the right to let the hitter know I have the ball and there are certain things I can do with it."

McGlothen may still have been mad from the last act. The night before, Unser had hit a 17th inning home run, ending a marathon ball game. The people most delighted with that development had to be broadcasters Bob Prince, Bob Uecker and Warner Wolf who had the task of covering the game for ABC's Monday Night Baseball (Los Angeles-area viewers saw the Dodger-Houston contest). Before they finished, it was Tuesday Morning Baseball.

The bees were the central characters in Cincinnati last Saturday and delayed the game between the Reds and San Francisco Giants for 35 minutes until they could be persuaded, under duress, to depart Riverfront Stadium.

When they hired pepperpot manager Billy Martin, the New York Yankees knew this season wouldn't be dull. It hasn't been.

Martin protested his team's first game loss in Milwaukee, claiming the mound wasn't constructed properly. In the second game, he saved a Yankee victory when he directed New York first baseman Chris Chambliss to call time out an instant before Don Money hit what would have been a game-winning grand slam homer for the Brewers. After Brewer circled the bases, the umpires ordered him back to bat after a not-so-gentle reminder from Martin that he had called time.

In Milwaukee, the Yankees had used two non-roster catchers, Juan Espino and Rick Stelmaszek, as extra hands in their bullpen. But when they got to Baltimore, Martin's old friend, Oriole manager Earl Weaver, said nothing doing.

Weaver refused permission for the two minor leaguers to dress and sit in the Yankee bullpen. Martin, however, had the last laugh when he got complete games from Catfish Hunter and Dock Ellis and never needed a bullpen catcher because he never had to warm up a pitcher.

When the Chicago White Sox got to New York with their snazzy, new-look uniforms, Martin and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner beefed over the white sleeves on their sweatshirts. They demanded that pitchers Bart Johnson and Clay Carroll not be allowed to use those shirts. The umpires, not aware that the fancy getups had received American League approval, agreed and the white sleeves were not permitted.

White Sox manager Paul Richards protested a 5-4 loss and then Chicago billed the Yankees $18 for the two handsome sweatshirts that had been victimized in the previous day's assault on white sleeves. Steinbrenner graciously paid the price.

Now all of this extracurricular nonsense might ordinarily come to the attention of the commissioner. Kuhn has other matters to keep him occupied.

It seems that the American League has granted this expansion franchise to Toronto but the commissioner thinks that would be a dandy spot for the National League. That little dispute is still cooking.

It may, however, be academic. Unless Marvin Miller and John Gaherin...you remember those two, don't you...reach some sort of understanding on a collective bargaining agreement, all major leaguers may be free agents in the next two years.

Now the question is whether there will be 25 who choose Toronto, regardless of which league it's in.

Reds throttle Expos in 11th

MONTREAL (AP)—Dave Concepcion's two-run single in the 11th inning gave the Cincinnati Reds a 6-4 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday.

Dan Driessen led off the 11th against Don Carrithers, 0-1, with an an infield single and Johnny Bench was safe when third baseman Larry Parrish bobbled his grounder. Mike Lum bunted the runners ahead and Cesar Geronimo was intentionally walked to load the bases. Then Concepcion delivered his single to right-center field.

The victory went to reliever Rawly Eastwick, 1-0.

Montreal grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first on Gary Carter's run-scoring single to left off Pat Zachry and made it 2-0 in the fourth on Pete Mackanin's sacrifice fly.

The Reds struck for a run in the fifth on Lum's homer, then went ahead 4-2 in the sixth on Joe Morgan's three-run blast, also off starter Steve Rogers. A walk to Pete Rose and Ken Griffey's single preceded Morgan's third homer of the season.

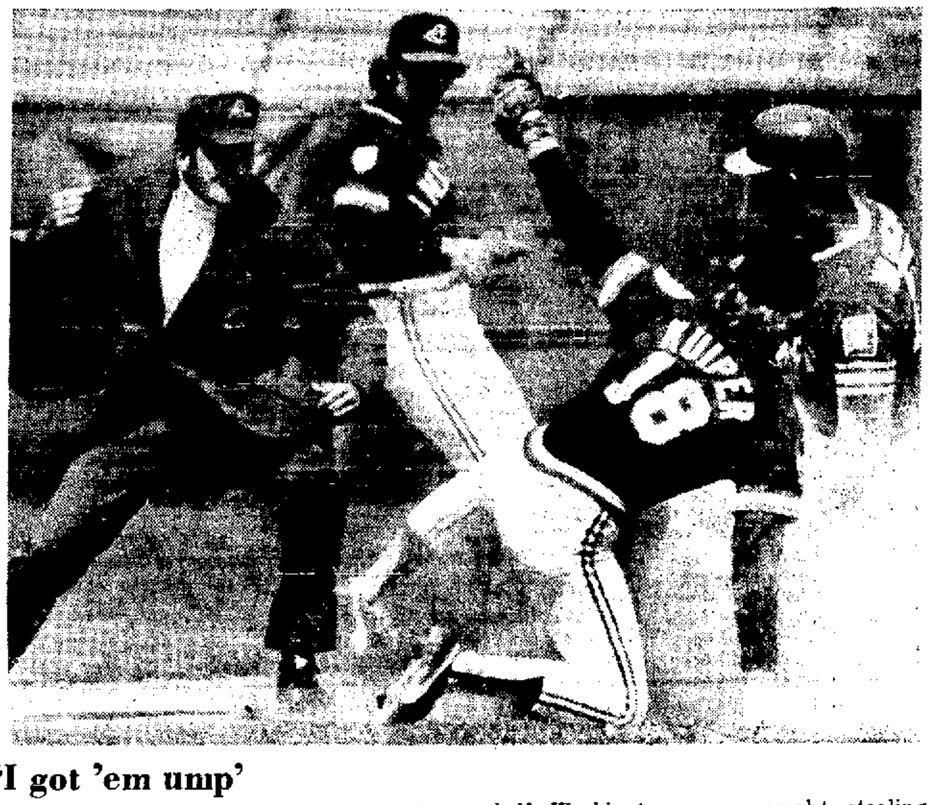

Mackanin's single gave the Expos a run in the bottom of the sixth and they tied it 4-4 in the seventh on Ellis Valentine's first homer of the season, a leadoff shot against reliever Pedro Borbon.

Rudi powers A's over Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Joe Rudi's two-run homer in the ninth inning Saturday vaulted Oakland to an 8-7 victory over the Cleveland Indians and snapped the A's four-game losing streak.

Rudi's first homer of the season, off Tom Buskey (0-1), that curled around the left field foul pole followed a two-out walk to Claudell Washington.

It wiped out a 7-6 lead Cleveland had built with two runs in the bottom of the eighth on Rick Manning's triple, Buddy Bell's RBI-single, Boog Powell's single that sent Bell to third and a sacrifice fly by Rico Carty.

The Indians took a 4-0 lead through the first two innings but the A's struck for five in the third, three on Don Baylor's second homer of the year.

The A's made it 6-4 in the fourth but Cleveland got the run back in the seventh on singles by Bell and Powell and Carty's sacrifice fly.

The Indians bad a chance to pull it out when they loaded the bases in the ninth inning, but Jim Todd slammed the door on the threat.

Charlie Spikes led off the bottom of the ninth with a single off winner Rollie Fingers, 2-0. That brought Todd out of the Oakland bullpen.

Spikes was sacrificed to second by Alan Ashby and Larvell Blanks was safe on a hard bouncer down the third base line which Sal Bando flagged down, saving a possible run.

Manning walked, loading the bases with one out, but Todd got Duane Kuiper on a liner back to the mound, then ended the game by getting Bell on a grounder to short. It was the second time the Indians left the bases loaded. Cleveland stranded 14 runners.

Rangers halt Tigers on error

DETROIT (AP) — Rightfielder Rusty Staub's ninth-inning error on Gene Clines' pinch-single gave Texas the tiebreaking run and the Rangers went on to a 5-4 victory Saturday over the Detroit Tigers.

Jeff Burroughs started the inning against Detroit relief ace John Hiller with a single and pinch-runner Dave Moates was bunted to second. Tom Grieve was then walked intentionally and Clines, batting for Mike Cubbage, lined a single to right.

Moates held up momentarily at third, then dashed home to put the Rangers ahead 4-3 when Staub over-ran the ball. Grieve took third on the error and Roy Smalley's sacrifice fly to Staub scored him with what proved to be the winning run, offsetting Ben Oglivie's pinch-home run in the bottom of the ninth.

The Rangers had tied the score in the eighth when Smalley singled, raced to third on Len Randle's single to center and scored when Juan Beniquiz hit into a double play. Texas got a pair of runs in the seventh on Grieve's second homer of the season.

Giants go 'wild' over Rooker, earn 3-1 win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Rooker's wild pitch in the third inning with the bases loaded allowed one run to score and set up another that gave the San Francisco Giants a 3-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

The Giants, handing the Pirates their fourth successive loss, got to Rooker, 1-1, for a first-inning run on Von Joshua's leadoff triple and a sacrifice fly by Darrel Thomas.

In the third, Thomas led off with an infield single and went to third on Bobby Murcer's single to right. Gary Matthews walked to load the bases, Thomas scored on the wild pitch and Chris Speier's sacrifice fly drove in Murcer, who had moved to third on the wild pitch.

Winner Ed Halicki, 2-2, scattered eight hits before being lifted in the eighth inning after Rich Hebner led off with a single. Gary Lavelle took over and the Pirates averted a shutout on Willie Stargell's single and Dave Parker's grounder.

Schmidt rips 9th HR; Phils, 10-5

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt's two-run homer, his ninth of the year and eighth in the last six games, capped a five-run eighth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies scored a 10-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

Schmidt, the major leagues' home run leader, ripped a linedrive shot over the leftfield fence off reliever Elias Sosa (1-2) to score pinch-runner Jerry Martin. Martin entered the game after Greg Luzinski started the rally with a double to right-centerfield.

Garry Maddox singled, stole second and scored on Bob Boone's single. Tommy Hutton, batting for relief pitcher Ron Reed, walked. That finished Sosa and brought in Bruce Dal Canton. Dal Canton struck out Dave Cash and the Philies pulled a double steal.

Fuentes, San Diego shuffle Cards, 4-3

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A run-scoring single by Tito Fuentes snapped a tie in the ninth inning Saturday night and sparked San Diego Padres to a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Fuentes, who led a 10-hit San Diego attack with four, delivered his game-winner against Cardinal reliever Harry Rasmussen to give the Padres their second win in a row over the Cards.

Pinch-hitter Gene Locklear walked, pinch-runner Enzo Hernandez was sacrificed to second by pinch-hitter Jerry Turner and Johnny Grubb also drew a base on balls to set the stage for Fuentes.

The Cardinals had tied the score, 3-3, in the top of the ninth off Padre reliever Butch Metzger on Bake McBride's two-out infield single.

Seaver does it all for Mets

HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Seaver limited Houston to three hits and drove in two runs in New York's four-run eighth inning as the Mets downed the Astros 7-1 Saturday night.

Seaver, 2-0, yielded only three singles in working his first complete game of the season.

Walks to Dave Kingman and Bud Harrelson and a single by Wayne Garrett loaded the bases off Larry Dierker with one out in the eighth.

Seaver then came to the plate and worked a full-count against the Astro hurler before lining a two-run single to left, scoring Kingman and Garrett. Larry Hardy came on in relief of Dierker and surrendered RBI singles to Bruce Boisclair and Del Unser before retiring Ed Kranepool on a pop foul to end the rally.

Frazier-Foreman fight relocated

NEW YORK (AP) — The Joe Frazier-George Foreman heavyweight fight, knocked out of Yankee Stadium, will probably be held in Chicago Stadium June 15, the New York Post reported Saturday.

Promoter Jerry Perenchio had wanted to put the fight in Yankee Stadium June 15, but the Yankees balked.

Yanks deal (9-8) KC 'Royal-flush'

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Chambliss' fourth hit of the game, a one-out single in the 11th inning, scored Roy White from second base and gave the New York Yankees a wild 9-8 victory over the Kansas City Royals Saturday.

The Royals blew a chance to win in regulation when Jim Wohlford missed third base as he raced home on John Mayberry's apparent single with two out in the eighth inning and the score tied. New York third baseman Graig Nettles appealed to umpire Nestor Chylak and what looked like a run-scoring hit became an inning-ending forceout. There was no argument from the Royals.

Kansas City also failed to score with runners on first and third and none out in the third inning. Another scoring opportunity was squandered when Fred Patek was thrown out at the plate to end the sixth attempting to score on Frank White's double.

Chisox rained out

CHICAGO (AP) — The game between the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox Saturday night was postponed because of rain and wet grounds and rescheduled as a day game August 19, which originally was an open date.

Thompson, Minnesota 'weather' Baltimore

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota shortstop Danny Thompson saves his best performances for bad weather and nationally televised games.

"This had to be the worst day I could remember for playing," said Thompson, whose fourth hit of the game—a 14th-inning double—helped reliever Bill Campbell and the Twins beat the Baltimore Orioles 2-1 Saturday.

"Maybe this is my kind of weather," added Thompson, referring to the cold drizzle which fell for the first eight innings of the game. "It was miserable and the wetness really made it sting."

The game began in 43-degree temperature and winds gusting from the northeast up to 36 miles an hour.

"We were thinking one run or however many we could get," said Minnesota manager Gene Mauch. "But that's the ironic thing about baseball. We played from the third to the eighth inning in conditions you'd never start a game."

Veteran American League umpire Bill Haller probably summed it up best, though. "If you start in that kind of stuff," he said, "it's pretty hard to stop in it."

Campbell, 2-1, pitched 5⅓ innings of two-hit ball to pick up the victory.

11,000 at Crowley Lake

Record trout fishermen

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

BISHOP — Trout season opened in the Sierra Nevada Saturday and as usual the emphasis was on famed Crowley Lake, 30 miles north of Bishop.

A headcount of anglers at midafternoon showed 3,600 were fishing from Crowley shores and 7,526 were angling from 1,979 boats.

A shore angler, Dan Valiant of Covina, was leading all others for the top prize of the day at Crowley with a four-pound brown trout caught on a worm-baited hook.

The number of boats and shore anglers at Crowley exceeded last year's total of 1,213. It was 32 degrees at sunrise but the temperature rose rapidly to the 70s, perfect weather for fishing.

Angling success was generally good, with lure fishermen doing exceptionally well. Bait fisherman were averaging five fish each at midafternoon.

THE bluebird weather caused possibly the greatest influx of anglers that Inyo and Mono Counties have ever seen. There was heavy pressure on every lake under 8,000 feet.

The June Lake Loop was crowded with anglers. John Frederickson and his son, John, Jr., of the June Lake Marina, said they had never seen such an outpouring of people for the opening weekend.

Bob Richardson of Long Beach topped June Lake anglers with a 4¾-pound rainbow. Dal Morehouse and wife Linda of Bellflower had weight limits of rainbow with one four-pounder caught by Morehouse. There were numerous weight limits taken by boat anglers.

The influx of visitors extended as far north as Bridgeport and the Twin Lakes there. Warden Dick Padgett reported a 25 per cent increase in anglers over opening weekend last year. George Mack of Stockton took a five-pound brown from Bridpegport Reservoir and John D. Lee, Long Beach, got a 4¾-pound brown on the East Walker River.

Several weight limits were taken from Bridgeport Twins.

Stream fishing was slower this year even though most creeks were low and clear. Numerous weight limits were reported at Convict Lake and there were some citations by Department of Fish and Game wardens for limits that were too hevay.

SABRINA Lake yielded small trout to several hundered fishermen. Warden Walt Mansell said 100 anglers fished through the ice at Rock Creek Lake and caught some 18-inch rainbows.

Mary and George Lakes in the Mammoth area were frozen over but ice was breaking up on Mammoth Twins. Skiers and fishermen were in evidence everywhere in the lower Mammoth area.

The runoff this year is 43 per cent of normal so it looks like a dry, late summer in the Sierras.

That 43 per cent figure is the second lowest in this century since records were started in 1906.

A personal touch: Rolla Williams, outdoor editor of the San Diego Union, his friend, Jack Swank, and I fished Crowley from 5:30 to 9:30 a.m. We trolled special lures made by a Bishop man, Hal Janson, 83 years young, and we got our three limits by 9:30. There were severl 1½-pound brown tout among the 21 fish. Janson's lures are not for sale. He was a die maker at San Diego in World War II and he makes these lures as gifts to his frends.

Bishop held its annual Rainbow Tout Celebration Saturday night with scores of displays of fish in the city park.

Cerritos 'saved' by Olivarez, 5-4

Reliever Tim Olivarez set down all three batters he faced after entering the game in the top of the ninth with a run in, a man on second and no outs to save a 5-4 victory for Cerritos College over visiting Fullerton JC Saturday afternoon.

Cerritos had tallied twice in the eighth inning to generate a 5-3 lead but Fullerton opened the ninth with a triple and a run-scoring single off winning pitcher John Gordon before Olivarez squelched the rally.

Offensively, the Falcons were paced by Mike Sammons, who knocked in two runs with a pair of hits, and Mike Carpenter, who scored three times.

Cerritos stole five bases and defeated Fullerton's Dennis Sandoval for the third time this season. Sandoval went the distance, allowing eight hits, but was erratic, striking five Cerritos batters and permitting the winning run to score on a wild pitch.

The most Fiat we've ever brought to America.

And here are a few other things that come as standard equipment.
Carpeted trunk.
Rear window defroster.
Radial tires.
Tachometer.
Reclining bucket seats.
Fully carpeted.
Tilting steering wheel.
All-vinyl interior.
Mag wheels.
Quartz clock.
Tinted glass all around.

At Fiat, we've always held to one simple idea: the idea of a practical, sensible, intelligent car.
Well, we've taken that idea and made it somewhat bigger, and more powerful, and more luxurious. And we call it the Fiat 131.
If you've never considered a Fiat before, maybe it's time.

The new Fiat 131.

'Shabby' 67 gives Ziegler 2-shot lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— "It was a poor, shabby round," said Larry Ziegler, who wasn't even thinking about the lead.

"I was just trying to keep from shooting a bad score," Ziegler said Saturday after a scrambling five-under-par 67 had put him two strokes in front of the pack in the third round of the $175,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

He chipped in twice, once to save par on the first hole, just missed holing it from the fairway on the third hole but spent most of the overcast day fighting his way out of sand traps—he was in three, backing his way out of the woods—three trips there—and slashing out of the deep, wiry rough—a half-dozen times there.

But his troubles were as nothing to those encountered by Jack Nicklaus and shaken second-round leader Barney Thompson, who scored a nine on one hole and, ashen-faced, observed, "It kind of leaves you in shock."

Nicklaus once had a share of the lead before scoring double bogey seven and bogey five on consecutive holes.

"Obviously not a very good round," Nicklaus said. "For the week, I've played the par fives one over and," he paused, then continued with a wry smile. "that's not too sharp.

"The only thing that saved it was the two birdies at the end. That left me in position to make a run at the lead tomorrow."

He finished five strokes back of the journeyman Ziegler's leading 54-hole total of 204.

That's 12 under par on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course, a tame and timid tabby for the first two days of the tournament. But, suddenly toughened by 25-mph winds, it turned into a raging tiger that claimed its victims with near regularity.

Standing on the 11th tee, Nicklaus was tied for the lead. When he walked off the 12th green he was tied for eighth, five shots off the pace. A couple of birdies by Ziegler and a double bogey-bogey stretch by Nicklaus, wandering tightlipped and angered through trees and traps, accounted for the swing.

Ziegler, whose close friend Joe Garagiola was handling the telecast of a 14-inning baseball game that cut the viewing time of this tournament to 15 minutes, chipped in twice to turn a potentially poor round into a leader.

"The first eight holes I just played awful," Ziegler said. "It looked like I was gonna shoot 75. I wasn't thinking about the lead. I was just trying to keep from shooting a bad score."

Ziegler, who chipped in twice in Thursday's first round, did it again to save par on the first hole and dropped one from deep rough for birdie on the 12th.

Martin assumes LPGA lead

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Kathy Martin birdied her last three holes Saturday to take a four-stroke edge over first-round leader Jan Stephenson at the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Birmingham Classic.

Miss Martin, who shot a 65 Saturday to accompany a 66 Friday, took the lead after 36 holes with a 131. Miss Stephenson shot a 70 Saturday for a 135.

Six shots off the pace was Long Beach's Laura Baugh, with a 137 total. Debbie Austin was at 138 and defending champion Maria Astrologes and Betsy Cullen were tied at 139.

During the overcast, rain-sprinkled day, Miss Martin pulled out nine birdies. "It was a fantastic round," she said. "I started a bit shaky, but I hit it better and better as I went along.

On her last hole, she hit her tee shot through the 18th fairway and played a driver down the adjacent 13 before winding up behind some trees. She then pulled out a five iron and hit the flagstick. All that remained was a six-inch tap-in for the birdie.

Miss Stephenson, who led Miss Martin by one-stroke going into Saturday's play, said, "I'm not disappointed. I am mad and disgusted.

"I didn't get one break today," she said.

Gahr, Glenn advance to tourney finals

Gahr and Glenn High moved into the finals of the Downey-Warren Tournament Saturday with narrow victories over Mayfair and Warren.

Gahr survived a three-run home run by Mayfair High's Greg Eaton to register a 6-5 win.

Jay Adamson picked up his first win of the season for Gahr as he went five innings before being relieved by Glenn Prater.

Glenn scored twice in the seventh inning to rally for a 4-3 victory.

A double by Rick Mendoza and a triple by Nick Klistoff with an ensuing error helped Glenn move into the championship matchup.

The tournament, scheduled for the Easter week, was interrupted by rain. Finals are scheduled for Saturday.

Trentonian key to Indy 500

Janet Guthrie faces test

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Janet Guthrie's career as an auto racer and her bid to become the first woman to drive in the Indianapolis 500 next month faces a crucial test in today's 15th Trentonian 200.

Ready for action

Driver Janet Guthrie adjusts boots in cockpit of Indy-style race car for trial run at Trenton Speedway. Janet will attempt to qualify for 200 race today. Race is scheduled for later in day. — AP Wirephoto

Miss Guthrie, 36, a slim brunette New York City physicist who has spent the last 13 years in sports car racing, makes her debut in Indianapolis-type cars at the tricky kidney-shaped 1.5-mile Trenton Speedway. Although a near record 28 entries have been received for the 22-car field, most observers agree Miss Guthrie should be able to earn one of the starting spots for the nationally televised event.

"I may be a woman, but when I get in that car I'm a race driver," said Miss Guthrie. "I don't pretend this type of racing is easy, but I believe I can get the job done.

"If I can't, I've promised myself I'll have the courage to admit it and park the car."

Miss Guthrie, who is the first woman to file an entry for the Indianapolis 500, is not likely to get permission to compete for a spot at Indy strictly on her credentials in sports car racing: Previous experience in open wheel racing at some level is a prerequisite for any rookie to be allowed to even start the Indy drivers' test.

"I think that's fair," Miss Guthrie said. "I just hope I get a reasonable opportunity to prove myself."

IN TIRE TESTING at Trenton last week, Miss Guthre achieved speeds in the 150 mph range with her Offenhauser-powered Vollstedt, which would have earned her 14th starting position in the race at Trenton last fall, said officials of the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club.

"But it is not without considerable hostility that a certain number of entrants accept Miss Guthrie's presence.

Drivers threatened a boycott if Arlene Hiss, who broke the sex barrier in Indinapolis-type racing in an unimpressive manner last month at Phoenix, was permitted to drive.

"I'm not happy about this whole thing. I've made that perfectly clear before," grumbled Bobby Unser, the Phoenix winner and a five-time former Trenton victor. "I've said all I'm going to say on the subject for now. Let's just hope we all come through this in one piece."

"I'm sorry Bobby feels the way he does. I hope I can change his mind about me," said Miss Guthrie, who refers to Unser as "Male Chauvinist Pig".

While the controversy about Miss Guthrie simmers, a highly competitive race, which is expected to draw a near-record crowd, is on tap with four former Indianapolis winners and as many as a dozen drivers considered reasonably capable of winning.

The entry list includes A.J. Foyt, the defending Trentonian champion, and Gordon Johncock, winner of last fall's race.

Qualifying is in the morning and the race begins at 1:30 p.m. (PDT).

MARCIS SITS VIRGINIA POLE

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — For the fourth time in the nine races in this season, Dave Marcis will be on the pole today for the 21st Virginia 500 Grand National stock car race at Martinsville Speedway.

Marcis earned the No. 1 spot for the richest short-track event in NASCAR history when he turned in a qualifying speed of 86.286 mph Friday in a Dodge over the .525-mile track.

While Marcis failed to crack the Virginia 500 and track qualifying record of 86.369 mph set in 1973 by David Pearson, he picked up the $1,000 bonus by leading the trials that determined the first 20 spots for today's race.

Pearson, the Mercury driver who's won four of the five races in which he's competed this year, took the outside pole at 85.809 mph in his first start on a track under a mile in length.

Trailing Marcis and Pearson in the qualifying were Grand National point leader Benny Parsons with a speed of 85.026 mph and Darrell Waltrip at 84.820 mph. Both were driving Chevrolets.

Earlier this year, Marcis won the pole at Rockingham, N.C., Atlanta and North Wilkesboro, N.C. His only race victory came in the Capital City 400 at Richmond, Va.

Regatta of Champions

Drags, hydros vie at Marine

Renewing rivalries paralleling the USC-UCLA and Harvard-Yale feuds, five unlimited blown fuel hydros, representing the five hull makers in the sport, will engage in the "manufacturers challenge" portion of the Regatta of Champions today at Long Beach Marine Stadium.

The Regatta, sponsored by the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club, will feature races for blown fuel hydros, K runabouts and unblown gas boats, plus head-to-head drag competition, invitational outboard, jet boat and cracker box races and a special high speed water ski exhibition.

All five of the "challenge" hydros have eclipsed the magic 200-mile-per-hour barrier for a quartermile in head-to-head competition.

Earl Barchant of Fresno will be in the cockpit of Golden Thing, the National Drag Boat Assn. record holder at 203.60 mph. A Brendella hull, the boat is owned by Shane Magan of Fresno and has been clocked at 204.08 for a quarter-mile run. To qualify, records must be backed within three per cent over the previous standards.

Out A Sight, a Howard hull owned by Howard Brown of Bellflower, holds the American Power Boat Assn. record of 201.34. Gary Owens of Canoga Park will drive.

Three other boats have been clocked faster than the APBA record, but were unable to back up their marks. Climax, a Sanger hull owned by Jack Davidson of Fresno and driven by Doug Hilton of Redondo Beach, has an unofficial 205.01 while Hondo's After Shock — a Hondo boat owned by Peggy Ann Brendel of Sylmar and driven by Dennis Pollaccia of Redondo Beach — and Mr. Ed, owned by Ed Wills of Fresno with Kenny West of Fresno at the helm, have each clocked 202.46.

In today's circle racing, Julian Pettingill of Phoenix is a double threat. He will compete in both K (blown fuel) and SK (unblown gas) and is a favorite in both classes. Ron Bolton of Long Beach is the top challenger in the K class, while Rick Lee of Incline Village is a strong contender in SK competition.

Gate will open at 8 a.m. today with five hours of continuous racing beginning at noon. Transistors are suggested as there will be no public address system. The race will be carried on a close loop broadcast at 540 on the AM dial.

Admission is $5, with children under 12 admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Handball tourney at Long Beach AC

The Long Beach Athletic Club will play host to the United State Handball Association-sanctioned Western Regional Tournament May 6-9 and 13-16.

Competition in 11 categories is scheduled. Division winners earn a berth in the National USHA tournament in Las Vegas, June 6-13.

Entry information may be obtained by telephoning 426-5577. Admission is free to all sessions.

Thirteen tangle in Century Handicap

Thirteen of the nation's top grass specialists, including four from Charlie Whittingham's power-packed stable, are scheduled to go postward today at Hollywood Park in the $115,500 Century Handicap at 1⅜-mile on the lakeside turf course.

The first of three hundred-granders for handicap marathoners during the 1976 Hollpark season, the Century is an international affair, as fully seven of the entrants have raced in foreign countries.

Whittingham is represented by major stakes winners Dahlia, the world's richest active thoroughbred; Top Command, winner of the Oak Tree Invitational last fall; King Pellinore, winner of the Irish Stakes, and Riot In Paris, a French grass star whom Whittingahm owns in partnership with Mary Jones Bradley.

Opposing the Whittingham quartet will be Avatar, Elabadoro, Pass The Glass, Toonerville, Zanthe, Cruiser II, Ga Hai, Winds Of Thought and Branford Court.

If all 13 horses start, the race will be worth $70,500 to the winner.

Whittingham listed Bill Shoemaker to ride on both Top Command and Dahlia and selected Jerry Lambert to pilot Riot In Paris and King Pellinore, so there is a distinct possibility the trainer will withdraw one or more of his eligibles.

Florida invader Toonerville, 1975 Hollypark grass champion Pass The Glass, and 1975 Belmont Stakes winner Avatar are expected to vie for favoritism with the fans.

Toonerville, won five consecutive grass races in Florida, including the Bouganvillea Handicap at Hialeah in which he set a world record of 1:51⅕ for a mile and 3/16.

To be ridden by Gene St. Leon and to carry 122 pounds, Toonerville showed good speed Saturday morning, blowing out three furlongs in 35⅗ seconds.

Pass The Glass captured the Golden Gate Handicap in the course record time of 1:41⅗ for a mile and 1/16. Turf specialist Fernando Toro will get the mount on Pass The Glass, who also drilled in 35⅗ Saturday.

Avatar, Belmont Stakes winner as a three-year-old and victorious in the San Luis Rey Stakes most recently in his first test on turf, will be the Century highweight at 124 pounds. After several days of trying, trainer Tommy Doyle finally convinced Braulio Baeza to fly in from New York for the mount today.

Century's Envoy goes wire-to-wire

Most thoroughbred trainers will tell you that the ideal horse is one who gives his best every time.

Such a creature is Elizabeth Elmore's Century's Envoy, who Saturday at Hollywood Park treated 37,002 racing fans to a splendid show of determination in winning the $54,450 Los Angeles Handicap.

With leading jockey Sandy Hawley aboard, Century's Envoy led every step of the seven furlongs and reached the finish line two lengths ahead of Home Jerome in 1:20⅘, one second off the stakes and world record.

Home Jerome was another 2½-lengths in front of Sporting Goods.

The Los Angeles was the eighth lifetime stakes score for Century's Envoy and his fourth added-money triumph at Hollypark. The $32,050 he eraned boosted his career bankroll to $348,100.

As the 2-1 favorite, the winner returned $6, $3.40 and $2.60. Home Jerome paid $5.60 and $3.40 and Sporting Goods paid $3.

Hawley had ridden Century's Envoy two weeks ago when he finished second to Sporting Goods in the Premiere Handicap on opening day and had said afterward that he felt his mount might have been a little "short."

"He didn't get tired today," said the 27 year-old Canadian, who is once again running away with the Hollypark riding title. Century's Envoy was Hawley's 10th winner of the week and he now holds a 28-13 advantage over Fernando Toro.

ROYAL GLINT DOES IT AGAIN

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Royal Glint ended Master Derby's five-race victory streak by winning the $111,050 Trenton Handicap by a neck Saturday at Garden State Park.

U.S. RACING ROUNDUP

Royal Glint, a six-year-old gelding owned by Dan Lasater, and Master Derby, last year's Preakness winner owned by Golden Chance Farm, each carried co-highweight of 127 pounds for the 1¼-mile. Northerly, owned by Sigmund Sommer, was third.

It was the fourth victory of the season for Royal Glint, son of Round Table, purchased for $87,000 as an unraced two-year-old. After winning the Grey Lag in New York, he was shipped to California, where he won the Santa Anita Handicap, and to Arkansas, where he won the Razorback Handicap before losing by 1¼-lengths to Master Derby in the Oaklawn.

CHURCHILL DOWNS— Amano made his move in midstretch to win the Stepping Stone Purse, the race that two years ago produced Kentucky Derby winner Cannonade. This year only two Derby nominees were entered and the race was relegated to a betless exhibition. Go East Young Man, a Derby eligible along with Amano, finished second after setting the pace for most of the seven furlongs. The winner's time was 1:24⅕.

AQUEDUCT—Proud Delta ($12) surged up on the outside in the stretch and won the $82,425 Top Flight Handicap for fillies and mares. Ridden by Jorge Velasquez, the winner beat Let Me Linger by three-quarters of a length. Spring Is Here was another head back in third in the field of seven. Proud Delta clocked 1:49 for the 1⅛-mile.

Teske hurls 9-0 no-hitter

The Lakewood Barons swept a doubleheader from South El Monte Saturday night at Mayfair Park, using Roger Teske's no-hitter to score a 9-0 win in the opener and some clutch last-inning hitting for a 3-2 decision in the nightcap.

Teske struck out 16 and was supported by Reynolds Wright's home run.

Proud Baron wins Alamitos feature

Proud Baron, the five-year-old Baron Hanover stallion, posted a wire-to-wire victory Saturday night to post his second win in a row in the featured seventh race at Los Alamitos, upsetting the Joe O'Brien tandem of Starred By Bret and Saunder's Perilous.

Driven by defending champion Bobby Williams, Proud Baron took the lead going around the first turn and never looked back, finally pulling away to 1¾-length margin with a blistering 59 second final half.

The winner clocked 1:59⅖, a lifetime best for the improving young pacer who last year turned in a 1:59⅘ mark at Hollywood Park.

The "magic mile" was the 16th such clocking of the current 56-night spring harness season, two away from the all-time single-season high of 18 established last year.

Proud Baron, who carried the field through a 1:00⅖ first half and a 1:30 three-quarters before coming home the final quarter in 29⅖, paid $16.60, $6.20 and $3.40.

Saunder's Perilous, a winner of nearly $95,000 last year, closed ground in the stretch for Stan Bayless to finish second while 4-5 favorite Starred By Bret, under Hall of Famer O'Brien, finished third. Both were making their first starts of the year.

In the night's co-featured sixth race, Adios Rick circled his four opponents in the stretch and got up in time to win, but it was 3-5 favorite Lumber Bye Bye who tied a state harness racing record.

The heavy odds-on favorite in the five-horse field was claimed by David Bellucci through trainer Larry Gregory for a Los Alamitos track record of $35,000.

The former Alamitos standard was the $27,000 paid for Saint Clair Event. The $35,000 purchase equaled the state record held by St. Clair Carl in 1974 at Hollywood Park.

REDLANDER, out run early, closed ground to move into traffic and had to steady behind a wall of horses leaving the quarter pole, found room between horses to rally, met PRESIDENCY with courage and won proudly. The latter was pocketed inside out of the far turn, swing wide for room, rallied steadily to challenge the winner but was not enough. QUALIFICATION broke alertly to hold the edge to the stretch then gradually gave way.

CENTURY'S ENVOY got the lead quickly from Sporting Goods while entering the main track, drifted off the rail in the firmer footing, drew clear under urging at the furlong pole and won in full stride. HOME JEROME, unhurried early, saved some ground around the turn, found room between horses to launch his bid in the stretch but hung behind the winner in the final fifty yards. SPORTING GOODS broke in stride to hold a slim and brief lead, forced the winner then to the stretch and tired gradually. FAST SPOT, on the rail, found an opening for his best bid nearing the furlong pole to prompt the winner then slackened. OUR HERO raced extremely wide throughout. PAY TRIBUTE, in between horses, stayed within easy striking distance then lacked a rally. PASSIONATE PIRATE never was a threat.

Good start, mild winds for yachts

The Newport-to-Ensenada Race got under way with no problems and moderate winds Saturday as a huge field of 572 yachts broke at noon from the starting line inside Newport Harbor.

Winds were 6-8 knots throughout most of the clear, balmy day. If winds of such force prevailed, the first yachts should have finished the race early this morning.

The field was divided into four divisions, including 420 entrants in the Performance Handicap Racing Fleet. The fastest yachts, catamarans and trimarans, competed in the Midget Ocean Racing Fleet.

LBCC eyes repeat title

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

The way prospects are shaping up, the finals of the San Bernardino Invitational Volleyball Tournament, which opens Friday, may turn out to be a repeat of last year's event.

Long Beach City College's defending champions go into the competition first in their league with a 10-1 record. L.A. Valley College, LBCC's victim in last year's finals, won its league and again figures to be the Vikings' strongest challenger.

Competition Friday will continue through semifinals. The title will be decided the following Wednesday, said LBCC coach Merri Machado.

Merri's Viking varsity finished off Orange Coast College Wednesday, 15-9, 15-11. Lori Doerr sprained her ankle during the game, but she should be back in the lineup by tournament time.

OCC got some solace, beating the Vike JVs, 15-10, 16-14 defeat.

Matches with West L.A. College Monday and Golden West Wednesday should provide some good pre-tournament competition.

JERRY MILLER'S ESP concerning last weekend's women's national elimination races at Newport Beach was right on beam. LBCC's two Flying Junior entries came through with wins in the team sailing.

Eligible for nationals later in the year will be Joanne Ellerman, skipper, and her crew, Andrea Zahn, and Cathy Black, who with the assistance Lorna Ramos, was overall low point skipper.

The four competed against teams from San Diego State — which finished behind LBCC — UC Santa Cruz, UC Santa Barbara and UCLA.

"The competition was close until the ninth race, and then it was LBCC all the way," Jerry reported. "But the interesting part was watching all those girls sail. Collegiate sailing is primarily a men's sport. Women have generally taken non-active roles as hostesses or crew."

Some great water competition a little closer to home will be staged Friday through Sunday at Long Beach Marine Stadium. The camp sites of the Greater Long Beach Girl Scout Council and the adjoining stadium channel will be the scene of the 1976 Mariner Gam which will attract senior Girl Scouts from 15 cities and communities and an estimated 1,500 visitors.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

The three-day event will afford the young women an opportunity to demonstrate mariner skills and experience inter-troop and inter-council camping. The public is invited Saturday from 11:30 to 4.

Competition is scheduled in 15 land skill and 11 water events. These will include first aid, aids to navigation, knots, nautical terms, inter-national flags and Morse codes, rowing, paddleboard, canoeing, sailing for form, flipper sailing and trimaran sailing.

On the planning committee are Teri Wohlgemuth, GAM officer of the day; Val Braly, assistant officer of the day, and Tori Lee, Cindy Stalkup, Sharon Pattee, Christy Lennon, Jennifer Talley, Shannon Colvin, Debbie Bene and Cathy Johnson.

MOST OF us read about the Boston Marathon and shudder. Not Jane Kuchins, a graduate student at Long Beach State, and Mary Frank, women's athletic trainer.

The two decided a few months ago to go into training for the grueling event. Last week they hopped a plane to the eastern city where they not only finished the 26 miles but had good times.

Jane, who probably placed in the top 10 women (the results have not yet been confirmed), did the distance in three hours, 37 minutes. Mary had a time of four hours, 10 minutes.

ALTHOUGH the LBCC softball team outhit East Los Angeles College 16-10, they came out on the short end of the final 15-9 score. "We just weren't able to put it together," coach Donna Prindle said.

Top hitters for the day were Beth Tasker, three for four; Cindy Mast, two hits and two RBIs; Kim Doyle, two hits including a triple; Barbara Fernau, two for three with a triple and two RBIs; Vicki Lewellyn, two for three with one RBI, and Jane Baker, two hits, including a triple.

Kim Doyle leads the team with a batting average of .451 followed by Cindy Mast .444, and Kim Kelly .344. The team average is .335.

SOFTBALL score: Cerritos, 69 runs, opponents, 1. The single run that broke the Falcons'shutout streak hit the board Wednesday when Chaffee College lost to the strong Cerritos team 9-1.

Cerritos, undefeated in league play, has three league games remaining. The Falcons will meet LBCC Friday at 1 on the Viking field; Rio Hondo, the following Monday, and LBCC, May 5.

Barbara Reinalda threw a two hitter at Chaffee. A single brought her batting average to .500, and three RBIs solidified her lead in this statistic with 17 in league play.

Marina to be recommended to L.B. Council

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

A 571-slip marina, to be financed and built by the Feinberg Development Corp. in the area between the Queensway Hilton Hotel and the Queen Mary, will be recommended Tuesday to the Long Beach City Council.

The project would include facilities for parking, dry-boat storage, boat pump-out, minor repair and sales activities and an area designated as the site for a yacht club.

To protect the marina, a 2,400-foot breakwater would be built, running from a point of land just northwest of the Queensway Hilton to the rock dike which now surrounds the Queen Mary.

City Manager John R. Mansell said preliminary studies conducted at the request of the Feinberg Corp. indicate that a floating breakwater may be sufficient to protect the marina complex.

"This type of breakwater was strongly recommended from an aesthetic viewpoint by the Planning Department in its review of the project," Mansell said.

To proceed with the construction of the marina, the Feinberg Corp. proposed a lease with the city and an amendment to its existing lease with the Harbor Department covering the hotel complex.

Mansell said the Harbor Commission previously approved the project in principle and would consider the more detailed proposal at its meeting Monday.

The proposed 40-year lease with the city would begin upon completion of construction, or two years after the necessary permits have been secured, whichever comes first, Mansell said.

He said it was the sole responsibility of the Feinberg Corp. to obtain financing and develop the improvements, with the exception of the breakwater.

Under the agreement, the city would apply for a State Department of Navigation and Ocean Development low-interest loan to finance construction of the breakwater. The Feinberg Corp. would assume full responsibility to pay the city total amortization costs of the loan, he said.

Mansell said the city estimated the cost of the breakwater at $2 million and the loan amortization payments at $135,000 annually.

Once constructed, all facilities would be maintained by the Feinberg Corp., he said.

In addition to the amortization payments, the Feinberg Corp. would pay the city and the harbor six cents per square foot of water area per year, plus 24 cents per square foot of land area per year, or 11 per cent of gross income from slip rental, whichever is greater.

A percentage of sales of other revenue-producing ancillary features would be negotiated as they are developed, Mansell said.

Based on a review of the project prepared by J. Jay Feinberg of the Feinberg Development Corp., the city has estimated the annual lease payments to the city and the harbor would be about $100,000. Inasmuch as about half of the proposed marina would be in the city and half in the harbor district, the two jurisdictions would divide the revenue, with the city receiving about $50,000, plus the loan amortization payments, Mansell said.

Mansell said his office, in conjunction with the Departments of Planning and Engineering, believed the proposed marina would be an asset to the city and would "significantly enhance the area between the Queen Mary and the Queensway Hilton Hotel."

Council members will be asked Tuesday to approve the project in principle, authorize negotiations for an agreement between the city and Feinberg Development Corp., and authorize an application to the State Department of Navigation and Ocean Development for a low-interest loan for the breakwater.

The proposed marina first was suggested to the City Council by Feinberg last September. Council members referred the matter to the city manager's office, and Feinberg was asked to bring in a conceptual plan for the marina and its ancillary facilities.

Plea for peace

This mural, depicting a plea for an end to gang violence in the Southland, was dedicated at the Wilmington Recreation Center, 325 N. Neptune St., Saturday. It was created as part of the Los Angeles Citywide Mural Project, a project that seeks to involve street youths in constructive enterprises. With money for the project deleted from the city's proposed budget, this may be the last mural painted under the program, sponsors say.

Bureaucratic red tape of welfare programs ripped

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Welfare systems have too long been "inefficient, inequitable and difficult for all concerned parties to cope with," a group of antipoverty workers was told Saturday in Long Beach.

And the best way to remedy the situation is for government officials and members of the public to take a more positive approach to helping people in need, said Bud Weisbart, executive director of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities.

His remarks came as part of a panel discussion entitled, "People in Need: Reforming the Welfare System," during the Third Annual California-Nevada Community Action Program conference at the Edgewater Hyatt House.

About 400 delegates from some 32 community antipoverty agencies attended the three-day conference, which concludes today.

About 35 persons attended the welfare reform panel, one of several conducted simultaneously Saturday afternoon.

Weisbart, who moderated the discussion, set the tone with his remarks, which were followed by similar messages from representatives of state and county government.

Basically, the panelists agreed that bureaucratic entanglements designed to keep nondeserving persons off the welfare rolls have instead worked to the disadvantage of those who are truly in need of aid.

The problem is further complicated by a negative public attitude toward welfare recipients, the condescending, sometimes even hostile, attitude taken toward applicants by eligibility workers and the huge amount of publicity given to welfare cheaters, the panelists added.

"The government is making it as hard as hell for people to get what they need to survive," Weisbart said. "Only the most tenacious people manage to get through all the red tape. . .this is far from the best approach to take. We need to change our attitudes about welfare from reaction to pro-action."

Postal Service no match for guitar made of matches as gift for Elvis

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

It took Karen England three months to glue together 3,500 stick matches to make a unique guitar for her hero — Elvis Presley.

It took the U.S. Postal Service three minutes to shatter her dreams.

"The post office wouldn't mail the guitar because they said it was too fragile," Mrs. England said.

"It nearly broke my heart. We don't have enough money to go to Memphis to Elvis's home at Graceland. I thought I'd try shipping it by bus, but then there was no way of making sure Elvis would receive the guitar."

The mother of three sat in a love seat in her Pico Rivera home. She explained that an automobile accident in November left her in constant pain from a ruptured spinal disc.

"I needed to find something to occupy the long hours at home. I've been an Elvis Presley fan ever since I saw him on TV in the early '50s," the 31-year-old blonde continued. "I have every record Elvis has ever recorded. I thought about the happiness his music has given me. I guess that's when I decided to make this guitar for him."

The standard-sized guitar is fashioned completely from ordinary kitchen matches with the tips removed.

Mrs. England used white glue to affix the matches to a cardboard mold. Then she stained the matchstick guitar a rich brown and stretched a set of strings over the guitar neck and attached them to a set of keys. Both the guitar keys and neck are also made out of matches.

Mrs. England planned to attend Presley's matinee performance today at the Long Beach Arena, where officials promised to deliver the guitar to his dressing room.

After the concert, Mrs. England is to enter the UCLA Medical Center for back surgery. Her chances for complete recovery are slim.

"I've been told that I may not walk again," she said.

People Talk

F.C. Anderson

THE ROCK OWNERS Club, Inc., apparently is leaving no stone unturned in an effort to get publicity for its new club publication, Rolling Rock. The club even went so far as to send me a press release, probably theorizing that any man who writes a daily column must have rocks in his head.

I don't think that igneous is bliss, which is why I am not an owner of a pet rock. However, I am not antirock, for my music library contains a recording of the "Rockmaninoff Concerto," my bar abounds in vodka on the rocks, and I have rocked around the clock with a squalling granddaughter.

I suppose the real reason I haven't adopted a rock of my own is that the very word "rock" induces trauma in my psyche. I feel again the slings and arrows of an outrageous welterweight boxer named "Rock" who hastened my departure from the fight game.

I was 17, naive enough to think that speed and a clever left hand could keep my obvious glass jaw a secret from my ring opponents. On my good nights, the deception worked, and I collected purses of up to $20, before expenses.

My booking with "Rocky" at a club smoker in southern Indiana was not one of my better nights. Oh, I was fast enough, so fast that "Rock's" Sunday punch was arriving two days ahead of schedule; so fast that I kept answering bells before they rang.

The site of the fight was a drafty hall in the local Moose Lodge. The time was the dead of winter, and what heat there was emanated from a pot-bellied coal stove situated just outside the ring ropes.

I studiously avoided the hot stove area until "Rock" applied a stiff uppercut to my infamous glass jaw. This insult to my physiognomy caused me to sail backward at an alarming rate of speed. The ring ropes parted, and the seat of my trunks made contact with the hot stove.

I was literally stung into action. I was smoking at both ends as "Rocky" came in for the kill, only to take the full fury of my fistic onslaught. Sizzling from stern to 8-ounce gloves, I was a terror, an irresistible force. "Rocky" went down for the count. I went out a winner.

Nothing motivates a boxer more than the fire of competition. I found my motivation in a red-hot coal stove. It was either the means to an end, or the end to the means. No matter, it hurt.

That wasn't my last fight, but it was my last encounter with a hot stove at ringside. My competitive fires were banked, becoming cold ashes on a spring night in Gary when my glass jaw was introduced to the left hand of a Polish-American light-heavyweight, once in the bigtime but now reduced to cheap club fights against the likes of me.

The lights went out in the second round, and when they came on again I was a retired boxer, a 17-year-old graduate of the school of hard knocks.

I remember coming to in that ratty locker room in Gary. The first face I saw was that of the slobbering, watery-eyed punchdrunk pug who handed out towels and did odd jobs around the gym, his pay a free flop and loose change.

I was a tough kid in those days, but I bawled like a baby when I looked up and saw that ravaged face staring down at me. I was gazing into a mirror five years into my future. The face of the punchdrunk ex-fighter was my face; the void behind his out-of-focus eyes was my future. And I wanted out; oh, God, how I wanted out.

Common sense threw in the towel for me that long ago night in Gary. I have been grateful ever since. Even so, the pain of memory is a sharp and punishing as the blows I took and gave in the ring.

Courage is climbing through the ropes around the ring. Sanity is in leaving that ring—for good. Whenever I look at my deformed fingers, which knitted badly after being fractured in bouts, I know I made the right decision. Deformed fingers are preferable to a deformed life.

Boxers will understand this. Fat, cigar-chombing slobs who sit at ringside and clamor for more blood and hurt never will. But, then, the pain is never theirs—is it?

HAM WHAT AM: Don't forget the annual ham dinner sponsored by the Long Beach Junior Concert Band. It happens from noon to 6 p.m . Sunday, May 2, at Belmont Plaza. Proceeds support the band's work, pay the kids' way to parades, where they win all those trophies and honors for Long Beach.

Eat dinner with the bandspeople. You'll eat higher on the hog, and they'll feast higher on the musical scale.

"WELL, WHAT HAVE YOU BEEN UP TO?"

Brown makes an odd choice

SACRAMENTO — Every once in a while, Jerry Brown seems to be settling down and doing predictable political things, and newsmen trying desperately to respond sagely when asked about the governor optimistically think they're beginning to figure him out.

No way!

THE GOVERNOR last Wednesday announced the appointment of one Cruz Reynoso to the Third District Court of Appeal in Sacramento. Cruz Reynoso is a brilliant lawyer, a hard worker, an excellent administrator and a compassionate human being, and will probably make a splendid justice.

But perhaps nothing Jerry Brown has done since he became governor is going to get more people mad at him than his appointment of Cruz Reynoso.

He can now add to the list of his critics (a) every farmer in California (although most are already on the list), (b) practically every lawyer in the state, (c) probably every judge in the state, and (d) the spouses, relatives and friends of same.

THE FARMERS have a different reason for being distressed than do the judges and lawyers, but distressed they all are.

In the late 1960s and 1970s, Cruz Reynoso was executive director of California Rural Legal Assistance, a federally funded poverty law program. CRLA gave farmers and state agencies dealing with agriculture and with agricultural workers more problems than Cesar Chavez ever dreamed of giving them.

Jesse Unruh, John Burton and some other Democrats nettled Ronald Reagan some when Reagan was governor. Cruz Reynoso probably came closer than anyone else to giving him an ulcer.

CRLA's instrument of irritation was the court. The CRLA lawyers, under Reynoso's direction, simply went to court asking that existing laws be enforced. The laws dealt with sanitation, health, health care, safety, minimum wages, the hiring of illegal aliens, the hiring of children, with consumers, with voting, with what one writer at the time called "the necessities of life."

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

THE CASES rarely involved complex legal or philosophical questions. Here is the law, your honor. The state is not enforcing the law. We ask that the state be ordered to enforce the law, your honor.

Judges had very little choice. The state was so ordered. Time and time again, the state was so ordered.

Farmers had fits, and Ronald Reagan had fits. He thought a governor had authority to oversee CRLA. It turned out he had no such authority. He had Sen. George Murphy amend a poverty law funding bill to let governors have final veto power over such programs, and asked his friend Richard Nixon to support the amendment. Richard Nixon said no.

Reagan was forced to yield. CRLA kept on filing lawsuits. And winning them.

IN 1972, WITH the principle of independence established and with CRLA's management in good hands, Cruz Reynoso became a professor of law at the University of New Mexico.

He has been there ever since, and it is that fact which explains the distress expected to be felt by lawyers and judges.

When Governor Brown appointed Cruz Reynoso of New Mexico to a highly coveted California judicial post, he as much as said that no lawyer now practicing in California, no judge now sitting in California, is as qualified as Cruz Reynoso to be an appellate court justice.

And there is no way that can be so.

It can be argued that Reynoso's appointment has a certain symbolic value. He is the son of farm workers, raised and educated in California, self-made.

BUT THERE HAVE been Chicano lawyers working within the system in California, trying to assure that justice occurs here. It is damning of Jerry Brown to allow the conclusion to be drawn that none can match Cruz Reynoso's qualifications. But he invites that conclusion.

Ronald Reagan invited such criticism when he appointed his executive secretary, William Clark, in rapid succession to the superior court, appellate court and supreme court. But Clark, at least, had illustrated by his continued presence here that California was important to him.

It is good to have Cruz Reynoso back in California. It is good to have an attorney of his great competence on the appellate bench.

BUT IT MUST be wondered why Jerry Brown would cause a controversy when none need have been caused.

About the only thing predictable about Jerry Brown is that he will continue to be unpredictable.

Zarb has good advice

In a speech to the American Power Conference in Chicago, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb warned that there is "a disturbingly great chance" of another oil embargo by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Such an embargo, Zarb said, "would make the last one look like a picnic."

HE CALLED FOR steps to make the nation "embargo-proof" by 1985. The steps: more energy conservation, greater use of abundant U.S. coal resources, accelerated development of nuclear power, and more development of oil and natural gas from domestic sources.

The last point is a key one. Energy conservation can only be carried so far before industrial growth is diminished and prosperity is hurt. Coal causes air pollution. Nuclear power is increasingly hedged about with government restrictions resulting from public fears; although those fears are excessive in many cases, they are a powerful force nevertheless. But few Americans would quarrel with the idea of stepping up exploration and development of our oil and gas resources.

These resources will not be fully utilized, however, if crude oil prices are arbitrarily kept too low. A case in point is Long Beach's Wilmington Field, in which oil production has been severely curtailed because of federal price ceilings. Federal regulations set the price for low-gravity California crude oil 88 cents a barrel lower than for oil of comparable quality produced elsewhere in the United States.

THE DECISION on whether to lift the ceiling on Wilmington Field oil is up to Zarb. If he applies his own general advice on developing U.S. oil resources, he will lift the ceiling.

In February, Zarb told Rep. Mark Hannaford that the request from Long Beach and California officials to lift the ceiling will be given "favorable and speedy consideration."

Governor Brown has advised Zarb that the current price ceiling is costing California $100,000 a day. "Unless prompt relief is granted," the governor said, "further substantial reductions will be made in the production of Wilmington Field crude oil."

THE GOVERNOR and the entire California congressional delegation, as well as Senators Cranston and Tunney, have urged Zarb to end the price freeze.

We hope Zarb heeds their advice, as well as his own warning to the American Power Conference that we must take all reasonable steps to reduce our dependence on foreign nations for petroleum.

Democrats face a dilemma

WASHINGTON — A couple of years ago, it didn't seem possible that the Democrats could blow the presidential election of 1976. They still may not be able to do it — but they're trying.

They are getting into a mess in the struggle between Carter and Humphrey.

James Reston

New York Times News Service

Many of the elders of their party, backed by the leaders, organization and money of Big Labor, are ganging up on Carter. They are trying to be clever at a time when the people of the country are sick of clever presidents, and longing for somebody new and moderate.

THIS IS A very dicey strategy, for the independent voters now outnumber even the registered Democrats, and Carter clearly has appeal across party lines. He has demonstrated the one thing any candidate of either party has to have to win the presidency — an ability to win the commitment of many of the uncommitted voters.

We cannot tell from the primary elections so far how wide or deep Carter's support is. Only about a quarter of the eligible voters have gone to the polls in the state contests, but two things we do know:

First, Carter has won most of the head-on confrontations with the other announced candidates, and second, his supporters are either fiercely loyal to him personally or hostile to the Democratic party candidates and pro-Democratic political and labor leaders who oppose him.

THIS IS THE dilemma that is now dividing the Democratic party. Carter may not have enough support to regain the White House for the Democrats after eight years, but if they do him out of the nomination by party and labor manipulation, his supporters may very well vote for Ford rather than Humphrey and keep the Republicans in the White House.

In fairness to the people and organizations trying to stop Carter, many of them obviously believe that Humphrey would be a better president — more experienced than Carter on both domestic and foreign affairs.

If you could get an honest secret vote of all members of Congress and even all the leading members of the Ford administration, including President Ford, about the Democrat best qualified to be president, if the Republicans didn't win, there is little doubt that Humphrey would win their votes by a large majority.

But there are other considerations. An election is not a judgment on the past but a bet on the future. Half of the people alive in the world today are under 25 years of age. Both at home and abroad, people are looking to Washington for new beginnings that can deal with the coming world.

THIS IS Carter's strength. He is not a man of the past, or of the right like Ford, or of the left like Humphrey. He is at least something new, and yet, paradoxically, something very old-fashioned in political, ethical, and even religious terms, and this seems to be touching something deep and enduring in the mind of many voters.

The guess here is that Carter's faith and character may be the "sleeper" in this election: It is not only that he is somebody new in a country that is disillusioned with the old, but that he believes in something in the American ideal we have lost.

Hubert Humphrey is going to have to deal with this at some point or ignore Carter and risk the resentment of Carter's supporters. He is not doing either now.

Humphrey says he is standing aside and leaving the outcome of the Democratic presidential nomination to his party, but he is not really standing aside. He is showing up in the critical primary states. He has been appearing at the labor rallies in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. He is deeply involved in the stop-Carter movement, and if he succeeds, he will have to deal with the consequences of Carter's resentful backers.

HUMPHREY IS betting on the power of the political and labor union leaders of the Democratic party, and on programs of full employment and federal medical assistance.

Carter is appealing, not primarily to economic but to philosophic remedies. He is saying that we cannot solve our personal problems at home or abroad by talking merely about budgets and the gross national product, but that we have to find unity and peace closer to the intimate places of the hearts and minds of our own people.

We have never had a debate quite like this since Woodrow Wilson ran for the presidency. Carter, another outsider, doesn't speak as eloquently as Wilson, but he is getting at the same thing — at the moral apathy and spiritual bewilderment of the nation.

With one difference. Carter combines his philosophy with the toughest political organization and most devoted team of volunteers seen in national politics in a long time. He is Mayor Daley of Chicago in the binding of a hymn book, and the Democratic party establishment is going to have to accept him or come to terms with him — or face the loss of the election.

Best to keep laughing

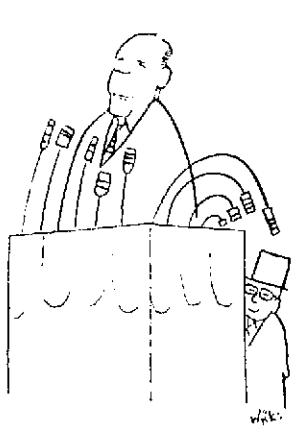

It is reported that some of President Ford's aides are miffed at Ron Nessen for appearing on a program in which comedian Chevy Chase poked fun at the President.

The President may be miffed, too. At least he apparently has not reassured Nessen. And Nessen must be concerned; he cussed out a Chicago Sun-Times reporter who tried to discuss the matter with him.

WE HOPE THE President and Nessen do not lose their cool or their sense of humor. The nation has enjoyed the amiable manner in which Gerald Ford has taken all the jokes about his pratfalls. It would be a pity if the President were suddenly to turn stuffy.

He probably won't, even in the face of funny, phony newscasts by Mr. Chase (who apparently took his name from the Washington, D.C. bedroom community of Chevy Chase, Md.).

"Mr. Ford was on the campaign trail, announcing in Detroit that he has written his own campaign slogan," Chase said one night. "The slogan: 'If he's so dumb, how come he's President?'"

FORD AND THE comedian met March 25 when both spoke at the annual dinner of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Association. After a friendly conversation, Chase ran through one of his Gerald Ford routines. The President provided his own Chevy Chase routine. "Chevy Chase," the President told the comedian, "you're a very, very funny suburb."

Ford's gag writer may not be quite as good as Chevy Chase. Still, we hope the President lends him to Ron Nessen for a day or two. The two of them might work up some barbed but funny answers to reporters who raise ticklish subjects.

Questions for Jimmy Carter

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Anybody who still doesn't understand the nearly mystical appeal of Jimmy Carter to the American people in 1976 should have been at the West Shore Senior Citizens Center in New Cumberland Township near here on Friday. To a packed house of several hundred Pennsylvanians in the center's recreation hall, Carter spoke of three recent national traumas as follows:

Vietnam: "We killed hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese — little babies and children and mothers and fathers. But we never really wanted to fight over there, without quite knowing why. The people were not part of the process."

Watergate: We trusted (Richard Nixon) in 1972. . . . Watergate came about because we were not told the truth. We were not part of what the government became."

CIA activities: "I wouldn't plot murder. You wouldn't plot murder. So why should our government plot murder?"

CARTER'S AUDIENCE was rapt throughout these formulations, except for a few heads nodding sagely. The proverbial pin might have been heard dropping as the candidate told in all these ways that there was nothing wrong with them, that he understood what he called the "hunger in this country to get back those precious things we've lost."

Carter is telling the people what they seem desperately to want to hear — that they are not to blame for what has been happening in the country, that what is really needed is "a government as good as our people."

None of this is meant to support the charge that Carter ducks or straddles the issues, or shifts his positions with the political weather. Carter's policy statements are as specific as anyone's, and more thoughtful than most.

But the Carter campaign is based on the premise that, this year, issues matter less than the American psyche — that the way to win is to persuade the people that "precious things" like truth and brotherhood and idealism and pride in the country can yet be regained. Carter seems to have made the restoration of the people's faith in themselves his primary campaign strategy.

Tom Wicker

THE RECORD so far suggests how politically astute that judgment was. But there are troublesome questions about it, nonetheless. Is it really true, for example, that "a government as good as the people" would have avoided Vietnam and Watergate? Did Cold War fever and public fear of unrest and dissent have nothing to do with them?

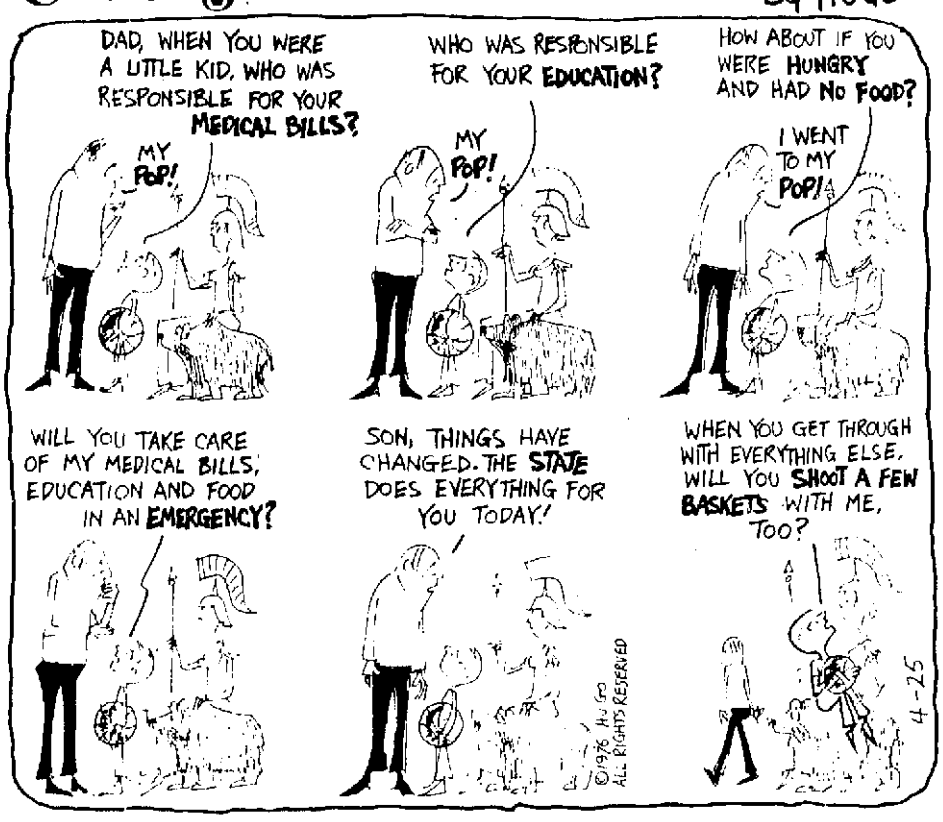

A political campaign may not be the time to call for sacrifice, or even the long view as against immediate interest, but such a time would surely come for a Carter in the White House. It seems reasonable to ask whether he would not then find it harder to overcome the greed and prejudice and passion and indifference of a people he has so assured of their essential righteousness.

Finally, could Jimmy Carter or anyone keep his end of the bargain, if elected, and never lie, never mislead, never betray the people's confidence, while restoring the "precious things" of the American myth? The question reflects Carter's great appeal to so many; but merely to ask it explains the skepticism he evokes in so many others.

Views of police misconduct

I have to disagree with Police Chief Ralph Kortz when he says criminal action would be difficult to document and harder to prove.

The pressure the vice officers must face from their peers is as real as any union or political party could put upon three individuals, but is as wrong and unlawful as the acts themselves.

Chief Kortz stated: "It is one thing to be able to say this is disgraceful conduct that we cannot tolerate in the department and another thing to say this conduct is a crime." He is wrong again. These vice officers should be brought before the City Council or a grand jury, an agency outside the police department, and under oath — along with any officer involved and any witnesses. The truth might be reached, right from wrong will be seen, and justice for all concerned achieved.

I have just read where Officer Dennis Maloney has been recommended for one day off without pay for his misconduct at a party for a fellow officer.

I realize that a police officer must conduct himself above reproach at all times, but police officers are only human. The stress and strain they must face 24 hours a day must never be allowed to come out.

Officer Dennis Maloney is not a personal friend of mine, nor do I know him in his off-duty hours. Officer Maloney stopped and offered his services to me when a police officer was welcome. He stopped, identified himself as a police officer, and by doing this he prevented a minor problem from turning into a serious one.

I ask you to please consider all the good things Officer Maloney has done for the people of Long Beach, and for the ones that were only passing through Long Beach.

I am so sick of all this garbage about the Long Beach Police Department I want to scream!

The only people I've ever heard talk like this are criminals, or would-be criminals if they had the guts.

You asked why they kept it quiet for so long. Well, you have your answer in all this trash you keep writing in the paper.

All right, so all of our police aren't perfect. Does that make the department a little Mafia?

I am a licensed beautician and thank God I'm not responsible for the whole city of licensed beauticians! Believe me, some of these beauticians should be in jail. And they still have a license.

What do the police do when they get a bad beautician? They look until they find a better one. Why don't you try that?

In all my years of living in Long Beach, I have never found a police officer that was not a gentleman and would go out of his way to help me in any way he could, even though some of my requests were sort of dumb.

Never in all the years we've been taking your newspaper were we so glad to get it as when we turned to the B section and read all those letters from residents of Long Beach expressing just how they feel about our holier-than-thou police.

We, too, have had encounters with some police officers who treated us like we were the criminals instead of the victims.

In 1964 my son and I went out to make his collections for a paper route he had. It was dark when we were coming across a vacant parking lot and were suddenly surrounded by boys on bikes. We couldn't get out of their circle.

They then lit matches at my son and me and my nylon jersey dress caught fire. I finally made a mad dash and got through. I ran to a close-by incinerator and grabbed a couple of sticks and went back and rescued my son. We ran across the lot. The boys followed us for a way, but when we came to a street light close to some houses, they turned and took off in a hurry.

As soon as I got home, I called the police. Two policemen came about two hours later. They took down what I told them, and I showed them my dress and where it had burned.

Both officers had smirky smiles on their faces, like I was lying. When they had finished, they said they'd go look for the boys, but doubted they could find them by that time of night. When they left, one of them said I really had a lively imagination, that that had been some way-out story. I even told them the name of one of the boys and where he lived.

As they got into the car, I noticed the one on the right side dropped something in the gutter. What do you think it was? It was the report he had been taking — all crumpled up.

I called the police department. A policewoman told me she knew all about it, and how in the world did I expect anyone to believe such a story?

I first came to Long Beach April 1951. At that time it was a very nice city. The beach stretched, unhampered, from Belmont Pier to west of Magnolia Pier. It was easily evident how the city got its name.

Today we have the Queen Mary, the Grand Prix and hardly any beach. Add on the recent brawl involving drunken off-duty police officers, and I feel it is time the town were renamed. How about Downhill, California?

Invitation to panic

April 21 is a date that should be remembered. On this date, our local responsible leading newspapers could find nothing spectacular to put on their front pages to help sell them, so they resorted to something akin to witch hunting or fortune telling and predicted in their headlines a "major earthquake within year."

Now that's just what the residents of this area need, on top of all their other problems.

Is this what you call responsible reporting and good journalism?

Isn't it bad enough that we have manufacturers cutting back on production, and massive lay-offs, without our press trying to discourage potential new employers from settling in our area?

Pending disaster can be dealt with, but only if everyone is prepared in advance and panic is not allowed to run rampant.

I have lived in the Long Beach area for 16 years and am deeply concerned in the events taking place in the city. I would like to comment on the first annual Queen Mary great egg drop.

I realize the Queen Mary needs publicity to increase support and revenue. I am well aware of the problems concerning the ship and the city of Long Beach. But I feel the great egg drop was a terrible waste.

A waste since many people in this country do not have enough to eat. Why should we throw eggs off the Queen Mary? This is poor publicity, and I hope this will be the only annual great egg drop.

What a sad state of affairs when vice officers are afraid to call for help in controlling drunken off-duty police officers? It reminds me of the parents on my street who are afraid to discipline their teenagers for fear of reprisal.

Your editorial "Police need discipline" was a good one because it told the basic fact that Chief Kortz's mild penalties are a part of the problem. All 13 should be fired. How can we respect a bunch of hooligans that do not set a proper example for our youth?

Perhaps instead of the citizens of Long Beach getting so upset by what they've read in the newspapers and heard on TV about the recent "episode" of some of our police officers, it might be a good idea if we have all the facts first.

So far, we've only heard one side of the story. Where did the information come from that was printed in the paper? Have these police officers been interviewed by the newspapers?

Perhaps because I'm a businesswoman in Long Beach and have the occasion to need some of these officers' assistance from time to time and know that they do a good job, I feel so far they've been treated unjustly.

How about hearing both sides of the story? If a trial is the only way, then let's do the right thing. Don't be so quick to judge until you're heard both sides.

Feminist sermon

Sunrise Easter services have always been a real thrill for our family until this year when we made the mistake of going to services at Forest Lawn, Cypress, and listened to the Rev. Phyllis Wayman, a campus minister at Long Beach State University. She gave us a lecture on women's lib with an excerpt about Cesar Chavez and never once mentioned Christ.

About 50 people were wise enough to get up and leave.

At the end of her dissertation, a man down front rose and said, "Christ is risen," to which we all echoed "Amen." The only reference to the fact. If this is the type of religious counseling we can expect our students to get at Long Beach State, small wonder they turn to rioting and fanaticism!

Feminist propaganda is purely antiscriptural and deserves no place in an Easter Sunrise service.

The music was the only worthwhile part of the service, and all of it was exceptional.

Shorten TV news

The present reporting of news is perhaps satisfactory to most TV viewers; however, the length of time taken does not seem to be justified.

The late Walter Winchell could give out all the news in 10 or 15 minutes. Some of these present-day characters take the rest of the hour in goofing off, cracking jokes and so on. Of course, they may not be entirely to blame. The station must come in for its pound of flesh. It might have some dog food to sell, or a flea collar or two.

What are they doing to save energy? Give us 15 minutes of news. Then we could turn our sets off, saving much-needed energy, and they could have the rest of the hour for themselves. Then everyone should be happy.

Redesigning chickens

Russell Baker

New York Times News Service

God having rested on the seventh day, man gazed upon His creation and decided it needed improvement. For one thing, all the chickens had been built with feathers on the outside. The human race lived with this error in chicken design for a long time. There were, after all, so many other improvements that had to be made. Recently, however, genetic engineers at the Universities of Connecticut and Maryland have finally rebuilt the chicken right. Which is to say, without any feathers at all.

This new improved chicken is nakeder than a jaybird. By breeding her without feathers, scientists believed, they could raise her economic efficiency. It seems that ordinary chickens spend a quarter of their protein intake on developing plumage, and since there is no demand at all for Kentucky fried feathers this is a waste of investment.

THERE ARE still bugs in the new design, of course. Chickens that have to go through life naked are prone to stomach ulcers, chills and nervous seizures. Some spend so much energy scurrying around to keep warm that they eat more than feathered chickens. Others, according to Dr. Ralph Somes of the University of Connecticut, "get so miserable that they stop eating and simply waste away."

Nevertheless, there are signs that the unfeathered chicken is the fowl of the future. Early models weigh 6 per cent more than the original feathered model and, because they develop less fat to shrink during cooking, leave 16 per cent more meat in the pan.

I have spent some time trying to imagine what it must feel like to be a chicken doomed to go through life without any feathers on and believe I can understand why many of them develop bad nerves and stomach ulcers, but my ability to sympathize with chickens is slight. I am far more interested in the human implications of such genetic redesigning.

IF WE CAN say without blasphemy that God botched the chicken design, and blithely rebuild His work to get rid of the wasteful feathers, may we not also concede that His basic human design also contains absurdities which might better be engineered out of future models?

Do teeth, for example, make any sense at all? Imagine for a moment that you are designing the basic human being and that an assistant comes to you and says, "I think I've licked the eating problem." And then he dumps on your desk several dozen small white objects of varying sizes, and you say, "What's this junk?" and he says, "Teeth."

And you say, "Is this a gag?" And he says, "Listen, all you do is, you put half of these teeth into the upper jaw and half of them into the lower jaw, and then when the jaws move open and shut the teeth will bite and grind against each other until the food is ready for the stomach."

And you say, "What keeps them from falling out?" And he says, "Twice a day and after every meal, the human being will scrub them with a hand brush and soap, and twice a year he will have them all X-rayed and scraped and drilled and tightened up while writhing in agony in a chair."

I DON'T know what you say then. I think you fire him, or at least take him off the human-being project, possibly by demoting him to chicken design. Why this wasn't done in the beginning I don't know, except that it was a crash project — all done in one day — and a lot of incompetents probably weren't weeded out.

Like the chicken's feathers, human teeth were an error of commission, and it seems very likely that they led to the most singular error of omission in the human structure. I refer to the absence of an eye in the back of the head. Surely this necessary appurtenance must have been planned for in the original blueprint, since at that time there was no way of foreseeing the invention of the rearview mirror.

What happened? My guess is there was one of those confusions in the shop such as account for so much botched auto repair. Once it was decided to go ahead with the teeth, there would have been a terrible job trying to get all the teeth placed correctly in the two jaws. This would have ended with the head lying backside down on a workbench and a great deal of laboring and grunting over the impossible task of getting the wisdom teeth properly occluded, eliminating overbite between the incisors, and so forth. At the finish of this job, with the head lying faceup, even an assiduous designer might easily have failed to notice that nobody had remembered to install the eye in the back of the head.

WHETHER GENETICISTS can amend this oversight is doubtful, but the mistake in the eating mechanism is easily changed. Breeding toothless humans should be as easy as breeding featherless chickens. And once we are rid of teeth, it will be a simple business to equip every person with an electric food chewer, which when placed on tables will chew food to a scientifically calculated consistency perfect for swallowing and transmit measured portions to the diner's mouth.

Will there be philosophical objections to this refinement on divine work? Very likely, for man in his present state is sometimes said to have been made in the image of God. As Mark Twain noted, however, the only authority we have for this information is man, that redesigner of chickens.

Microwaves renewed

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has resumed full-scale microwave bombardment of the U.S. embassy in Moscow at a level unsafe for American personnel — an unannounced move spelling failure for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's efforts to smooth over an exceedingly ugly dispute through "quiet diplomacy."

The Ford administration early this year secretly removed some electronics intelligence equipment from the embassy roof in return for reduced Soviet microwave bombardment. It worked — for a while. The bombardment, obviously a countermeasure against U.S. electronic spying, was reduced in duration and intensity. But within the last month, the Russians returned to around-the-clock, full-force microwave bombardment.

THIS PROBABLY creates electromagnetic radiation at the embassy higher than maximum safety levels, causing Dr. Kissinger's critics within the administration to say I told you so. These officials had felt removing spy equipment was a blunder from any standpoint. If the U.S. were really crippling its intelligence capability, this would be appeasement. If the U.S. were only pretending, the Russians would not be fooled for long.

In fact, the latter may have happened. Officials here believe the Soviets resumed microwave countermeasures because they concluded the equipment removed from the roof was of no great importance.

Accordingly, hard-liners in the administration feel now is the time for what should have been done originally: demand that the Kremlin follow civilized behavior by shutting off the microwave machine.

With President Ford and his inner circle immobilized for non-campaign activity by Ronald Reagan's challenge, nothing is being done about the Moscow situation. Ironically, if Mr. Ford took a hard line, he might score an effective counterthrust against Reagan's Panama attack.

FOR SEVERAL minutes after President Ford telephoned her at 2:30 on Sunday afternoon, March 28, Mrs. Jenkins Healy, a Reagan-leaning Republican just elected GOP county chairman in Natchez, Miss., was sure she was talking to an impostor.

But after 20 minutes on the phone, Gail Healy was convinced it was, indeed, none other than Gerald R. Ford. The conversation took place just two weeks before the Mississippi Republican convention would select their delegation to the presidential convention. The President knew Mrs. Healy would be a member of the delegation. That was the strongest sign yet of Mr. Ford now stroking even low-level Republicans to advance his cause against Ronald Reagan.

The President congratulated Mrs. Healy for her election the previous day as Adams County chairman. When she told him she had not publicly declared her preference between him and Reagan, Mr. Ford asked how the trees were "blowing in the wind." Toward Reagan, she replied. Mr. Ford asked: "Are you in that tree yourself?" Mrs. Healy ducked, saying she would definitely support the party's nominee, whoever he is.

For that answer, a laughing Mr. Ford replied, Mrs. Healy deserved appointment to the diplomatic corps. In fact, however, she is a Reaganite of long standing.

Two weeks later, the Mississippi state convention justified the President's concern. It not only gave Reagan a 2-to-1 margin over Mr. Ford among the 30 convention delegates, but also voted the unit rule — assuring that if Reagan is still a candidate at Kansas City, he will get all 30 first-ballot votes.

REAGAN AND Republican hard-liners are not Mr. Ford's only problem. Not only does the excessive use of Q-and-A sessions make it difficult for him to establish a theme, but many answers are surprisingly ill-prepared. A key backer in Evansville, for example, privately expressed dismay at Mr. Ford's lapsing into bureaucratic jargon in response to a question on housing needs.

Even an overwhelmingly friendly Evansville audience tittered when Mr. Ford at one point referred to policy established by "President Johnson and (pause) — his successor." One smartly dressed matron turned to her husband and said: "Now, I can't imagine who he's talking about."

If Jerry Ford's 20-month tenure as President has not transformed him into a finished platform performer, neither has it destroyed the impression given of a nice, plain, decent Midwesterner. That image, plus the still formidable Indiana regular Republican organization, ought to dispatch Reagan here.

It may not be nearly adequate nationally against Jimmy Carter. But although this frightens the highest and lowest levels of the Ford campaign organization, strategic planning likely will remain immobilized while Ronald Reagan is still around.

Busy week for Lakewood

Parade kicks off Pan Am fest

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

The Saludos Amigos Parade, starting at 1:30 p.m. today, kicks off the week-long Lakewood Pan American Festival.

The parade, which starts at Palo Verde Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard, will move west along Del Amo, then north on Clark Avenue to the Lakewood Shopping Center. Some 20 bands, 16 floats and about 4,000 people will participate.

Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Long Beach and a former mayor of Lakewood, will be grand marshal, and Maj. Gen. Robert Mackinnon, deputy commander of the U.S. Sixth Army, will be the reviewing officer for military units participating.

This year's parade and festival will have a Bicentennial theme because the honored country for the 30th annual Pan American celebration is the United States.

Other events in the Pan Am week celebration include a barbecue dinner served by the Optimist Club at Mayfair Park from 3 p.m. until 7 p.m. today.

On Tuesday, the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored La Unidad Pan Americana Luncheon will be held at Bullock's Lakewood at 11:30 a.m. This will be followed at 2:30 p.m. by a parade of flags ceremony in the green belt at the Lakewood Shopping Center.

Local high schools will participate in the ceremony, in which the flags of the 21 Latin American republics and historical flags of the U.S. will be presented. Counsels from the Latin American countries will be guests at the luncheon and the flag ceremony.

Thursday, the four-day La Fiesta de Amistad carnival will begin at Mayfair Park, with local clubs and organizations operating games booths.

Saturday's activites include a pancake breakfast served by the Kiwanis Club at the park from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. Entertainment Saturday will include a show by the Maria Quiroz Folklorico group at 1 p.m. and a demonstration of Civil War skirmishes by members of the Civil War Associates at 2 p.m.

Saturday night, the Lions Club will host the Counselor Ball at Rochelles.

Hours for the fiesta at Mayfair Park are Thursday, from 4 p.m. until 10 p.m.; Friday, from 4 p.m. until 11 p.m.; Saturday, from 10 a.m. until 11 p.m. and next Sunday from noon until 9 p.m. The fiesta will include a show of Latin American arts and crafts.

First Contestant

Stephani Scott, 24, interior design student at Long Beach State University, signs up to enter the Miss Welcome to Long Beach contest May 23 as Ray Terpstra, center, entries chairman, and Rick Taver, pageant coordinator, back up her decision. Contest deadline is May 1 for residents between 18-27, who must be single and ready to function as "ambassador of friendship and goodwill."

She is a member of the Ivine Star Ranchers 4-H Club, and her twins are a part of her project which includes rabbits and poultry. There is no admission charge for the fair.

Orange Co. speeds building

As the weather moderates and the end of its fiscal year approaches, Orange County is stepping up its program of capital improvements and will pump millions into the building industry.

Contractor H. W. Sant of Anaheim will build a branch library at Westminster, at a cost of $619,495. His bid was lowest of 12 submitted to the county supervisors for the job, which the county estimated might cost only slightly more. High bid was for $689,000.

SEVENTEEN bidders sought to win the job of widening the 17th Street bridge over the Santa Ana River, and Brutoco Construction Co. of Covina won with a bid of $821,293. The highest bid was for $1,052,799. The engineering estimate was for $1,180,226.

The county will take bids May 10 for a $280,000 job on the Talbert flood control channel in Huntington Beach.

It asked for bids May 17 for an estimated $377,000 worth of improvements to El Toro Community Park.

Widening of the Ball Road bridge over the Santa Ana River, linking Anaheim and Orange, may cost $810,000. The county asked for bids to be in May 10.

BIDS WERE asked for May 17 for three flood control projects. They include work on Fullerton Creek channel and Kimberly storm channel, at probable cost of $500,000 for the project in both Anaheim and Fullerton; and an estimated $1.2 million worth of work on the Anaheim-Barber City flood channel, between Sioux Road and Edwards Street, Westminster.

Bids for this job also were to be in by May 17.

Work on Laguna Niguel Regional Park may cost $180,000; bids were asked for May 24. The project involves constructing a concessions building, and doing some site work.

Ex-Gov. Brown to debate nuclear initiative

Former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, who heads the statewide campaign against Prop. 15, the Nuclear Initiative, will debate the issue May 13 at 7 p.m. in UC Irvine's science lecture hall.

Opponents and advocates of the issue will participate in a program that will close the university's four-day forum on energy.

Brown and Dr. Lester Lees of the Environmental Quality Control Laboratory at California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, will oppose the Prop. 15 control.

Advocates will be Dr. John Gofman, UC Berkeley physics professor emeritus and head of the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, and David Brower, president of the Friends of the Earth and past head of the Sierra Club.

WELFARE RED TAPE RIPPED

"The words 'welfare reform' were, in my mind, turned into a dirty phrase by the oppressive Reagan administration." He explained that most persons, particularly politicians, connect the term to efforts aimed at eliminating welfare cheaters and reducing welfare rolls.

Instead, he added, people should think of "welfare reform" as a means of making the system run more smoothly and serving people in need through programs that allow poverty-level mothers to stay home with their children and families to stay together.

"We will make an effort to keep people who don't belong there off the welfare rolls," he added. "But at the same time, we shouldn't make it too tough for the really needy to get aid."

Munoz said statistics show that only 2 per cent of those on welfare are so-called "eheaters."

"When we take such a negative attitude toward welfare," he added, "we're making it hard on the 98 per cent who are truly in need. People are always asking, 'why don't those people on welfare go out and get jobs?' Well, of those 98 per cent who deserve aid, about 88 per cent are too young, too old or too disabled to work. Why should we make them feel guilty for receiving help?"

Freddie Pinson, community relations representative for the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services, agreed but added that the county was trying to make it easier for people to get help.

"One of the main problems—and it's been a problem for many years—is the attitude of workers that serve the recipient population," she said.

Welfare recipients have often complained that eligibility and social workers pay too little attention to their clients, do not explain things clearly and make them feel uneasy about applying for welfare.

Mrs. Pinson said a cultural awareness training program, designed to acquaint workers "with the ethnic and cultural differences of various peoples so they may deal with problems more sensitively" is to begin next month.

Munoz and Assemblyman Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, said state programs aimed at helping people in need get aid more easily also were in the works. They include an overhaul of welfare forms and regulations, nutrition programs, tax-relief bills and various job programs.

Munoz said his office also was working with Congress to reform food stamp regulations. "If you deserve $10 worth of food stamps, you should get $10 worth of food stamps," he said.

"But under present regulations, you have put up $37 to get $47 worth of food stamps; you have to put up $100 to get $166 worth of food stamps. Where are poor people supposed to get that kind of money?"

During a discussion session following the panelists' presentations, several members of the audience said they agreed with the message, urging their fellow community workers to "go out and challenge the system."

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: This year you learn to follow your intuition and convert latent talents and hidden resources into ready cash. You won't be easily understood by most people; relationships survive and improve mainly by deliberate service you offer plus a determined effort to communicate via symbols rather than just words. Today's natives have a magnetic quality and a lasting interest in the outdoors.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Today's conditions put something out of commission. Take it easy and give your equipment a chance to function. Exaggeration provokes competition.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Use delays on the job constructively; clear up confusion and matters that are left from last week or earlier. There's an odd story at home.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Allow for extrasensitive moods. Cut back expansive moves and straighten out recently negotiated changes. Friends have problems, few of which are within your reach to help.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Putting your work and business situations into optimum order is your theoretical goal. Pursue the obvious and don't wait for encouragement. Rely on intuition.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Get in step with your official duties and don't go along with free-swinging adventures. Casual travelers and visitors don't have to work, but keep in mind that you still do.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Resistance arises from outside your range of action. But you are not to blame for the problems; it's simply the attitude of people in general. Sit this one out.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Getting along with people is essential now. Use familiar tactics that worked before. Select tasks requiring the least cooperation for this day of mixed conditions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pay attention: watch for surprises. Don't shirk responsibilities. Things that you don't finish during the day get in the way of your plans this evening. Don't bicker.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Much is to be said for keeping quiet. Let others boast and strut while you attend to essential details. Ignore the aloofness of loved ones.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): More demands are made on your time and energy. Get busy with what you can organize quickly and call in available help. Work on upgrading your own property.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let well enough alone; you carry the full burden of any changes you dream up. You're under close observation. Pursue ordinary activity.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Hold onto your ready cash. Stay within budget for both money and materials used in your work. Exert yourself a bit beyond usual.

Oakland resident seized in slaying

OAKLAND (AP) — A 34-year-old man was arrested Saturday in connection with the slaying of a man found near the Russian River. Officers said Charles Seguin was taken into custody at his home.

The victim's name was withheld pending notification of kin, but investigators said they believe he was slain Wednesday in Oakland during an argument.

EDUCATOR FINDS FORTUNE IN WORMS!

A Long Beach professor who turned his $40,000 investment into over $200,000 in the lucrative worm market in just 8 months now wants to share his good fortune with others.

Samuel Chatam of S & R Worm Garden, says, "This is a business which does not require large amount of money to get started. It demands little time and offers phenomenal financial returns on a reasonably small investment. There is a ready market. One can sell nationally, while maintaining a low overhead. In fact, a grower can start in his garage, backyard, or on a farm. I have a friend who grows earthworms inside her apartment, in dresser drawers."

"Study this growth rate," Chatam said. "A 3x8 bin of worms should net between $15 and $75 monthly. If a person starts with one bin and splits it every 75 days, by the end of the year he will have 32 bins of worms worth from $250 to $325 per bin. I don't know of another business that offers this kind of return on your money, with such little overhead."

A man of abundant energy, Chatam has held two teaching positions in the past eight years. However, he was so impressed with the profit potential of these wiggly creatures that he gave up his teaching post at UCLA to begin this company.

Within nine months, S & R Worm Garden has grown to become one of the largest earthworm farms on the west Coast. It plans to sell over 100 million worms in 1976.

The billion dollar market is wide open and growing at a rate of about 25 percent a year. The market is so lucrative that many companies are selling to only one segment of the market. However, S & R Worm Garden plans to eventually develop the capacity to sell to several different segments.

When Chatam was asked how this could be done, he replied, "that is a tremendous job, which cannot be done by my labor force alone. So I intend to multiply my efforts through others. I'm going to conduct FREE grower success classes. These classes will equip others to do the same thing I'm doing—grow and harvest worms—with the hope they will sell back to me. Anyone from the age of 8 years to 80 can work this business."

Starting at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 1, Chatam says he will begin a series of three, 2-hr. FREE classes at the Embassy Auditorium, 847 S. Grand in Los Angeles and another series of classes at 7 p.m., Sunday, May 2 at the Edgewater Hyatt House, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. in Long Beach. These classes are for people interested in getting into the worm business. The first two classes are open to the general public. Each class will cover a different aspect of worm farming. Anyone who is interested in earning an additional income, or in starting his own business, should attend the first class session.

The Elusive Eleven

These stars don't need interviews

By BOB LARDINE
Knight News Service

Woody Allen. . .Marlon Brando. . .Johnny Carson. . .Bob Dylan. . .Dustin Hoffman. . .Steve McQueen. . .Al Pacino. . .Elvis Presley. . .Robert Redford. . .Frank Sinatra. . .Barbra Streisand. . .

Some journalists have dubbed them the Elusive Eleven. Others have unprintable names for them. They share a common bond: Out of hatred, fear, contempt or simply lack of interest, they do not talk to the press.

Almost nothing will persuade them to sit still for an interview—not the offer of a cover photo or the temptation, offered by some publications, of reading and sometimes even editing articles about themselves before they are published. And since they are all millionaires, highly successful in their profession, they can smugly treat writers with disdain without fear of the consequences.

It's not only newspapermen who register annoyance over the Elusive Eleven's aloof attitude. Studios and independent movie-makers express irritation, too. When "The Towering Inferno" opened in New York, film bosses begged Steve McQueen to help publicize the picture. He never bothered to show up.

His turnabout from "great guy" to "belligerent hermit" can be traced to his romance and subsequent marriage to Ali MacGraw. Some gossip columnists suggested that McQueen "stole" the actress from film chief Bob Evans. Others sympathized with McQueen's bereft wife, Neile Adams. The actor found himself painted as a libidinous S.O.B.

That did it. McQueen stuck a "Keep Off" sign on himself, and it has been "No Trespassing" ever since unless some intrepid reporter wants to risk getting his nose broken.

Two other show-business greats in the McQueen mold are Frank Sinatra and Barbra Streisand. Both also enjoyed pleasant relations with the press for a time until an unbridgeable chasm developed.

In Sinatra's case, the bitterness erupted after his marriage to Ava Gardner disintegrated. Writers dissected the breakup from every angle. The stories rankled the emotionally upset singer, and yet he didn't become truly venomous until after his 1953 Academy Award-winning role in "From Here to Eternity." With newfound fame, money and power, he mounted a counteroffensive against certain writers. Any criticism of him was met by a vicious personal attack. Even today, Sinatra will often go out of his way to zing an insult at a writer while performing on stage.

As the only woman on the Elusive Eleven list, Streisand richly merits her position. Her excuse for not being cooperative is that she has been the object of cheap shots. One of her public-relations men says simply: "Barbra's been deeply hurt."

Without question, the three most difficult celebrities in the world to interview are Marlon Brando, Bob Dylan and Elvis Presley. Unlike most artists, Brando never sought publicity even in his anonymous days. He has been always convinced that his talent would be sufficient to win recognition, and he has been right.

Brando's unorthodox philosophy runs counter to every claim made by advertising men. A product, they will tell you, needs favorable and frequent exposure to public view to be continuously successful. But Brando has shunned public attention, interviews, parties—everything that would enhance his image with moviegoers. He has made it strictly on his own, and is a phenomenon in that respect.

In many respects, Bob Dylan is similar to Brando. He disregards the press entirely while getting his message across with his talent. Dylan is even more slippery than Brando. As the logical successor to the Invisible Man, his whereabouts remain a mystery for months on end.

Elvis Presley is another of those ephemeral celebrities. If newspapermen didn't actually see him perform, they wouldn't believe he existed. Ever since his first pelvic wiggle, he has treated writers as though they were nothing but hound dogs. His statements all come down second-hand through his shrewd manager, Col. Tom Parker.

When Presley does deign to permit writers in his royal presence, he conducts a mass press conference at which reporters are unable to follow up on their queries. In addition, nobody can obtain an exclusive story, the goal of every writer.

In these circumstances it's not unusual for wild myths and rumors to swirl about Brando, Dylan and Presley. Since it's impossible to check the facts out with the stars themselves, reports about them often take hold for a considerable time before they are finally discovered to be false.

Al Pacino, Dustin Hoffman and Woody Allen fall into the "shy" category. They honestly believe it's a waste of valuable time talking about themselves, and feel no one could really be interested in their dull lives. And though they protect their privacy against all intruders, the trio are the most approachable among the Elusive Eleven. They're tolerant toward the press instead of downright hostile, and they occasionally relent on their "no interviews" policy.

If a writer is fortunate enough to catch Hoffman during one of his mellow periods, it can be extremely rewarding. He holds nothing back while baring his soul. When I interviewed him eight years ago, he openly wept when recalling his working days in a mental institution.

Pacino also conceals nothing during an interview. He throws himself into it in much the same way he does a dramatic role. He's never evasive, provides anecdotes dating back to his childhood and is a pure delight for an inquisitive reporter. But again, the problem is persuading him to consent to an interview. These days, he's more reclusive than ever.

No one can predict Woody Allen's moods, but he has never underestimated the value of press coverage, especially when he has investment in his own picture, and therefore can occasionally be persuaded to chat with a reporter. But, unlike either Pacino or Hoffman, he dislikes discussing his personal life. Just nailing him down is a coup, though, and many writers don't quibble over his choice of subject matter.

In television, now that James Arness has stepped down as "the Greta Garbo of Dodge City," Johnny Carson stands alone for more reasons than one. He's the least accessible TV personality and is one of the worst interviewees in the world. Carson is suspicious, cynical and uncommunicative toward the press.

Carson leaves you frustrated and angry. What makes him unique is that almost everyone else on the TV scene is so cooperative. People like Carol Burnett, Carroll O'Connor, Telly Savalas, Mary Tyler Moore, Robert Blake, David Janssen and William Conrad are just a few of the performers that make a writer's work joyful.

As for Robert Redford, he's typical of several movie stars. When first on the film scene, he was eager to appear in papers and magazines to get his name known. As Redford's popularity built, his reticence grew.

BOB DYLAN

Now that he is No. 1 in the box-office charts, Redford obviously feels he no longer needs articles written about him. In the golden days of Hollywood (circa 1935-1950), studio chiefs exerted firm control over film stars, and every contract specified that the performer must agree to be interviewed in connection with a particular movie. This applied to James Stewart, Bette Davis, Katharine Hepburn and all the other luminaries of the period. Not even Clark Gable (the acknowledged "king") balked when ordered to sit down with a writer. In fact, Gable accepted the studio suggestion that he take the Atlanta mayor's daughter to the premiere of "Gone With The Wind" for publicity purposes.

When the major studios lost their influence with the advent of television, stars negotiated their own contracts and accepted interviews only when it suited their purpose. And that attitude still prevails.

Baboons make monkeys of men

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — For the baboons it was more fun than a barrel of zoo keepers. For the zoo keepers it was an exercise in exasperation.

The 50 baboons began making monkeys out of their bosses on April 14 when they escaped over a 12-foot fence at Kings Island amusement park.

Officials were stunned. They said the baboons are not supposed to be that smart.

After the little escapees outsmarted every elaborate attempt to recapture them, from an electrified fence to tranquilized fruit, handlers began corralling them Thursday night with an old-fashioned wooden trap.

"We couldn't have done this a week ago because they were still timid of us," said spokesman Ed Daniels. "Once they began accepting food from us they felt easier about coming back into their compound."

Daniels said the box trap was baited with fruit and snapped shut by handlers once a group got inside.

"Fortunately, they came in waves — like patrols — to get the food, so we were able to get a number at a time. They didn't signal the others with a distress call. They knew they were beaten," Daniels said.

However, some of the baboons wanted nothing to do with the bait.

"They are more cautious," said Daniels, adding that if the trap doesn't get them, the handlers planned to go after them individually.

The baboons, except for one who was reported following the Little Miami River north out of the area, romped around a tree-studded knoll on park property since they escaped.

Sarah Miles' Hair: she won't dye for her art

NEW YORK — Sarah Miles is a most unactressy actress. She plays herself down.

"This is my real hair," she says. "God must have given me fluffy hair for a reason. I used to spend a lot of time getting ready to go out, but life's too short. Now I take 10 minutes. I don't wear any makeup."

But wasn't she a centerfold girl?

"What have I got that deserves to be centerfold? ME?" With her hands she indicated a certain flatness.

Actually, however, the man-eating Miss Miles has been in one of the men's magazines in love scenes from "The Sailor Who Fell from Grace With the Sea," with Kris Kristofferson. And people are asking, "That the Sarah Miles who was in the papers when a young man committed suicide at Gila Bend, Ariz., over her a couple of years ago? Burt Reynolds was making a movie with her at the time and helped her through it."

"Did the suicide of David Whiting affect your life?"

"Who knows what might have happened if he hadn't done what he did?" She brushed it aside with a wave of her hands. She and Robert Bolt, the English producer and writer, were recently divorced, and she is living with their son, Thomas, 8, in Los Angeles — without any man for the man-eater.

In her new film, Miss Miles and Kristofferson take up the philosophy of Japanese author Yukio Mishima, who committed hara-kiri at 39 in his belief that people should remove themselves when no longer productive.

"I don't think suicide is necessarily a coward's act," said Sarah, who has been associated with other suicides besides Whiting's.

"Sometimes it's courageous. Sometimes the people are bored. They want to see what happens next out there. They have finished one story, and they want to see the next story begin.

"They're sick and tired of this story, obviously."

Mishima felt productive people should die at their peak.

"And that's what the movie's about. There are those who think heroes should remain heroes. He (Kristofferson), the sailor, comes into the harbor on the biggest boat ever seen. He falls in love. The question is: Should he return to the sea or settle down and help a lady in an antique shop?"

Miss Miles wrote 18 songs for a concert about her Skye terrier, Gladys. "She's a very strange, extraordinary animal," Miss Miles said. "In the concert I will sing a song while walking on my hands like Gladys."

Looking me straight in the eye, Miss Miles told me she probably wouldn't be in films except for a stubborn streak. She refused 15 years ago to dye her hair for a picture.

"They wanted a blonde for the part in the picture, 'Term of Trial.' I was the only brunette auditioning. I stormed out, saying, 'You obviously want a blonde. My time is being wasted.' They called me back again and again and finally said, 'Will you dye your hair blonde?' I said I wouldn't dye it for either Laurence Olivier or Peter Glenville, the director. But I got the part.

"You dyed it after all?"

"No. I wore a wig."

TODAY'S BEST laugh: While the price of everything else has skyrocketed (says Franklin P. Jones in Quote), a cab driver will still give you a lot of lip for a dime tip.

WISH I'D said that: A girl described her boy friend's apartment: "It's so small that when he moves an ashtray he calls it 'rearranging.'"

REMEMBERED quote: "Every speaker should observe two rules: Never drink on an empty stomach, and never speak on an empty head."

EARL'S PEARLS: Strange how the candidates all say they can run the nation's economy — while they're running out of money for their campaigns.

Phyllis Diller complains she had no adolescence: "I went right from baby fat to middle-age spread." That's earl, brother.

Music review

Old, new from Stern, Mercer

By DAVID LEVINSON

An old warhorse and what might very well become a new warhorse were the features of violinist Isaac Stern's appearance with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Thursday.

The old favorite was Brahms's violin concerto. The new favorite — with me, anyway — was a concerto written for Stern by George Rochberg and given its first performance by Stern last year.

The Brahms received an expectably eloquent performance: warm, not quite as silken as usual from Stern, but unfailingly rich in tone and understanding. Zubin Mehta and his band were sensitive partners.

That the Rochberg should have been the easily accessible, melodically appealing work it is was surprising. It was more surprising that Mehta and company handled their parts as comfortably as if they were playing Mahler.

Here and there they might have been, for this romantic piece owes much to the music of Mahler and post-Mahler Vienna. It is not in the ordinary sense eclectic, however; it does not borrow the style of Mahler or the early Schoenberg, although it would not have existed if those composers had not lived.

Rochberg is a highly intellectual composer — as most serious composers are these days — and he has written brilliantly on the problems composers face. He has also written music of considerable complexity. But this concerto gives no hint of intellectualism except in the traditional ways composers have been intellectual. It is not an application to composition of theories about what music should be. It is an application to music of inspiration and of standard techiques of construction. The result is a coherent, confident expression of a mature and brilliant composer.

Even at first hearing, its coherence and strength are obvious. Ten years from now, if it gets the repeated hearings it deserves, it will seem as simple as the Brahms.

The concert opened with a powerful performance of Dvorak's "Carnival" overture.

A TRIBUTE to Johnny Mercer was the feature of UCLA's fourth "Cavalcade of American Popular Music" at Schoenberg Hall on Friday evening.

Students and faculty members used a minimum of props: a desk for "P.S., I Love You," a moon in a deep-blue sky for any number of other songs, slides of sheet-music covers for all. They used a maximum of good-humored mugging. Above all, they used some striking vocal and dramatic talents to present an effective run-through of what must be almost the entire corpus of songs for which Mercer wrote lyrics.

I had always thought of him as a composer, and he did write some pretty good tunes: "Dream," "G. I. Jive" and "Strip Polka." But his best efforts were to the music of Harold Arlen, Harry Warren, Hoagy Carmichael, Richard Whiting and others.

David Morton of the UCLA faculty was a genial master of ceremonies and a bouncily bright pianist in the small combo that accompanied the two dozen singers and dancers.

At Long Beach State earlier in the week, old songs had seemed to puzzle the students in the chamber choir. At UCLA, apparently more people are looking backward. The UCLA performances were idiomatic without being in the least stiff or contrived.

Carson's spring concert set today

The Carson Symphony Orchestra will present its spring concert today at 2:30 p.m. in the Datsun-Nissan Building, 18501 S. Figueroa St., under the direction of Pete Quesada.

Works on the program for the free concert include Rossini's Overture to Sr. Bruschino; Haydn's Concerto for Oboe in G Minor.

Realtors say buyers outnumber properties

Lower interest rates spur single-home sales

By JOE SEGURA
Staff Writer

Single-family home purchases, according to Long Beach-Orange County realtors, are rivaling the sales boom of the early postwar years.

The improved climate for home buyers, they say, results from declining interest rates (now in the 8½ to 9 per cent range) and from mortgage money being much more available this spring.

"There are many more buyers than there are properties available," claims Donovan Rodman, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors. "Long Beach is experiencing some drastic changes for the good of the city. Many projects now under construction in the downtown area will add even more to this sound economy."

"Sales are definitely up," says a Red Carpet spokesman in Long Beach. "The condo-apartment concept really doesn't fit into the American style of living. Most buyers want a little plot of land on which they can keep their family more closely knit."

Rough estimates of single-family home sales in the greater Long Beach area show an increase between 20 and 25 per cent over the same period last year.

In the Lakewood area, the increase in sales is up between 25 and 30 per cent. The difference is attributed to newer homes and conformity of living standards in the community.

The same factors are attributed for good single-family unit sales records in Orange County.

"It's been our best year in history," says Bob Lind, director of marketing for Walker & Lee in Orange County. "Sales are up about 30 per cent, most of it single-family construction."

However, Lind isn't overly optimistic about the sales boom.

"Business looks good to 1977," he says. "I would worry, however, about the length of the boom beyond that time. It all depends on the availability of money."

Jerome L. Howard, the president of the Mortgage Bankers Association, has predicted interest rates would decline slowly by as much as one-half of one per cent by the end of the year.

And, a research bulletin issued by Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., predicts a "substantive break" in mortgage rates by midyear, reflecting an imbalance between the supply and demand for mortgage credit.

While total housing production is down from the two-million-unit levels of the early 70's, single-family houses are about as strong as ever, according to statistics from the National Association of Home Builders.

In the 1972-74 period, for example, there was approximately one single-family house built for each multi-family unit, whereas this year the ratio will be about 2.7 to 1, according to the Home Builders' stats.

Mortgage interest rates on new houses, according to a report by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, were unchanged from early February to early March, but rates on previously occupied houses declined.

According to the same report, the average contract rate on loans for previously occupied homes fell by 12 basis points, accounting for the entire decline in the average effective rate.

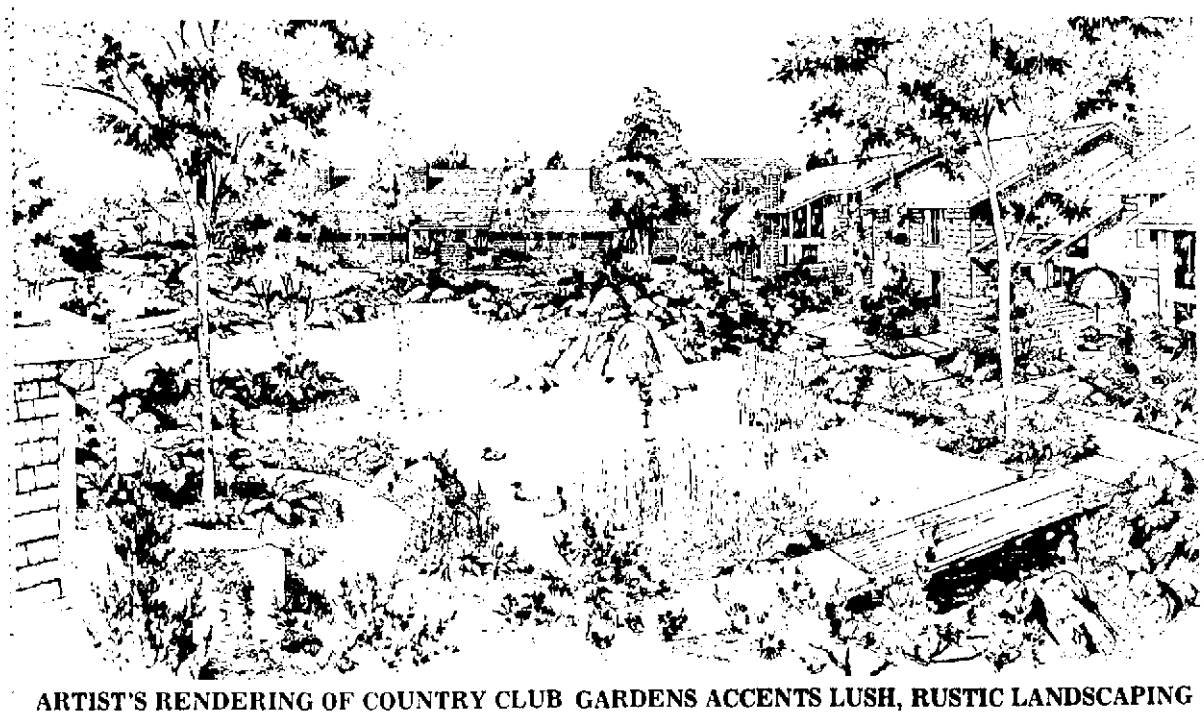

The average contract rate was 8.91 per cent while initial fees and charges amounted to 1.22 per cent of the principal.

The National Association of Realtors reported the median price of existing single-family homes continues to rise and in February was $36,200 nationally or 6.9 per cent higher than the year before.

The median price in Orange County, according to Lind, is $54,000 for homes resold, and $61,000 for new homes.

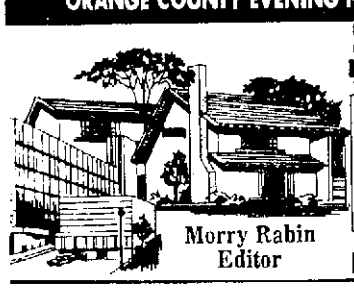

The median price in Long Beach and Lakewood is $43,500.

A number of factors, notes Lind, continue to increase in Orange County land value: New Irvine industry construction, greater government expenditures that increase the need for greater taxes, increased material and labor costs for public construction.

Adult-oriented townhomes

Sandalwood in prestige setting

Country Club Gardens in Long Beach presents an innovative plan for sophisticated adult living in "The Sandalwood," a luxury, split-level townhome available at the prestigious Virginia Country Club area development.

High light of the dramatic three-bedroom home is the elegant master suite with lavish dressing room/bath, secluded on its own top level and overlooking the living room below.

Stepping down from this unique master suite to the third level, owners have two generous secondary bedrooms and full bath.

The Sandalwood's main activity area features a formal living room with fireplace and cathedral ceiling, spacious dining room and convenient kitchen with breakfast nook and pantry.

The plan also includes a large two-car garage with inside access and laundry area.

Special features of this home are an atrium-balcony and garden patio, ceramic tiling, plush wall-to-wall carpeting and Tappan appliances. Prices range from $52,950.

All are in rustic contemporary exterior stylings designed in keeping with the area's fine homes and feature custom architectural detailing, roofs of cedar shake, trellised entries and private garden patios.

All remaining Country Club Gardens homes look out on some of the community's many water amenities.

Extensive greenbelts surrounding the residences feature waterfalls, streams, bridges and reflection lakes, amid winding lighted walkways and drives.

The maintenance-free adult community also includes a large, free-form swimming pool, jacuzzi and night-lighted paddle tennis courts in private recreation areas.

Immediate occupancy and excellent conventional financing are available now at the community of 72 townhomes, where sales have passed the 75 per cent mark, according to the builder, Sterling Development Corp.

The sales office and model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. at 3655 Country Club Drive and Cedar Avenue for selection of the final group of homes.

The development's ideal central location, near Los Cerritos Park and tennis courts, Lakewood Golf and Tennis Club, beaches and marinas, is freeway-close to employment and metropolitan areas of Los Angeles and Orange County.

Country Club Gardens may be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to the Long Beach Boulevard exit, then north on Long Beach Boulevard to 36th Street and west on 36th (which becomes Country Club Drive) for one-quarter mile to Cedar Avenue.

Final phase

62 Showcase homes open

Showcase on the Lake, a new series of one-and two-story homes in Lake Forest presented by Showcase Homes, is celebrating the grand opening of its final phase of 62 homes today.

The $10.9 million development of 186 three- and four-bedroom homes with two or three baths offers six floor plans with from 1,351 to 1,806 square feet of living space.

Prices range from $50,500 to $72,950 and excellent conventional financing can be arranged with 8¾ per cent interest (9 per cent annual percentage rate).

A Showcase exclusive feature is "custom completion," enabling home buyers to select door positions, window placement, put in or remove interior walls except load bearing walls, and to add individual features, depending upon the stage of construction.

All plans can be customized to include a 400-foot master bedroom suite with space for a study or sitting room in addition to the private bath and oversize wardrobes or walk-in closet.

Two-story plans have private balcony and all plans are dramatized by vaulted or elevated ceilings.

To see the five furnished models at 24342 Toledo Lane, prepared by Vicki Welsh of Modern Interiors, take the San Diego Freeway to the Lake Forest Drive offramp in Lake Forest. Turn left on Lake Forest Drive to Toledo, turn left on Toledo and drive one-half mile to the models and sales information center which is open from 10 a.m. to dusk.

Nuclear initiative opposed

Opposing the nuclear limitation initiative, Proposition 15 on the June ballot, Engineer David J. Fogarty of the Southern California Edison Co. will address the Orange County chapter of the Building Industry Association of California Monday at the Airporter Inn.

As vice president in charge of power supply operations, Fogarty is strongly in favor of continued expansion of energy sources, including nuclear energy.

Arguing for an informed "no" vote on the initiative, he considers the measure will have far more impact on the daily lives of Californians than the decisions on which Democrat and Republican are selected to run for the presidency.

He is predicting a great deal of controversy as the opposing campaigns begin, and he characterizes the proponents as designing their campaign to deliberately confuse the real meaning of the measure.

"We know that the building industry, among many others, is heavily dependent upon energy. Therefore, the outcome of this initiative in June will have a crucial effect on future energy supplies," he said.

The 7:30 p.m. dinner meeting will be preceded by a social hour.

Monarch Summit sales top 50%

"Consistency" is the name of the game at Monarch Summit II, the $23.7 million all-adult townhome community in Laguna Niguel, reports Frank Babcock, sales manager.

Since the Orange County development opened in January, homes have sold at the rate of one every two days. Now, only 31 of the 67 homes in this first phase remain, Babcock says.

"This represents sales totaling more than $3 million," he adds.

Babcock says home buyers first react favorably to the location of Monarch Summit II.

Situated on top of the highest point along Orange County's coastline, the view is of the mountains on one side and the Pacific Ocean on the other.

" . . . and at night, lights in the valley provide a kaleidoscope of restful fascination," report homeowners Newton and Kathleen Withers.

Price, and quality construction by Lan Ron Enterprises, Inc., Newport Beach, are two more very important ingredients in the success of this development, Babcock continues.

Three individual floor plans are identified in the furnished model complex at 22956 Solera Drive.

Homes are priced from $59,900 to $74,500. Plan A has 1,670 square feet. Plan B has 1,650 square feet, and Plan C has 1,400 square feet.

EACH HOME has two spacious bedrooms and two baths. The two larger models also have a den that converts easily into a library or sewing room.

An attached two-car garage, an enclosed entryway that lends itself to floral gardening and a shaded, private rear patio are other desirable amenities.

A 6,000 square foot adult-oriented recreation center, now under construction, will include a swimming pool, jacuzzi, pool and bridge rooms, a lounge with a fireplace and a fully outfitted kitchen.

Bright kitchens with General Electric built-ins, ceramic counters, old-fashioned kitchen pantries, ceramic baths and showers, cable TV outlets, a brick fireplace with gas log lighter and pre-wired telephone outlets are other features.

To reach Monarch Summit II, take the San Diego Freeway to Crown Valley Parkway in Laguna Niguel, and turn west to Pacific Island Drive. Turn north up the hill and follow the signs with the sea gull.

New Leisure World unit open

A new building featuring penthouses and improved architectural styling will be introduced at the Grand Opening of Del Prado Village in Leisure World, Laguna Hills today.

The new building, known as El Mirador, will be at the top of one of the highest hills in Leisure World with views across cattle ranches to the East. It offers new floor planning and will contain 22 villas on three floors.

Top floor penthouses will have three bedrooms and 2½ baths and are priced at $89,800. Each will have two subterranean parking spaces. Other residences in El Mirador will have two and three bedrooms and are priced from $52,400 to $77,800.

Del Prado Village also will offer two Villa Nueva buildings, each with a total of 21 residences on three floors. They are priced from $38,400 to $61,400.

They will be carpeted, except kitchens and baths, and have an entry hall, separate dining area, large patio/balcony and a fully equipped kitchen with frost-free refrigerator-freezer, dishwasher, waste disposer, range with double oven, luminous ceiling and natural finish hardwood cabinets.

BATHS HAVE Corian vanity tops, luminous soffit in the master bath and luminous ceiling in the second bath, stall shower in the master bath, tub with "telephone-type" shower in the second bath, grab bars and electric heat lamp with timer switch.

Each residence is wired for cable TV and telephone, and has fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings, sliding glass doors to patio or balcony, electric radiant ceiling heat and double shelves in wardrobe closets.

Leisure World is for adults 52 and over. It has a population of about 18,000. The community is walled and guarded by some 250 security officers. Fare-free minibus service is provided within the community and health services include a Laguna Hills hospital and medical center which provides house call service to Leisure World residents at all hours of the day and night.

Information may be had at the Leisure World New Model/Design Center near the El Toro exit of the San Diego Freeway. It is open daily to 5:30 P.M.

Parents' offer to son may not be all that attractive

By DON CAMPBELL

Doing something nice for the kiddies is one of those hangups that all parents go through and, unfortunately, it sometimes gives rise to family disputes. Are we "killing them with kindness?" Shouldn't they be encouraged to "stand on their own two feet?"

Or, maybe, the favor we're doing them isn't as much of a favor as it seems to be.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We own a small home which we rent for $200 a month ($2,400 a year, less taxes of $454). There is no mortgage and it's appraised at $30,000. We own another home where we live. The mortgage is $155 a month and will be paid in eight years. Value: about $50,000 to $55,000.

I would like to sell the small home for $30,000 and lend our son about $20,000 to build his home. (He already owns a lot.) This would be a 20-year mortgage and he would pay us $200 a month. Therefore, we would NOT be losing the rental income of $200 and I figured it would save him the high interest rate of the bank.

My husband objects, stating it would put him in a higher income bracket, thereby raising his income tax. I understand we will be taxed twice — first when we sell it because it will increase our income, and second, because it is income (business) property. Would you advise selling the small home to help finance our son's new home? — Mrs. R. L. C., Buffalo, N. Y.

ANSWER: The motivation for selling the home to finance your son's project is admirable. Naturally, you WILL have a tax obligation on the sale of the house, but this will be taxed as a capital gain and it really shouldn't be a staggering blow for you.

I don't understand your objection about having to pay taxes because the son's home is an "income" producing property. So is the present home which you are renting, and on which (I hope) you've also been paying taxes.

As I say, your motivations are fine, but did you realize when you outlined this plan to your son that $20,000 financed over 20 years at $200 a month figures out to an annual interest rate in excess of 10 per cent? I suspect you didn't, because he should be able to beat that through virtually any conventional lender.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We are in the process of buying a new home, and I was thunderstruck to find out that we're responsible for paying the "points" on this sale. I was under the impression that it was the seller who had to make up this difference. — W. W. C., Long Beach, Calif.

ANSWER: It IS the seller's responsibility in the case of either an FHA- or a VA-financed home. In the case of a conventional mortgage loan, however (and that apparently is what yours is), the buyer pays the points. Sorry about that.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We have just about given up trying to find the kind of house that we need but have managed to buy a detailed floor plan that would be perfect for us. I don't know anything about building, myself, but why couldn't I hire the work done, myself — the carpentry, the plumbing, heating, etc.? — Mr. W.F.D., Long Beach.

ANSWER: It's a great idea — in theory. It's when you get into the practical aspects of this sort of do-it-yourself project that you can run into a real horror.

The trouble is that building a house is a lot more complicated than it looks on the surface, and it requires very careful coordination.

So your first and most important job is to line yourself up with a good general contractor who, in turn, will negotiate with the individual crafts and oversee the whole job. Check his references carefully and have a good lawyer draw up the agreement with him to protect yourself — particularly in such matters as completion time-schedules.

(Campbell welcomes your letters and comments, but can answer only representative questions of general interest. WRite him in care of the I. P-T.)

Lloyd Realty named Corte Vista agent

Larry Lloyd Realty has been named exclusive sales agent for Corte Vista, according to Bill Koll, president of Costa Construction, Inc., builder of the residential complex across from Alta Vista Golf Course in Placentia.

The Irvine-based real estate firm is headed by Larry Lloyd, who has been in new home sales for leading Orange County developers four years.

Corte Vista is a new community of single story cluster homes at Rose Drive and Buena Vista Avenue in Placentia. The homes are under construction, with preview showings to begin this month.

Prices of the two-to four-bedroom residences will range from $49,500 to $56,400 and will include custom-quality features and enclosed double garages. Four floor plans are being offered in a variety of Spanish-styled exteriors.

The maintenance-free community will have two private tennis courts, a swimming pool and jacuzzi within landscaped greenbelt areas and is near schools, shopping and major freeways.

A FLASHER UNIT, part of an elaborate rooftop burglary warning device at The Cove, is described to Newport Beach police officer J. Costelow by Jerry Wooters, president of the firm that installed the electronic burglary prevention system.

The Cove has devices to prevent burglaries

This bicentennial year Americans will spend an estimated $100 million on an assortment of locks, alarms, bolts and bars for their homes in an effort to halt the seemingly unstoppable rise in home burglaries.

However, homeowners at The Cove, the new $8.9 million waterfront home development in Newport Beach, at 1001 Bayside Drive, near Jamboree, have something special going for them, noted Frank E. Hughes, president of Irvine Pacific Development Co.

"Electronic burglary-prevention devices built into each home minimize the possibility of home burglary and reduce the worry by homeowners," Hughes said.

These precautions, Hughes pointed out, include the most advanced, trouble-free security systems in existence — a passive infra-red intruder motion detector — is one defense.

The turn of a key keeps this system operating while the homeowner is away or while asleep at night. Any intruder will be immediately detected, and a rooftop horn-flasher-helicopter beacon will be activated. An interior visual-audible system also will arouse the homeowner.

An additional feature is having the system extended directly to the police department over a leased telephone line. Plus, there are a wide variety of optional, individually tailored systems that some homeowners at The Cove have already installed.

"The affluency within the Newport Beach area does play a role in attracting burglars from many Southern California areas," said Sgt. John Simon, head of the Newport Beach Police Department burglary detail.

"Most of these burglars are narcotic addicts who will steal anything from anyone in order to support their habit."

Resort homes selling

Homesite sales of more than a million dollars in a two-week period have marked the opening of the spring season at Silver Lakes resort.

Construction activity at the McCulloch Properties community meanwhile has surged past the $4-million mark with 32 homes completed and an additional 86 now under construction.

"We expect to see a continuation of this growth," said Gene Vogt, executive vice president of McCulloch Development Co., "with more buyers taking advantage of the immediate availability of more than $8-million in resort and recreational facilities."

Included among those facilities are a 27-hole championship golf course, two of California's largest private lakes, and a million-dollar clubhouse complex featuring swimming pool, tennis courts, and exercise rooms.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, APRIL 25, 1976 LIFE/STYLE—L/S-1

Heritage activities May 1-8

It may not be as exciting as dumping tea in the harbor, but the League of Women Voters will stage its own version of the Boston Tea Party next week by inviting you to put your complaints on Bicentennial scrolls.

The League will participate in Long Beach Heritage Week sponsored by the Junior League and other community organizations and businesses.

You are invited to the League office, 1001 E. Fourth St., May 3-7, to have a cup of tea and register your complaint. The scrolls will be sent to government officials in the areas involved.

During the observance from May 1-8, a Bicentennial showcase will be on display at Long Beach Memorial Hospital West by the Associate Guild of Children's Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary will give Long Beach Heritage certificates to every baby born at Women's Hospital Memorial Medical Center during that week.

The first 76 babies born at Long Beach Memorial Hospital will receive Bicentennial receiving blankets from the Fiorella Guild of Children's Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

Everyone in Long Beach will be encouraged to fly the American flag in front of his home or place of business by members of the Kiwanis Club of Downtown Long Beach.

A display of early American surgical instruments will be offered in the Long Beach Community Hospital lobby by the hospital's Auxiliary.

Long Beach Day Nursery children will make flags, mosaics, murals, a quilt, and participate in parades. You are invited to visit the nursery in your neighborhood.

Posters, pamphlets and displays illustrating their activities will be presented at the Eldorado Public Library by members of the National Council of Jewish Women.

Pacific Hospital of Long Beach will show a collection medical supplies, uniforms and other memorabilia.

SPECIAL EVENTS will be scheduled each day during Heritage Week, May 1-8, by local institutions and organizations beginning Saturday.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Rancho Los Alamitos will present artisans making soap, churning butter, weaving and doing leatherwork reminiscent of the old Rancho Days.

Also on Saturday at 10:30 a.m., the Altrusa Club invites you to tour the nature trail for the handicapped at Eldorado Nature Center, 7550 E. Spring St.

On Monday, an open house and fashion show of Oriental costumes will be presented at the Assistance League Clubhouse, 388 Roswell Ave.

Bicentennial art objects handcrafted by members of Boys' Clubs of Long Beach will be shown during an open house at the Lakewood branch, 4654 Charlamagne, 3-8 p.m., Tuesday.

A filmstrip on the history of the Children's Home Society will be shown by members of the Sandlarks Tuesday at 125 E. 14th St. from 1-3 p.m.

Wednesday, expectant mothers and their guests are invited to ceremonies by the Nightingales at 9:30 a.m. in the Long Beach Memorial Hospital Medical Center. The organization will give the Bicentennial Stork Club a $25 U.S. Savings Bond for presentation to a child born this year.

The Las Madrinas Guild of Memorial Hospital Thursday will present historical books, book marks and bicentennial coloring books to the hospital's patient library.

The 14th Annual Treasures and Triffles Fair entitled, "Potpourri 1776-1976" will be staged Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. by the Dames Club of Long Beach at the Recreational Community Center, Bruins Den, 4900 E. Seventh St. The fair will feature a fashion show along with displays of handmade items, artworks, candies and pastries.

Heritage week will close on May 8 with Junior League, Bullock's and the Rancho Los Cerritos Docents offering, "Fiesta De Rancho Los Cerritos." The works of artisans will be diplayed and music, dancing and Mexican food will be offered between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at Rancho Los Cerritos, 4600 Virginia Road.

A poison prevention puppet show will also be staged Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. at Bay Shore Library by members of the auxiliary to the Long Beach Pharmacy Association.

A recreation event called "Bicentennial Affair" will be offered by the Long Beach Recreation Department in Houghton Park at Atlantic and Harding. Continuous entertainment featuring period costumes is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

DESPAIR IS evidenced by this teen-age girl, who ran away from home and developed a severe drinking problem. She is now receiving help in a small group atmosphere and attending school again. She is what is known as a status offender and the juvenile justice system is being criticized for its handling of cases like hers.

'Let's be candid,' says a federal judge, 'we haven't the slightest notion of what really works.' The juvenile court system doesn't help many children in trouble and neither the home nor the community provides adequate solutions.

THIS 16-YEAR-OLD BOY is also a status offender and is confined to a New York State youth home. The circumstances which brought him to the home may not have attracted legal attention except for his age. What to do with status offenders has become a key issue for the juvenile justice system, which is overloaded with such cases.

No easy solutions for plight of teen offenders

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

"If a man has a stubborn and rebellious son, who will not obey the voice of his father or the voice of his mother, and though they chastise him, will not give heed to them, then his father and his mother shall take hold of him and bring him out to the elders of his city...Then all the men of the city shall stone him to death with stones; so you shall purge the evil from your midst."

— Deuteronomy.

The moon is setting as William bicycles back to the farm. Again, he comes home, but it's not really home. For years, there has been trouble in his strict religious family. At 16, he can't fit in. He can't stand staying home each night, can't stand the Bible study, can't stand the fighting.

So he rode away on his 10-speed bike, enjoying the wind against his face, the tiredness in his muscles and new freedom and friends at a lake resort.

This time, his father is waiting, taut and hunched, his face hardened, his hands pale fists in the moonlight.

Silently, father and son fight. The father kicks the son between his legs. The son strikes his father's face.

His father takes William to juvenile court.

Is this a case for the elders of the city?

RED-EYED FROM TOO much liquor and too many tears, Ralph's mother cradles his baby brother and waits for Ralph to come home. It's an old story. It's 3 a.m. and he's not back after their last argument.

Ralph was her first born in happier times, but baby after baby came between them. No time for Ralph. No husband to help her. Now at 14 he's almost never home, hardly goes to school. Ralph has stolen and sold appliances in the apartment. She thinks he's using drugs.

When he comes home he's often drunk, usually sullen. If she complains, he shoves her against the wall. The other children hide.

His mother takes Ralph to juvenile court.

Is this a case for the elders of the city?

Emily is 14 and she's in love. She's been sleeping with her 20-year-old boyfriend. He gives her attention she doesn't get at home. Her parents are furious. Her mother cries and threatens to send her to her real father. Her stepfather calls her a tramp.

They say she's just a child and order her to stop seeing him. Marie refuses. More fights, more name-calling, more tears. Her stepfather slaps her. She tells them both to go to hell and slams the door.

Her parents take Marie to juvenile court.

Is this a case for the elders of the city?

THESE CHILDREN and thousands of others are at odds with themselves, at war with their families and at the mercy of their elders, the juvenile court. It aims not to punish but to protect and rehabilitate.

They are runaways, truants, incorrigibles. They are wayward, disobedient and beyond control of their parents. They stay out too late, drink too much, use filthy language, keep bad company and make love, all to their parents' dismay.

Officially, the court calls them status offenders, not delinquents. Status offenses, like truancy and curfew violation, apply only to those with the legal "status" of minors.

These kids misbehave but have not been convicted of any crime. Theirs are teen-age trespasses, the sins of childhood for which there is no adult equivalent.

But status offenders jam police departments, probation departments and courtrooms. They account for more than 200,000 of the 600,000 children held each year in pretrial detention throughout the country, according to federal statistics. They are 40 per cent to 50 per cent of all children held in correctional institutions.

Status offenders have a multitude of personal and family problems. Many are more antisocial and self-destructive than juvenile delinquents, and later often become delinquents and criminals. The boy who is out drinking every night can be more troubled than the boy who steals a car on impulse.

STATUS OFFENDERS represent every adolescent growing pain, every failure of parenting, every neglect by society. They range from deprived products of the ghetto to spoiled offspring of the suburbs.

Some already have committed delinquent acts but are plea-bargained and treated as status offenders. Some simply are clashing with unreasonable parents. Poverty, broken homes, neglect, alcoholism, unemployment, poor school records — these are common problems in the family of a status offender.

What to do with these children is a fundamental issue at a time when the overloaded juvenile justice system is under fire for being unable to stem the tide of crimes by children.

The debate focuses on whether to leave status offenders at home, or place them in small group homes, or in foster homes, or in reformatories and training schools. A key question is whether the juvenile courts should have jurisdiction.

William, the boy who fought with his father, was sent to a group home for seven boys run by New York state. But he trails behind in school. He needs constant attention and love. He's aggressive, explosive and punches his fist through walls in rage. To William, being a man is being physical.

There's a lot of goodness in William, much of the impulsive puppy doing crazy things. He's making progress slowly. But his parents don't want him back and he's disrupting the group home. He probably needs a foster home. He wants to join the Marines.

What is best for William? How can he be helped to grow up? He lives with nice people, he sees a psychologist, but sometimes nothing seems to work.

The ideal, many believe, is to help children and their families in their own homes — before there's a crisis, before the family crumbles, before a desperate parent takes a child to court.

The Lower East Side Family Union in New York tries to keep families together and children from getting into the juvenile justice system by coordinating voluntary family services.

Thirteen-year-old Marie was coming home late and hanging out with an older crowd. Her mother worked nights as a keypunch operator and wanted Marie to babysit for her three brothers and sisters.

Glad you asked that!

TALK SHOW host Johnny Carson — humorous observation on Olympics.

Q: Is Muhammad Ali serious about fighting the Japanese wrestling champion Antonio Inoki, in a no-holds-barred bout? What can he gain by it? — Carl Dentoni, Minneapolis.

A: Only about $6 million plus! The match is tentatively scheduled to be staged in Tokyo on June 25. But first, rules, regulations and finances must be resolved. And how the points will be scored — by rounds or by the murderous tactics of the professional wrestler — kicking, eye-gouging, karate, judo, heads bashed against the brass-covered ringposts, etc.

We asked Dr. Ferdie Pacheco if he, trainer Angelo Dundee and Ali are worried about the risks involved. "By the time the match is confirmed," Ali's ever-present doctor said, "everything will be spelled out to protect the innocent. As usual Ali's the only one in our camp who is not worried about the whole thing. To the champ it's just another evening of fun and games!"

Sidelight: Shortly before Rocky Marciano was killed in a plane crash, he told us that at the height of the cold war between the U.S. and Russia, he challenged any Soviet athlete to an "anything-goes" man-against-man brawl — the winner to be whichever one had enough strength left to stand up and walk out of the ring under his own power. The challenge was ignored.

Q: Wasn't it a father who suggested there ought to be a Mother's Day? — Birdie Thomas, Flushing, N.Y.

A: No. It was a Miss Anna Jarvis who offered that suggestion at a public meeting in Philadelphia in 1907. She proposed wearing a carnation on the second Sunday of every May. Philadelphia was the first city to adopt the idea, designating May 10, 1908, as the first Mother's Day. It was adopted nationally on May 12, 1914.

Q: I see where actress Kim Novak married again. How many husbands has she had? And which of the beauty titles she won before she became famous tickled her the most? — Mrs. R. Dunn, Richmond, Va.

A: When the studio publicity department had her crowned "Miss Deepfreeze!!' Kim was previously married only once. To

hy gardner

actor Richard Johnson, with whom she's been a close friend ever since they divorced in 1969. At which time she commented: "My marriage did not work out because I'm a loner. I have to be."

Q: What do you consider to be the wittiest topical comment of the week? And who made it? — Mrs. B. Robbins, Shreveport, La.

A: Johnny Carson, talking about the Winter Olympics: "The Russians won three times as many medals as the U.S., but it is nothing to be ashamed of. We can be proud because it proves that our wheat makes good athletes."

Q: I was told that both Doris Day and Dinah Shore had to overcome being crippled at birth. Is this so? — Dolores Diaz, Orlando, Fla.

A: Not at birth. Dinah, when she was only a year and a half old, was stricken with polio. But thanks to her mother she learned how to walk through physical therapy, swimming and studying ballet.

Doris Day, in her early teens, suffered severe injuries when a car which she was driving home with some friends was hit by a locomotive and a freight car. The doctors doubted if she'd ever walk again. When her bones almost healed, she tried to do a tap dance at home, slipped on a throw rug and fell — breaking the leg all over again.

On crutches, she auditioned to sing at Charlie Yee's Shanghai Inn in Cincinnati and got the job — singing Sundays for $5 a session. Eighteen months after the accident, still on crutches, Doris got a job as the girl winger with Barney Rapp and his New Englanders for $25 a week.

Q: I keep seeing Linda Cristal annually co-hosting the cerebral palsy telethon with Dennis James. Doesn't she do any other kind of work? And what is her nationality? — Wendi Olson, Long Beach, Calif.

A: Linda was born Victoria Maya in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Her parents, Italian and French, were killed in an auto accident when she was 13. Her brother sent her to France to be brought up by her five aunts, all nuns. En route, the ship broke down in Vera Cruz where fellow passengers invited her to settle in Mexico. There she began making films, later doing the same in Europe and Hollywood, where she also starred in the TV series "High Chaparral."

Lately the actress has concentrated on a singing career and doing telethons which she does so successfully in both English and Spanish. She also taped a Spanish daytime soap opera series which is very popular with Latin viewers. She lives in Beverly Hills with her two sons.

Q: While we realize that news shows aren't expected to capture too many viewers, we're curious how "60 Minutes" does in the ratings race. — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robertson, Pittsburgh.

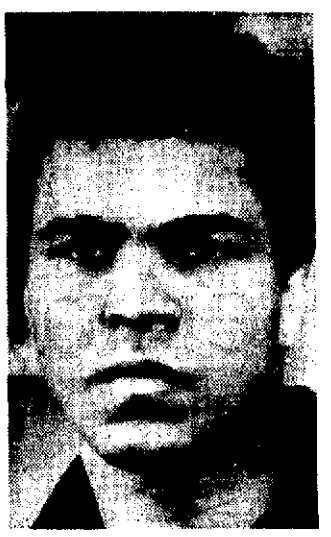

A: In racing parlance, "60 Minutes" is an entry you can bet will run in the money. In the Nielsen last month, for instance, it outrated such strictly entertaining programs as "Chico and the Man," "Maude," "Harry O," "Mac Davis," "Phyllis," "Movin' On," "Kojak," "Tony Orlando and Dawn," "Flip Wilson" and "McCloud," amongst other talked-about non-news-oriented programs. Our conclusion? "60 Minutes" will be around as long as there is news, good, bad or indifferent.

ACTRESS Linda Cristal — relying on bi-lingual talents now.

HEAVYWEIGHT champion Muhammed Ali and the late Rocky Marciano, former champ — international challenges met and unmet.

ACTRESS Kim Novak — loner seeks companionship again.

SINGERS Doris Day, left, and Dinah Shore — both overcame physical disability.

Grey flannel suit is a costume for Peter Fonda

HOUSTON — Freshly starched shirts sealed in plastic go limp in Houston's unholy humidity. There's a chill in the early spring morning, but the surly driver, affecting a passe hippie hairdo that doesn't completely hide a strip of his bright red neck, has the air conditioning blasting in a bouncy, beat-up company car.

The cardboard sign in the windshield advises the guards that we are "Futureworld" people, so they let us pass, with only a wave, into the compound from which the United States commanded mankind's first magnificent "moonwalk."

Inside the gates of NASA's Johnson Spaceflight Center at Clear Lake, Tex., there are acres of buildings, looney-shaped water towers and landscaped walks studded with the carcasses of Apollos I, II and III. (Only in Texas can one find a used-rocket lot.) Gigantic generators expose color-coded pipes and hardware to admire.

It is an art show more awe-inspiring than anything downtown Houston's chic galleries can offer. In one of these buildings stands a pressure chamber seven stories high and three stories wide. Here, man, with his technical wizardry, can simulate climatic conditions of any distance in outer space. Standing at the vault-like door, I feel like Tom Thumb at the bank.

An elevator takes me to a platform circling this monster pressure cooker, where I find super-hippie Peter Fonda, formally dressed in gray flannels, tweed jacket and Gucci loafers. The ubiquitous hot-pilot sunglasses are the only familiar clue to the Peter Fonda I know.

Houston's humidity notwithstanding, he's in a cheerful humor. He relishes the local folklore about the first time technicians tested the chamber by creating freezing outer space ozone, then innocently returned the pressure to normal by pumping in Houston air — resulting in a raging blizzard within the chamber.

ONLY A MOVIE could bring Peter Fonda together with that anecdote. Only a movie could put Peter Fonda in gray flannels. Reading my mind, he grins: "My kids think this movie is a costume picture. They've never seen me out of blue jeans."

A pleasant young woman, called "Dolly Spritz" by the company, appears suddenly and squirts sweat on Peter's brow as he resumes his precarious position perched in the skimpy scaffolding seven stories above NASA. "Futureworld" director Richard Heffron signals a hand-held camera to start, and a simulated chase begins. While the actors indulge in some action-thriller derring-do, I look around and can't help but admire what must be the most expensive and sophisticated movie set since "2001: A Space Odyssey."

Fonda throws a huge nut and bolt onto a metal grill walkway and the whole place goes up in a shower of hissing sparks. I jump back to find I'm standing on the Guccied toe of someone who not only looks like Peter Fonda but is dressed just like him!

"That's Peter's clone," says a youthful voice behind me.

"A clone?" I looked down into a handsome, hauntingly familiar face.

"I'm Leland Hayward III, Peter's nephew. This is Justin, Peter's son, and this is Tom, Peter's stepson. After lunch Portia (Peter's wife) is going to take us to meet Astronaut Colonel Carr, who will show us the inside of the Space Shuttle's control cabin. Did you know that the Space Shuttle may be operative by 1980?"

STARRING IN "Futureworld," a science-fiction thriller, is Peter Fonda. Among locations for the film was the NASA space center in Houston.

Maybe it's the word "operative," but I have a creepy feeling that I'll never begin to know what this 12-year-old has already forgotten about man's thirst to travel through outer space. But then it's his generation's future world, not mine.

"Futureworld" is the name of the movie that Peter, Blythe Danner and Arthur Hill are romping through in the once off-limits areas of NASA.

It's an honest-to-pete science fiction sequel to "Westworld," and it even features Yul Brynner in his original role as the gun-slinging robot who gets to rape Blythe Danner. The producers also asked "Westworld" star Richard Benjamin to do a cameo performance, but he was too cranky the day they asked.

THE PRODUCERS of "Futureworld" are an interesting trio. First there is American-International Pictures' one and only, Sam Arkoff, the past master of mass entertainment movies that make fistfuls of dollars — and marks and francs and lira and pesetas.

Sam aspires to make classier mass entertainment movies now, so he's hitched his distribution connections and financial acumen to two other producers, Paul Lazarus and ex-MGM executive James Aubrey, both of whom were involved with "Westworld." Arkoff is only seen in person during the Cannes Film Festival, hosting sumptuous lunches at the Eden Roc for the international press. Sam loves the press, and the press loves Sam even when they hate his movies.

Long, tall, lanky James Aubrey grins for no apparent reason beneath his visor cap. His shetland sweater, shirt, casual pants and sneakers suggest a spaced-out gym teacher, not a man who, as head of CBS-TV, once so terrorized the industry that he was known as "The Smiling Cobra."

He still smiles a lot, but he has a new, simple lifestyle — uncluttered by the alcohol, sexy women and power complexes that made him the model for Jacqueline Susann's famous novel, "The Love Machine."

The once-feared and hated Aubrey today is a tee-totaling, jogging, soon-to-be grandfather who retires each night after an early dinner. Lazarus and Aubrey work hard, which is why they are called "grunt" producers. They are responsible for "Futureworld" having these authentic, priceless settings.

PETER AND PORTIA Fonda have gathered their clutch of "skateboard commandos," as they call the kids, for a tour of NASA.

Halfway through, my brain goes numb from a surfeit of staggering facts — like the real possibility of having a bacteria-free space hospital operative (that word again!) by 1986. (A space hospital doesn't need beds; just tie us with a yellow ribbon to the old center post so we don't float off to Jupiter, please!) Peter hangs back, focusing carefully on his lovely new wife.

Portia Rebecca Crockett Fonda is as tiny a whirlwind of efficiency, charm, bustle and strong-armed patience as her pioneer family name implies. Peter met Portia down in Key West when he filmed Tom McGuane's disastrous "92 in the Shade." She was married to Tom at the time.

The movie got lousy reviews, but Peter got Portia. He is still the godfather of Portia and Tom's son Tom, who is now Peter's stepson. (For Heaven's sake, it's better than being cloned.)

Admiring Portia's dazzling smile as she herds her flock in and out of the space exhibits, Peter remembers:

"When I first met her, I thought she was a remarkable woman, and that was that. I never said to myself, 'Gosh! I wouldn't mind having an affair with her!' Our meeting was just not on that level. I had too much respect for her as a woman, and one who was married to one of my best friends at that. I do remember thinking that nobody really appreciates that girl.

"Then, when I met her again in September 1974, she was very sad because she was divorcing Tom — and ding dong! Bingo! I'm the lucky fellow who now appreciates her. We were married in November 1975. She's the sweetest girl I've ever known."

FLEA MARKET

Marble played an early role

Q. "When was marble-top furniture fashionable in America?" — Mrs. G. P., York, Pa.

A. Marble for the masses was the chant of Victorian furniture makers. Between 1840 and 1900, American furniture emporiums exhibited a handsome array of marbletop pieces, including tables, bureaus, sideboards and commodes. It became especially popular with the vogue for rococo revival and renaissance revival styles of the mid-1800s. Sometimes white marble was utilized, although striking color combinations in shades of white and gray and pink and chocolate were also offered. Marbletop pieces are real flea market heavyweights. Value guide: bureau, walnut, 4-drawers, circa 1870, $250; table, walnut, oval marble, medium size, $275.

Q. "I'm on the prowl for Wallace Nutting prints! — Amy, Vancouver, Wash.

A. Lovely Nutting prints, distributed between the late 1890s and early 1940s, are rapidly becoming flea market favorites. The interior views are more valuable than the exterior views. Print buffs are surely making something out of Nutting! Value guide: A Bit of Sewing, 14-inches by 12½-inches, $30; Below the Arches, 10-inches by 13-inches, $28; Coming Out of Rosa, 11-inches by 13-inches, $25; The Way Through the Orchard, 17-inches by 15-inches, $20; Very Satisfactory, 14-inches by 17-inches, $32.

Q. "Has my collection of Daisy and Button glass gained in value?" — Mary, Petersburg, Va.

A. This clear and colored glass pattern has been pleasing homemakers since it was first introduced in the late 1800s. Despite the reproductions, many collectors deem Daisy and Button best. Value guide: butter chip, square, clear, $4.50; Bowl, oval, 12-inches by 9-inches, blue, $80; celery vase, triangular, green, $32; finger bowl, amber, $17; goblet, vaseline, $30; sauce dish, tri-cornered clear, $12; toothpick holder, hat-shaped, blue, $17; tumbler, amber, $21.

Q. "I've decided to start collecting old straight-edge razors. What can you tell me?" — John, Dallas, Tex.

A. You're starting your collection in the nick of time as these shaving accessories of the late 1800s and early 1900s are rated as tomorrow's antiques. American manufacturers, such as J. R. Torrey of Massachusetts, were competing for sales with imported straight-edge razors of European origin. The handles were made of various materials, including metal, bone, ivory, bamboo, wood and celluloid. Those with the fanciest handles fetch the fanciest prices. Value guide: Kenn Kutter, Simmon's Hardware Company, $12; Red Imp. with original box, $14.

Long-lost heroines are something to sing about

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

Gluttons for work, some would call them. Or crazy ladies, maybe.

Why else would these women be doing what their doing?

Their answer: "because it's fun."

"We've had a great time," agreed Betty Wylder, Jane Bradley and Harriet Williams, three Long Beach women who hope to produce a musical comedy about Revolutionary War heroines sometime this summer.

"We've discovered the most fascinating things in our research...amazing things you'd never read in a history book."

Mmes. Bradley and Williams instigated the project last fall after several unsuccessful attempts to get production rights to the satire "Stan Freberg Presents the United States of America."

Undaunted by the rejection, they decided to write a comedy of their own. Mrs. Bradley was called in to write the book for the musical.

"Except for writing a couple of songs, we didn't really get down to work until December," Mrs. Williams said.

"Mostly we worked on our own," Mrs. Wylder added. "We tried for a while to get together on a regular basis. But if you've ever taken a look at our calendars you'd realize it was a miracle we could get together at all."

MRS. BRADLEY, an environmentalist who is neck-deep in community projects, wrote most of the music.

"We have 13 songs in all," she noted. "Harriet wrote most of the lyrics, though in some cases she wrote both music and words and in other cases I did."

The women have tentatively agreed on the title "Patriots and Petticoats."

"We stole it right out of an article in National Geographic," Mrs. Wylder chuckled. "Fortunately for us, magazines can't copyright titles."

Initially the musical's theme was the general subject of the American Revolution. The trio later decided upon a Bicentennial salute to Revolutionary War heroines "because the women were more interesting."

Several little-known characters emerge in the hometown rewrite of American history. Among them is Deborah Sampson, who disguised herself as a man and distinguished herself on the battlefield. Another is Sybil Luddington, who like Paul Revere rode her horse across the countryside to alert patriots that the British were coming.

"Sybil had the more successful ride," Mrs. Wylder observed. "She didn't get caught."

Another principal character is Mary Katherine Goddard, editor of the Baltimore Advertiser. Editor Goddard was the first publisher to print the Declaration of Independence — and the first journalist to refuse to reveal her sources.

BILLED AS a musical comedy, "Patriots and Petticoats" (or whatever it is to be called) is more likely to get smiles and chuckles rather than deep belly laughs, the women agreed. In many scenes — such as one where a quiet Quaker girl writes her friends about the men at Valley Forge — the humor is subtle. But other scenes verge on slapstick, such as "The Father of Our Country Softshoe."

Research sources included the National Geographic article from which the musical's title was taken, a Time magazine special and numerous history books. Mrs. Bradley, a retired Long Beach librarian, did much of the formal research.

"After the first few songs were written — we'd agreed that these were characters that had to be in the show — we'd get together and talk about other possibilities," Mrs. Wylder said. "After a while, we just had to stop. The more research we did, the more potential we saw."

Aside from the minor rewriting, work on the musical is nearly completed. What remains is to assemble a production crew and a cast — a minimum of 16 singers, dancers and actors are needed — and put together financial backing.

"Depending on what we have to pay for — rent, musicians, stage crew — $5,000 might do it," Mrs. Wylder said.

A trial run of sorts is planned for June when the women will be taking their musical to Claremont for a meeting of the General Assembly of the Unitarian-Universalist Association. Other bookings are still up in the air.

"Everything's shaping up great," Mrs. Wylder remarked. "I think we're going to have a real fun show to present."

Hadassah plans youth luncheon

Annual Youth Aliyah luncheon sponsored by Long Beach Chapter of Hadassah will take place Wednesday at South Coast Plaza Hotel, 666 Anton Blvd., Costa Mesa.

"Hand in Hand" is theme for the 11 a.m. event, which benefits child rescue fund.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Joseph Heller, past president of South Pacific Coast Region of Hadassah. A fashion show of Israeli designs from the Alex Selizberg School of Fashion also is scheduled.

In charge of arrangements are Mrs. Jimmy Bytel and Mrs. Randall Miller. Mrs. Corrinne Raynes is chapter president. Tickets are $36.

Britannia fete

Britannia Society of Long Beach will host a dance Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Recreation Center, 3 Elm Way.

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Gone fishin' for real

AFTER NEARLY 30 years with the Long Beach Recreation Department, Dick Weston has retired to go fishing.

Fishing rod was presented to him at a surprise retirement party at the Elks Club.

More than 200 guests watched as Dick's stepbrother, Ray Dunn, presented him with a refurbished rod that had belonged to Dick's father.

The sentimental offering was only one of many gifts including a Citizen's Band Radio presented to Dick at the buffet dinner dance.

Dick has held several posts with the department including senior park leader at Pan American Park for the past eight years.

Jackie Loeb was in charge of arrangments which included tracking down co-workers from past years and young people, now grown up, who "played at Dick's parks." Helpers were Carole White, June Stone, Glenn Swinburn and his wife, Eve, who served as co-conspirator.

Since the Westons recently observed a 40th wedding anniversary, she lured him to the Elks Club with a promise of a small family dinner.

Among family and long-time friends on hand to offer congratulations were the Westons' son, Rick carolyn mcdowell

and his wife, Adeline and daughter, Shirley Heely, and husband, Steve, Imogene Dunn, Dr. Ed and Doris Platz, new Mayor of Signal Hill Nick Mekis and Betty, Dick and Micky Chesnut and their son, Harry and his wife, Kathy from up Oxnard way and Mac and Alice Hamby from Hemet and Buddy and Adeline Kalcnch from Camarillo.

DRAT! I MISSED another bus trip.

Could have gone but I don't function well at eight in the morning and the invitation read SHARP!

Group JD of Ebell of Long Beach bused it to Barnsdall Park for a tour of Hollyhock House, designed by the famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright. He built it for Ailene Barnsdall in 1920.

Somehow or other the estate passed into public hands and is now open to the public for tours and is occasionally used by Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley for official entertaining.

Picnicking is also allowed so the JD's catered in from Stottlemyer's before reboarding the bus for a visit to the Los Angeles County Art Museum for a look at the Ahmanson Gallery and Sculpture gardens.

Everyone "did" the second tour except Bev Card and Joyce Sarver who split for nearby Farmers Market for some gourmet shopping.

Bus skipper was Ilene Cole.

Other tourers included JD Chairgal Louise Schinnerer, June Harris, Bev Fishbaugh, Joyce Ashcraft, Donna Nelson and June Meigs.

EQUAL TIME for the men readers.

Are you a member of Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity Inc.?

Or Phi Eps, Phi Sigs, Kappa Nu's or Phi Alphas. These fraternities have merged under one umbrella and rain or shine they will meet for a Founders' Day celebration.

The date is this Wednesday so you had better hurry and make a reservation.

Since the note I received on the event didn't include a reservation who, I suggest you call the Westwood Hyatt House located at 930 Hilgard Ave in Westwood to get your name in the pot.

AND FOR the lady Greeks.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Mother's Club at USC held its annual fund raising and fashion show at the chapter house.

Mothers and daughters attending from the Long Beach area included Mrs. Max Graham Miller and Penny, Garnette Hedley and Carolyn, "TD" Mahanuah and Kim, Mary McMullen and Lisa, Mrs. Tom O'Toole and Colleen and Mrs. Frank Sunofsky and Jan.

Also Mrs. Lewis Webb and Karen, Jackie Campbell and Bonnie, JoAnn Gray and Debbie, Pat Roice and Lynn and Mrs. Willard Walls and Kristi.

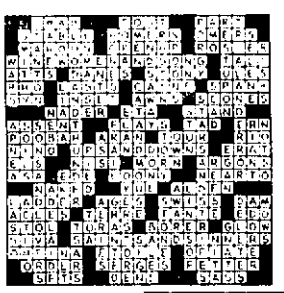

IT WASN'T a meeting of the Century Club.

It was a family reunion and joint birthday party for Herman Merrell who is three quarters of a century old in this Bicentennial year, Marge Williams who reached the half century mark and her sister, Carolyn Dickerson, who observed the quarter century birthdate.

Naturally, the buffet dinner was topped off with a red, white and blue cake bearing the names and ages of the honorees and a replica of the Liberty Bell.

Among those watching the cake cutting were Marge's son, Tom Williams, wife, Donna and their children Debbie, Casey and Russell, Marge's daughter, Gail Mistretta, husband, David and children Ramie, Paula, Nancy and David.

Others were Wayne Dickerson, husband of one of the honorees and their daughter, Melissa of Lindsay, and Helen Baggett also of Lindsay, Helen Merrell wife of one of the honorees and Faye Poling of Hotchkiss, Col.

AT WIT'S END

Accent the accent and she's yours

Advertisers have known for years what I am just starting to suspect.

Americans will buy anything if the pitcherperson has a foreign accent.

I'll buy a camera from Sir Laurence Olivier that I don't need, a car from Ricardo Montalban that I can't afford, and a headache from Joan Fontaine that I already have.

It's more than just the authoritative way in which a product is presented to us. I think Americans are just plain impressed with people who speak another language — even if it is their own.

It's dumb when you think about it. Take coffee. The housewife's authority on good coffee has to be Mrs. Olson. Old "spout mouth" whips in and out of houses like a revolving door spreading the richest kind of whole-bodied goodness wherever she goes.

Think about it. Sweden exports about two cups of coffee a year — not exactly their gross national product. So why should I believe Mrs. Olson?

OR BALLPOINT pens. I watched skier Jean-Claude Killy sit before a roaring fire penning a bit of prose to someone with his new pen and went out and bought a couple of dozen. Since when is France the ballpoint pen capital of the world?

In our minds we have built up myths about different countries. We believe that all European

women are beauties and have flawless skin. (Would it shock you to know that I once saw a contessa with a cold sore?)

We know that all Italians are good cooks, the Irish smell like soap, and the Japanese are fanatically neat and would never throw a candy wrapper on the floor.

And when it comes to men, we all know it's Frenchmen like Louis Jordan who would send us flowers or Englishmen like Peter Sellers who would fly us first class anywhere in the world.

I even bought the bit from the Spanish beauty who said, "I am a shy person. Please go out and buy my wine so I won't have to make any more commercials."

FACE IT, we're still under the influence of the old world. I expect any day now on the Bicentennial minute to hear: "The voyage from Southhampton to the Colonies was a rough one and would have been rougher without Mother Hill's Seasick Pills. They soothed upset tummies, brought down fever, and took care of irregularities. The Pilgrims arrived in their new country feeling refreshed and ready to revolt. This is Queen Elizabeth and that's the way it was."

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Easily identifies with needs of youth

KEITH D. CURRY

He appears to be making coffee, but that big can is just the photographer's prop. However, there is a similarity in that word "big." Keith Curry, today's chef of the week, has a BIG job!

Effective Jan. 16, he was appointed by City Manager John Mansell as director of Long Beach's new Division of Youth Affairs.

At the age of 20, he is the youngest division head in the city manager's office.

Job of the Division of Youth Affairs, Curry said, will be to coordinate all Long Beach programs and services for young people, both those of government and private agencies, and to evaluate their effectiveness.

mildred flanary

Born in Long Beach, Curry attended Long Beach public schools, graduating with honors from Millikan High School. He is a student at Long Beach State University, majoring in political science with concentration in public administration and urban studies.

APPOINTED BY the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to the Los Angeles County Commission on Youth, Curry has served as chairman and instituted publication of a commission newsletter. He also was responsible for conducting hearings into the Juvenile Justice System, and testified before the Board of Supervisors' inquiry into that subject. A member of the legislative, education and political awareness committee, he developed the "Research Associate" program which allows young people to receive school credit while gaining experience in state government.

Curry also has traveled to Sacramento to lobby on behalf of commission proposals and served as panelist at both the League of California Cities, and the California Junior Statesmen Conferences. He also was keynote speaker at the 1975 Federation of Community Coordinating Council's annual conference on juvenile delinquency.

CURRY'S WORK with youth started during his high school years. While at Millikan, he was student body treasurer for three terms; served as commissioner of publicity and as lieutenant governor for Key Club, (Kiwanis youth honorary. He was captain of the debate team; a California Junior Statesman, and served on both the student advisory committee and the ecology board.

In college, he was a member of the Associated Student Senate; Kappa Sigma Fraternity, and was appointed representative for the county Bicentennial committee.

Curry is described by a close friend as being "very professional, quick minded, sharp and perceptive. He's impeccable, always wears a three-piece suit with matching shirt, and has not a hair out of place."

We're also told that even though he has lived in his new apartment for two months, he still doesn't know where the range is. However, we attribute that situation to his busy schedule.

Curry says, "I worked during school in Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor — at the hamburger range. I've always been a 'meat and potato' man, and a great seafood fan." Today his recipe is for Broiled Halibut Steak complete with Parsley Butter Sauce.

BROILED HALIBUT STEAK

Marinate 1-inch steaks in salad oil and lemon juice for ½ hour. Wipe dry and broil until flesh is white and firm, turning carefully when first side begins to brown. Before serving, spread with Parsley Butter.

PARSLEY BUTTER SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Salt and pepper

Cream butter, add parsley, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Spread over hot broiled fish or steak.

Dear Mother Earth:

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

I received a beautiful Boston fern for Christmas but I'm at a complete loss about how to care for it. I hear so many different versions that I'd appreciate it if you'd set me straight once and for all. I'll be forever grateful. I don't want my fern to die. — A.S.

DEAR A.S.:

Unfortunately, the mortality rate among ferns is very high; most people simply can't find a proper place for these delicate beauties. There are, however, certain rules to follow for maximum results. If this is repetitious for some of you, use it as a "booster" shot, if you will, because there's really nothing quite so beautiful as a fern that's weathered the transition from greenhouse to your house. We've seen Bostons up to 40 and 50 years old that are, simply stated, magnificent.

Make sure your fern is either hanging or sitting on a pedestal so the fronds can fall free and breathe properly; make sure the spot is light and cool and keep the fern dampish at all times, making sure to give it a thorough watering at least once a week. Feed a slightly acidic plant food or special fern food at least once a month during the growth period and constantly trim off the brown fronds that will inevitably appear no matter how well your fern is doing. If you can succeed with ferns, you will be eligible to join a small but elite group of very proud plant people who can smile impishly when they ask, "How's your fern?" Happy growing!

(If you have any questions to ask DEAR MOTHER EARTH, send them in care of this paper. As many as possible will be used in this column.)

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Compute lifetime income

DEAR MR. SMITH: I am eligible for retirement income credit. However, my wife has not received earned income in excess of $600 in each of any 10 calendar years before 1975. Since we are married residents of a community property state, would she be entitled to the retirement income credit? IRS instructions are not clear to me.

If she is not entitled to retirement income credit, can you tell me why the old fashioned housewife, who works hard but not for salary, is penalized by our tax system? — A.T.W.

Your wife is probably entitled to the retirement income credit, based on the facts you state. Your complaint about housewives losing out is at least partly answered in community property states.

The IRS says that your wife can establish eligibility for the credit by using her own wages for any years that she worked, plus one-half her husband's community income earnings for any year in which they lived in a community property state. Combine those earnings, annually for her entire lifetime; each year that has a total of more than $600 counts as one year toward the 10 years needed.

Remember that all earnings count for this purpose — even though, for some reason, the earnings weren't subject to income tax or social security tax, at the time they were earned.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I granted two easements through some land which I own to a California public sewer district. I received no remuneration. I have received different opinions as to whether the donation of the easement is deductible as a charitable contribution. What is your opinion? Is there any government publication which can help me in this matter. — B.T.

A gift to any governmental unit may be designated as a charitable contribution if the gift is for exclusively public purposes. If you specified in advance of making the donation that you must receive some direct benefit from it, then you have not made a charitable gift.

The IRS has ruled that the gift of a restrictive easement in perpetuity to the U.S., for example, is deductible as a charitable contribution. Therefore, if you made a gift of perpetual easements to a California state unit, and if you received no benefit in exchange, you may have a valid charitable deduction.

The final question is how to compute the amount deductible, which will be based on current market value rather than on original cost. You may be able to determine the specific current value of the easements granted by comparing the value of the total property immediately before and after the date of the gift.

Aces on bridge

ira corn

Dear Mr. Corn:

I understand that screens separate partners from each other's sight in high level bridge matches. Is the purpose to prevent cheating?

Custom Drapes,
Des Moines

Answer: Partially, yes, but more important to remove the clouds of suspicion of inadvertent cheating. There's practically never any deliberate cheating.

Without screens, it is most difficult to keep from telltale hesitations, voice and tone inflections and other mannerisms so easily interpreted by experienced high level players.

The screens eliminate the problem and the concensus of players canvassed has established that the game is easier without having to worry about the possibility of unintentionally transmitting illegal information.

Eugenie Mathe, who writes the L.O.L. column for the Southern Calif. Bridge News tells of her experience as a monitor (with screens, a monitor calls out two bids at one time made by two opponents on one side of a screen).

"One exhausted player dozed off while waiting for his opponent to point to his bid. The monitor waited politely, thinking some deep thought was in progress. Suddenly a small snore cleared up the situation. Another plus for having curtains. Imagine your consternation if you realized your partner had fallen asleep!"

Dear Mr. Corn:

How many points do I need to overcall after an original pass?

Need Help
Perth Amboy, N.J.

Answer: In overcalls the quality of the suit is more important than raw point count. A good general guide is the rule of two and three. If vulnerable, an overcaller should reasonably expect to take within two tricks of his bid in his own hand. If not vulnerable, within three tricks.

Dear Mr. Corn:

This was the bidding and I passed my partner's double. He claimed it was for takeout. Was I forced to bid?

Women are asking...

'I'd like to expand my world, but I have so little time to read. What can I do?'

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

"To learn more, read more!" That's the opinion of a group of experts who suggest by practicing speed reading you can expand your world. They point to outstanding successes who have taken the average 250 words per minute reading rate and jumped it to 900 words and higher.

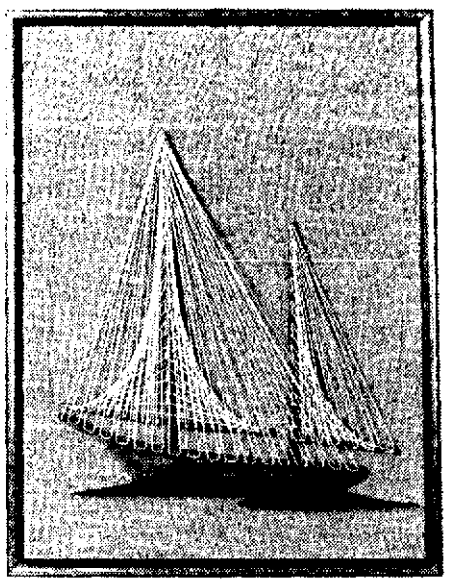

Let's see how fast you read. Read a book, magazine or newspaper for five minutes. (Use a stop watch, if possible.) Mark how far you have read. Then, count the number of words and divide by five. The resulting figure is your words-per-minute rate. If you'd like to accelerate, again practice reading. Place two fingers on your throat. If your larynx moves, you are "subvocalizing" or mouthing the words to yourself. You're slowing yourself down because you cannot read words faster than you can pronounce them.

Another "slower-downer" is listening to each word formed as you read. However, if you can recognize the word and communicate it instantly to the mind, you can read as fast as the eye can see. This "sight" reader is ahead of the others when it comes to speed.

Educators point out it's not necessary to look at every letter of every word to get the idea of the sentence. They suggest using a pencil or ruler and moving vertically down a column in the newspaper or the page of a book. Focus on the line and read vertically. Read phrases (to make words stand out, focus just above the words instead of on the line itself). Do not let eyes or head swing from side to side. Make gaze read vertically, stretch your word span, try to progress faster than you believe possible.

One goal is to make sure the eyes stop no more than three times per line. Schools and special reading courses offer specialized help for your particular needs. See how your world expands as you are able to read more books and articles faster.

P.S. Like to expand your learning power? Check the 12-page booklet which gives pointers on speed reading, memory improvement, vocabulary and study habits. Send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed,, stamped envelope to: Reba & Bonnie Churchill, "Expand Your Learning Power," Independent Press Telegram, P.O. Box 46-181, Hollywood, Ca. 90046.

Workshop

Here's a project anyone can tackle with shipshape results guaranteed. Just string up this sailboat and hang it in your den, children's room or the living room. Folks won't get over how clever you are!

All you need is some elastic cord (available at yardage dealers) or a good quality white string. Then get some brass nails, a few scrap pieces of wood for the hull and waves (it's a 3-dimensional picture) and some doweling for the masts.

Finally, pick up a piece of plywood, cut to 18" x 24" and cover it with tan-colored burlap. Once you have the materials, just follow the step-by-step pattern. Simply string the cord piece like the one shown here. The only way we could make it any easier would be to make one for you...and that would spoil all your fun!

To order the full-size Sailboat Wall Plaque Pattern 527, send $2 (includes first class postage and handling) by cash, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press Telegram, Pattern Dept. P. O. Box 2383 Van Nuys, CA 91409.

FASCINATING FABRICS

Resurgence of quilting interest

frances dietrich

Quilting, the assembly of two layers of fabric and a center of soft padding, was created centuries ago to provide extra warmth in clothing and bedding.

Eventually, women with inherent artistry embellished the plain fabric bed quilt with small-stitch patterns — scrolls, shell shape, waves, geometrics. The basic design elements added beauty and practicality; the smaller stitches holding the padding in place more effectively.

An art form was created, which has been popular ever since. The next development was the applique of colorful pieces of fabric to the quilt top. By the 1600s, ornate applique and quilt stitchery designs by professional artists were in demand in England, France and Italy.

Hand-made quilts traveled to America in the Mayflower; cherished possessions. When the quilts wore out in places, enterprising Colonial women patched them with usable fabric salvaged from outworn clothing. Later, entire quilts were made from pieces of used fabric as American women did not have access to new textiles, the British discouraging domestic production and prohibiting imports.

A truly American art-mode was born — patchwork quilting. Out of the disorder of the "crazy" quilt, precise patterns were developed that were indigenous to a way of life. Throughout the 1800s, boys and girls in almost every family cut out pieces for "blocks." Included were Dwight D. Eisenhower and Calvin Coolidge, who also helped sew the blocks together. Quilts they worked on are in the homesteads of the respective Presidents.

CURRENTLY, we're experiencing a terrific resurgence of interest in hand-made quilts and quilted fabric for clothing, accessories and home furnishings. This is attributable partly to the Bicentennial and to a renaissance in the needle arts.

A notable example was reported in the Cape Cod (Mass.) Times. Colleen Harquil, high school junior, hand-stitched a full-size patch-work quilt in pinwheel design, from scraps of dress fabric. She embroidered it with the signatures of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

The three basic quilt types are still the plain fabric top quilted in elaborate design; appliqued and or embroidered top, and the muslin top covered with patchwork. Fabric for top and bottom should be tightly woven and preshrunk. Patches and applique should be colorfast, nonraveling and preshrunk. Broadcloth, muslin, calico, chintz, gingham and percale are suitable, preferably 100 per cent cotton. Polyester or a blend of polyester and cotton may be used if not permanent press. Resin finish makes fabric too rigid for the amount of handling required and it is resistant to needle thrust.

Batting (filling) available today is far better than material available to our ancestors. A modern example is Mountain Mist batting in either cotton or polyester. It is surface-treated with a gossamer-like covering that maintains an even thickness during quilting and usage; no thick and thin places. It is available in standard size, can be abutted without a ridge.

READER SERVICE: The book, "Anyone Can Quilt," has complete instruction for the beginner and numerous tips beneficial to the expert; color illustrations of handsome applique and piece designs as well as quilt stitch patterns. It may be obtained by sending check for $3.20, which includes postage, to Sears and Foster, P.O. Box 15380, Lockland, Cincinnati, Ohio 45215.

Tea for Gold Star Mothers set

The fifth annual tea for Gold Star Mothers sponsored by the Los Angeles Area Chapter of the U.S. Submarine Veterans of World War II will take place next Sunday at 12:45 p.m. in Gold Star Manor, Santa Fe Avenue and Spring Street.

Special guests will be the eight Gold Star mothers in the area who lost sons on submarine duty during World War II. They are Mmes. Elizabeth Barber, Della Bird, Lillian Brazier, Adele Flader, Ettie Hicks, Janice Moore, Gladys Mullaney, Ann Porter and Agnes Pugner.

A bell tolling ceremony will commemorate the men lost at sea.

Let's all pull together!

arts

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Even the weather has cooperated for 10 years to make the annual Friends of the Museum's Art Bazaar one of the jolliest events of the year. There's every reason to suppose that the sun will shine and the sky be blue next Sunday when the grounds of Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., again will ring with the sounds of people having fun — youngsters, teens, adults, seniors. It's an everybody-join-in, very informal affair that will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m.

The theme?

"Pulling Together" — what else?

It's the spirit of pulling together that has brought everyone involved with the museum to this exciting time when we're looking forward to a handsome new museum in the Civic Center.

THE OLD, THE NEW and the avant-garde will have places at the bazaar next Sunday. Consider: Some 80 Southland artists have been invited to display their work for sale, ceramics, sculpture, jewelry, stitchery, graphics, watercolors, batiks, macrame, mixed media.

Admission is free, but if you want to buy door prize tickets for only 50 cents each, you might take home some special works of art after the drawing at 3:30 p.m.

Six artists have donated prizes: Ruth deNicola, a composition; Kenn Glenn, sculpture; Robert T. Healy, jewelry; Terry Lande, ceramics; Joan Roundtree, an etching; and Marjorie Trout, soft sculpture.

From the museum Bookshop there's another contribution, reproductions from the Metropolitan Museum of Art of four crystal tumblers in the diamond and sunburst design.

You needn't be hungry. Food will be catered — hot dogs, sandwiches, popcorn — the kind of thing you'd expect on fair grounds.

But the big news here is that for the first time there will be a Pub where beer and pickled eggs will be for sale!

FOR THE CHILDREN. Papa Pockets (Jack W. Hazelton) will perform feats of wonder and magic in his revue, "The Whimsey Works." He'll give five shows of 40 minutes each beginning at 10:20 a.m. Plenty of time for you to roam the green lawns to the strains of music, visiting art displays, talking to artists.

Putting all this together is the bazaar committee: Barbara Ferguson, June Young, Suzanne Manton and Joan Joy. Friends president Barbara Fallon even painted a mirror for the Pub setting and countless hours have gone into planning a day of pure fun.

Of course, there's a more serious purpose for the bazaar which comes under the general heading of supporting and promoting the museum. That was the purpose when the Friends formed with only a few members in 1959.

Their numbers have grown to nearly 100 and the original small art auctions they held to raise money have given way to the Art Bazaar which now attracts approximately 5,000 fun-seekers, many of them art buyers, each year.

THE FRIENDS do other good things, too. They sponsor art classes for children and adults, conduct a docent program and have had an active art rental project. Although some activities have been curtailed because plans for the new museum take office space and staff time, the Friends stand ready to host receptions for the opening of new exhibits and to accept other duties when called on.

Speaking of exhibits, three will be on view in the museum, the "Brett Weston Retrospective" photographic show, "The Health and Safety Game" by Fred Lonider and "Somebody's Making a Mistake" by Philip Steinmetz.

So come along next Sunday, join the crowd, meet the artists, sip some suds or soft drinks, enjoy the art. The Friends and the museum will welcome you!

IN THE PUB, Bruce Ferguson serves as bartender, joining in a toast to good times, with June Young, left, and Judy Millan.

LBCC exhibits innovative work

Multi-media constructionists Sue Dorman, Brian Miller and John Schroeder have a three-person show at Long Beach City College Art Gallery, 4901 E. Carson St. which will hang through May 7.

'BALANCE' by Sue Dorman is one of multi-media constructions in current three-person show at Long Beach City College.

Gallery director Michiel Daniel says that their works share common characteristics. "All three artists work on a small scale with fetish-like objects, combining a number of media in unusual juxtapositions."

Long Beach resident Sue Dorman creates small objects from unrelated materials to make a very intimate statement; Daniel links her works with new media and conceptual art.

Brian Miller of Laguna Beach, a college photography instructor, uses small pieces of his photographs somewhere within a larger work which, says Daniel, "include odds and ends to create a child-like piece." Miller's work, he notes, is closely related to process art.

John Schroeder, a Los Angeles resident, is a leader in the second generation of assemblage artists. His work takes him to the deserts of Arizona, California and New Mexico, to search for objects related to the American Indian, directly and indirectly. Some of his works are small boxes with glass walls, containing such items as arrowheads, feathers, driftwood and bones. Schroeder also sets aside an occasional man-made object to recall a human presence through personal association.

This admission-free exhibit will be on display Mondays through Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The gallery also is open Mondays through Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

STUDENTS of these high schools — Lakewood, Mayfair, Artesia — and of Cerritos and Long Beach City colleges are eligible for the first annual Scholarship Show sponsored by Lakewood Artist Guild. A $100 scholarship will be given to a student artist from each school. The entries will be juried by five members of the guild.

No entry fee is required. Students should begin preparing their exhibits for the June 6 show.

As for guild members, they are preparing for their Open Show at Lakewood Pan American Fiesta de Amistad. Juror will be Joseph Mugnaini, head of the art department at Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles. He will donate his fee to a deserving student at Otis in the name of Lakewood Artist Guild. The show will be at Mayfair Park, Clark avenue and South Street, Lakewood, from Thursday through May 2.

ALL ADULT artists in Southern California are invited to take part in a Bicentennial Art Competition May 22 and 23 in San Pedro. It will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 22 and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. May 23 in the American President Lines Passenger Terminal, Berth 93A, Harbor Boulevard and Swinford. The Sounds of Faith, Watts Symphony, and the Tamburiza Croatia are musical groups that will entertain visitors. Admission is free.

Contest entry forms may be picked up at San Pedro City Hall, Room 408, 638 S. Beacon St., San Pedro 90731.

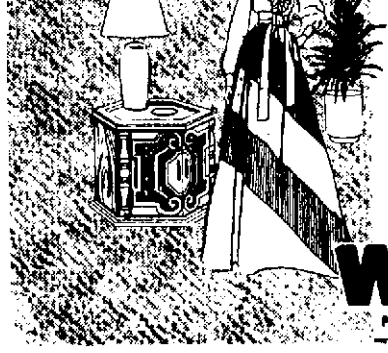

THE UPSTAIRS Gallery has acquired the inventory and location of the Windsor Gallery, 275 S. La Cienega Blvd., Beverly Hills. President Maurie Symonds of the Upstairs Gallery says the company is liquidating most of the Windsor art in order to remodel, refurbish and convert the premises into another Upstairs Gallery. Director will be Herb Hamrell.

The company also has galleries in Newport Center, Newport Beach; Arco Plaza in downtown Los Angeles, and on Reseda Boulevard, Northridge, in the San Fernando Valley.

Headquarters remain in Long Beach where the company started and now is located at 3850 Cherry Ave. The public is invited to meet Leroy Nieman at the Long Beach Gallery May 3 from 7 to 10 p.m. when an exhibition of his art opens. Nieman, one of the largest selling sports artists in the country, will autograph his posters and books.

JAMES L. VILLERS
Unusual dining in Wine Cellar

ON A REFRESHING spring day like this, what could be more appropriate than a brief drive along the California coast for brunch or dinner at Del Webb's celebrated Newporter Inn in Newport Beach?

The inn is at 1107 Jamboree Road, occupying 26 hilltop acres of the historic Irvine Ranch. It has everything from hotel suites to a golf course, the John Wayne Tennis Club, entertainment rooms and epicurean dining in the elegant Marine Restaurant. This department highly recommends the cuisine and waiter service in the old world Marine Restaurant because maitre d' John Vogado has assembled a staff which really cares.

The inn accepts phone reservations for the Sunday hunt breakfast in the Marine Restaurant as well as its dinners. The number is (714) 644-1700. The hunt breakfast, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., is priced from $3.95, including a glass of champagne. Dinner is served Sundays starting at 4 p.m., emphasizing such continental enchantments as scampi Andaluz, tenderloin of beef Granada; thick juicy prime rib of beef, rack of lamb, medallions of veal, lobster, the finest filet mignon and N.Y. steak. The prices, $7 to over $10, include soup or choice of three salad varieties, potatoes or rice and vegetable du jour.

The new general manager of the Newporter Inn is James L. Villers, who replaced Edward M. Nigro, recently promoted to vice president of operations for Del Webb Hotels, Inc. Villers was formerly director of sales at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas. Before that he was assistant to the general manager at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas.

One of the most fascinating restaurants at the Newporter is the Wine Cellar, reminiscent of castle dining in medieval Europe. Decorated with antiques, it is very plush with seating for only 34 persons. Tuesday through Saturday nights, starting at 7, it serves feasts for the gourmet by reservation only. The Cellar has four elaborate feasts, $17 per person. Each is served nightly for one week on a prearranged schedule printed in a small calendar booklet.

The Cellar's feast starting this Tuesday night will feature Menu No. 1. It will include such courses as consomme au sherry, crab legs Juneau, wilted spinach salad flambe, tournedoes of beef tenderloin Rossini, imported cheeses, fresh fruits, sweet meats, chocolate mints and coffee. The Cellar's maitre d' is Marcel M. Orlandie, who has great expertise in helping guests choose from its extensive list of superlative wines.

The Marine Restaurant has entertainment Wednesday through Sunday nights by harpist Rosalie Corson. The Lido Lounge has fast-paced contemporary music and dancing nightly (but not Sundays) to Jackie Nigro and the Plain Truth group.

FROM PARAMOUNT BOULEVARD to the San Gabriel River channel, and from Ashworth Street to Carson Street, the people of Lakewood love to praise the cooking artistry of their beloved Italian friend, Joe Manno.

In nearby cities — from Long Beach to Downey and from Norwalk to Garden Grove — many others also sing the praises of Joe Manno, because he's such a nice guy as well as an artistic restaurateur. For over 24 years, Joe has been a familiar figure on the streets of Lakewood, waving greetings to his many friends, stopping to chat with them in his warm Italian way. When he opened Manno's Italian Restaurant in the early 1950s, it was a small place at 5607 E. South St., just east of Bellflower Boulevard. Today it is large with three dining rooms, each with a different Italian decor and personality.

Why has Manno's been so successful during an era when many other restaurants have failed? You don't have to look any farther for the answer than Joe himself. He loves to cook, he loves his restaurant and he wants to make each visitor happy to be there. Joe has succeeded in doing this since the day he first opened, creating such wonderful entrees and such rich Italian sauces that people often tell him: "Joe, you NEVER let us down. Whenever we bring in our friends, they fall in love with your place."

Born in Naples, Italy, Joe learned the art of gourmet cooking while a chef at the posh Quo Vadis restaurant in London. His cooking is never too "heavy" or too robustly Italian. His regular menu offers classic dishes equal in quality and imagination to the finest cuisine in the finest Italian restaurants of Hollywood or San Francisco. Among the choices are fettuccini Alfredo (noodles in a white buttercream sauce); chicken cacciatore, made with butter, mushrooms and wine; stuffed cannelloni (the big noodles); veal parmigiana (a dish which requires much expertise), rich, cheesy lasagna, gnocchi with marinara sauce, linguine with clams and many others.

The prices are sensible for such quality, $4.15 (spaghetti with sauce) to $5.75. Included are the best minestrone (steaming Italian soup) and salad with bleu cheese or Italian dressing, hot garlic toast and coffee or tea. Manno's (closed Mondays) has special dinners for $3.75 Tuesday through Thursday nights, including all those accompaniments and choice of 11 entrees, ranging from lasagna and cannelloni with meatball to rigatoni, gnocchi and other pastas. For those with smaller appetites, Manno's has many a la carte dinners at lower prices.

Other treasures include steamed clams Neapolitan-style, $3.50, and the New York steak, $7.95 on the large dinner. Joe's wine list is extensive and impressive.

WITH A SCAN time of 20 seconds, Memorial Medical Center's EMI whole-body scanner will enable doctors to differentiate between normal and abnormal growth in soft tissues and abdominal organs.

Body scanner gives quick, thorough tumor detection

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A new revolutionary diagnostic device that uses X rays is coming to Long Beach.

It's an EMI whole-body scanner and it's scheduled for delivery in July at Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach.

Through an X-ray picture, it provides the information doctors would see if they could open the body on a hinge.

The whole-body scanner, in essence, allows doctors to "hinge" the body at any site.

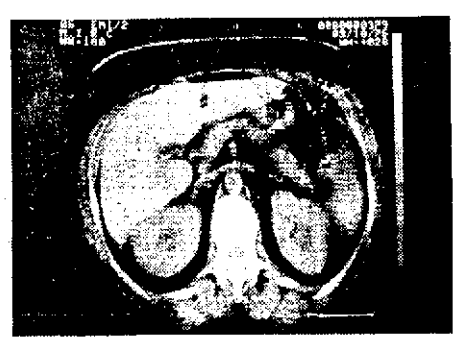

Dr. William J. Wilson, director of Memorial's radiology department, says that conventional X rays can show clearly defined bone structure. But it is almost impossible to differentiate between normal and abnormal growth in soft tissues and abdominal organs.

The new whole-body scanning process, called axial tomography, is able to detect minute differences in soft-tissue density. These differences are presented with unprecedented detail and accuracy, Dr. Wilson said.

"Functionally, scanners marry the penetrating quality of the X ray to the data processing capability of the computer," Dr. Wilson said. "The images produced are created by the computer and not by mechanical or photosensitive means."

The scanner examines thin cross sections of tissue at various depths within the body.

A cross section of the chest, for example, would show the presence of tissue such as bone, fat and muscle — the heart, lungs, spinal column, ribs and skin of the patient.

WHOLE-BODY scan picture shows liver, pancreas, kidneys, spine, spinal cord and aorta (the great artery.

THE PROCEDURE is completely painless. The patient is subjected to the same amount of radiation, or less, than that employed by conventional X-ray procedures.

The patient reclines on a couch which passes through the central aperture of the scanning gantry. Using control switches beside the cough, the technician can adjust the position of the couch and move it horizontally through the aperture until the section of the body to be examined is located precisely between the X ray source and an array of detectors on a frame in the gantry.

The scanning equipment moves around the patient's body. As it moves, it takes thousands of individual readings that are processed by computer into a single picture — 100 times more sensitive than regular X rays.

Dr. Wilson says that what makes the EMI whole-body scanner so unique is its speed — the rapidity at which it scans. Also superb are the resolution and definition of the images produced by the device.

"Certain parts of the body cannot be held immobile for the several minutes most other scanners will require," Dr. Wilson commented. "The chest and more specifically the lung tissue must be scanned while the patient holds his breath. But the EMI scan time of 20 seconds, many times faster than other scanners, allows successful processing and display of the delicate lung tissue."

The whole-body scanner should permit earlier diagnosis of acute inflammatory processes as well as show early changes of cancer.

The scanner will replace certain more involved diagnostic procedures which require a hospital stay and administration of anesthesia.

Dr. Wilson said that Dr. William Glenn of the famed Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, will be joining Memorial's radiology department to direct body-scanning procedures.

The EMI body scanner will help physicians detect tumors of the kidney and pancreas, abnormal cavities in the spinal cord, enlargement of the liver and spleen, and blood clots that indicate certain kinds of strokes.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Abortions still denied

Hundreds of thousands of American women who wanted abortions last year could not obtain them even though the U. S. Supreme Court had overturned restrictive state abortion laws.

The Planned Parenthood Federation of America estimates the number of such women to be between 400,000 and 900,000.

The federation has released an 88-page report

ben zinser

prepared by its research and development division, the Alan Guttmacher Institute.

The report shows that more than one-third of the women who could not obtain abortions were poor, and 186,000 of them were under 20 years old.

Dr. Christoper Tietze, the chief investigator, said:

"The shocking fact is that the Supreme Court decision has had little effect on hospitals."

Dr. Tietze, senior consultant of the Population Council, added:

"Most of the unmet abortion needs end up in the cradle."

Because of the inability to obtain abortions, many women enter into precipitous marriages, and others drop out of school, the report says. Other consequences include an estimated 50,000 illegal or self-induced abortions annually, unwanted or mistimed births and out-of-wedlock births.

The report charges that hospitals across the nation, especially public hospitals, failed to undertake abortion services. By the first quarter of 1974, only 15 per cent of public hospitals had performed even a single abortion, it was alleged.

COMMENT: From time to time this column will give both sides of the abortion question, strictly from the medical and sociological viewpoints. Conclusions should probably not be drawn until more is known about reproductive physiology. More research is needed. And education. Few persons understand the physiology of reproduction. A Southland news reporter (and a college graduate) recently wrote that human fertilization takes place in the womb. It doesn't.

Liver affected

Liver tumors may be related to the use of oral contraceptives, UC Irvine researchers report.

One type of liver tumor was found n 23 patients taking oral contraceptives of various kinds. Twenty of these patients went to the doctor with the complaint of upper abdominal pain.

Four of the patients died after liver surgery because of massive blood loss. Another patient died later.

Details are in the journal Obstetrics & Gynecology.

Keeping weight off

Exercise and reduction of food intake are the only two methods by which an obese patient can lose weight and keep it off, says an obesity expert, Dr. Grant Gwinup.

Crash diets only distract patients from making the difficult changes in lifestyle that are necessary for permanent weight control, he says.

Dr. Gwinup is professor of endocrinology and medicine at UC Irvine College of Medicine.

The physician's role in helping obese patients is to educate them to this reality.

Obesity is a leading public health problem in the United States. Finding a cure for cancer would add only two years to the life of the average American. But curing obesity would add seven years to the life span.

Details appear in Family Practice News, a newspaper for physicians.

Labor made easier

Women who use the self-administered Analgizer anesthetic vaporizer often have a smoother labor than thse who are unanesthetized, say doctors in France.

About half of the patients using the Analgizer (methoxyflurane) experienced uninterrupted uterine contractions from the time the medication was started.

Eighty-three of the 100 women in the study reported excellent or satisfactory pain relief. Seventy-one had complete relief from pain.

The report is in Ob. Gyn News, a medical newspaper.

Methodone lessens sex urge

Men on methadone maintenance programs have been found to have impaired fertility and ability to perform sexually, a new study shows.

The study, conducted by doctors at Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, showed a number of sexual malfunctions. There also was a decreased sex urge.

The report is in Hospital Physician, a periodical for doctors.

IN-SIGHTS

Groups help child abusers

In the past few years, child abuse has become more "visible" as a significant social problem. The concern for abused or battered children stems not only from sympathy for a helpless child. Of equal significance is the increasingly recognized fact that when abused children grow up, they are more likely to be violent and child abusers themselves.

A continuing problem has been to identify abusing parents and get them involved in some program to reduce the likelihood of their abusing their children. A practical means to identify the problem parents has been suggested by Robert Olson, R.N., M.A., who has worked in maternal-child health for many years.

dr. walt menninger

Olson's paper on "Screening for Child Abusers" appeared in the January, 1976, "American Journal of Nursing," and it presents an index of suspicion for potential abusive adults. He calls attention to four types of family structure or behavior patterns often associated with maltreatment of children:

Family units which are highly structured, authoritarian, inflexibly disciplined, and in which attempts at family-staff interaction are suppressed or rechanneled into superficial conversation.

Family units with documented drug addiction or alcoholism of one or both parents.

Family units with documented psychosis, neurosis, or mental deficiency of one or both parents.

Family units with loose, ill-defined structure, and evidence of emotional immaturity of one or both parents.

AN INDEX OF suspicion is developed by a weighted scoring of various aspects of the parents and child. Specifically noted are (1) the attitude of the parent in dealing with the staff, (2) the family structure, (3) family problems, (4) religious affiliation, (5) circumstances surrounding labor and delivery, (6) cultural factors and (7) history of the child or siblings — hospitalization, bruises, burns, fractures, etc.

Olson offers some case illustrations of extreme risk and very high risk families. One case was identified as an extreme risk after the child was brought to the emergency room twice in her first five weeks of life, with soft tissue injuries and burns. Ten days after Juvenile Protective Services entered the case, the child was brought to the emergency room dead from a brain hemorrhage. Her father had not been able to tolerate her crying and had beaten her with a piece of firewood.

Even if you do have a high index of suspicion for potential child abuse, it is not always easy to know where to turn and what to do. As the awareness of this problem has increased, so have organizations working on it.

RECENTLY established is the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse (111 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60601). This organization publishes a national newsletter, "Caring," as well as other informational and educational materials, including a directory of Child Abuse Services and Information. It also seeks to establish a volunteer network in 50 states, the first already started in Kansas.

The National Center for the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse and Neglect (1001 Jasmine, Denver, CO 80220) has been active for a longer period. They have developed educational and training programs for persons working with abused children and their families, available in audio-casette and videotape forms.

Parents Anonymous, Inc., is a national, self-help organization designed to help abusive parents help themselves. Founded by a parent in California six years ago, it now has branches in many states. The Parents Anonymous Second National Conference on Child Abuse is scheduled for May 13-15 in Dallas, TX. Information about that conference and the organization can be obtained from Parents Anonymous, Inc., 2810 Artesia Blvd., Redondo Beach, CA 90278.

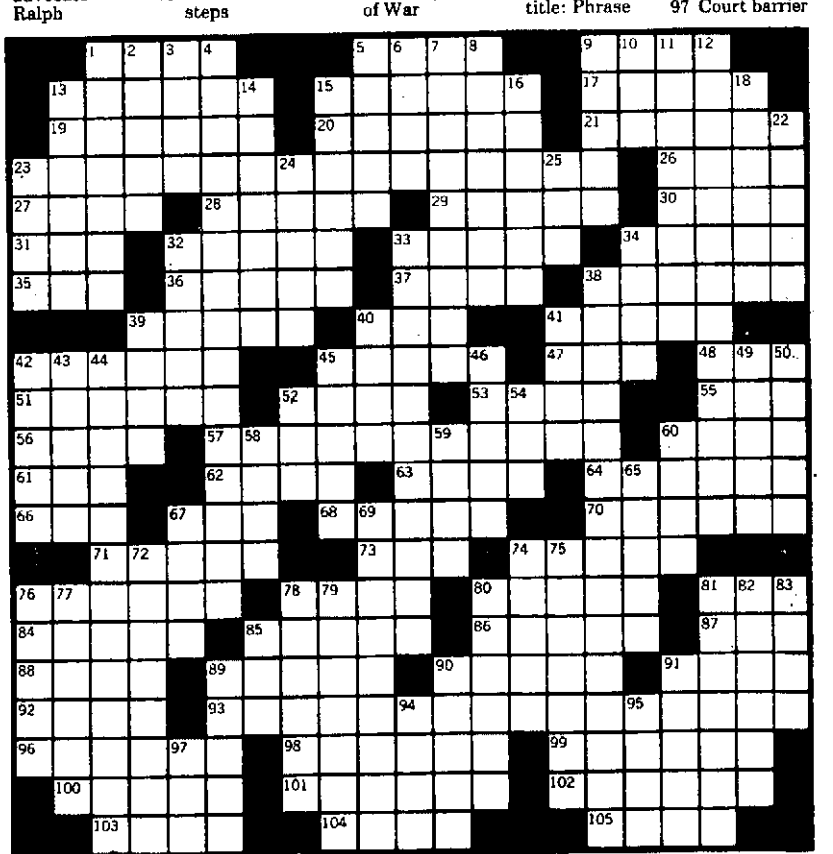

(Dr. Menninger invites your comments and questions. Write to him care of this newspaper. Because of the volume of mail, he cannot answer each individually but will handle questions of general interest in his column.)

Status offenders should not be treated as delinquent

She worried Marie would get into trouble. Mother and daughter fought.

Her mother was about to take her to court, but first she went to the Family Union.

They worked out an agreement between Marie and her mother that allowed Marie to come home at 11. Case workers got the younger children into a recreation program. They helped the mother to change her working hours.

Marie's family was stabilized.

MANY CHILD CARE professionals admit they don't know for sure what works for troubled children. Building a sound personality is not like building a bridge to withstand measurable stress.

"Let's be candid," says Chief Judge David Bazelon of the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. "We don't have the slightest notion of what really works, except in the most common sense way.

"How do we treat our own children? We feed them, comfort them, play with them, call the doctor for them, talk to their teachers, lecture them, swat them once in a while, and most of all warm them with our love and pride.

"Not many of us subject them to repeated batteries of tests and interviews, isolate them for weeks for misbehavior, make them account for every five minutes of their time, deny them privacy, censor their mail, and refuse them all contact with the opposite sex. Yet in most systems, this passes for treatment."

Many professionals who deal with status offenders are united in opposition to training schools — large, sometimes locked institutions outside communities. They believe training schools should be a last resort.

Many also believe that status offenders shouldn't be mixed with tough delinquents for fear they'll be contaminated by young criminals. But an estimated 85,000 children are committed to training schools each year. About 70 per cent of the girls and 23 per cent of the boys are status offenders.

The new Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act requires participating states to deinstitutionalize status offenders in two years.

A recent report by the National Assessment says that despite recommendations to use community programs, all but four states — Massachusetts, South Dakota, Minnesota and Utah — still send most juvenile offenders to training schools and detention centers.

Some status offenders get a break in small state-run urban homes like the one Katie shares with six other girls in New York. She has house parents to talk with and gets help with school work, counseling and group therapy.

Still, going to court put the seal of failure on 16-year-old Katie and her mother. It's going to take a lot to ease Katie's pain:

"No matter what I did, it wasn't good enough for my mother," says Katie, who was declared incorrigible.

"She always told me I was a bad kid and said I was the reason she broke up with Dad," says this girl with cheerleader looks who sits curled up in a chair, twisting a ringlet of hair and pouring out the bitterness of years.

She admits, "I'm no angel, but I'm not a bad kid."

Her voice falls and she's still a little stunned: "It was my own mother who took me to court."

Katie's mother is a 32-year-old thrice-married

Her golfing lessons included hefty green fees

DEAR ABBY: I'm well over 21, and old enough to know better, but six months ago I started dating the golf pro at our club.

It all started when I took some lessons from him to improve my game. One thing led to another very quickly, and he asked me to marry him. I was walking on air. Then he said we would have to postpone the marriage for about a year due to some financial obligations he had to clear up first.

abigail van buren

In order to speed up the marriage I let him have $2,500. Then I found out that he has been seeing another woman. Now I realize that he was only using me, but I must admit he certainly improved my game.

I have too much pride to report him to the club manager, but I would like to get my money back. Any suggestions? — TWELVE HANDICAP

DEAR TWELVE: Forget your pride and tell the club manager that the golf pro is under par in integrity. And don't get so chummy with professional swingers again unless you can remember to keep your head down and your eye on your purse!

DEAR ABBY: I have a nodding acquaintance with a woman who goes overboard when it comes to "remembering" people on their birthdays, anniversaries and all the holidays.

She remembers people she never sees and hardly knows, and I, for one, wish that she would quit "remembering" me because I feel guilty if I don't acknowledge her card.

I always write her a "thank-you" note because I don't feel right ignoring her "good wishes." It's easier than calling her on the phone because she likes to visit, and I don't care for long drawn-out telephone conversations. (She kept me on the phone once for nearly an hour when I phoned to thank her for sending me an Easter card.)

Tell me, Abby, is it necessary to acknowledge a greeting card? If you say it isn't, I'll dance for joy. — A BUSY LADY

DEAR BUSY: Don't dance, dear. All expressions of good wishes should be acknowledged. Get a stack of postcards, and do it the easy way.

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school freshman, and my mother still wants me in the house by 12 o'clock sharp every time I go out on a date.

How can I let her know that I'm not a baby any more? — LYNNE

DEAR LYNNE: She knows. That's why she wants you in the house at 12 o'clock sharp.

DEAR ABBY: Is it still "in style" for a young man to ask the father of a young lady for her hand in marriage, or isn't that done any more? Our children, who are 19 and 21, tell us that this is "corny" and that we are old-fashioned to expect it. We would like your opinion. —OLD-FASHIONED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: It may be "corny," but there's a kernel of good manners there. It is a formality, however. When a fellow asks for a lady's "hand," he usually has both feet in the door.

Status offenders

factory worker. She has a drinking problem and throws things at Katie. She told the court Katie tried to kill her, but Katie says her mother beat her and once clawed her neck until it bled.

Today Katie is getting help, but not her mother.

"It's mostly a matter of giving her love and self-esteem," says a house parent. "She never got much attention at home. She doesn't believe she is pretty or worthwhile or that people could love her for herself."

WILLIAM, MARIE, Mark and Katie — all figure in the debate over whether the elders of the city, the juvenile court, should retain jurisdiction over status offenders.

End jurisdiction over status offenders, say groups like the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, the National Juvenile Justice Standards Project and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Courts have harmed, not helped, most children by their coercion, critics believe, because they are not free and they are not getting the care they need. Removing status offenders, they believe, would free the court to concentrate on kids who actually commit crimes.

"Imprisonment of a status offender serves no humanitarian or rehabilitative purpose," says an NCCD policy statement. "It is, instead, unwarranted punishment, unjust because it is disproportionate to the harm done by the child's noncriminal behavior."

Federal Judge Bazelon told a group of judges: "If the juvenile court had no jurisdiction to commit children in such situations, the community would have to come up with a solution. Neither the parents nor the community need to look for solutions while the juvenile court is available.

"You ought to tell the community that you are failures, yes, failures at preventing delinquency and crime."

But groups like the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, the New York State Association of Family Court Judges and the New York State Office of Children's Services argue that courts should keep jurisdiction.

When all else fails, the power of the court is needed, they believe, to protect children from their parents and themselves.

They compare the juvenile justice system and subsequent services to a superhighway leading to a cow path. The answer, they believe, is not to tear down the superhighway, but to improve the cow path.

PALM SPRINGS RAMADA RESORT VISITED

Mercedes diesel is thrifty

Story and Photos
By BILL EMERY
Associate Auto Editor

Palm Springs, the desert playground for youths of all ages, is broadening its image to include gracious homes for classic desert living, convention centers to attract winter conclaves from the far reaches of the cold climates, gourmet dinner houses to hold the attention of the jet set and a cultural center designed to compare with the fine institutions of the world.

To visit one of the newest and the third largest hotel in the Palm Springs area, The Ramada Inn International Hotel-Resort at 1800 E. Palm Canyon Drive, we borrowed a new luxurious Mercedes-Benz 300D from Van Palmer, owner of Palmer Import Motors at 3300 Atlantic Ave., in Long Beach.

Also new from Mercedes-Benz, inventor of the automobile in 1886, is the world's first 5-cylinder diesel passenger car ... the 300D, which was introduced in 1975. A four-door sedan, the 300D is an unusual blend of luxury, performance and economy matched to the incomparable engineering of the renouned German motorcar manufacturer.

Mercedes-Benz built the first diesel engine passenger car in 1936. The early diesel cars were efficient and economical, but not too quick in the initial pickup of speed. Down through the years, the performance was improved, and, with the introduction of the 5-cylinder 300D model, the performance is comparable to that of gasoline-engined cars.

With more and more people concerned about low fuel consumption, together with a sensible sized family automobile that's spacious and quality built, the Mercedes fills the bill. Most large cars cannot make it to Palm Springs and back without a fillup on the return run. The 300D made the round trip with more than a half tank of fuel left over and that's with the air conditioning running all the way and with an automatic transmission.

Economy of a diesel engine is further enhanced with the low maintenance requirements. Diesel engines need no sparkplugs, points or distributor and are far less complicated to service.

In addition, their combustion characteristics are so clean burning that diesel engines produce far less pollutants than do gasoline engines and are able to run in California without any emission control devices.

With a 20.6 gallon fuel tank and using the Federal E.P.A. mileage figures for highway driving, the cruising range for the Mercedes-Benz 300D would be 576 miles on each tankful.

Making cars smaller is one way of increasing driving economy, yet it's comforting to know you can still get the fuel economy with a diesel and enjoy safe, roomy transportation for four or five persons with the ultimate in luxury provided by the same Mercedes-Benz engineering that goes into their gasoline-powered luxury sedans.

With the best view of all, The Ramada Inn International Hotel is a self-contained (3-story) oasis of 256 rooms on four sides.

Its spacious grounds are well landscaped with palms, shrubs and grass with a large swimming pool in the center, two outside therapeutic pools and two sauna facilities (for men and women) inside.

Patio dining and bar service add to the luxury accommodations of the resort hotel. Guests can also enjoy room service for food and beverage.

A touch of levity in the Sunshine room coffee shop will force a smile on patrons who take the troubles of the day too serious. If the waitress can't get you to smile when they greet you for your order, you'll smile when they leave your table. Each has a large "happy face" covering her posterior.

Conventions are big business in Palm Springs and the Ramada International offers banquet facilities for up to 350 persons and a convention center with a capacity of anywhere from 20 to 550.

Hotel guests need not look elsewhere for gourmet dining and entertainment. The Smoke Tree dining room features excellent cuisine along with entertainment six nights a week except Monday. Dennis Ogden, guitarist, entertains from 6 p.m. until 9 with his velvet tones and Kenney Coleman and friends provide dancing music at its finest from 9 until 2. The four-piece group just arrived from the Princess Hotel in Acapulco, Mexico. Vocalist Coleman is backed by a guitarist, piano and drums and the group has an allure to music lovers of all ages.

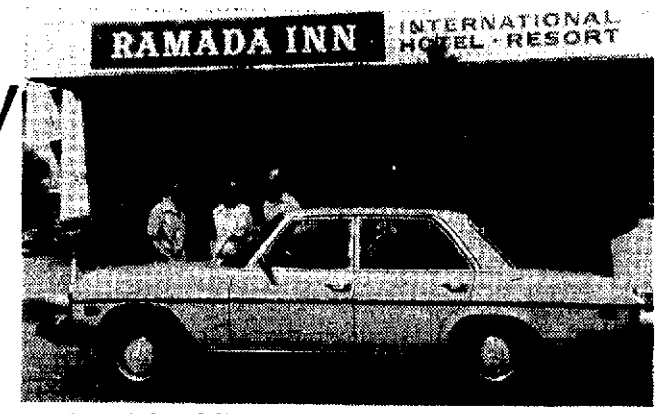

In downtown Palm Springs on the site of the former Desert Inn Hotel, a new dimension in cultural expression was dedicated January 24, 1976, the Palm Springs Desert Museum. A tri-faceted exhibition center, the museum offers the immensity of the desert natural science, the delight of the performing arts and the broadest spectrum of art.

Three courtyards feature sculpture art and dancing fountains, The art wing offers a constantly changing panorama of internationally important exhibitions in its galleries including the works of Picasso and Matisse and the Annenberg Theater offers an opulent setting for the performing arts. The Natural Science Wing, in its four extensive galleries, is an interpretation of the immediate desert environment and its neighboring regions.

A tram ride from the desert to the top of Mount San Jacinto is a revealing panoramic picture of development in the lower desert. Palm Springs is "where it's at" and the new Mercedes-Benz 300D is the uncompromising way to go there in style and comfort.

MGR. CAL VANDER WOUDE EYES 5-CYLINDER DIESEL

COLEMAN AND FRIENDS ENTERTAIN NIGHTLY

TRAM CONNECTS DESERT WITH MOUNTAIN TOP

The 5-cylinder Mercedes-Benz 300D.

Another engineering milestone that has quietly inspired a change in design.

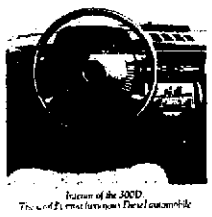

The Mercedes-Benz 300D has quietly changed the rules of the automobile game. This 5-cylinder Diesel automobile is an engineering milestone that offers a unique combination of performance, luxury, economy and quality.

In fact, the Mercedes-Benz 300D has inspired new thinking in automotive design. It is the most powerful, the most responsive and the swiftest Diesel passenger car ever sold.

For other manufacturers, a car with the myriad blessings of the 300D is somewhere far down the road. The 300D is here now. With it, Mercedes-Benz underscores its reputation for establishing new standards.

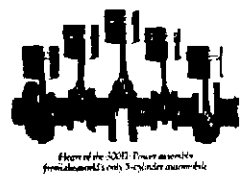

Unique in all the world

Four decades ago, Mercedes-Benz demonstrated the benefits of Diesel power. Now, the 5-cylinder engine in the 300D widely expands that list. It banishes forever the image of the Diesel as a rough, noisy workhorse. The 300D is indeed a thoroughbred.

Interior of the 300D.
The world's most luxurious Diesel automobile.

Unlike any other make, the 300D takes advantage of pre-combustion chamber Diesel engine design. This development, pioneered by Mercedes-Benz, delivers a longer, smoother power pulse as well as more efficient combustion. The result: A combination of mileage and exhaust emission levels that no comparable gasoline-engined sedan can approach.

Heart of the 300D. Power automobile from the world's only 5-cylinder mass-built.

Of course, the exact mileage you get depends on how and where you drive, as well as the condition and equipment of your automobile. But according to estimates published by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (highway driving: 28 mpg; city driving: 22 mpg), the 20.6-gallon fuel supply of the 300D should have no trouble letting it cruise 500 highway miles between fill-ups.

Even if all your driving were in town, your 300D should stop-and-go more than 400 miles on a single tank. Compare that to your present car.

No tune-ups — ever

When you do stop for fuel, a 300D offers several more pleasant surprises. First, Diesel fuel is usually cheaper than even regular gasoline. Countrywide, the difference averages 4¢-7¢ per gallon less. Second, Diesel fuel is plentiful. Thousands and thousands of stations sell it all across America. Third, since Diesel fuel has more energy per gallon than gasoline, every gallon not only costs you less, it takes you farther.

Another plus: With a 300D you can happily forget about that expensive automotive custom known as the conventional tune-up. Because it has no spark plugs, points, distributor, condenser or carburetor, the Mercedes-Benz 300D never, never needs one.

The complete sedan

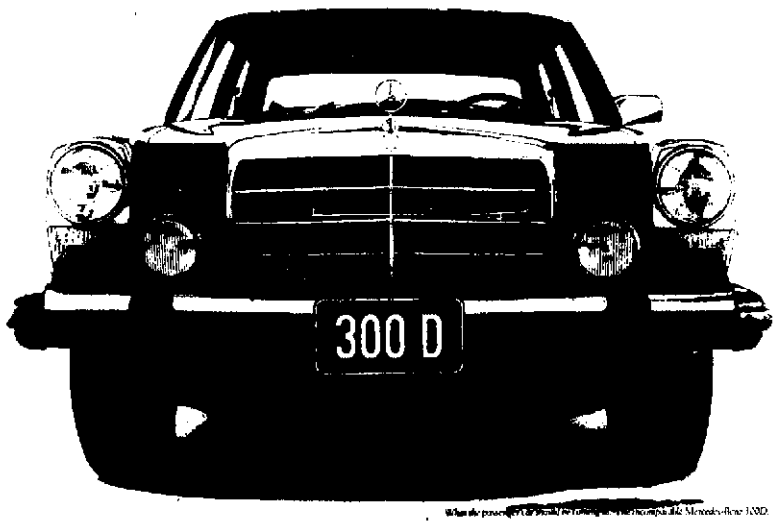

When you compare it to most full-sized sedans, the 300D is a materials miser. It is not as big, not as heavy and not as thirsty. But it is every bit as practical and comfortable.

In fact, the 300D is a full 5-passenger sedan. Besides its generous interior, its trunk boasts a spacious 175 cubic feet of volume. On top of that, the 300D abounds with countless examples of innovative Mercedes-Benz safety engineering.

The 300D does lack one thing. A lengthy option list. The reason is its complete array of standard equipment. Included are: Power-assisted steering and brakes, automatic transmission, air conditioning, electric windows, cruise control, central locking system, halogen fog lights and an AM/FM receiver.

The forerunner's reward

Clearly, the 300D goes a long way towards previewing the sedan of the future. As a result, this forerunner will doubtless be a standout in a final key area. Resale value. Over the past five years Mercedes-Benz automobiles have held their value better than any other make of luxury car sold in America. It stands to reason that the 300D will be no exception. After all, an automobile which is years ahead today is bound to be a sound asset while the others are trying to catch up tomorrow.

What the powerful 5-cylinder Diesel engine and the incomparable Mercedes-Benz 300D.

Trailing: A pair of skis, a pair of ski boots, a ski bag, a 24" bicycle and two suitcases.

The incomparable Mercedes-Benz 300 Diesel sedan. An engineering triumph that offers you — and the entire automotive world — a look into the future. An automobile whose combination of performance, economy, luxury and innovation has quietly advanced passenger car design a giant step.

Special Offer from Wrigley's Gum

only $1.00 each

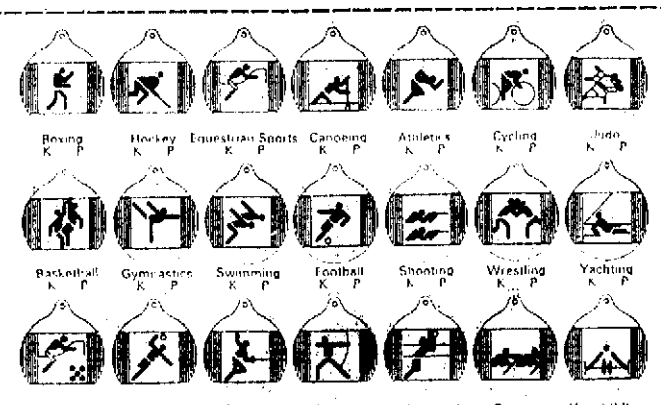

with one wrapper from any package of Wrigley's Gum.

Now you can get any or all of the 21 Olympic Games Insignias struck by the Hamilton Mint in deep, sharp relief on 1¼" diameter solid bronze. And you have a choice of 2 styles: Insignia on key ring, or on 24" neck pendant chain.

You might expect to pay a lot for the solid bronze and expensive look of these insignias. But now, while supplies last, Wrigley's Gum offers you any of the 21 Olympic Games Insignias, in either key ring or neck pendant style. For each insignia you want, send one wrapper from any package of Wrigley's Gum and $1.00.

Official Supplier to the 1976 Olympic Games

How to order:

1. Indicate each insignia ordered by circling with pen or pencil the "K" or "P" below the desired insignia shown at left. Circle "K" if you want Key Ring style. Circle "P" if you want Pendant style.
2. For each insignia you want, send one wrapper from any package of Wrigley's Gum and $1.00. Print your name and address below and mail to:

Abe Vigoda — .big Fish now

Mary, Mary spawns very, very unusual news program

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Can a conservative, serious-minded newscaster from a small town in the Midwest find happiness as coanchorman on television's most far-out news program?

That's the question facing Charles Rowe, who makes up one-half of TV's latest "Odd Couple."

Chuck Ashman is the other half, and Ashman and Rowe aren't starring in a situation comedy or even a soap opera — but, rather, are the anchormen on a legitimate news program with comic and soap opera overtones.

The show, in case you've overlooked it, is "MetroNews, MetroNews," and it airs weeknights from 11:30 to midnight on KTTV (Channel 11), the Metromedia television station in Los Angeles.

"MetroNews, MetroNews" follows "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" on Channel 11, and draws both its name and its style from Norman Lear's popular soap opera parody.

Since both newsmen are named Chuck, it's a wonder the program wasn't called "Chuck, Chuck and the News, News," or even "Chuck and Upchuck With the News."

What gave rise to the unusual program? Why, that's easy to answer. It was, simply enough, the tremendous success of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," the nationally syndicated comic serial that started running Jan. 5 on Channel 11. Placed opposite the late-night news roundups of the three major networks' affiliated stations in Los Angeles, "MH, MH" quickly proved there are a lot of viewers in the L.A. area who prefer chuckles to hard news — at least, from 11 to 11:30 at night.

Executives at KTTV put their heads together to figure out how to hold on to the "MH, MH" fans — made up largely of young, hip viewers in the desirable 18-to-34-year-age bracket — and came up with the idea for "MetroNews, MetroNews," which would entertain viewers while offering, at the same time, a certain amount of information.

For anchors, they chose Rowe as the straight man and Ashman, who admits to being a ham, as the far-out, off-the-wall humor man.

ROWE, WHO also anchors a straight news program with Barbara Simpson on Channel 11 from 10:30 to 11, sees "MetroNews, MetroNews" as the next step beyond the "happy talk" format that has taken hold on many news programs in recent years.

"I came to KTTV from WLS in Chicago, which was one of the first of the happy talk stations and very successful at it," Rowe told me at lunch in the Hollywood Brown Derby. It was a little over two years ago that Chuck came to KTTV after five years in Chicago, where he had anchored the morning and Saturday night news on WLS-TV (an ABC-owned station) and also done radio newscasts for the ABC-FM network.

Rowe, who pointed out that "MN, MN" has been called "the National Enquirer of television journalism" and who labeled it "a newscast for people who hate newscasts," admitted that he had reservations about doing the show at first. Why? He was afraid it might lessen his credibility as a serious newscaster and be harmful to his career in the future.

The show went on the air in early February as a three-week experiment, and, by now, Rowe is pretty well convinced that it isn't going to hurt him. "If I thought it was," he said, "I'd quit."

Although "MN, MN" emphasizes soft, feature-type news items about unusual characters and events (often of a sexual and-or humorous nature), Rowe pointed out that a number of brief hard-news stories also are woven into the program.

Ashman is the clown of the two, but Rowe thinks highly of his partner's ability as a serious newsman, also. "He is, as you know, an excellent investigative reporter, and has broken some big stories on the program," Rowe said.

The more flamboyant of the two Chucks, Ashman has been a lawyer and has written books on Henry Kissinger, Martha Mitchell and John Connally, as well as one titled "The Finest Judges Money Can Buy." He had an interview series on Channel 11 called "The Ashman File" before being tapped for "MN, MN."

IN ADDITION to lending a measure of seriousness to "MetroNews, MetroNews," Rowe brings considerable sex appeal to the show for women viewers. Gilda Franklin, a KTTV publicist who dined with us at the Brown Derby, terms him "outrageously handsome."

Adds Gilda: "You just see him walk down the hall and you wonder how God put that much effort into one person."

The 6-foot blond, who turns 37 next

DAVID SOUL, who stars as Ken (Hutch) Hutchinson on ABC's "Starsky and Hutch" police series, has been a skier since he was 7. Here, he shares a ski-lift ride with actress Lynne Marta and shows his skill on the slopes in a visit to Aspen, Colo.

'Starsky and Hutch' is a series with Soul

By JIM O'BRIEN
Knight News Wire

PHILADELPHIA — "I'm Soul. He's Glaser."

That was emblazoned on the back of the orange sweatshirt worn by David Soul the other day while here to tape a Mike Douglas show.

Early in the TV season the shirt might have read, "I'm Hutch. He's Starsky," but now the two stars of the popular ABC-TV series are becoming known under their own names.

Soul is the slender, blond young man and plays Hutch while Paul Michael Glaser is Starsky.

RIGHT OFF, I had to ask Soul how he felt about ABC moving the series to Saturday nights next season.

"I guess I'm disappointed," Soul said reluctantly, after some pushing. Obviously, the stars of a new TV series usually have nothing to say about program scheduling.

"Starsky and Hutch" is popular among young people who presumably are dating or roaming around on Saturday nights.

"There's no point in my worrying about the schedule. I'm more concerned about learning my craft, broadening my career and doing the best I can to help improve the show," Soul said.

BROADENING his career means other acting chores during the off-season and more emphasis on the music and singing that many of his fans will find surprising.

"I'm doing an album now in San Francisco and most of the songs are my own compositions. I guess you'd call the songs contemporary," he said.

What many of Soul's fans don't know is that he began his show business career as a hooded singer on the Merv Griffin show a decade ago when the show was produced in New York City. Soul appeared 25 times on the show wearing the hood and it attracted a fair amount of attention but did not make him a star.

"Actually, acting is what I always wanted to do, but music helped me break into show business," he said.

SOUL WAS born in Chicago, lived with his parents in Germany for a time and later was graduated from high school in Sioux Falls, S.D., where he played American Legion baseball and was good enough to get an offer from the Chicago White Sox to join their farm system.

As for "broadening" his career, Soul soon will make a movie for TV but, as he puts it, "I'm not too happy with the present script."

Soul said sudden stardom has not changed his lifestyle.

"I'm still living in the same dumpy place in Sherman Oaks (Calif.)." He's living there with his lady, actress Lynne Marta.

Abe Vigoda, at 55, is big Fish at last

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

People who once wondered how anyone could enjoy the antics of grumpy, bigoted Archie Bunker may now ponder another television mystery:

What's the appeal of a tired old police detective who has bad feet, hemorrhoids, a chronic case of the blues and a bothersome wife?

For such is the character of Sgt. Fish on ABC's "Barney Miller" — a role that has made a star out of a 55-year-old, heretofore little known actor named Abe Vigoda.

VIGODA is recognized everywhere he goes these days. He is asked to appear on the TV game shows. Someone wants him to star in a Broadway play. Policemen stop him on the street to request photographs to hang in the station. And ABC may spin off an entire series on Fish.

Max Gail, costar of the series, offers this explanation:

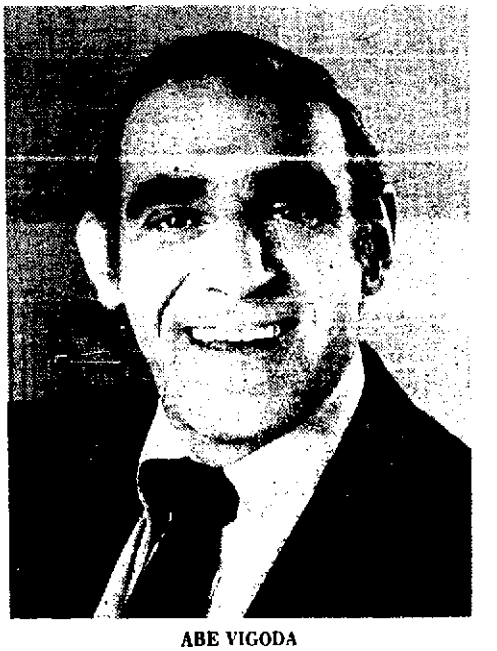

"My belief is that people respond to what's human. The character is so complete, so human. Things like going to the bathroom or being tired — simple, human things ..."

"Fish has been on the force for 38 years," Vigoda explains. "He's not unhappy but he is pessimistic. He knows things don't always turn out the way they should."

IT'S NO surprise that Vigoda can project this insight. He struggled for 25 years as an actor, earning a living and playing some good roles but never receiving the serious attention his better known peers got.

DAVID SOUL

ABE VIGODA

"Abe Vigoda," says Abe Vigoda, "... knows the meaning of what the man is going through ... He's been through it, so he knows it."

Vigoda says he knew he wanted to be an actor from the time he was 6 years old. But it wasn't until after World War II, with money from the GI Bill, that he was able to afford training.

VIGODA landed his first professional job in 1947 and launched a career that seemed certain to be limited to supporting roles in stage plays.

What finally turned things around for Vigoda was a key role in the movie "The Godfather" as Tessio, the friend who betrays Don Corleone.

The movie was released in the spring of 1972 and Vigoda suddenly found himself in demand. A rash of Mafia and bad guy roles followed in films and TV cop shows. Then in 1974 a guest appearance on "The Sandy Duncan Show" brought him to the attention of the "Barney Miller" producers, who were then casting their new series.

NOW the wrinkled face and bushy eyebrows are known to television watchers throughout the country, and Vigoda confides with disbelief that his income is now at a six-figure level.

Talk of his recent good fortune brings out another difference between actor and character — Abe Vigoda is an optimist. Says he of success: "It happened in my middle age. It's amazing.

"So I say to anyone, whether you're an actor or a lawyer or a carpenter, never give up. You can make it any time in your life. Success doesn't happen just in your youth. It takes perseverance and belief in yourself — and, above all else, hard work."

Radio newsman

Glenn Roach, a newsman for radio station 2SM in Sydney, Australia, and the Australian correspondent for ABC News in New York, will spend the month of May working as a reporter for radio station KMPC.

A look at Nielsen 'family'

(Rarely does the public see how A.C. Nielsen conducts its TV audience surveys. This is one of those rare views.)

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When the A.C. Nielsen ratings company asked a Manhattan family to keep a diary of its television-watching for a week, the young man on the phone accepted readily.

He wanted to see how the system works, so he didn't tell the company that the man they were looking for — his grandfather — had been dead 11 years.

He only explained that his home had three residents and three black and white TV sets.

And so it came to pass that the 21-year-old man, his 23-year-old sister and their 43-year-old mother were mailed Nielsen diaries. The diaries covered a period from 6 p.m. on Thursday, March 18, to 1:59 a.m. on Thursday, March 25.

They had become a Nielsen family in America's largest, richest television market.

NIELSEN says it mailed 3,700 diaries to willing viewers in the New York area in March.

Each home to which the diaries were sent, Nielsen says, represents 3,200 households. The responses only will affect the ratings, programming and financial fortunes of New York area stations.

They aren't part of the national Nielsen surveys of viewing habits, which are done in two ways. One is with an Audimeter, hooked to TV sets in 1,200 homes. It records what is watched, but not who is watching.

The other method is a diary kept by 2,400 persons across the United States. Each diarist records who is watching what and when. Each diary is personally delivered by a Nielsen agent who gets from each household data dear to advertisers — age, sex, education, income, that sort of thing.

Nielsen says the national diaries cover 34 weeks of viewing, with only a third of the 2,400 homes filling in diaries on a given week. The rest have to wait their turn.

BY CONTRAST, our New York area Nielsen family only got to fill in the diary for a week, no more. The family's fun ended March 25. The results of the survey won't be available to Nielsen subscribers until this week.

The family put down their age, sex, race, the non-English languages they speak — Czech and French, in this case — and the language they speak when together, English.

They also noted the number of TV sets in their home, that all three sets worked and that one was plugged in to both cable TV and to Home Box Office, a pay TV operation supplying recent movies and special shows.

And they put down that they can watch programs on seven VHF channels — three stations being

Trouble in paradise for Lord

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press

Jack Lord, Hawaii's most famous cop, flew to his onetime home town of Los Angeles for a brief visit and he was angry.

"We've been kicked out of our studio," said Lord, whose own nature doesn't stray far from the tight-lipped Steve McGarrett of "Hawaii Five-O."

He referred to the fact that the television company had been bumped out of its studio by the National Guard, which had leased out the property since the early days of the television series.

JACK LORD

"ANY OTHER state of the union would have given us the property for $1 a year," continued Lord. "But not Hawaii. Now we've got to find another location for the indoor sets.

"We probably won't be able to establish another studio in time to start the ninth season on May 10, so we'll have to 'vamp' by going to Hong Kong for a two-parter. Except for one show we filmed partly in California, this will be the first time we have ever shot outside Hawaii."

Unlike some series stars who merely appear on the set and read their lines, Lord has always taken an intense interest in "Hawaii Five-O." Some say his interest was too intense, and the early years of the series were marked by friction between star and production personnel. He nagged for better actors and directors, sharper scripts, fidelity to the McGarrett character.

His persistence has paid off.

"Do you realize that we're the longest-running dramatic series in the history of television — after 'Gunsmoke' and 'Bonanza'?" he cited proudly. "When we started out in 1967, we were the only police show on the air. Now there are 23 — which is too many."

ODDLY, McGarrett started out to be a detective at one of the big Waikiki hotels. But in the planning stages that concept ran into what Lord called Lafferty's Law — named after its originator, Perry Lafferty, until recently a CBS executive on the West Coast.

"Perry had the theory that the hero of a dramatic series should have life-

A look at how Nielsen conducts its surveys

network-owned — and four UHF channels.

For their help, they received a "token" of Nielsen's appreciation — four quarters.

WE HAVE given them false names for this article — the 21-year-old will be called "Jack," his sister "Jill," and their mother "Prudence."

What sort of jurors were they? Ideal, from one standpoint: Their age span was 21 to 43. The networks consider viewers aged 18 to 49 the most desirable audience. Such folks usually have more money to spend than other age groups.

Two other pluses: Each was employed and each was attending college, a good combination of spending power and better-than-average education.

A check of their diaries showed that Jack, Jill and Prudence had, over a week's time, watched a total of 42 hours of TV. Nielsen says that was about the average for a household in 1975.

But the networks didn't fare too well. The jurors saw only 12 hours of network programs, only 3½ hours of that in prime evening time, and they watched no daytime network shows at all on weekdays.

THEY ALSO proved no fans of local TV news programs offered by Fun City's six commercial stations. They didn't watch any. Nor did they watch any early-morning network show, not even NBC's "Today" show.

But they did watch 10½ hours of non-network shows on cable TV or pay TV on the set in Jill's room, while 6½ more hours went for noncommercial public TV programs on station WNET-TV here.

The remaining 13 hours were spent watching local entertainment shows on the commercial network-owned or independent stations.

PRUDENCE was the big public TV buff in the house. She watched 5½ hours of such public TV shows as "The Adams Chronicles" and "Bill Moyers' Journal." Her 2½ other hours were spent on Sunday, watching a pro tennis match on NBC by day and "60 Minutes" at night on CBS.

Six of Jack's 18 TV hours were spent watching pro or college basketball games on cable TV. He also spent another six hours watching "Star Trek" reruns on independent station WPIX.

He logged but four network hours — one night of NBC's "Tonight" show, and on a Monday night the "CBS Evening News" and ABC's "Buster and Billie" movie. He also watched one night of "Adams Chronicles" on public TV, and a movie for an hour on WNEW, an independent outlet.

JILL, WHO works until midnight five days a week, spent only 5½ of her 16 viewing hours on network shows — four nights of NBC's late-night "Tomorrow" show, one hour per show, and an hour's worth of NBC's 90-minute "Saturday Night" program.

She also saw ABC's half-hour "Make a Wish" kid show on Sunday. Another 4½ hours went for two recent movies on pay TV, the rest on a one-hour local talk show and late-night movies on commercial stations.

She didn't watch any public TV, mainly because she was working during the prime-time hours the better shows of public TV are aired.

PRUDENCE, a divorcee who works as an executive secretary and is studying economics at Hunter College here, was asked why the bulk of her viewing involved public TV instead of commercial programs.

"Because I find the programs are so much better," she said briskly.

We asked the three Nielsen jurors one last and no doubt foolish question: Do they consider themselves typical viewers?

"Obviously not," said Prudence, the public TV fan.

"I hope not. I really hope not," laughed daughter Jill.

Brother Jack was most emphatic that he wasn't a typical viewer.

"No way, because I know some typical viewers," he said. "And they turn on the tube and they sit there, and anything that plays they watch.

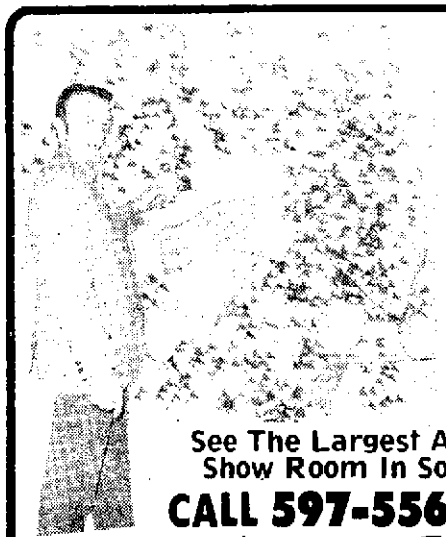

CAROL LAWRENCE and Monty Hall join Juan Cantu, 10, to remind viewers of the 19-hour Variety Club Telethon '76, starting at 11 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 5. Funds raised will aid the show business group's projects for handicapped children in Southern California.

Trouble in paradise for Lord

or-death power over what happens," said Lord.

"That seems to hold true, whether the hero is a marshal, a detective or a surgeon."

Lord and his wife, Marie, were in Southern California on one of their four-times-a-year visits. Hawaii is now their home and will be forever, he asserted, despite the inhospitality on the studio rental.

"I love the islands, they are so fresh and clean and washed by the gentle rain," he said.

"MY ONLY regret is that I can't see Marie for eight months. That's the kind of schedule we have. It's necessary to shoot 24 shows back-to-back without a hiatus. The reason is that we have an entire crew on subsistence, so we can't afford to lay them off.

"When we start a season we must have 13 scripts ready to go. It takes a lot of doing to keep the scripts up to a consistent quality, and I must say that Philip Leacock, the executive producer, and Doug Green, the producer on location, do a fantastic job. We discard one script out of four — actually pay the writer off without using his work. It's better to do that than to do a script we don't believe in."

How much longer can "Hawaii Five-O" continue?

"I'd like to carry it to the tenth year, no longer. What then? I'd like to direct a picture and have responsibility for the whole canvas, not just contributing colors as an actor."

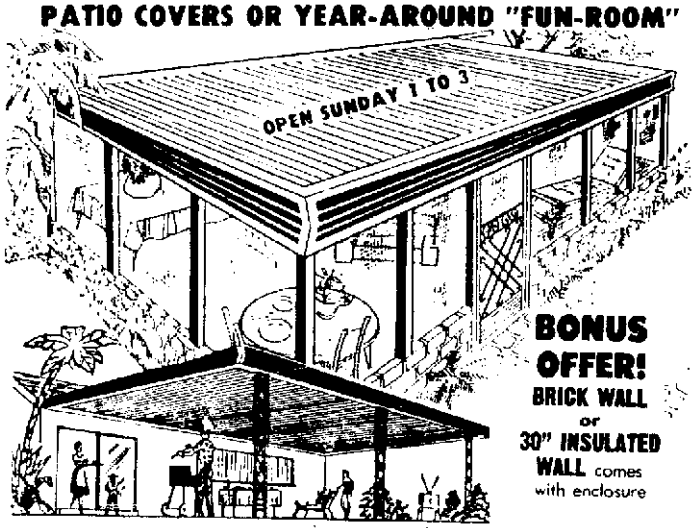

CLAUDE AKINS thinks the series in which he stars, NBC's "Movin' On," is partly responsible for the soaring interest in citizens' band radio.

SPECIAL

CHRISTOS ANESTI (2), 8:00 a.m. — Greek Orthodox celebration of Easter with message by Archbishop Iakovos, Primate of the Greek Orthodox Church of North and South America.

NAT'L GEOGRAPHIC SPECIAL (11), 6:00 p.m. — "The World of Jacques-Yves Cousteau." The adventures of six pioneers who live 328 feet beneath the Mediterranean Sea in Conshelf Three, a balloon-shaped sea house.

MOVIE (7), 9:00 p.m. — "Gold." Roger Moore, Susannah York, Ray Milland, Bradford Dillman. Thousands of miners are trapped underground by a raging current of water from a broken dam in South Africa as financiers scheme to control the gold market. TV PREMIERE MOVIE

MASTERPIECE THEATRE (28), 9:00 p.m. — "Sunset Song." Set in a small farming community in northeast Scotland in the early 1900s, the story concerns the only daughter of a stern farmer and his long-suffering wife, who is forced to choose between her love of the land and her love of learning. Six-part drama by Scottish author Lewis Grassic Gibbon.

VIVIEN HEILBRON plays Chris Guthrie as she evolves from a carefree teen-ager into a woman in love and then a wife-and-mother in "Sunset Song," a six-part "Masterpiece Theatre" series beginning at 9 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 28. The miniseries, based on Lewis Grassic Gibson's novel, was filmed in Scotland.

RICHARD MULLIGAN, as Thomas Jefferson, stars on the historical drama series "The Rebels" at 3 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4.

What some people won't do to turn back the clock!

From face-lifts to mod clothes, the relentless pursuit of eternal youth is big business today. And this week John Hambrick will explore it all in a whimsical yet factual series of reports.

He'll look at plastic surgery, hair transplants, wigs, perms . . . the whole works.

Tune in for a very uplifting experience.

The BIBLE Says

J. T. Smith

MIRACLES HAVE CEASED #1

For the next few weeks, we are going to be discussing the subject of Bible miracles, and the so-called miracles of today.

One of the first things that we must understand is that the word "miracle" is used in such a loose sense today that almost everything that is a little out of the ordinary is classified as a miracle. Thus, it is absolutely essential to our study that we understand what a miracle is. A miracle is a demonstration of supernatural intervention, either directly upon an object or person or through some person or agent, in which no natural force is responsible for the effect produced. In order to be able to study with us effectively on this subject, you will need to keep this article with this definition of what a miracle is. Thus, a miracle either transcends natural law or suspends it in order to achieve an effect designed by the Lord.

I know of no one who believes the Bible who does not agree that all three dispensations were ushered in by miracles. Creation and the beginning of all things came as a result of miracles. When we read the first three chapters of Genesis we see that these things which began with miracles were to continue to exist — but not because they were continually brought into existence by a miracle, but because God began what we refer to as the "law of nature," that is everything bringing forth "after its own kind."

As we read the first three chapters of Genesis, we observe that there was more than one person with the power to perform in this creation. "And God said let US make man in OUR image, and after OUR likeness" (Genesis 1:26). Thus, all three persons in the Godhead (Father, Son, and Holy Spirit) were instrumental in creation (Genesis 1:2 and John 1:1-3).

Also when we read the first five books of the Old Testament, we learn that the Mosaic dispensation was ushered in by a number of miracles (burning bush that Moses observed that was not consumed; ten plagues; waters of the Red Sea; giving of the ten commandments at Mt. Sinai, etc.) No Bible believer will deny that according to our definition, all these were miracles.

A TOUCH OF CLASS

Most of our pools are more than $3995

Because . . . most of our customers want a complete pool with accessories and trim that make their pool unique.

You will be delightfully surprised at just how competitive our prices are.

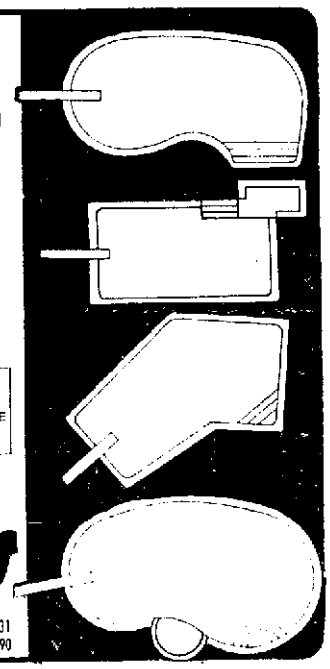

It is reassuring to know that you are dealing with a non-franchised company that is financially sound and has been in business over 22 yrs. Call for free estimate.

SPECIAL

DISASTER: HOW & WHY (7), 7:30 p.m. — 1933 So. Calif. (Long Beach) earthquake. Dr. George Fischbeck hosts.

PRINCESS IDA (28), 7:00 p.m.—A performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Princess Ida" by Gilbert and Sullivan Society of Houston, Texas, and the members of the Houston Symphony Orchestra. A biting satire on the women's education movement of Gilbert's day.

MOVIE (4), 9:00 p.m.—"Law of the Land." After two dance hall girls are slain, a frontier sheriff and his four young deputies conduct a tension-filled hunt to prevent the attacker from striking again. Jim Davis, Don Johnson, Charlie Martin Smith, Cal Bellini and Nicholas Hammond star. World Premiere Drama.

2 producers

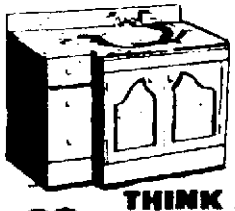

James Heinz and Douglas Green have been appointed producers of "Hawaii Five-O," which will begin its ninth season on the air next fall.

Heinz will be based in Hollywood. Green will be based in Hawaii, regular filming location for the CBS production. Both will report to executive producer Philip Leacock.

A DAREDEVIL airplane wing walker, played by actress Lee Purcell, infatuates John-Boy (Richard Thomas) on Thursday night's repeat episode of "The Waltons," at 8 on Ch. 2.

CHUCK ROWE

month, said he has gotten propositions from many female viewers, by mail and phone, but indicated that he isn't the sort of guy to follow up on such things (certainly not, if a photo isn't enclosed). He is, however, a bachelor, but has been married and has a daughter that lives with her mother near Seattle.

Chuck grew up in the town of Chadron, Neb. (population about 5,000), and competed in football, basketball and track (100-yard dash) in high school and at Nebraska State University, which is in Chadron. He studied electrical engineering in college (his father and an uncle are electricians), but quit school after two years when the radio station he was working for offered him a full-time job. He continued in radio, chiefly as a newscaster, until 1966, working at stations in several states, including Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon.

Ten years ago, he shifted from radio to TV newscasting when he landed a job at KCBY in Coos Bay, Ore., and then worked at KXTV in Sacramento as an anchorman for a couple of years before moving to WLS-TV in Chicago.

Chuck would appear to have a bright future as a TV newscaster, regardless of what kind of future is in store for "MetroNews, MetroNews." At least, he likes to think that life can be beautiful.

Sears Bros Armstrong
Presents . . . Solarian®

Solarian from Armstrong the sunny floor that shines without waxing
Solarian's high shine comes from its Mirabond™ wear surface, a special formulation that will retain its gloss — without waxing — far longer than any ordinary vinyl floor.
It's also easier to keep clean. Spills, tracked-in dirt — even black heel marks — come up easily.
Approx. $1.94 for a 9 x 12 Room Installed

TV MOVIE TIPS

TODAY

"You're Never Too Young," 3 p.m., Ch. 2 (1955). Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Diana Lynn. Theft of a large diamond and the search for it by police and thief, create background for a zany Martin and Lewis escapade.

"Bus Stop," 7 p.m., Ch. 9 (1956). Marilyn Monroe, Arthur O'Connell, Hope Lange. Comedy drama of a collection of travelers who arrive at some truths about themselves while snowbound at an Arizona bus stop.

"Gold," 9 p.m., Ch. 7 (1974). Roger Moore, Susannah York, Ray Milland, Bradford Dillman. Drama of international intrigue of miners who are trapped underground by a raging current of water from a broken dam in So. Africa as financiers scheme to control the gold market.

MONDAY

"A Girl Named Sooner," 8 p.m., Ch. 4. Lee Remick, Richard Crenna, Don Murray, Anne Francis, Cloris Leachman, Susan Deer. Story of an 8-yr.-old waif who is taken into the home of a childless couple and enriches their lives immeasurably.

"El Dorado," 8:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1967). John Wayne, Robert Mitchum, James Caan. An angry gunfighter sobers up a drunken sheriff to settle an old score. (Due to mature subject matter, parental discretion is advised.)

"Go Ask Alice," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1972). Wm. Shatner, Andy Griffith, Ruth Roman, Jamie Smith-Jackson. This film is the true story of a teenage girl caught in the vicious web of drug addiction and is based on her anonymous diaries.

TUESDAY

"Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1965). (Pt. I). Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Joseph Cotton, Agnes Moorehead. A woman returns to the family mansion to help her cousin, an aging, demented ex-Southern belle, who is re-living the murder of her married lover many years before. (Pt. II shown 3:30 p.m., 4/28)

"The Delta Factor," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1970). Mickey Spillane spy drama of an innocent man, framed for a robbery, who makes a deal for his freedom: either return to prison or rescue a scientist held captive in the Caribbean.

WEDNESDAY

"Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (Pt. II). See Tuesday, above.

"Catlow," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1971). Yul Brynner, Richard Crenna. A cattle rustler/gold robber is sought by both the Apaches and the Mexicans who would like to see him dead. His only hope for survival is the Marshal, a former war buddy, who would like to see him hang.

THURSDAY

"Law of the Land," 9 p.m., Ch. 4. Jim Davis, Don Johnson, Charlie Martin Smith, Barbara Parkins. A frontier lawman and his young deputies make a frantic search to identify a psychopath with a deadly vendetta against prostitutes.

FRIDAY

"Mrs. Sundance," 9:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1973). Elizabeth Montgomery, Robert Foxworth. When Etta Place, the widow of the Sundance Kid, hears that he did not die with Butch Cassidy, she heads for their old hide-out, not knowing that she is in jeopardy from bounty hunters.

SATURDAY

"That Darn Cat," 8 p.m., Ch. 4. Dean Jones, Hayley Mills. Full-length Disney film of a quick-tempered Siamese cat whose propensity for roaming through the neighborhood at night provides the occasion to stumble upon two bank robbers and their hostage in hiding.

"Future Cop," 8 p.m., Ch. 7 (1976). Ernest Borgnine and Michael Shannon star in a comedy/drama of an old-line street cop and his young rookie partner who is an android.

FORD BUCHEN NESSEN

Q. One of President Ford's most trusted advisers is his old law partner, Phil Buchen—sweet, kind Phil Buchen of Grand Rapids. I understand Buchen is responsible for the resignation of President Ford's first press secretary, Jerald terHorst, and the near resignation of Ford's second press secretary, Ron Nessen. What's the story?—M.P., Alexandria, Va.

A. Buchen is President Ford's lawyer. It was he who helped arrange during the summer of 1974 President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon. President Ford, of course, knew all about the pardon, as did Gen. Alexander Haig; Jack Marsh, a Ford counselor; Benton Becker, an attorney who was helping Buchen, and of course Jack Miller, Nixon's attorney.

Buchen claims he was under Presidential mandate to tell no one, including Jerald terHorst, about the Nixon pardon negotiations. When terHorst told Buchen he had received press inquiries concerning Benton Becker's presence in San Clemente and asked Buchen what he knew about it, Buchen revealed nothing about the pardon. He said Becker had been to San Clemente to negotiate the return of Nixon's Presidential papers. Buchen admits now that he was guilty of a "half lie."

The truth is that President Ford did not trust his own press secretary of the time, Jerald terHorst, with the truth about the Nixon pardon negotiations, and neither did Buchen. Which is why terHorst resigned.

TerHorst was replaced by Ron Nessen, who this past March threatened to resign—again because the Ford team refused to take the press secretary into their confidence. On March 13, Richard Nixon sent a report to President Ford about his February, 1976, trip to China. When the press asked Nessen about the report, Nessen denied that any such report had been received at the White House. Nessen did not know that he was telling a falsehood, because neither Buchen nor Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Ford's national security adviser, Ford nor Kissinger—all of whom knew about the report—had told him the truth. The fact was that they had received such a report from Nixon, read it, then returned it to San Clemente. Buchen and Scowcroft did not tell Nessen about the Nixon report because they were fearful that, under the Freedom of Information Act, some journalist might apply for it and that, under the act, the Nixon report would have had to be made available.

The fairy tale that the Ford Administration is an "open one" is exactly that, a fairy tale. Gerald Ford did not completely trust his first press secretary, and there is evidence that neither he nor members of his staff completely trust his second.

Q. Does actress Lauren Bacall have a secret British lover who flies to this country every month to see her?—Kay Sardella, Atlantic City, N. J.

A. Lauren Bacall, 51, and English actor Basil Hoskins, 46, are "good friends." They worked together in "Applause" in London 3½ years ago and were attracted to each other. But Hoskins does not fly to the U.S. each month to see Miss Bacall. They see each other when they can—no definite schedule.

Q. Does Fidel Castro have a son?—Raphael Gonzalez, Miami, Fla.

A. Castro's son, Fidel, is in his late 20's, works as an engineer in Cuba.

Q. Omar Sharif and Barbra Streisand—were they ever lovers?—B. B. Holdridge, San Diego, Cal.

A. Yes, tempestuous ones.

SHARIF AND STREISAND IN 'FUNNY GIRL'

Q. In your opinion, how good are Jimmy Carter's chances of winning the Democratic Presidential nomination? And if not Jimmy, who?—Ralph Lanier, Atlanta, Ga.

JIMMY CARTER AND WIFE ROSALYNN

A. "1600 Pennsylvania Ave." was financed by the Coca-Cola Co., which provided $900,000 and may have to provide more. When the show, which is scheduled to open on Broadway on May 4, tried out in Philadelphia, it received poor reviews. When it moved on to Washington, D.C., it still received poor reviews. Variety, the show business trade paper, panned it as a "Bicentennial bore." The show deals with 100 years of White House history as seen by four generations of a black family whose members have worked as domestics in the White House. The show has been rewritten and cut on the road, hopefully may make it by the time it opens in New York. It offers no big names to help carry the production.

If you are a smoker:

There are many reasons to smoke Now.

If you're a smoker who has been thinking about 'tar' and nicotine, these are the reasons to smoke Now.

Reason: Now is the lowest in 'tar' and nicotine of all cigarettes.

Reason: Now also gives you real smoking satisfaction. Mild and pleasant flavor.

Reason: Now draws free and easy for a cigarette so low in 'tar' and nicotine.

Reason: Only Now has the specially designed filter which makes all this possible for the first time.

Reason: Now comes in both filter and menthol. Either way, you get the lowest 'tar' and nicotine.

You couldn't ask for better reasons to smoke Now.

Now. The lowest 'tar' of all cigarettes.

Sheila Weidenfeld and the First Lady play with a Vietnamese child on the White House lawn. The pert, petite press secretary advised the television appearance on "60 Minutes," and while Mrs. Ford's frankness created a furor, it is now felt that the outcome was salutary in showing her "as she is"—honest and forthright.

Sheila Weidenfeld: The First Lady's Press Secretary

by Lloyd Shearer

WASHINGTON, D.C.

This past August, having turned down more than a dozen TV producers who wanted her boss interviewed on their programs, Sheila Weidenfeld, 32, press secretary to the First Lady, arranged for Mrs. Betty Ford to appear on 60 Minutes, the CBS-TV show presided over by Mike Wallace, Morley Safer and Dan Rather.

"Nobody on the White House staff except me," confides the pert, diminutive (5 ft.) Mrs. Weidenfeld, "wanted the First Lady to do that program. She didn't want to do it herself. But I thought she should. I thought she had to do that talk show or no talk shows at all, because 60 Minutes, in my opinion, is the only program of its type which shows people as they are.

"I felt that the public should see Mrs. Ford as she is, that she was ready for it, and that's why I pressed her to do the show."

Sheila Weidenfeld's decision turned out to be a most repercussive and controversial one.

Unlike her husband who has survived in politics via compromise, waffling, and 180-degree turns, Betty Ford is a woman of candor, forthrightness and honesty.

Touchy questions

When Morley Safer, the fleshy-faced Canadian interviewer on whose 60 Minutes segment she appeared, asked Mrs. Ford her opinions on the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion, and marijuana, the First Lady proved characteristically frank. She favored the ERA. She described the Supreme Court's legalization of abortion as "a great, great decision." And on marijuana, she assumed her four children had probably sampled it (only one has), then added, "It's the type of thing that the young people have to experience, like your first beer or your first cigarette."

Safer, in his facile and friendly manner, edged next onto the ledge of premarital sex. What would the First Lady do, he asked, if she learned her daughter Susan was having an affair?

"Well, I wouldn't be surprised," the First Lady responded. "I think she's a perfectly normal human being like all young girls. If she wanted to continue, I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject. And I'd want to know pretty much about the young man . . . whether it was a worthwhile encounter. She's pretty young to start affairs [but] she's a big girl."

The following week torrents of mail, much of it from outraged Bible Belt citizens, began cascading into the White House mailroom. The letter-writers accused the First Lady of being amoral, immoral, unmoral, radical, careless, over-permissive. The outrage of the radical right is frequently boundless. So, too, is the criticism of self-appointed guardians of the nation's sexual mores.

The mail, to begin with, was overwhelmingly negative, and in the West Wing of the White House where the Monday-morning quarterbacks gather, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, the tiny, effervescent, size-4 gamine, was chosen "the fall guy" and figuratively nailed to the cross.

One staffer denounced her as "a sparrow-brained zany." Another called her "a kooky, irresponsible kid." A third observer said, "As a press secretary she should have her head examined. After all, Sheila comes from the world of television. How could she have allowed an innocent like Mrs. Ford to wander into the clutches of a super-smoothy like Morley Safer?"

She felt lonely

Says Sheila: "I got the feeling around the White House that I had contracted leprosy."

But then gradually the people began to speak out in favor of Mrs. Ford. Newspaper polls were taken on the First Lady's views and a segment of the public rallied to her defense—as if truth, honesty, and perception of one's decent life-style needed defense. Of the 35,000 letters received at the White House as a result of Betty Ford's appearance on 60 Minutes, 23,400 were negative, 11,000 positive.

Sheila Weidenfeld is a bright hyperthyroid type who learns rapidly. Note that since August, 1975, Betty Ford has not been interviewed by any TV talk-show personality. The First Lady has been exposed to newsmen and newswomen of every stripe. She has appeared on TV at various functions, has been photographed at a variety of campaign locations. She has developed into Gerald Ford's foremost election weapon. But Sheila Weidenfeld will not subject Betty Ford to the interview in depth, because Sheila Weidenfeld knows that potentially Betty Ford is dynamite—largely because the First Lady is by nature and habit forthright. She cannot bring herself to lie.

Playing it safe

Betty Ford is a woman of character who speaks her own mind—surely a risky, dangerous woman in an election year. No Bess Truman, Mamie Eisenhower, or Pat Nixon, she. Ask her a question and you get an honest answer. This First Lady must be treated with intelligence, tact, humor, timeliness, dignity, and scheduled with the utmost care. She cannot be allowed to talk on the issues because that's the candidate's prerogative. But her popularity must be taken advantage of. She projects the image of a truthful woman who exerts great influence upon her husband. Betty Ford cries out for special handling. And that's what Sheila Weidenfeld accords her, for the time being at least, playing it safe—very safe.

Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, whose father Maxwell Rabb was secretary for six years of the Eisenhower Administration Cabinet, was producing an early-morning TV talk show (Take It From Here) in Washington, D.C., when on Aug. 11, 1974—two days after Gerald Ford was sworn in as President of the United States—she got a phone call from the new First Lady.

Would Sheila come to the Ford home in Alexandria, Mrs. Ford asked, for an interview? The job in question: press secretary—salary $26,700.

Sheila says that she had never before worked as anyone's press secretary. She had never worked for any newspaper. She had moved from Brookline, Mass., to Washington, D.C., as a child in 1952. Owing to her father's position she had swum in the White House pool, sat in President Eisenhower's chair, and grown up in the company of Establishment people. Her father is a graduate of Harvard, her mother a graduate of Radcliffe.

At Brandeis University Sheila had majored in Latin American history, worked during the summer in Texas and Cambridge, Mass., theaters, and then in 1965 headed for New York in search of a television job.

TV experience

"Everyone," she recalls laughingly, "wanted me to take typing tests. But I wouldn't." She got a job through Larry Fraiberg, general manager of WNEW-TV, one of six stations owned by Metromedia, Inc., then graduated to NBC where she labored as a talent coordinator on the Joan Rivers Show. Metromedia offered her a production job in Washington, D.C., to which city her husband Ed, an attorney, had been transferred. There, she agreed to produce Panorama, then moved to NBC and Take It From Here.

"Why Mrs. Ford decided to interview me for the job," Sheila says, "I don't know. Later I found out I'd been recommended by some of the press people whose opinions she respected. Anyway, I had some doubts about the job. I didn't think I would want it. I had never worked for one person.

"When I met Mrs. Ford, she was very honest and very open. So, too, was I. I made it clear that I didn't want a job in which I had to tell people what kind of tablecloths were on the White House dinner tables, and that describing fashions and hairdos was not one of my strong points. I really wasn't interested in trivia. What I wanted to do was to translate to the public the true image of the First Lady and her family.

Sheila, seen here chatting with 18-year-old Susan Ford, particularly admires the First Lady for the way in which she reared her three sons and daughter.

Sheila converses easily with the President. She seems to be treated as one of the family, and Mrs. Ford says, "I regard us as dear, close friends."

First time for both

"We were both pretty unsure of what the job entailed. Mrs. Ford kept asking me if I thought I could do it. And I kept asking her what it was specifically that she wanted me to do. She had never been a First Lady before, and I had never been a press secretary; and after hours of talk we both decided that we'd have to do a lot of on-the-job learning, which we have.

"Mrs. Ford is basically a lovely lady with a terrific sense of humor and a tremendous supply of common sense, grounded in experience. She is also highly intuitive and can assess a situation calmly.

"I was deeply impressed by her essential goodness. There is nothing phony or deceitful about her. She knows who she is, what she has undergone. She was both mother and father to her four children when they were growing up and her husband was on the road, campaigning 200 nights a year. It wasn't easy for her. When her husband came home he was a good father; he'd spend time with his children, but it was Mrs. Ford who always got their problems. She was the disciplinarian. She was the one who told the children what they could and could not do. And so it was she who suffered with them, it was she who was involved, it was she who shared their anxieties and agonies and problems. When he came home he wanted to enjoy the family, and he did.

"But it was Mrs. Ford who reared the four children. Coming from a family of four children, I know that's no easy job. And I'm terribly respectful of her achievement, because she was able to instill in her children conventional values as well as self-reliance. The years took their toll. She is wiser for them, of course, but she also paid a price.

"Anyway," Sheila runs on, "I wanted to be sure I could do a good job for Mrs. Ford as press secretary, so before I took the job I talked to several former press secretaries: Helen Smith, who'd worked for Pat Nixon; Liz Carpenter, who'd worked for Lady Bird Johnson, and Tish Baldridge, who'd worked for Jackie Kennedy. Liz Carpenter was the most helpful."

Liz Carpenter remembers: "Sheila came over to the house one night and went through all the scrapbooks. I think I had 23 of them, of the years I'd spent with Lady Bird, and she asked for some advice. I told her that being a press secretary was like taking a crash course in everything.

"I gave her three tips: 'Never lie. Never remain inaccessible because when reporters can't get to you, they get to making mischief. And try to enjoy what's happening to you, because even though it's irritating and it gets you mad, still you're involved in making some history. You might as well enjoy it."

Says Liz Carpenter, now an account executive with Hill and Knowlton: "I think Sheila Weidenfeld is doing a great job. And one reason is that she's got a great lady to work with. I'm a lifelong Democrat, but Betty Ford is one of the most courageous First Ladies this nation has ever had. She understands the role of women in today's society, and she's not afraid to speak out meaningfully and to advocate equality for women. And in Sheila she's got an equally enthusiastic supporter. They go hand in glove."

Sheila Weidenfeld became Betty Ford's press secretary in October, 1974. "The first thing I tried to do," she recalls, "was to return everyone's phone calls. My office gets about 200 a day, and I found that it was an impossibility, even though I got to the office by 6:30 in the morning and sometimes didn't get home until 2 the next morning, especially when there was a state dinner or some function like that."

Needed more help

Next Sheila learned how to sort out priorities, a necessity since she found her weight dropping from 102 to 95. She also discovered that she needed more than a secretary and an assistant to take care press-wise of the First Lady and her four children.

The only way she could obtain another assistant was to talk Ron Nessen, the President's press secretary, into giving up one of his. Nessen wouldn't hear of it.

"One week," Sheila recalls, "when all of us were in Hollywood, Fla., I challenged Nessen to a swimming race. If he lost I'd get an additional staffer. If I lost I'd have to do with what I had. Mrs. Ford was at poolside and so was Don Rumsfeld and a few others. It was an Olympic-size swimming pool, and the race was to be one lap. I beat Ron by half the length of the pool. That's how I got another assistant. Now I have a staff of five, which is two less than what my predecessors had."

People who have worked with Sheila describe her as a perpetual enthusiast, deeply involved and excited in what she's doing, an achiever, a driver whose relationship with Mrs. Ford is almost a mother-daughter one.

"When Mrs. Ford came down with cancer," confides a reporter who covers the East Wing, "Sheila might just as well have been her daughter. The worry, the love, the anxiety, and then the relief she engendered when Mrs. Ford came through with flying colors—it was of a family nature. Sheila's not exactly an introvert, you know. She wears her heart on her sleeve. And the Fords seem to treat her like one of the family. She in turn sees that Mrs. Ford gets her rest and isn't overscheduled. Mrs. Ford is not the strongest First Lady we've ever had, and Sheila is well aware of her fragility. She behaves towards her like a solicitous daughter."

They're just friends

Mrs. Ford, of course, returns the solicitude. "Sheila and I," she says, "are very close. I wouldn't characterize our relationship as mother-daughter. I regard us as dear and close friends.

"What we have is a give-and-take situation. I'm the boss and I make the final decisions, but it's Sheila who collects and sorts out, who suggests and recommends what I do in the field of press relations.

"She is a vivacious, industrious and talented young woman, intensively dedicated to her job. I'm very happy that Bonnie Angelo of Time magazine recommended her to me. That's how I came to hire her. I hold Bonnie in high regard, and when she said, 'You ought really to interview Sheila Weidenfeld for the press secretary job,' I followed through. I'm glad I did."

How did Mrs. Ford feel in retrospect about her interview with Morley Safer on 60 Minutes?

"I thought for a while," she explains, "that I had done my daughter Susan a disservice by not being more explicit on that program. But then as I traveled around the country, mothers of other daughters would come up to me. They would congratulate me for talking about things as they are, for facing life as it is. It was a hypothetical question I was asked, not a true one, and I gave a rather quick answer on the program. In the end my being on the show came out as a plus, and I'm glad I did it.

"I'm always willing to talk to the press, to answer their questions, and, of course, I'm on television a great deal. Practically every place we go there are TV cameras."

Should her husband win the election in November, would the First Lady change any of her staff, possibly her press secretary?

"I'm very proud of my staff," Mrs. Ford maintains, "and I expect to keep Sheila as long as she wants to stay. Of course, she's got a marriage and a husband to look after—working the long hours she does, I don't know when she finds time for that—and I guess somewhere along the line she'd like to have a baby or two.

"I tell you what," the First Lady says with a laugh. "If Sheila gets pregnant, I promise to give her enough time to go to the hospital and then take the baby home. But that's how indispensable I regard her around here."

What the doctor says

Sheila Weidenfeld, who lives in a seven-bedroom Georgetown house on 29th and Q Streets with her husband ("We each have double studies."), has been married seven years. She says that she'd like to have a family. "But I still feel," she adds, "that I'm too young. My doctor tells me that chronologically I'm not quite as young as I think I am. But if I have my druthers, I'd like to put off having a family a few years.

"This is such an exciting and challenging job. I took it because I had ideas. I'd like to implement some of them, like sometime putting President and Mrs. Ford on the same TV program. There's so much I'd like to do—it's just hard finding time to have a baby."

Sheila Weidenfeld, known in some quarters of the White House as "The Firecracker," is a fraternal twin. She is also somewhat of a family maverick. Her twin sister Emily is a lawyer; her brother Bruce is a lawyer. Her father is a lawyer, and so, too, is her husband Ed, who met her when he was working for the Javits (Sen. Jacob K. Javits) law firm in New York City.

How come Sheila avoided the family profession? "The competition," she explains, "was too tough and too close to home."

As the First Lady's press secretary, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld is the only one of her class in the nation. Somehow that fulfills her sense of achievement.

Nursing Homes Where Life Is Worth Living

by Pam Proctor

A nursing home isn't where the heart is—unless it has cocktails, kids and a chance for sex. At least that's the view of an increasing number of people who are calling for nursing homes that can be places to live, rather than just places to die.

Shocking reports of nursing home abuses uncovered by the Senate in its seven-year investigation have brought home to "middle-aged people that it could happen to them," says Dr. Robert Butler, a research psychiatrist with the Washington School of Psychiatry. Although only about 5 percent of the nation's 22.4 million elderly are institutionalized, the age group over 75 is the fastest growing segment of the U.S. population. If present trends continue, increasing numbers of Americans will end up in nursing homes.

Unfortunately, more than half of the 23,000 nursing homes in this country are substandard, according to Val Halamandaris, associate counsel to the Senate Special Committee on Aging. Only about 5 percent are considered good, and a mere handful are "exceptional," he says.

What are good nursing homes doing to make life sweet for their residents?

During the monthly Cabaret Night at the Hebrew Home for the Aged in Riverdale, N.Y., for example, Scotch and champagne flow at 45 cents a glass and a jazz band provides dance music for residents, their families and staff members. The conviviality has brought some families closer together. After one of the home's bashes, a middle-aged lawyer confided to executive vice president Jacob Reingold that he had just danced with his 82-year-old mother for the first time.

'Extended family'

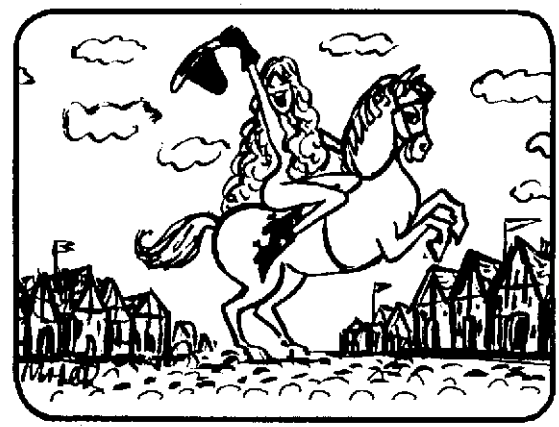

To enhance the warm atmosphere, the 700-bed Hebrew Home includes young people in the activities. Junior high students from Hawthorne Middle School in nearby Yonkers, N.Y.—part of a "generation bridge" program—helped serve cake and fruit at the Cabaret Night. As an integral part of the home's "extended family," the 40 kids in the program hold discussions with small groups of residents, sing in the home's glee club, and visit grandmas and grandpas they have "adopted."

Observations™

Lady Godiva would be a sensation in "Almost Anything Goes," suggests Sheldon Babyatsky of Tampa, Fla. No, she ought to be in "Rawhide," says Ellis O. Butler, Oneida, Tenn. But John C. Emerson, Hayti, Mo., likes her in "Show Offs," and John C. Scroggins, East Tallassee, Ala., would rather see the lady in "Winning Streak" or even "Naked City."

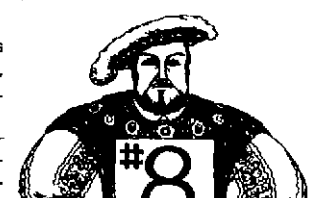

We've selected these and the ones that follow as the winners among the 3,000 or so replies to our request for names of past and present public figures who'd be great in TV roles. (If you see your suggestion but not your name, it's because there were lots of duplicates and, as announced, the $25 U.S. Savings Bonds are awarded for suggestions bearing the earlier postmark.) Here are others we like: Paul Revere, "The Guiding Light" (B.J. Brown, Maywood, Cal.). Betty Crocker, "M.A.S.H." (Lisa Keppler, Derby, N.Y.), Nero, "Fireside Theatre" (Robert Dolinor, Warren, Mich.), and a depressed Sir Lancelot, "The Blue Knight" (Duane Runnels, Indianapolis).

Confucius and Harpo Marx, "You Don't Say" (Steven C. Rice, Independence, Mo., and Steve Keyser, Lincoln, Neb.).

Prince Charles, "The Dating Game" (Robert Keith, Stevens Point, Wis.).

We also liked the idea of Galileo, "As the World Turns" (Ron and Roberta Genini, Fresno, Cal.), Christopher Columbus, "Good Morning America" (W.E. Van Hoesen, Feura Bush, N.Y.) and Sigmund Freud, "Take My Advice" (Karen M. Wilson, Downers Grove, Ill.).

King Henry VIII, "One of My Wives is Missing" (Mrs. David Fields, Conneaut, Ohio), and his wives in "Jeopardy" (E. Mark Leany, Bluewater, N.M.).

Hubert Humphrey, a one-hour "Bicentennial Minute" (Alvin Easter, Minneapolis), or, with Muriel in "The Dumplings" (Gayle Scoper, Arlington, Tex.).

Marco Polo, "Movin' On" (Bruce Ketler, Brooklyn, N.Y.).

Whistler, "That's My Mama" (R.M. Kelly, Rock Hill, S.C.).

Mayor Beame of New York, "Treasure Hunt" (Marian Ruckel, Cleveland, Ohio), and "Emergency" (William Rittenberg, Charleston, S.C.).

Marquis de Sade, "Almost Anything Goes" (George Raymer, Monroe, Wis.).

A final one, though, that's close to Mobil's heart: William Shakespeare in "Masterpiece Theatre" (Rev. T.E. Spofford, Lake Como, Fla.).

Catherine Smith, a lanky 13-year-old with long brown hair and braces on her teeth, visits "grandma" Jennie Barton, 81. "She picked me out from all the rest," said Mrs. Barton, beaming.

George MacDonald, also 13, made table decorations. Later on he wheeled in some of the residents to watch the festivities.

"When I'm with old people, I remember my grandmother who died last year," said George.

Just as communication with kids keeps oldsters in the mainstream of life, so does a more intimate sort of interaction—sex. One 80-year-old resident of a Catholic nursing home, disturbed that an unmarried couple in their 70's had retreated to a room for several hours, complained to Sister Michael Bernadette, an assistant administrator and consultant to the National League for Nursing.

"You know what those two are up to?" the woman said.

Sister Michael shrugged and said, "Have you seen them? Maybe they're playing gin rummy."

Few homes, if any, officially permit cohabitation on a permanent basis, and lack of privacy remains a stumbling block to sexual freedom.

Sex and power linked

Privacy for sex is part of a larger issue of "giving residents a sense of power over their own lives," says Dr. Butler.

Just last year, the American Association of Homes for the Aging, a professional group representing 1300 nonprofit religious, fraternal and governmental homes, adopted a patients' Bill of Rights. One of its provisions supported the formation of residents' councils to air gripes.

The trend toward patient power is evident at St. Joseph's Manor, a 290-bed nonprofit home in Trumbull, Conn., run by the Catholic Carmelite Sisters. Residents there control their daily routines almost as if they were in their own homes. They can use kitchenettes to brew a pot of tea, or they can get on a bus—wheelchairs and all—for a trip to the shopping center. Unlike many homes, it offers a varied menu and a full schedule of activities, including exercise classes and religious services.

About half of St. Joseph's residents are supported by Medicaid. Private patients pay about $900 a month for levels of care ranging from chronic disease to residential, considered among the best in the country.

The home even serves daily cocktails in a rustic spot called The Fireside Lounge. A dog and cat roam the halls, and silver, china and tablecloths instead of plastic trays and paper plates also provide a homey touch. These amenities make the difference between "getting there, and getting there with dignity," says Mother Joseph Mary, the home's administrator.

Physical fitness is encouraged at St. Joseph's Manor in Trumbull, Conn., where residents not confined to wheelchairs enjoy daily exercise class. Anne MacEntee, 85, puts other residents through their paces to help maintain maximum physical capabilities.

Another way of creating a homelike atmosphere is to tend to the medical needs of patients without turning the facilities into "quasi-hospitals," says Peter Samton—a partner with Gruzen & Partners—who is a specialist in nursing home architecture.

For example, in the Hebrew Home's newest building, which Samton designed, the halls can accommodate four wheelchairs abreast. Instead of hospital gray, carpets and furnishings come in bright oranges, purples and blues. Elevator doors open and close slowly.

But even an inviting and convenient physical environment like this cannot make a resident feel completely at home, unless he has a sense of control over his own body.

What would you want?

At St. Joseph's Manor no one languishes in bed. Every morning residents are dressed down to their shoes and stockings. "How would you like to spend several years of your life wearing nothing but pajamas and slippers?" asks Mother Joseph Mary. "It makes people feel good about themselves to get up and dress every day."

Dance therapy is another rehabilitative technique gaining in popularity. Former dancer Karen Nash, 32, heads up the activities program at Coronet Nursing Home, a 113-bed proprietary home in Brooklyn, N.Y. During her weekly dance sessions, residents who are ambulatory stand up and sway to Hawaiian and Caribbean rhythms, those in wheelchairs move their arms and heads to the music.

Although one woman is paralyzed to the neck and can't even move her head, she says, "I dance in my mind." Another woman grabs the wheels and rolls her wheelchair back and forth.

"The elderly themselves have been brainwashed into thinking they're old —that they can't improve," says Elaine Brody, director of human services at the nonprofit Philadelphia Geriatric Center.

Dr. Robert Butler agrees and stresses that 50 percent of the elderly's mental problems—popularly known as senility —are reversible with proper counseling. According to Mrs. Brody, the Philadelphia Center is helping many disruptive and severely regressed patients who suffer from severe memory loss and disorientation.

A good illustration involved an extremely disoriented 81-year-old man who repeatedly hit staff members and other residents. A recreation aide learned that he had worked all his life as a newspaper vendor and began

Feed your plants for up to 6 months in 12 seconds.

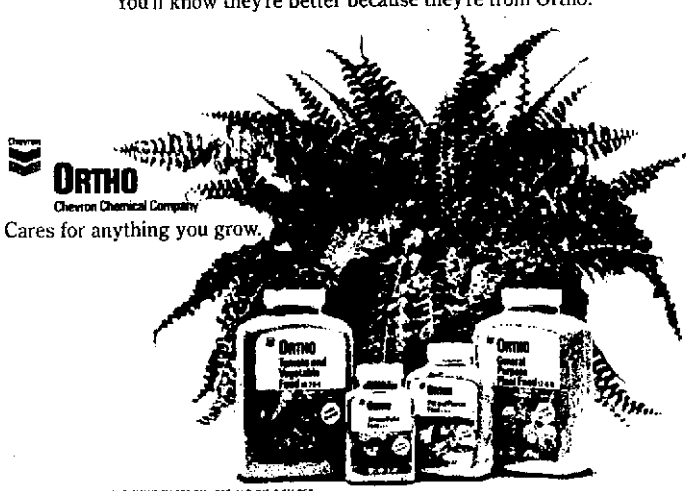

New ORTHO® Timed Release Plant Food formulas make feeding and growing healthy plants easier than ever. You just spoon on the clean, odorless granules and mix into the soil.

It takes only seconds to start plants on a steady, uniform diet that lasts from three to six months, depending on plant variety.

Each granule of these scientifically formulated fertilizers provides the balanced combination of nutrients needed by specific plants. The slow release of these nutrients lets you feed whatever you grow indoors or outdoors, from seedlings to mature plants, without the danger of overfeeding or burning.

Look for the family of ORTHO Timed Release Plant Foods at your Ortho dealers: African Violet Food 6-9-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; Pot and Planter Food 5-10-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; General Purpose Plant Food 12-6-6, feeds 3 to 4 months; Tomato and Vegetable Food 10-20-5, feeds 3 to 4 months.

bringing him papers to sell to the staff. This made him feel useful and had a dramatic effect on his behavior.

"He stopped hitting people," said the startled aide, "and though he couldn't always remember his name, he could make correct change for the papers."

In many institutions, "people like this would be given drugs to control their behavior," says Mrs. Brody.

To help other regressed residents, the staff organizes regular activities, including baking sessions for the women, discussion groups based on "Dear Abby" columns, and reality orientation therapy aimed at making each resident aware of who he is and where he is.

Unfortunately, even the few nursing homes that are conscientious about providing a homelike, rehabilitative environment have their drawbacks.

The cost of nursing home care—which now averages $700 a month—is prohibitive for many people not eligible for Medicaid. Long waiting lists for admission and implied obligations to make charitable donations to some homes compound the problems for prospective residents and their families.

Problem for blacks

A pervasive problem for blacks, says Hobart Jackson, a founder of the National Caucus on Black Aging, is that they are excluded from many proprietary homes because of cost and from church-related homes because of race and social class.

"Two to 3 percent of the residents of long-term care facilities are black," says Jackson, "yet the black elderly make up 8 percent of the population over 65."

Thirty-three-year-old Senate investigator Val Halamandaris hopes that these problems, as well as the horrors unearthed in the nation's worst homes, will be a thing of the past by the time he's old and frail enough to need nursing home care. He's somewhat encouraged by the changes he has seen since 1969 when, he says, nursing home administrators gave excuses for problems and indignantly rebutted charges of negligence.

"Today," he says, "administrators are recognizing that they have to become intimately involved with the needs of their patients. They are writing in to ask how they can improve."

Who knows? Perhaps someday we will actually look forward to spending our final years in a home sweet nursing home.

HOW TO CHOOSE A HOME

Val Halamandaris has visited more than 500 nursing homes. Here are his tips on how to find a good one:

1. Call your state health department for a list of licensed nursing homes in your area. Ask whether a home is eligible for Medicaid and about the level of care provided: skilled nursing for the very ill; intermediate care for others; or a combination of the two.

2. If you have a choice between a nonprofit, church-related facility and a proprietary (for profit) home, tentatively pick the nonprofit as your first choice. They generally offer better care. But check further. Some administrators use nonprofit status as a guise for personal profiteering.

3. Talk to knowledgeable people, such as a priest or rabbi, a hospital social worker or the emergency room chief. Nursing homes, like people, have reputations.

4. Examine inspection records at your state health department to see if a home corrects its deficiencies. It's your legal right to see these records.

5. Visit the home but don't be deceived by physical appearances. One of the most luxurious homes in Minnesota, for example, had an egregious record of cruelty to patients. Talk to the administrator. Ask about the ratio of registered nurses to patients, a good indicator of the quality of care. Talk to visitors.

6. Show up unexpectedly at mealtime and use your eyes, ears and nose. Does the food look edible? Also show up at activities periods.

7. Before deciding, bring the prospective resident to the home so that he or she can understand what to expect and can participate in the decision.

DO YOU NEED A TONIC?

Doctors report iron-poor blood definitely improves with Geritol.

As you can see from the chart and photomicrographs below, medical records show that iron-poor blood definitely improves after you use Geritol. Thin, pale, badly shaped iron-poor red blood cells become round, rich and red.

		Before Geritol	After Geritol	Improvement
Here's what GERITOL can do! (Actual Laboratory Blood Tests)	Blood Count Patient A	3,200,000 red blood cells	3,900,000 red blood cells	700,000 more red blood cells
	Blood Count Patient B	3,800,000 red blood cells	4,900,000 red blood cells	over 1,000,000 more red blood cells

With the help of Geritol iron in your bloodstream, millions more healthy red blood cells are built to circulate all around your body 1500 times a day!

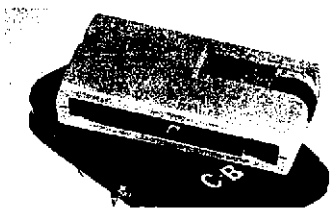

And the Geritol formula also gives you vitamins important for nutrition.

Geritol is the tonic that's protecting so many Americans today. If you need a tonic, try Geritol, tablets or liquid, starting today.

America's medically proved blood builder.

OPTICAL TAPE MEASURE: You can measure distances up to 100 feet over water and rough terrain, determine building heights and make other horizontal or vertical measurements, indoors or out—all without moving an inch—using a new pocket instrument. Just sight an object through the viewfinder, adjust a numbered dial, then read distance in feet and inches. From $19.95. Units with ranges up to two miles and with metric calibrations also available. Details: Chris-Brooke Co., Dept. PP, 7115 S.W. 82nd Ave., Portland, Oreg. 97223. (right)

TENNIS AID: Designed to help you achieve better wrist control, a new 3-oz., contoured device fits over the top of the wrist and keeps it firm though flexible during forehand and backhand practice. In addition to improving your game—claims the maker—the training in holding the wrist firmly minimizes the risk of tennis elbow, often a result of improper wrist use during play. In women's/junior and men's sizes, with two-strap Velcro fastening system for individual adjustment. $5.95 in stores. Rist-Lok Inc., Dept. PP, 687 Bergen Ave., Jersey City, N.J. 07304.

WINDOW GARDEN SHELF: Without need for screws, nails or fasteners, a new window shelf for plants holds firmly in place by tension alone; you can position it anywhere on a window, move it without leaving marks. The 5"-deep white baked enamel unit can hold plants in pots up to 5" diameter, comes in two sizes adjustable to fit windows from 16" to 24" and from 24" to 38". $5.95 and $6.95 each. Crestwall, Dept. PP, Box 22128, Cleveland, Ohio 44122. (below)

A LIFT FOR YOUR OUTBOARD: Tilting your motor to "up" position should be easier and free of strain with a new tilt device. Adjustable to fit almost any motor, it slips quickly into place and has a 19"-long handle that provides leverage enough to raise even a large motor readily. Rubber feet on the forward end and heavy vinyl coating on the after end avoid scuffing and scratching the shroud. Suggested retail price: $19.43. Olson Industries, Dept. PP, Box 2520, Sarasota, Fla. 33578. (above)

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

GOING DOWN The Lou Harris survey reports that American public confidence in U.S. institutions--including the Congress, the executive branch of the federal government and corporations--has sunk to its lowest point since Harris began taking polls 20 years ago.

NUKE THREATS Atomic facilities have become a major target of threats and acts of violence in the U.S.

A Nader-sponsored organization some weeks ago disclosed a list of threats and acts of violence against nuclear facilities obtained from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in a Freedom of Information request.

The list is startling:

--A pipe bomb was found in the reactor building of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

--Dynamite was found at the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company's (WI) Point Beach nuclear reactor.

--A break-in took place at the fuel storage building of the Duke Power (N.C.) Oconee facility.

--An incendiary device was detonated in a public area of the Boston Edison Pilgrim atomic reactor.

--A fire, possibly arson, occurred in an equipment storage barn at Nuclear Fuel Services, West Valley, N.Y.

WOMEN AND MONEY The earning gap between men and women in the U.S. continues to widen, as does the distribution of wealth.

Women employed year-round in 1973 had a median income of $6488, or 57% of the $11,468 received by men.

The Labor Department's "1975 Handbook on Women Workers" illustrates at various income levels the striking difference between the total money income of women and men.

In 1973, only 1.3% of all women workers earned in excess of $15,000 annually, compared with almost 17% of the men.

More startling is the fact that in 1973 women who had four or more years of college earned on the average $9771. Males, however, with an eighth-grade education earned almost $9406.

"We must begin a totally new resocialization process in this country," says Carmen R. Maymi, director of the Labor Department's Women's Bureau. "A new concept of what a woman's job should be is of the highest order.

"The time to discredit the traditional practice of placing women in only clerical or nursing positions is now. We must assist women in entering new fields. Only as more women enter new areas of employment -- blue-collar jobs, scientific positions -- will the income gap between men and women be reduced."

ABORTION WIDESPREAD According to Worldwatch Institute, a research organization, the percentage of the world's population living in countries with liberal abortion laws has increased to 64 percent from 38 in the past five years.

A preliminary report by researchers Lester Brown and Kathleen Newland reveals three prime reasons for the liberalization of abortion: (1) the growth of women's movements, especially in the developed countries, (2) the awareness of how much death and illness are brought on by illegal abortion, (3) court decisions, as in the U.S.

LETTER OF THE LAW Last year Britain passed a law which, among other things, forbids advertisements that specify the sex of job applicants.

As a result, employers have been wording their want-ads meticulously in order to get the type of labor they need.

One ad designed to scare off female applicants reads: "In honor of the law for equal rights, all available positions for bricklayers are open equally to men and women. Applicants must have a chest measurement of at least 38 inches and be prepared to strip to the waist in summer."

Another in a similar vein asks for a "highly qualified mechanic...sex unimportant so long as the person in question is prepared to use the men's restroom."

A third want-ad requests: "Bar personnel for afternoons and evenings. Applicants should look good in women's clothing."

A fourth says: "Wanted --experienced business manager regardless of sex, assuming you have five years' experience, speak fluent German and look like Marlene Dietrich did at age 20."

JAMES AND SUZY HUNT: IS HE LOSING HER?

BURTON'S NEW BRIDE-TO-BE Suzy Hunt, 27, wife of English racing driver James Hunt, is reportedly seeking a quick divorce so she can marry Richard Burton.

This follows the actor's recent breakup with his second-time wife Elizabeth Taylor. Burton apparently is constitutionally incapable of living a womanless life for any considerable time.

As for Elizabeth Taylor, at 44 married six times, she has gone back to used car dealer Henry Wynberg. No one knows for how long.

In the picture above Suzy Hunt is shown playing backgammon in the Hunts' Spanish home late in 1975 when they were considered one of the "sporting world's most happily-married couples."

Don't you wish you had a nickel for every time Corning made your life a little easier?

You wouldn't necessarily be rich. But you'd probably have a lot of nickels.

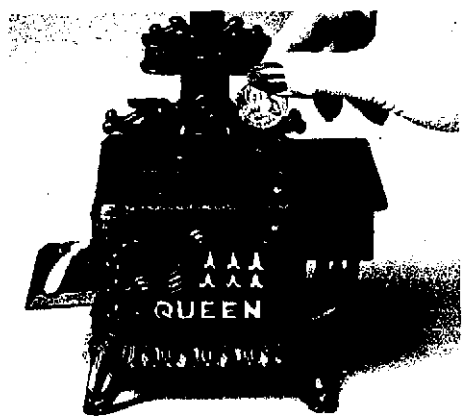

That's because every product we make helps make less work for you. For example:

The PYREX® ware Homestead™ Collection is our newest pattern. No one has to tell you about PYREX® ware. Odds are, you probably own some and use it everyday. But what is new is PYREX® ware's beautiful new pattern. It's like owing a set of early American stoneware. But you won't be afraid to use these "antiques."

Country Festival is our newest CORNING WARE® cookware pattern. Like all CORNING WARE® cookware, Country Festival goes straight from freezer to oven to table. So you have fewer pots and pans to use. And fewer to clean up.

Old Town Blue is one of our most popular CORELLE® Livingware patterns and CORELLE® Livingware is the most popular dinnerware in America. Despite its delicate look, it's far more durable than earthenware or china. Yet it's remarkably lightweight. So you can carry a whole set to the table, in just one trip. Which means less work.

Who can tell how many times Corning will make your life easier? But if you're serious about stashing away a nickel each time, we've got just the thing.

Put your nickels, dimes, pennies, and quarters in this old-fashioned cast iron bank. It's yours for only $5.99 when you buy any Corning product.

This collector's bank is a perfect miniature replica of an authentic 19th Century Queen oven. And it's obviously not one of those mass produced imports. American craftsmen at the famous John Wright Iron Works hand cast their iron bank especially for Corning. You can't buy it from anyone else, at any price.

And our price is just $5.99, plus proof of purchase any pattern you see here. Your participating Corning dealers have all the details.

Actually, there is one more reason we're making this offer. We think anyone smart enough to save a nickel every time we help is likely to spend those nickels wisely. On Corning products.

Please send me _____ cast iron range bank(s) @ $5.99 each (plus $1.35 postage and handling for each bank ordered). I enclose a check or money order for $_____. For each bank ordered, I also enclose the product or item description from the end panel of a carton from any item of CORNING WARE® cookware, PYREX® ware or CORELLE® Livingware.

Time savers, work savers, money savers.

PROMISED AN EASIER LIFE The Soviet Union has promised to make life easier for working mothers, to exhort their husbands to help with the laundry, food-shopping, and child-rearing.

Life for working mothers in the Soviet Union is rough, which is why so few have more than one or two children.

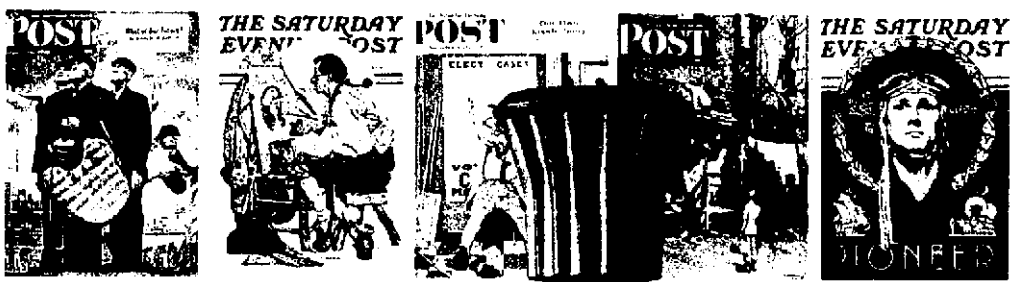

According to Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, mothers are going to be given the opportunity to work shorter hours and fewer days a week. They also will receive better maternity leave.

Russian women who get pregnant receive two months' paid leave but frequently lose their jobs if they don't return within 60 days.

The new plan would grant them partial pay for one year with a job guarantee.

Soviet working mothers take their children to day-care centers, then pick them up after working hours, then cook and clean and shop when they can.

EVA RUEBER-STAIER

A LITTLE COVERS A LOT Three or four triangles of cloth and a few bits of string—that's all one needs to run up a bikini this year.

Eva Rueber-Staier, former Miss World beauty contest winner, is traipsing around the world modeling this tiny bikini designed by Beatrix of Italy.

"It's extremely popular," says Eva, "especially with the girl-watchers."

THE BUSINESS OF VIOLENCE A recently published British government report points out that despite the pervasiveness of political violence in Northern Ireland, the industrial output in that land has increased by 9% since 1969. That compares with a 2.7% rise over the same period for the recession-plagued United Kingdom as a whole.

STILL ON THE BOOKS This Bicentennial year seems a good time to examine some of the bizarre laws still on the books in our various states and municipalities.

For example:

Serving beer with pretzels is not permitted in public bars in North Dakota.

In Lynn, Mass., it is illegal to give coffee to small children.

Marrying your wife's grandmother is illegal in Kentucky.

Laws in California, Idaho, North Dakota and Oklahoma forbid catching birds in cemeteries.

Every man entering Phoenix, Ariz., must be dressed in pants, according to the law.

In Hawaii, putting pennies in your ear is breaking the law.

Eighty-year-old women in South Dakota are prohibited from speaking to young married men on the street.

It is against the law in Wyoming to photograph a rabbit during the months of January through April unless you have an official permit.

CUSTOMERS FIRST One of the most successful taxicab companies in Japan is the MK Taxicab Company of Kyoto. The company president is Sadao Aoki, 47, who insists that every customer be accorded VIP treatment.

"Each person has an ego," Aoki points out, "and we cater to it. Courtesy is really the secret of our success."

All drivers of MK cabs in Kyoto are required to wear peaked caps, navy blue livery and maroon bow ties. When he stops to pick up a fare, the MK driver must get out of the driver's seat, doff his cap, open the rear door, and usher the customer into the cab.

In six years such unusual and exemplary courtesy has quadrupled the MK taxi fleet to 400 from 100. The average MK taxicab driver earns $600 to $1000 a month, a salary level which attracts many university graduates.

According to Aoki, 10 percent of his drivers--80 of 800--have college degrees. Ten of his drivers are women. "With us," says Aoki, "the customer comes first, which is why we have so much repeat business."

LICORICE WARNING The daily consumption of licorice can be harmful to your health. It can cause headaches, high blood pressure, heart palpitations and other symptoms. These are the findings of a study carried out by Mark T. Epstein in Christchurch, New Zealand, on 18 volunteers. In every case the symptoms disappeared after the subjects stopped ingesting licorice.

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

Grass Seed Will Never Grow A Lawn Like This!

Save Now. Special Introductory Offer. Up To 200 Amazoy Zoysia Grass Plugs FREE

FULLY DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT. Amazoy lawns take cookouts, parties, lawn furniture. You could even play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Rarely (if ever!) needs watering. If you have a shade problem use this rule: If crabgrass grows in the area, Amazoy will not only grow,it will drive out the crabgrass.

Amazoy is the Trade Mark Registered U.S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

By Mike Senkiw

Years ago I was like nearly everyone else with a lawn. I worried about it more than any other thing around the house.

Then things changed. My company obtained a new grass just released by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. In honor of the explorer, Frank Meyer, it was named Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

We received only a small amount of this Grass — enough to plant test plots in our Nursery Farm.

From that small beginning, these few precious clumps of Zoysia Grass spread until they built a lawn so thick and beautiful that visitors stopped to admire it.

We Tell People, "Walk On It"

Instead of saying "Keep Off The Grass," we invited visitors to walk on it. It was an unforgetable experience for them — like walking on a thick pile carpet.

After walking on it, visitors learned that Amazoy Zoysia turf was crabgrass-proof, and the next question never failed: "How can I get some?"

Other Lawns Burn Out

Now, grass is my company's business; but it was a long time before an order of Amazoy Zoysia Grass was accepted. First we wanted to see how good this grass was. We really found out!

One summer the heat was so great you could fry eggs on the highway. Daily the sun blazed from cloudless skies; the drought worsened; whole ponds dried up. Meanwhile crabgrass flourished and took over lawns by the thousands.

IT RESISTS DROUGHT, STAYS GREEN THRU HEAT WAVES

Through it all, our deep-rooted Amazoy Zoysia stood out like a green island in a brown wasteland.

Thrives In Poor Soils

When I planted it in sandy, clay soils and sub-soil, it took hold and thrived. Other grass in the same soils struggled and died.

I compared it to other grasses in the winter, too. Ordinary grasses may die or turn sparse and scraggly due to frost and winter, but in such weather my Amazoy Zoysia merely went off its green color . . . it stayed so thick you could walk on it and not get your feet muddy.

Through zero-cold winters and blistering summer droughts . . . through onslaughts by weeds and diseases . . . our Meyer Zoysia had proved it could "take it." It had earned the right to be called AMAZOY, our Trade Mark published coast to coast and border to border.

HOW AMAZOY CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS AND WEEDS ALL SUMMER LONG!

If costly chemicals fail to control crabgrass for good, how does Amazoy Zoysia do it? Your deep-rooted, fully established Amazoy lawn grows so thick and luxurious that crabgrass seeds just do not germinate!

Your lawn chokes out not only crabgrass, but other weeds all summer long — year after year.

You will never need to spend a cent on crabgrass and weed killers again. So if you have wanted to get away from costly and dangerous lawn herbicides, Amazoy is your answer.

Your Own Supply Of Plug Transplants

Your established Amazoy lawn provides you with plugs for other areas as you may desire.

HERE'S WHY AMAZOY PLUGS ASSURE SUCCESS WHERE OTHER GRASSES FAIL

Due to Amazoy's national reputation, other grasses may be offered that sound like it. But Amazoy's pre-cut plugs look different, ARE different. They are deep-rooted, winter-hardy plugs produced exclusive for transplanting.

Each large sturdy plug contains 3 square inches or more of living vigorous Zoysia turf, complete with vigorous root system in its original enriched soil.

NEVER NEEDS REPLACEMENT

AMAZOY Saves Money, Cut Work. Never a seed to sow again with Amazoy! Year after year your lawn grows thicker, like a deep pile carpet. Defies enemies that kill other lawns.

PEOPLE WRITE TO ME

As Mrs. Harry Winslowe writes to me from the heart of wintry New England:

". . . How pleased we are with our Zoysia lawn! We had a lawn that was a disgrace. My husband used weed killers for every known weed, but next season new weeds sprang up. We dug the lawn up twice and reseeded before we learned about Amazoy. It does everything you say."

"Mowed It 2 Times," Writes Woman

Mrs. M. R. Mitter writes me how her lawn ". . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

Wonderful? Yes, Amazoy Zoysia IS wonderful! Plant it now and you'll cut mowing by ⅔ . . . never have another weed problem all summer, for the rest of your life!

PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into hole in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing lawn areas, plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds.

Easy planting instructions with order.

AMAZOY CUTS WATERING, CUTS MOWING BY ⅓

Your drought-resistant Amazoy lawn not only cuts your water bills, it cuts your work in other ways: it cuts pushing a noisy mower under a broiling summer sun by ⅓. It resists blight, disease and most insects. It will NOT WINTER-KILL TO TEMPS. 30° BELOW ZERO. After killing frost, it merely goes off its green color, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial that ends re-seeding forever!

THERE IS NO SEED

Reports U.S. Dept. of Agric., referring to Meyer Z-52 Zoysia. Experts advise planting only live grass to be sure of getting the famous winter-hardy grass perf. by U.S. Govt., Meyer Z-52.

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

Or correct problem areas such as slopes where Amazoy halts erosion, in hard-to-cover spots, around swim pools, in play areas, etc.

NO SOD

Sod of ordinary grass carries with it the same problems as seed — such as weeds, disease, frequent mowing, burning out, etc. Amazoy is sold ONLY in pre-cut plugs . . . never a slab of field grown sod YOU must cut up in order to plant.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS . . . . FREE WITH ORDERS OF 600 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

MORE THAN A HALF-BILLION PLUGS SOLD, OUTSELLS OTHERS 10 TO 1!

The controlled transplant quality of Amazoy has made it another word for Meyer Z-52 Zoysia . . . the world's best known Zoysia Grass. If you don't want to take another chance with lawn disappointment, switch to the grass that assures your success: Amazoy. We guarantee every plug will grow, no matter your soil or why other grasses have failed you.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day grass is taken from the soil, shipping charge collect via most economical means.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Tom Adams recently moved to Hawaii, where he has a radio show on KGU in Honolulu, and he's devoted much thought to the fine points of this new experience.

"I moved to Hawaii," he says, "to enjoy life, to have mountains to look at, to take pleasure in new customs like burying my loved ones in treetops, eating off leaves, seeing "Jaws" and rooting for the shark, and wearing a pearl in my ear."

Adams, who has been a disk jockey and done radio comedy since 1957, was twice named "Nation's Top Radio Personality" by Billboard magazine. Keeping Up..With Youth

by Pamela Swift

The Generation Gap in Retrospect

During the height of the Indochina war, social scientists in the U.S. declared there was an unbridgeable gap growing between the generations. What has happened to that highly publicized generation gap?

To answer that question, M. Kent Jennings and Richard Nieman of the Institute of Social Research surveyed a representative national sample of high school seniors and their parents in 1965, then reinterviewed a large portion of them during the first part of 1973.

Writing in the American Political Science Review, the researchers conclude that "the flow of the two generations over time has, if anything, worked to bring them closer together now than they were eight years earlier. Only in certain issues and in regard to partisanship were the generations noticeably pulling apart.

"To the extent that differences increased, they consisted of the rising generation's having emerged with slightly to moderately more liberal political views, greater independence of partisanship, and higher Democratic voting behavior.

"Considering that three-fifths of our generation attended college," they continue, "that approximately one-half of the males served in the military, that the country was in an uproar during much of the eight-year period, and that open efforts were made to pit the young and the middle-aged against each other, one can only marvel that the gulf did not widen rather than narrow."

Harvard Law Applicants

About 27% of the 6500 applicants to the Harvard Law School are women, an increase of about 4% from last year.

The school has tried to recruit more minority applicants, primarily from black colleges and universities, but hasn't met with much success.

Matchmaking

Mitsubishi, the Japanese group of 27 companies, has added one more social activity to its growing list—matchmaking.

It has organized the Diamond Family Club, a clearing house for information about Mitsubishi employees in search of marriage. Recently the presidents of the 27 companies agreed to permit the applications of outsiders.

The Diamond Family Club contains 5500 names on its roster and uses a computer to introduce couples to each other. A follow-up is then engineered by "counselors," who are usually the wives of Mitsubishi employees.

Now three times as many women as men are looking for spouses.

The matchmaking service is not free. To be listed on the roster calls for a registration fee of $30. If the matchmaking culminates in matrimony, the couple pays the club $300.

In the past year about 100 couples have made it to the altar.

Native Tongue

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates that between 1.8 and 2.5 million U.S. children speak English so poorly that they must be instructed in the language they speak at home.

To help in their bilingual programs, local school districts in 34 states will get $85 million in Office of Education grants.

JACK FORD CAMPAIGNING FOR HIS FATHER

Pot Winner

Jack Ford has been named the winner of the first American Weed Seed Award by The Daily Beaver, the Michigan-based trade publication of the marijuana paraphernalia industry.

The award is accorded each year to the person "who has done the most, either by purpose or by accident, to bring the legalization of marijuana to accomplishment."

Jack Ford was presented with the American Weed Seed Award because he "contributed more than anyone else in the past year to its acceptance in the mind of the American public."

The truth is that Jack Ford is not in favor of legalizing marijuana. He prefers decriminalization.

While campaigning in Illinois last month for his dad, Jack Ford was asked at the University of Illinois why the President hadn't busted him for smoking pot.

Young Ford replied, "He's not a law enforcement officer."

One local reporter was quick to point out that Article 2, Section 3 of the United States Constitution states that the President "shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed."

Westside dream ending in court

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

It began with great expectations: A modern industrial park would rise on 350 redeveloped acres in West Long Beach. An influx of new business, 12,000 new jobs. Prosperity would surge across the entire city.

That was the optimistic forecast less than two years ago.

Now the plan for prosperity is the subject of a bitterly contested lawsuit, filed by people who live and work on the Westside.

Their lawsuit seeks to kill the plan as it now exists. It contends that the plan was created illegally and is being administered illegally.

The suit also makes dark allegations that the members of the redevelopment project's board of directors are poised to use their inside information for profiteering when land starts changing hands.

That is denied by the directors —21 influential community businessmen, many of whom have frequently taken leadership roles in past civic projects—and by the city and those who administer the plan.

Both sides will clash in a Long Beach Superior Court face-off May 6 that could make or break the plan.

The city and redevelopment administrators must show cause at the hearing why the plan shouldn't be put in the deep freeze while opponents try to legally invalidate it.

The battle is being waged over a wedge-shaped area on Long Beach's southwestern fringe.

It is bounded on the north by Pacific Coast Highway, on the south by Ninth Street, on the east by the Los Angeles River and on the west by the jagged city limits.

Within the area, residential blocks abut business blocks in an odd mix reflecting a gradual move toward industrialization.

No residential additions or new homes have been constructed there since a zoning change in 1963.

The city hoped to spur that industrial trend with the redevelopment project.

That meant relocation of some residents and firms with either their willing participation or the city's power of eminent domain.

It also meant compliance with the state's Community Redevelopment Law, which says a city must take pains to involve area residents in such a project from its inception.

The result was a complex network of agencies and organizations at work on the project.

At the top of the government pyramid overseeing the project is the City Council, which formally adopted the West Long Beach Industrial Redevelopment Plan last July 1.

Supervising the project for council members were the city's Planning Commission and Redevelopment Agency.

The Redevelopment Agency, which oversees similar projects for the downtown and central areas, in turn delegated the work of actually concocting and administering a workable Westside redevelopment plan.

The group given that responsibility was a special creation—a private, nonprofit firm with quasigovernment status called the Long Beach Economic Development Corp. (EDC).

Directors of the EDC, according to documents on file in connection with the suit, include high executives of such firms as the Bixby Land Co.; Douglas Aircraft Co.; Western Mortgage Co.; Southern California Edison Co.; Petrolane, Inc.; Independent, Press-Telegram; Farmers and Merchants Bank; Rex L. Hodges Realty Co., and Buffums.

Also listed in those documents as directors are R.E. Baldwin, president of Federal Steel Corp., which is located at 1500 W. 16th St., in the heart of the redevelopment area, and Millard J. Hines, president of Industrial Paper Distributors, 903 Fairbanks Ave., across the river from the target area.

Ex-officio directors include City Manager John Mansell. The EDC's general manager and executive vice president is James Hankla, on loan to the EDC from his position as Mansell's executive assistant.

It was this group that in April 1974 entered into agreement with the city to cope with the redevelopment work.

Good news for Reagan campaign

Outpaces Ford for Southern delegates

Associated Press

Ronald Reagan's campaign to wrest the Republican presidential nomination from President Ford took an upward turn Saturday as the former California governor fared well in delegate selection in areas where he said he would — the South and Southwest.

Rep. Morris K. Udall, meanwhile, rolled to an easy win in the informal Democratic primary in his home state of Arizona, picking up about three-quarters of the vote with roughly half the returns in.

REAGAN WON 27 of 29 national convention delegates at the Arizona Republican convention, outdistanced Ford in Oklahoma county conventions and picked up 23 delegates to six for Ford at the GOP convention in South Carolina, where he may eventually get 27 of the state's 36-member delegation.

In addition, the former California governor was running strong in Missouri precinct caucuses, which have been going on since Tuesday.

Ford recouped somewhat in Minnesota, where candidates supporting him won nine of the 12 convention seats picked. Reagan had one delegate and the other two were uncommitted.

Udall and George Wallace were the only delegates to seek votes in Arizona, where the 25 convention delegates are apportioned according to a candidate's percentage.

WITH 14,675 votes counted, Udall had 10,998 votes or 74.9 per cent and was leading in all four of the state's congressional districts.

He was followed by Jimmy Carter with 1,391 votes or 9.5 per cent; Wallace with 684 or 4.7 per cent; Henry Jackson 719 or 4.9 per cent, no preference 385 or 2.6 per cent, Frank Church 232 or 1.6 per cent and anti-abortion candidate Ellen McCormack, 180 or 1.2 per cent.

Former Oklahoma Sen. Fred Harris and two relative unknowns from New York State — attorney Frank Bona and the Rev. Donald Jackson — had less than one per cent each.

'Rubber stamp' Viet vote

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Sirens, brass bands, lion dances and priests played roles in "rehearsals" for a key step toward reunification of North and South Vietnam, the first combined election today for a national assembly.

But most Western observers expect the new body to rubber stamp programs presented to it by Vietnam's Communist Party, especially its northern branch.

A Japanese news agency reported from Saigon that "election rehearsals" were held Saturday to prepare voters amid a holiday atmosphere provided by brass bands and lion dances parading down the city's streets.

Mass also was held at all Saigon's Roman Catholic churches Saturday so voters could take part in the vote today without having to miss services, a Hanoi broadcast said.

Officials ordered sirens to sound three times at 7 a.m. today to call voters to the 4,500 polling booths in Saigon, Kyodo news service said. Portable booths for the sick and aged would be provided, it added.

In Hanoi, Kyodo reported smiling portraits of Ho Chi Minh, and national flags were seen all over the city, giving it a festive air. Crowds of pedestrians enjoying outdoor performances blocked traffic, it said.

"From this election, a new regime will emerge, a regime of the people, for the people and by the people, a regime that will rebuild Vietnam into a strong and truly Socialist nation," Radio Hanoi said Saturday.

North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong and party First Secretary Truong Chinh are among the top Hanoi men running in the elections, and all are expected to win.

Hanoi is expected to be the capital of a unified Vietnam of 49 million persons. Although no date for reunification has yet been announced, the 492-member National Assembly is expected to began its tasks quickly.

THESE TASKS, according to North Vietnamese leaders, will include adopting a new constitution, passing laws, and coming up with "the new name of the state, the national flag, the national anthem, the national emblem (and) the capital city."

Eligible voters have been urged to choose 249 deputies from North Vietnam and 243 from the South to serve in the assembly.

There are 281 candidates running in the South and an undisclosed number in the North, all of them selected over the past few months by various revolutionary committees.

Campaigning for various candidates was forbidden in Saigon on the grounds that the choices have already been made.

In a related development, South Vietnam accused the United States Saturday of evading its obligation to help in its reconstruction.

TRAN Duong, the leader of the South Vietnamese delegation to the Asian Development Bank meeting in Jakarta, Indonesia, said the U.S. "went too far" by placing an embargo on Vietnam and by freezing all assets and accounts of South Vietnamese banks and individuals.

"These measures taken by the U.S. government have ... brought protests even from a number of American political figures and in particular from banking and business circles," Duong said.

He added that "in deciding to freeze substantial part of our international reserves, the U.S. government hoped to be able to suffocate our international economic relations. Such an act has indeed caused us certain difficulties."

Shiro Inoue, president of the Asian Development Bank, said the bank was ready to make efforts for reconstruction and rehabilitation of Vietnam regardless of the changes taking place there.

Inoue said the bank could either have Vietnam make a new application for membership after the country is unified or simply continue to accept South Vietnam as a member with an understanding that North Vietnam is included.

Franjieh OKs election for his successor

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Suleiman Franjieh, symbol of stiff Christian resistance to Moslem demands in Lebanon's bloody civil war, signed a constitutional amendment Saturday allowing immediate election of his successor. Joyous Moslem gunmen fired off machine-gun bursts in celebration.

On the fighting fronts, authorities estimated 54 persons were killed during the day, swelling the toll in the year-long war to more than 17,000. Beirut airport was closed for seven hours after the field was shelled for the second time this week. No one was killed or wound-

Kissinger backs Africa majority

By BARRY SCHWEID

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — With a warning that "time is running out" for Rhodesia's white rulers, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger Saturday began a two-week tour of Africa to demonstrate firm U.S. support for black majority rule and economic progress.

At the same time, sources in Kissinger's party denied they had said military aid to black nationalists was under consideration. They said possible economic support was not being ruled out.

Earlier, the Associated Press erroneously reported from London that U.S. officials said Kissinger might offer indirect military aid to black liberation movements.

A SENIOR official on Kissinger's plane told newsmen the United States had received no specific request for military aid from national movements or countries friendly to them.

When asked about reports, particularly in a Zambian newspaper, that military aid is being considered, the official said economic aid is possible and he did not want to make a judgment about precisely what the administration was going to do.

The official emphasized that Kissinger would not be receptive to any ultimatums from nationalist groups for military aid.

The administration has repeatedly warned the Soviet Union and Cuba against introducing troops in Africa for another Angola-like action, but it as never spelled out specifically what the U.S. response would be in that situation.

"THE FUTURE of Africa must be shaped by Africans," Kissinger said as he stepped from his silver and blue jet. "But I am here to assure you, unambiguously, that the United States will support Africa's aspirations and concretely assist your endeavors.

"I am not here to line up one group of African nations or one group of African movements against another. We believe that the problems of Africa, the aspirations of Africa can best be achieved through the unity of African nations and African movements," Kissinger said.

Kissinger arrived in Nairobi about an hour late because earlier talks with British Foreign Secretary Anthony Crosland at a Royal Air Force base in Britain ran long.

Crosland reaffirmed the British government's intention not to take any action until "there is some sign that the white Rhodesians are prepared to accept an early move toward majority rule" in the colony, which declared independence from Britain in 1965.

Seal Beach couple killed in air crash

A Seal Beach couple was killed when their single-engine plane crashed while they were attempting to land at an abandoned airfield near the Grand Canyon, authorities said Saturday.

Dr. Phillip Creese, 59, and his wife Patricia, 52, of 333 First St., were pronounced dead shortly after 8 p.m. Friday by Coconino County sheriff's deputies at the old Grand Canyon Airport, about 15 miles southeast of Grand Canyon, Ariz.

Dr. Creese, a retired Air Force colonel with an instrument rating and more than 1,200 hours of flight experience, and his wife were on a "fly-in" to the Grand Canyon with a group of four other planes from the Beech Aero Club at Long Beach Airport.

Authorities at the new Grand Canyon Airport said it was not known why the Creeses had attempted to land their Beech Sierra at the field, which had been abandoned eight or nine years ago. The runway was torn up shortly after it was abandoned.

Deputies said the cause of the crash was still under investigation by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Dr. Creese operated the Manhattan Beach Medical Clinic at 515 N. Sepulveda Blvd. The Creeses had no children.

$500 offered for 2 in holdup-shooting

At 1:15 p.m. on April 1, a masked man and woman armed with pistols held up the National Environmental Corp., a food stamp headquarters at 22848 S. Western Ave. in the Torrance strip.

A woman started to enter the building, saw what was happening and started screaming. Joseph H. O'Connor, 35, proprietor of a grocery store next door, heard the screams and ran over.

The bandits, unnerved by the screams before getting any money, ran out of the store and bumped into O'Connor, who was approaching the door. One of the bandits shot him in the chest. The pair fled.

O'Connor still is alive at Harbor General Hospital, despite the fact that the bullet severed an artery.

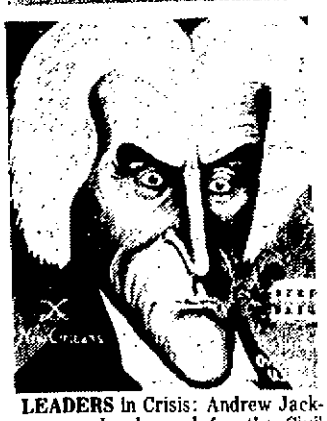

Witnesses described the male gunman as a Latin or Caucasian in his late 20s, about 5 feet 10 inches tall and about 155 pounds. The woman was described as a "very attractive" blonde about 30, around 5 feet 2 inches tall and weighing about 130 pounds.

Secret Witness will pay $500 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the bandits.

If you have such information, call Secret Witness at 436-2528 between 8 a.m. and midnight on weekdays, or between 3 p.m. and 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90803.

Shirley buoyed by response to 1-woman show

Combined News Services

Shirley MacLaine bubbled around New York this weekend proudly proclaiming that her one-woman show has broken every record at Broadway's prestigious Palace Theatre.

"Isn't it thrilling?" she asked, relaying management figures showing a gross of $154,000 to $155,000 for the first week. Bette Midler, ranked second as a money-getter at the Palace, pulled in only $103,000. Such great Palace names as Judy Garland and Liza Minelll weren't even close.

"On stage I feel the wonderful joy of interplay with the audience," Miss MacLaine said. "I can read their moods, feel how their spirits are. You can't do this in a movie."

Nor, when making a movie, can she get the crowds of 50 to 100 fans who wait for her at the stage door every night as she sweeps out after what are now routine ovations.

The box office and the acclaim, she admitted, are especially sweet since the show, which won raves at London's Palladium and on the West Coast, drew lacklustre reviews in New York.

Price spiral

Herbert Bienstock, regional commissioner of the Department of Labor's bureau of Labor Statistics, says most major Western European countries experienced greater consumer price increases than "did the United States in the period between 1970 and late 1975."

Bienstock noted that the U.S. consumer price index rose 41.5 per cent in the 1970-75 period but that price rises in Portugal, England, Greece, Spain, Finland, Italy, France, Belgium and Denmark "where above that."

Bankrupt

Pop singer B.J. Thomas faces creditors Monday in a bankruptcy hearing in Dallas to examine his list of debts and assets.

Thomas, who has had several hit songs in recent years, and his wife Gloria have listed debts of $265,028 and assets of $34,600. The list shows $113,000 of the debts to be taxes owed the federal government. Other debts include money owed to hotels, rent car companies, department stores in New York and the Southwest, and song writers Hal David and Burt Bacharach.

Among Thomas' more popular recordings have been "Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head," "Hooked On A Feeling" and "Somebody Done Somebody Wrong Song."

Teacher

Myres S. Douglas, 69, who taught President Ford real-property law for three years at Yale Law School, received the American Society of International Law's Manley O. Hudson Medal Friday night at a dinner in Washington. Other former students of the professor emeritus include Supreme Court justices Potter Stewart and Byron White, and Carla Hills, Secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

Editor

Ralph Graves, last managing editor of Life magazine before it folded, has been named corporate editor for all Time Inc. publications. In his new job, Graves, 51, will be deputy to Editor-in-Chief Hedley Donovan.

Graves, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Harvard, joined Life as a researcher in 1948.

Miscast

Opera star Joan Sutherland's performance as Anna in the Vancouver, B.C., Opera Association production of the operetta "The Merry Widow" is being panned here as classic miscasting.

"Sutherland turning her talents to 'The Merry Widow' is the vocal equivalent of Charles Atlas attending to the problem of opening a new jar of pickles," wrote Susan Mertens of the Vancouver Sun, an evening newspaper.

Jamie Portman of Southam News Services said it was tempting to equate Miss Sutherland's debut Thursday with the first voyage of the Titanic. "But such a parallel would not be completely accurate," wrote Portman. "The Titanic, after all, did sink. Miss Sutherland, because of the invulnerability of her reputation ... is one of the unsinkable ones."

Timing

Barbara Walters said Friday that she would meet Monday with Richard Wald, president of NBC News, to discuss the timing of her departure from the network following her acceptance of a million-dollar contract from ABC. Miss Walter's current contract expires in September, but there has been speculation that she may leave NBC within the next few weeks. She says, "I'll stay as long as they want me to."

NBC spokesmen said no decisions would be made on a replacement for Miss Walters' spot on the "Today" show until her plans were definitely settled. It is expected that Betty Furness, the consumer reporter for the local News Center 4 on WNBC-TV, will fill in at least temporarily for Miss Walters.

Starring

Chief Justice Warren E. Burger will be one of the stars of a television film about the Supreme Court. So will Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr. and retired Justice Tom C. Clark.

The half-hour color film is being prepared by the Young Lawyers Section of the Virginia Bar Association as part of the observance of Law Day, May 1. It will include a tour of the court hosted by court curator Catherine Skefos.

Rap improves

Activist H. Rap Brown, an inmate at Green Haven Correctional Facility, was listed in fair condition Saturday at the Putnam Community Hospital in Carmel, N.Y., where he was reported recovering from an abdominal infection.

Brown was expected to remain at the hospital at least another five days before returning to the state prison in Stormville. He is serving a term of up to 15 years on assault, robbery and weapons charges in a 1971 armed robbery in New York City. He becomes eligible for parole this October.

Shirley Temple and porno— an academic look at culture

By C. G. McDANIEL

CHICAGO (AP) — Question: What do Shirley Temple and pornography have in common?

Answer: For better or worse they're part of today's culture, and a thriving group of academics says they're worth studying.

Some 500 members of the Popular Culture Association wound up their three-day annual convention Saturday, presenting papers and talking about the meaning of such current phenomena as science fiction, blue jeans, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and country-and-western music.

The participants were serious academicians — specialists in history, English literature, journalism, speech, sociology and other fields.

What can such studies teach?

For one thing, the advocates say, all sorts of information can be obtained about a current hero or phenomenon that can't be learned about someone or something 200 years in the past.

One researcher referred to her subject — Shirley Temple, American hero — as "myth on the hoof."

Then, too, says the association's founder, Ray Browne of Bowling Green State University in Ohio, popular culture lets students examine the development of their own values. That throws the values into question, shaking students up and making them think.

"People are terrified sometimes of the world around them," says Ralph Carnes, philosophy professor and dean at Roosevelt University in Chicago. "If we deal with the present, we have to deal with change."

One common theme at the conference was that images are important in current society — sometimes more so than reality.

Carnes' wife Valerie, an English professor at Roosevelt, said in her paper that promoters of denim clothes, once made for the poor and working classes, are exploiting the young by charging outrageous prices for cheap goods. Carnes maintained that today's body builders are more interested in appearance than strength and health.

English teacher Michael Scott Cain of Catonsville, Md., Community College, said country-and-western music is being destroyed by Madison Avenue image makers. And Phyllis Boring of the Rutgers University Spanish department found that as a grownup ambassador to Ghana, Shirley Temple Black has failed match the success of child star Shirley Temple — partly because images of child and adult conflict.

Browne says popular culture studies are catching on and that the "open hostility" from traditional academics that he found 10 years ago is dying down.

The association, founded in 1969, now has about 2,000 members, with perhaps another 1,000 who belong only to regional groups. At least 1,000 colleges and universities are offering 5,000 courses in subjects which can be considered popular culture, Browne said.

The Carneses and Browne agreed on one reason for the increasing acceptance of popular culture: It is good business. Students enroll in these courses in large number, they said, and that is where the money is.

Foreigner gets Bicentennial job

U.S. fireworks firm does slow burn

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A $200,000 contract for a Bicentennial Fourth of July fireworks spectacular in the nation's capital has been awarded to a French firm.

And that angers the president of the nation's largest fireworks manufacturer, who says America's 200th birthday should be celebrated with fireworks from an American company.

"Ironic," says George Zambelli, head of Zambelli Fireworks Manufacturing Inc. in New Castle, 40 miles northwest of here.

"We never had a chance to bid competitively...It's the nation's capital and on public grounds and paid in part from the federal government.

"And we're further upset that as taxpayers with local unemployment of 11 per cent, a foreign company gets this contract."

Ruggieri, the French firm, was awarded the contract on April 1, a month after Zambelli met with Happy Birthday USA officials.

"There were no plans, no specs, no budget," Zambelli said. "I had no idea what they wanted."

Pat Pellerin, a spokesman for Happy Birthday USA, said in Washington that Ruggieri is the largest fireworks manufacturer in the world.

"Hmm, a lot of people would dispute that," said Zambelli. His firm has 35 employes.

Happy Birthday USA is a private Bicentennial company which received $100,000 from the government's American Revolution Bicentennial Administration (ARBA) and donations from private corporations, said Pellerin.

"The money from ARBA is not being used for the fireworks," said Pellerin. "It's earmarked for other things."

Pellerin said five firms — three French companies, Zambelli and California Fireworks — were considered for the contract.

"We were looking for design capability, experience in producing a display on this scale," he said. This is the largest that's every been done." He said Zambelli's biggest job for Washington was $8,000 or $9,000.

Wrong, says Zambelli, his company has had contracts with Washington totaling $75,000 over the past 15 years. "We did an Honor America Day program in Washington in 1970 on two-week's notice. Got a crash assignment from the White House. The contract was for $17,000."

Zambelli says Lawrence Slinchcomb, president of Happy Birthday USA, argues that the contract was awarded to the French firm for several reasons, among them France's contribution to the Revolution and their giving the Statue of Liberty to the U.S.

"I love this, I love this," Zambelli said. "This overlooks that we're Americans and all that we as businesses and laborers and taxpayers have done and are doing for this country."

Teamsters locked into showdown with Busch

Knight News Service

The giant Teamsters union and August A. Busch III, head of the world's largest brewery, are locked in an economic showdown matching each other's capacity to stand up to the effects of a prolonged beer strike.

Nearly 8,000 Teamsters struck nine Anheuser-Busch Inc. plants two months ago over greater job security and unresolved grievances as Busch stood his ground warding off what he considered an infringement on management affairs.

As a result, Chicago is virtually bone dry on supplies of Budweiser and Michelob beers and taps are reduced to a trickle in many suburbs.

The battle, which started out as a labor-management confrontation on a new contract has spilled over into a bitter internal feud within the Teamsters union.

Robert F. Lewis, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 6 in St. Louis, secretary-treasurer of Teamsters Local 6 in St. Louis, stands accused of aiding Busch's fight against the Teamsters' strike and undermining efforts of Frank Seban, head of the Teamsters National Conference of Brewery and Soft Drink Workers, to reach a national agreement.

Busch announced last week that the company is producing beer at 60 per cent of capacity and had made money in the last quarter. He said the company is ready for a long strike.

County cuts include L.B. General

Fate of elderly, alcoholic to be determined Monday

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

The County Department of Health Services will decide Monday the fate of the elderly and the alcoholics who turn to Long Beach General Hospital for help.

Its alcoholism program, one staff member pointed out, is the only one of its kind in the county's entire hospital system.

The health services department is $16.7 million over budget, however, a department spokesman said, and services may be reduced severely. Just how much will be allocated will be decided Monday by department leaders at their offices in Los Angeles.

LONG BEACH General Hospital is regarded as the step-child of the massive Los Angeles County Hospital system, even though it offers a general treatment program as well as services to the elderly and the alcoholic, said a medical administrator who asked that his name be withheld.

"It's a place where they put the programs they just don't know what to do with," he said. "You've heard the phrase 'out of sight, out of mind'...well, that's us.

"Alcoholism-detoxification is one of those programs people would just as soon forget," he continued. "There's nothing pretty about being drunk.

"BECAUSE WE live in a drug and booze-oriented society," he said, "alcoholism is a gut level problem that hits pretty close to home."

Dr. Vernelle Fox, chief of the hospital's alcoholism-detoxification program, had this to say:

"When we talk about alcoholism in Long Beach, we're not talking about the walking dead from skid row. We're talking about friends and family."

"About 50 per cent of our patients are from the Long Beach area and we treat about 2,000 a year.

"SOCIETY wouldn't tolerate knowing so little about a physical illness as they do about alcoholism," she continued. "There's a cultural attitude we have to deal with.

"We don't have pills or surgeries to treat alcoholism. Most people think of treatment as just sobering up.

"Recovery, however, is a three-year process.

"The average age of our patients is 37. When I first started working with alcoholics 26 years ago, the average age was around 50."

In addition she said "about 45 per cent of our patients are mixed substance (alcohol and perscription drugs) abusers.

"THEY'RE STILL stoned," she said. "Their breath just smells different.

"Let's face some facts," she continued.

" We (society) drink but we don't like to think we drink. Alcohol is deep-rooted in our culture and as cultural beings, we're pretty damn tough on each other.

"We condemn psychological problems rather than understand them."

The average stay for inpatient care is 28 days, Dr. Fox said.

About 70 persons are treated each day as out-patients, she added.

THE SUCCESS rate, according to Dr. Fox, is 55 per cent — slightly above the national average.

But the program's contribution is even greater than the 55 per cent figure indicates, she said.

"We are also actively engaged in educating the public about alcoholism and you can't measure what you prevent."

Later, outside the administration building, the sun was shining and the day was comfortably warm.

A group of women sat in a circle on the lawn. They had two things in common: They were alcoholics and they had decided they needed help.

"I'd be a damn liar if I told you I don't crave booze now. But I'd be damn crazy if I went back to that kind of life. That's why I'm here, to keep from going crazy."

"I USED TO wake up ill every morning," one young woman said quietly. "I knew I had to do something; but hell, there was a whole day of loneliness out there just waiting to gobble me up.

"It would start as soon as I opened my eyes in the morning. And it would eat at my insides until I had that first drink.

"I'd be a damn liar if I told you I don't crave booze now. But I'd be damn crazy if I went back to that kind of life. That's why I'm here, to keep from going crazy."

She wiped a wisp of honey-blonde hair out of her eyes and looked over at the traffic on Redondo Avenue and Willow Street. "I was 18 when I started drinking. I dropped out of Wilson High School. I'm 22 now."

IN ANOTHER part of the hospital, Dr. Robert Sandhoff, an administrator in the medical sector of the facility called Area 1, walked down the hall.

Several patients greeted him by name.

He paused occasionally to speak to them. He knew them by name, too.

He's a popular man, and this hospital is a large chunk of his life, an aide explained later.

Sandhoff was deeply concerned about the threatened cutbacks.

"We're a small hospital," he said. "We know our patients by name -- there's no referring to a patient as 'the ulcer in bed eight' at this facility.

"WHAT'S GOING to happen to the people here... who knows?" he shrugged. "Most people in the Long Beach area don't even know what we do here... let alone that we run a full medical program."

An elderly woman walked down the hall, fingers gripping the steel bar that runs the length of the hospital corridor.

Her thick gray hair was swept up into a top knot held in place by a small comb. She looked at the floor with liquid blue eyes, opened her mouth as if to say something, and then changed her mind and walked slowly away.

"WE HAVE a lot of isolated, lonely people here," social worker Mary Siegfried said. "They have nowhere else to go... so they come here."

The threatened cutback would eliminate one-third of the hospital's 300 beds.

Included would be the elimination of ambulatory health care at El Cerrito Hospital (the old Seaside Hospital on Magnolia Avenue) that currently cares for the bulk of mental health patients in the Long Beach area.

According to Dr. Eton Blum, Long Beach City Health officer, El Cerrito handles about 2,500 ambulatory-care patients a month.

BLUM TOLD the City Council early last week that the city health department sees about 2,200 patients per month. He warned that county patients could not be absorbed into the city health care plan without a substantial increase in (city) staff.

If the budget, which will be presented to the County Health Services Department, is severely cut, it will put a strangle-hold on county mental health care in Long Beach, those involved in the program believe.

It also will probably mean the loss of long-term patient care at Long Beach General.

"There would be no room for the gray-haired ladies," one staff member said.

"The old and the alcoholic," he continued, "are two of society's step-children. They've been finding help at the hospital — and it's going broke in a society of plenty."

Time's only relative

So you lost an hour last night

By MIKE JELF
Staff Writer

Time flew this morning, which explains why that basketball game on television was an hour early.

The explanation is really quite simple:

Daylight saving time (DST), an idea credited to Ben Franklin and propagated early in this century by British builder William Willett, started today at 2 a.m., as it does every spring.

Well, almost every spring. It didn't start last spring because it hadn't ended. Congress decided to extend DST as an energy conservation experiment.

Congress later decided one year was long enough for that experiment, and the nation returned to standard time last October.

As a result of DST's return, 2 a.m. was 3 a.m. this morning.

Spring forward, fall back, you'll remember.

Time, as measured by clocks and designated by law, literally jumped a beat this morning, just as it stands still each October.

This is possible because time is subjective.

In fact, modern physics recognizes time as being a relative matter in the universe, thereby opening the door for a whole school of science-fiction writing.

PROF. Nando L. Balazs, former research associate of the Enrico Fermi Institute of Nuclear Studies, wrote this to explain Albert Einstein's theory of time for the Encyclopedia Britannica:

Einstein, in explaining the nature of the space-time continuum, wrote that the change from "subjective" time to prescientific concepts of time was tied to the emergence of the idea "there is a real, external world independent of the subject." (For example, alarm clocks.)

In this world, says Balazs, time is measured by clocks, whose nature is clear if the event "occurs in the immediate vicinity of the clock in space."

However, he says, once the nature of the propagation of light in space was known, it was clear as light that "no absolute meaning can be assigned to the conception of the simultaneity of events that occur at points separated by a distance in space," which seems a very lucid defense for those who are late to work.

In other words, time is relative. Or, to use a literary approach and quote Shakespeare: "Vat is de clock, Jack? Tis past the hour."

6 arrested, $330,000 in pot seized

Six men were arrested and $330,000 worth of marijuana seized Saturday as narcotics officers wrapped up a four-day investigation with three El Monte area raids.

Investigators said part of the 169 kilos of marijuana was seized and three of the men arrested when officers from the El Monte and Los Angeles police departments raided homes at 14101 and 14102 Proctor St., La Puente, about 12:15 a.m.

Two others were arrested and the rest of the marijuana seized at a home at 11520 Magnolia St., El Monte. The sixth man was arrested near the Five Point Bowl in El Monte.

Police said they were led to the homes by an informant who told them he had purchased marijuana from the men.

ANIMAL DUNG PILES UP AT SAN FRANCISCO ZOO, CLOSED BECAUSE OF STRIKE.
—AP Wirephoto

Strike hits S.F. life-style

By TIM REITERMAN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The famous cable car turntable at Powell and Market Streets is deserted, and garbage gathers where thousands of people normally do.

A new stream runs through Golden Gate Park, fed by one of 90 broken pipes leaking 1½ million gallons of water a day.

Tons of animal dung are piled along zoo walkways, usually crowded with tourists.

At International Airport, portable outhouses are set up in parking lots; many bathrooms are closed, and the restaurants are washing dishes in cold water.

Downtown workers hitchhike, high school students walk or bike miles to classes, and the elderly generally stay home.

No one disputes that the 3½-weekone strike by 1,800 city crafts workers has cramped the style of "the city that knows how." Inconvenience and expense have been the major impact to date, but city officials express concern that more serious effects might occur if the dispute continues.

"The water department situation is of grave concern," said a city official who declined to be identified. "Some of the men still working are working 16 hours a day. Any reasonable person wonders how long this can go on. It's a risky situation. Suppose a pumping station needs to be shut down for repairs?"

Only 14 of more than 300 water workers are on the job.

Ed Brodie, superintendent of construction and maintenance for the Water Department, said, "If there's a major emergency, all we can do is shut down the mains and ask the strikers, 'What're you going to do?' "

"The situation's critical," said Burton Dougherty, general manager of the Electricity Department, where only 31 of 116 workers were on the job. "If we had a serious emergency, we have inadequate personnel to cope with it."

Since the strike began March 31, shutting down the city's Sierra Nevada power plant at Hetch Hetchy Dam, San Francisco also has lost about $850,000 in revenue from electricity sold to other communities.

Revenue loss also is the major strike impact at the city zoo which has been shut down by 25 striking animal keepers. Director Saul Kitchener, who is working along with several nonstrikers, projects that $100,000 in gate and concessions revenue will be lost in April.

"It's not affecting the animals," he said. "We're cleaning the animal cages and feeding them as usual." But, he ads, "The dung, debris and hay is piling up. Hippos, rhinos and elephants produce quite a bit, you know."

The city plumbers, electricians, carpenters, machinists, laborers, gardeners and streetsweepers struck to protest pay cuts ordered by supervisors. Attempts to set up negotiations have failed, and the Board of Supervisors has refused to agree to mediation until workers return to their jobs.

The shutdown of the city buses by a sympathy walkout of drivers has inconvenienced not only the 250,000 daily riders but also thousands of motorists who must put up with new traffic and parking headaches.

Municipal Railway officials said they received about 2,000 calls in the first 1½ days of a car pool system. But they said about 80 per cent of the callers were seeking rides, not offering.

On Monday, school officials say teams of teachers will be stationed at eight public library branches to give assignments, makeup work and tutoring for strike-stranded students. Students also can do makeup work by listening to the school district's educational radio station.

No state approval reported

Burke health-plan pay told

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Companies controlled by the husband of Rep. Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, D-Calif., got thousands of dollars from a prepaid health plan last year without State Health Department approval, the Sacramento Bee reported Saturday.

The newspaper said some department officials said the payments appeared to violate department regulations, but another official said the payments did not appear to violate state law.

The Bee said William Burke of Los Angeles was paid the money through two companies which got it from the health plan, Omni-Rx.

In addition, the newspaper said, though both of Burke's companies are incorporated, it could find no evidence that one of the two was operating.

Burke is listed as marketing director of Omni-Rx, the Bee said. There were no allegations in the article about Mrs. Burke.

The newspaper said a federal audit of Omni-Rx began after Thomas Moore, then the state's top investigator of prepaid health plans, said he had found evidence that $2,000 a month was purportedly being funneled into a company which really did not exist.

Moore has since been fired by State Health Director Jerome Lackner. Moore blames the firing on political pressure from Omni-Rx. Dr. Lackner says one reason for the firing was that Moore's proposed regulations for the plans were too rigid and unrealistic.

Federal officials have not yet commented on the findings of their audit.

Prepaid health plans were instituted under former Gov. Ronald Reagan as an alternative to state-run Medi-Cal. The 30 existing private plans provide health care to needy persons and are reimbursed on a per-patient basis by the state.

REP. YVONNE BURKE

The Bee said Moore disclosed that Omni-Rx paid $2,000 a month for 10 months last year to Burke's California Physician Consultants.

The newspaper said California Physician Consultants was not listed in Los Angeles-area telephone books, and it said health-care investigators and others in the field said they had never heard of the firm.

Burke said both his companies were properly incorporated and declined to comment further, the Bee said.

The article quoted state health officials as saying OmniRx paid "sizable" monthly amounts to the second Burke firm, Comprehensive Planning Consultants, Inc., including $2,500 checks to Burke.

The latter payments were said by Omni-Rx officials to pay the salaries of employes who enrolled Medi-Cal patients into the health plan, the Bee said.

The newspaper said its sources reported neither firm had a subcontract from OmniRx. It quoted some Health Department officials as saying department-approved subcontracts were required for such payments.

But Robert Ledbetter, chief of the department's program-compliance section for prepaid health plans, said there appeared to be nothing illegal about the payments under state law.

Omni-Rx Vice President Merve Nowell confirmed payment to California Physician Consultants but declined other comment about his company's relationship to either Burke firm.

In another development, the Bee said Rep. John Moss, Sacramento Democrat, reported that Nowell distributed a 17-point fact sheet among members of Congress attacking Moore.

The document said Moore had been promoting a $5.3-million federal grant for a Sacramento public-health plan which lacked safeguards against racial discrimination.

That plan was a central issue in Moore's firing. Moore says it would be a pilot project that set standards for health plan rates, illustrating his contention that many plans are making inordinate profits. Nowell contended that minority-run plans like Omni-Rx aren't treated as well.

Several published accounts say Burke has been lobbying his wife's congressional colleagues against federal money for the plan and has received the support of the congressional Black Caucus.

Lackner's superior, Health and Welfare Secretary Mario Obledo, has resisted approving a portion of the grant money for the plan.

"A lot of minority foundations are being treated differently than the others," Obledo said.

"It seems unjust that minority PHPs should go under while the foundation has been overpaid (a reference to a critical federal report on the Moore-affiliatedSacramento plan), and still we give them more money."

ALRB chief denies bias, says most votes unanimous

SACRAMENTO (AP) — The chairman of California's bankrupt farm labor board says that, despite allegations of bias against him and two other members, virtually all of the board's rulings were unanimous.

Only five of the 72 decisions by the five-member Agricultural Labor Relations Board had dissenters, and in only one instance did the three accused members side against the other two, said the 82-page "white paper" released by Bishop Roger Mahony, the ALRB chairman.

The unanimous rulings included the ALRB's access rule, a focus of grower protests. It allows union organizers to enter fields three times a day.

Grower opposition has cut off the ALRB's funds in the Legislature and halted farm labor elections. Growers and the Teamsters Union contend the board is biased in favor of Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers of America, which has won a majority of the elections.

Board members Joe Ortega, Leroy Chatfield and Joseph Grodin and the board's top staffer, general counsel Walter Kintz, have resigned. Many of the board's employes have already found other work.

Ortega, Chatfield and Mahony are the three board members accused by growers of bias. Mahony says he has no intention of resigning.

An ALRB funding bill is stalled in the State Senate despite support from Gov. Edmund Brown Jr., and backers say they are still about three votes short of passage.

Meanwhile, the UFW is trying to qualify a farm labor initiative for the November ballot. It would protect the law — including the access rule — from amendments or a future cutoff of funding.

The report released by Mahony said many allegations against the ALRB "were simply vague and sweeping generalizations."

It said others "were generally based on misinformation or confusion about the board's processes — and were generally contradicted by available facts."

It denied allegations that an ALRB employe wore a belt buckle with a UFW insignia, that other officials wore UFW buttons and that ALRB members and employes put UFW bumper stickers on their cars.

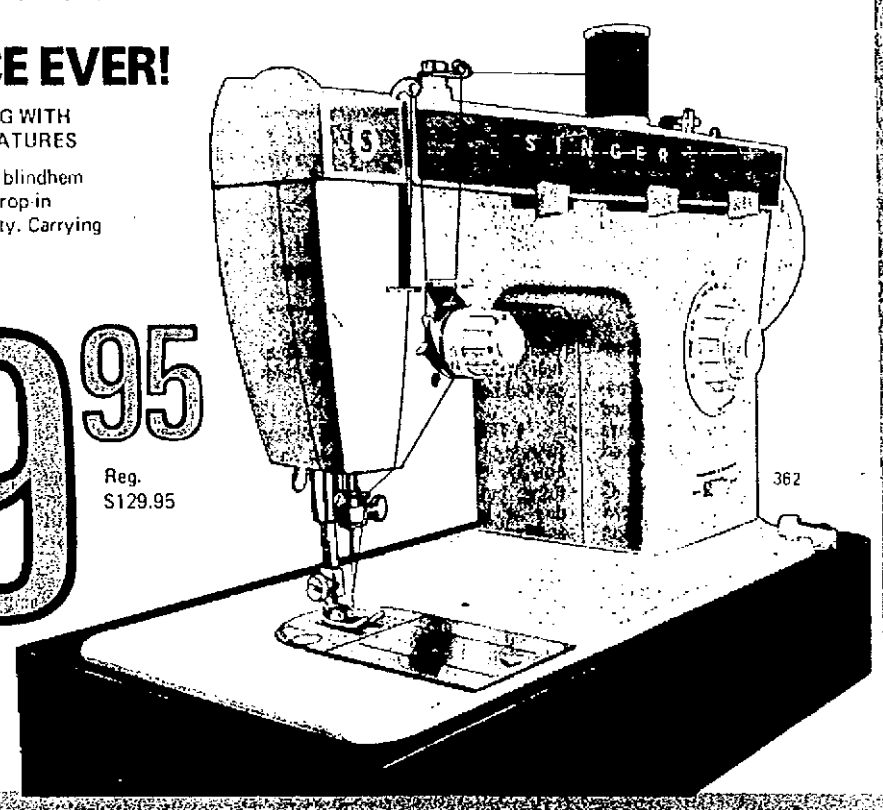

The belt buckle insignia was an American Indian eagle, not the UFW thunderbird; the buttons were worn by UFW poll observers, not board officials; and union members of both sides often stuck their bumper stickers on state cars without the officials' knowledge, the report said.

The report said the board had to hire hearing officers hastily and without always following civil service procedures, but denied that they were inexperienced or pro-UFW.

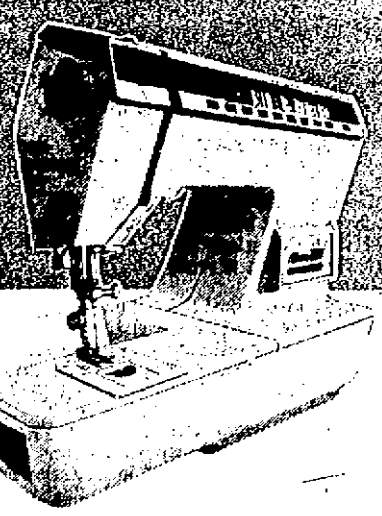

The report also conceded some elections were not held within the legally required seven days of a requesting petition, but said only one instance was found to be unfair and that election was set aside.

GOV. BROWN
Going Out of State

Brown set to decide on trips

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will announce this week when and where he will travel outside California in search of Democratic presidential delegates, his campaign director said Saturday.

"He's reaching a decision this weekend, and we'll make an announcement (this) week," said Mickey Kantor.

But he denied a report in the Sacramento Union that Brown has tentatively decided to go to Maryland Tuesday and stay at least three days.

"AT SOME point, I have to go out of state — that's clear," Brown told the Union Friday.

At another point, he said, "Obviously, I'm considering Maryland and Nevada."

The 38-year-old governor has not left California since he took office in January of last year. His campaign for president, announced March 12, has consisted so far of press interviews, speeches and fund-raising appearances.

Some Maryland political figures, including Baltimore County Executive Ted Venetoulis, have been urging Brown to visit the state and campaign actively for its 53 convention delegates in the May 18 primary.

ONE WEEK later, Brown is on the primary ballot in Nevada, with 11 delegates at stake. He is also entered in California's 280-delegate primary June 8.

The Union said former New York Congressman Allard Lowenstein, leader of the 1968 dump-Johnson movement in the Democratic Party and now a Brown political adviser, has spent the past few days in Maryland.

Cal State faculty eases feud

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A policy of "noncooperation" with Sacramento State University President James Bond has been rejected by the school's faculty.

With 70 per cent of the teachers voting, the count was 349-285 against the proposal by the Faculty Senate.

The proposal, the latest attack in a long-standing feud, said noncooperation might entail refusing to tell the administration about student grades, refusing to serve on campus committees or boycotting graduation ceremonies.

Teacher groups have warred with Bond over the authority to name department chairmen and other issues. The most recent dispute involved the Bond-engineered firing of Eugene Morris, head of a campus foundation.

Bond said Morris wasn't able to work with the university administration. But Morris said Bond was trying to block Morris's investigation of expense-money payments.

Bond, who has been negotiating with faculty leaders, said the vote "shows that the voice of reason still exists on the campus."

A Victoria flu takes high toll

ATLANTA (AP) — The A Victoria flu, now below epidemic threshold in most of the United States, claimed more victims this year than any influenza epidemic since 1969, the Center for Disease Control said Saturday.

The CDC said preliminary estimates indicated there were 11,000 more flu-related deaths because of the epidemic than would have been expected in nonepidemic times.

That represented the highest number of "excess deaths" since the Hong Kong epidemic of 1968-1969, when there were 12,700 more deaths than expected in the U.S., the CDC said.

The CDC said in its weekly report that the outbreak has fallen below the epidemic threshold nationally for the first time in 11 weeks and is at or below the threshold in all but two of nine reporting areas.

The CDC, working with statistics from previous, nonepidemic years, establishes an expected number of flu-related deaths and considers the epidemic threshold to be reached when deaths exceed the expected number by 50 or more.

The Pacific and West South-Central regions were the only two areas that remained above the threshold in the CDC's latest report.

The CDC also reported what it said appeared to be the first recorded incident of contamination of a public water supply by chlordane, a pesticide, with toxic symptoms appearing in several persons.

The incident occurred in Chattanooga, Tenn., March 24 when several persons noticed a change in the color and odor of their tap water, the report said. A survey reached 45 of the 49 affected households and found four persons with probable poisoning symptoms.

The chemical possibly entered the water supply when someone using chlordane to exterminate termites attempted to dilute it with water from a garden hose and allowed the hose to drop below the level of the chemical, the CDC said.

The chemical may then have been sucked into the water supply because of fluctuating pressure.

Pacific Islands 'disaster area'

The designation makes federal funds available for relief and recovery work.

Nation hit with rain, snow, tornado watch

Associated Press

Rain prevailed over much of the nation Saturday.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered over most of the Mississippi Valley, Eastern Plains and parts of the Ohio Valley and Central Great Lakes Region.

A tornado watch was posted for parts of southern Michigan, Indiana and Illinois and a flash flood watch was in effect over portions of Central Illinois.

Rivers and streams were rising throughout much of the central portion of the nation.

Skies were mostly sunny, and temperatures were mild, along the South Atlantic Coast. The same held true for the Central and Southern Rockies, the Great Basin, much of the Southwest and the Central and Western Plains. It was sunny and cool in New England.

Temperatures ranged from 35 degrees at Watertown, S.D., to 92 in Goldsboro and Rocky Mount, N.C.

Oil firms discuss drilling with Viets

NEW YORK (AP) — The possibility of private U.S. oil explorations resuming off the coast of Vietnam is being disussed with the Vietnamese, this nation's former enemy, Mobil Oil Corp. said Saturday night.

Despite the lack of diplomatic or trade relations between the two countries, Mobil has been meeting with Vietnamese officials in an effort to reopen exploration off Vietnam, which fell to the Communists about a year ago, an official spokesman for Mobil said.

A second source, a Mobil executive who did not wish to be identified, said the company has met in Paris with high-ranking Vietnamese leaders four times since last July.

"We have had two meetings with the South Vietnamese Provisional Government and two others with officials from Hanoi," said the source.

The New York Times reported in its editions today that several American and other Western oil companies were meeting with the Vietnamese about exploration and drilling in the South China Sea.

The Times listed the firms having been involved in drilling off the South Vietnamese Coast when Saigon fell: Exxon, Union Texas, Skelly, Marathon, Shell and Cities Service.

A spokesman for Exxon, the largest oil company in the nation, said Saturday, "We have not had any negotiations with the Vietnamese. We were not as advanced in Southeast Asia as some of the other companies were."

The other firms could not be reached for comment immediately.

The Mobil source said, "I don't know what the other companies are doing. We are studying the possibility of going in. The State Department has been informed of such conversations we have had. But the department has not been involved."

The State Department declined comment.

"The pace will depend on the Vietnamese. It will depend on the kind of deals they are willing to make," the Mobil source continued, characterizing the talks as "meetings," not "negotiations."

"I have no knowledge of any terms that the Vietnamese have put forward," he said. "I don't think anyone is negotiating yet."

Big American oil lost millions when Vietnam fell, although oil research in that part of Asia was still in the exploration stages.

Last August, Nguyen Hun Tho, chairman of the National Liberation Front's central committee, said Saigon was prepared to permit foreign countries to exploit South Vietnam's offshore oil deposits if they respected Saigon's "sovereignty and independence."

Since then, French and Canadian firms have openly asked for drilling permits in the South China Sea.

The United States placed a trade embargo on North Vietnam during the war but has granted exceptions to permit limited export of humanitarian aid, primarily medical supplies, to Hanoi by such groups as the American Friends Service Committee.

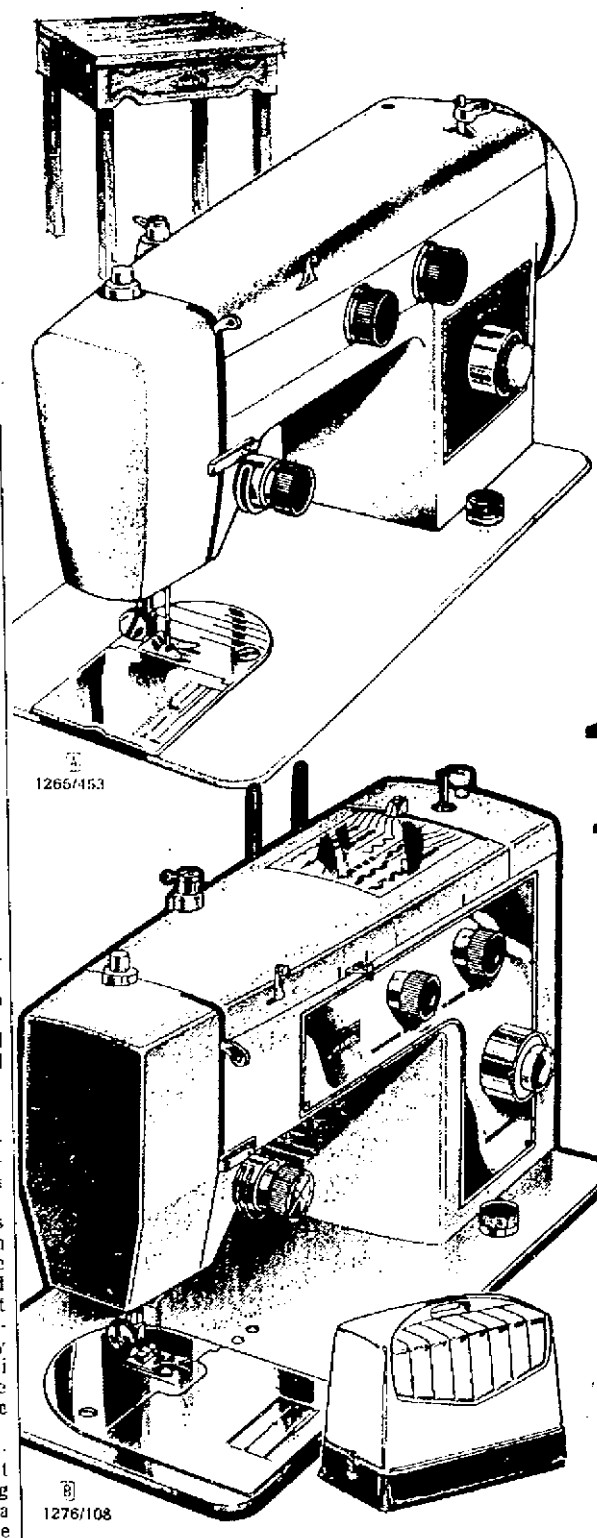

Last December, members of the House Select Committee on Missing Persons in Southeast Asia talked with Vietnamese representatives in Paris. Committee chairman G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., said lifing the trade embargo was one of the steps that the Vietnamese saw as necessary for improved relations with the United States.

Since then, there have been moves in Congress to do so.

However, on Friday, President Ford said the United States has no intention of normalizng relations with North Vietnam.

Leaders in crisis: Andrew Jackson

Old Hickory and war's dress rehearsal

By SID MOODY
Associated Press Writer

Seventh of a series

Ludicrous, it seems, but great issues lay hidden behind the skirts of Andrew Jackson's "petticoat war."

On the surface, the battle raged over the virtues, or lack of same, of the new bride of Jackson's Tennessee crony and secretary of war, John Henry Eaton. Peggy Eaton, born to a Georgetown publican named O'Neale, had been an unholy Grail for pursuing men from teen-age, when her charms led a Navy secretary's nephew to suicide while her elopement with another was foiled only because she kicked over a flowerpot while exiting her bedroom window, awakening her father.

When Eaton took the recently widowed Peggy to the altar after apparently having taken her to bed, proper wives of Jackson's official family, particularly Mrs. John C. Calhoun, would have nothing to do with the newlyweds. Jackson, whose frontier marriage had caused such buckskin gossip that he killed a man in a duel defending his wife's honor, almost pathologically insisted his Cabinet receive Peggy as a lady.

Of deeper significance behind the "O'Neale malaria," however, was the rivalry between Vice President John Calhoun and Secretary of State Martin Van Buren over succession to Jackson. And deeper than that was the gradual emergence of the hard-eyed Calhoun as leader and theoretician of what was to become secession.

It was not a new doctrine. In 1798, Kentucky and Virginia in separate Resolves had talked of states' authority to disregard the federal Alien and Sedition Acts of John Adams. But only talked. New England states talked of secession at the Hartford Convention over Jefferson's Embargo Act. But only talked!

South Carolina, meantime, was going from riches to rags. Cotton inexorably exhausted her soil. Her once-wealthy planters suffered from high tariffs that protected

Widening breach with Southerners

New England manufacturers but made oppressively expensive the prices the planters paid for imported goods and brought retaliation abroad against their agricultural exports. The "Tariff of Abominations" of 1828, politically designed to help get Jackson elected president, which it did, only added to the woes of South Carolina. But with Calhoun, a native son, as Jackson's vice president, the Palmetto State looked for easier times.

And there was reasn to hope. Jackson, the hero of the Battle of New Orleans as well as campaigns against the Creeks and Seminoles, looked the other way as Georgia encroached with impunity on the federal reserve of the increasingly civilized Cherokees. In 1832, when the Supreme Court under Chief Justice John Marshall ruled against Georgia, Jackson said: "John Marshall has made his decision: now let him enforce it."

Such sentiments gave heart to Southerners who might have overlooked the fact that Jackson, who was himself born in the Carolinas, at age 9 had read the newly-arrived Declaration of Independence to his illiterate frontier neighbors.

Had those same Southerners forgotten that at a banquet they gave at the Indian Queen Hotel in Washington in 1830 to woo the president, he had risen in toast while glaring pointedly at Calhoun to say: "The Union: it must be preserved"? Did they think a man not by accident called Old Hickory would forget Calhoun's reply; "The Union: next to our liberty, the most dear"? Did they think a man who bore the scar of a British dragoon's sword on his forehead would forget patriotism? Or a man who still carried in his arm the ball from the pistol of Sen. Thomas Hart Benton's brother in a long-ago fracas would forget honor?

If so, they were wrong. Jackson did not forget scars, physical or emotional.

Nor did Jackson forget that Mrs. Calhoun had led the boycott of Peggy Eaton. Nor that Calhoun, himself, had years ago, when James Monroe's Secretary of War, advocated arresting Jackson for overzealous prosecution of the Seminole campaign, a fact adroitly and belatedly brought to the president's attention by Van Burenites.

Such intrigue and the Peggy Eaton foolishness only symbolized the gap had widened between Jackson and his vice president. Without publicizing his parenthood. Calhoun in 1828 had sired the theory of nullification by which he reasoned that a single state — not all of them, as proposed in the Kentucky and Virginia Resolves — could override the acts of the federal government, the Constitution being a compact of sovereign entities.

By 1832, South Carolinians, misreading Jackson's tolerance of Georgia's defiance of federal authority, were audibly discussing nullifying the onerous tariff of 1828. Jackson brought a South Carolinian congressman up short, however. "Tell ... (the Nullifiers) from me ... if one drop of blood be shed there in defiance of the laws of the United States, I will hang the first man of them I can get my hands on to the first tree I can find."

Benton, who knew his man and had made peace with him, cautioned: "When Jackson begins to talk about hanging, they can begin to look for the ropes."

That September, the Nullifiers won a landslide election to the South Carolina legislature. Reports reached Jackson at his home, the Hermitage near Nashville, that federal troops were prepared to turn over the harbor forts in Charleston to state troops. Jackson sped off to Washington. "By the God in Heaven, I will uphold the laws!" he roared, crashing his fist so heavily on a table he broke his pipe. The president hastily sent grenades and rockets to his Unionist leader in South Carolina, Joel Poinsett, more permanently known for having imported the poinsettia from Mexico.

On Nov. 23, South Carolina declared all tariffs void after Feb. 1, 1833. Jackson promptly sent seven revenue cutters and a ship of war to Charleston, where they trained their guns on the fashionable homes along the waterfront. The post office in Charleston being in the hands of the Nullifiers, Jackson sent a courier to Poinsett with a message: "No state has a right to secede ... Nullification therefore means insurrection and war, and other states have a right to put it down ..."

He asked Congress for authority for federal troops to collect duties in Charleston and prepared to send up to 15,000 soldiers there in 10 or 15 days with himself possibly at their head. South Carolinians rushed to arms and conflict drew nigh.

A proclamation ordering any resisters to disperse or face a federal army was hurried south to Poinsett. It was never delivered. The courier met a northbound messenger en route with news that South Carolina had yielded, accepting a modified tariff put forward by that artful compromiser, Henry Clay.

Far off in Illinois, a gangling youth named Lincoln read Jackson's proclamation with studied interest. And Old Hickory, himself, well knew what lay at the very depth of his gathering feud with Calhoun. "The next pretext," he said, "will be the Negro or slavery question." And there would be no Jackson to bang his fist, or reach for a rope, not until too late.

Reagan leads Ford in South

Democrats, in Alaska finished selecting their 10-vote delegation and polling showed that most or all delegates would be uncommitted. The Virgin Islands picked its delegation and officials said their three votes would also be uncommitted.

Reagan, who claims the South and Southwest will provide the delegates to win him the GOP nomination, outdid both his own and Ford's predictions in Arizona. Reagan strategists had predicted a 3-to-1 margin in delegates, and Ford strategists had claimed they would capture about a third of the delegates.

IN OKLAHOMA, all GOP delegates, by party rules, are uncommitted officially, but unofficially the support for Reagan was reported to be overwhelming. Tulsa and Oklahoma counties, which account for 40 per cent of the total at the state convention that picks delegates, were running heavily for Reagan, with his 4-to-1 margin in the precinct caucuses holding in Oklahoma County.

Similar Reagan support appeared in other counties and in only one, Ottawa County, was Ford even breaking even.

Eighteen of the state's 36 national convention delegates will be chosen May 8 at six district conventions. The remaining 18 will be chosen May 15 at the state convention in Oklahoma City. At Saturday's 77 county conventions, 740 delegates were chosen for the district conventions and 1,481 were picked for the state convention.

All this was a preface to Tuesday's presidential primary in Pennsylvania, a major showdown in the Democratic race among Udall, former Gov. Jimmy Carter of Georgia and Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington.

The Pennsylvania primary is a two-phase election: a presidential vote, which is advisory, not binding; and selection of delegates who will make up the third biggest delegation at the Democratic national convention.

Carter, who won six of the first eight primaries, said he would win the Pennsylvania popularity contest if "the people of Pennsylvania vote fairly heavily."

Jackson entered the Pennsylvania competition saying he would win, but later said the preferential balloting would be close.

"I THINK I'm going to win the delegate contest because of a good slate of delegates and a good organization," he said.

Udall said he would be satisfied with second place in Pennsylvania. "Somebody is going to be third in Pennsylvania and it won't be Mo Udall," he said.

Pennsylvania Democrats will be electing delegates for 134 of their 178 seats at the national convention. The rest will be chosen by the state committee to reflect the lineup of elected delegates.

Reagan passed up Pennsylvania to campaign in more promising states. His next test with President Ford will be in Texas on May 1.

In other political activity Saturday:

—Sen. Frank Church of Idaho, another Democratic nomination candidate, said at an Omaha, Neb., news conference that he was encouraged by his support so far in Nebraska. Church faces his first primary test since announcing his candidacy in Nebraska's May 11 primary.

"We still have some distance to go in Nebraska, but then we started from square one," Church said as he wrapped up three days of campaigning in Nebraska.

—President Ford shook hands with tourists Saturday as the White House garden was opened to the public. Ford is spending the weekend in Washington working and relaxing before a four-day campaign trip to Texas beginning Tuesday. Reagan was in his home state of California this weekend with campaigning set in Indiana and Georgia on Tuesday.

In Frankfort, Ky., Ford's campaign chairman predicted Ford will go to the Republican convention with enough votes to win the nomination on the first ballot.

Rogers C.B. Morton, attending the Kentucky GOP convention, told newsmen, "We made a target of the election rather than the convention."

Reagan and Ford are the only national Republican candidates entered in Kentucky's first presidential primary May 25.

—In Washington, sources reported that Vice President Nelson Rockefeller suggested to Time magazine in January that it investigate Jackson's staff.

According to the sources, Rockefeller met with about 40 reporters and executives of Time magazine on Jan. 12 in an off-the-record session and implied that there was infiltration of Senate staffs by Communists.

Rockefeller refused to name the staffers, the sources said, but as he was leaving, the newsmen insisted on more details and Rockefeller said they should look into Jackson's staff.

Rockefeller and Jackson have been at odds in the past few days over reports that Rockefeller repeated this accusation at a private session in Atlanta.

—Alabama Gov. George Wallace, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, said in Harlingen, Tex., that he would not accept the vice presidential nomination if it were offered. Wallace made the comment after a brief speech at the Confederate Air Force Flying Museum in Harlingen.

Wallace said at a news conference that his campaign was "not in debt, but I don't have the money to have the media campaign necessary. I don't intend to go into debt."

The Supreme Court Friday refused to allow the Federal Election Commission to pay candidates more than $1.4 million in matching funds until the Congress and President Ford agree on a bill to revive the commission. The court in January ordered that the commission must be reconstituted before more money could be paid out.

Watergate was inevitable, former Nixon adviser says

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)— The Watergate scandal "was a culmination of a lot of things gathering steam that had been going on for a long time," a former Nixon administration official said here Saturday.

Gerald L. Warren, deputy press secretary for Nixon said, "Watergate would have happened sometime in our lifetime." He said it is also possible that future generations will face their own Watergates because the nation's institutions have to rely on people.

Warren, currently editor of the San Diego Union, is a Hastings native and a graduate of University of Nebraska in Lincoln. Warren, 45, spoke before the Nebraska Press Associaton's 102nd annual convention.

He said the scandal that drove Richard Nixon from the White House has led to "a redefining of our principles."

"We'll be more vigilant. We'll be more responsible in the future," Warren added in commentng on Watergate in response to questions following his formal presentation.

Noting that the public is relying more and more on broadcast media for most of its news, Warren said, "I shudder at the prospect of their being the sole protectors of our freedoms."

He suggested that "perhaps the time has come for editors and publishers to get out and rub elbows with the average person."

He noted that the number of households receiving newspapers has been steadily declining and said, "Reading is terribly hard work for many persons today" because the nation's educational system is "graduating functional illiterates from some of our high schools and colleges."

He said the rising illiteracy rate is "a national disgrace."

The news media, he said, needs to become more credible and needs "to participate in the rebuilding of faith in our system." He said the public will view the media as its enemy if it continues to pursue a "destructive adversary role against the government."

Taxes to take share of big Detroit sale

DETROIT (AP) — The taxman came in Friday and took a bit of the edge off the city's euphoria over its massive garage sale.

Max Haddix, director of the sales tax division of the Michigan Treasury Department, informed the city that it would be liable for the state's four per cent sales tax.

That would be about $4,600 out of the $115,000 the city grossed Wednesday and Thursday as tens of thousands of shoppers snapped up items.

Security measure leads to escape

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — A 20-year-old inmate escaped from the Cabell County jail by using a pair of rubber foot thongs to insulate his hands while he scaled an electrically charged fence, police said.

FBI admits having candidate's papers

WASHINGTON (AP) — The FBI received papers taken from the briefcase of the Socialist Workers Party's 1968 presidential candidate, an FBI memo says.

The document was part of the FBI files turned over to the candidate, Fred Halstead of Los Angeles, in compliance with his request under the Freedom of Information Act. The document was made available to the Associated Press.

THE material dealing with Halstead's missing briefcase may become an important facet of the party's $27 million damage suit against the FBI and other government agencies. The party seeks damages for allegedly unconstitutional harassment of legal political activities.

Cathy Perkus, an official of the Political Rights Defense Fund, which is financing the party lawsuit, said the Halstead document raises questions about whether an FBI agent or informer stole the briefcase.

She said, after discussing the matter with Halstead, that his recollection of the incident differs considerably from the FBI version.

HALSTEAD could not be reached for comment.

The censored copy of the memo furnished to Halstead deleted the identification of the person who supplied the papers to the FBI.

In the Dec. 3, 1968, memo, the agent in charge of the Sacramento office says he is sending "two envelopes containing personal papers of Halstead and literature relating to the Socialist Workers Party" to FBI headquarters.

The name of the person who supplied the material to the FBI was deleted. But the person told the FBI that in October 1968 "he found a briefcase containing the above identified papers on a wash stand in the men's restroom, United Airlines terminal, International Airport, San Francisco."

The memo said that the person, failing to locate the owner, took the briefcase to his home in Vallejo, Calif., then turned over the material to the FBI in early November.

Contrary to that account, Halstead recalls that his briefcase and coat were stolen from his car while he was meeting with a colleague at a San Francisco church on Oct. 3 or 4, 1968, said Ms. Perkus.

She said party attorneys believe the FBI conduct, even if limited to receiving allegedly stolen property, violated California law and a federal law against interfering with a presidential campaign.

"The FBI's conduct in this matter, as I am sure you realize, constitutes a crime of theft even if the FBI was not involved in removing the briefcase from Mr. Halsted's automobile," said party attorney Herber Jordan in a letter April 22 to Assistant U.S. Atty. William Brandt.

Turnout low for antibusing rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between 2,000 and 4,000 antibusing demonstrators turned out Saturday for a rally and march which organizers had hoped would draw as many as 40,000 persons.

Waving posters saying, "Bus Politicians, Not Our Children" and "Stop Busing," the protesters gathered first at the Washington Monument, then marched peacefully to Capitol Hill for an afternoon of speeches.

The marchers came mostly from Louisville, Ky., but there were large contingents from Massachusetts and Michigan, all areas where racial tensions have been rubbed raw as a result of court-ordered busing to desegregate schools.

Organizer Jack Shore of Union Labor Against Busing had said the purpose of the protest was to influence senators and House members to pass legislation forbidding federal judges from ordering school districts to bus for racial purposes.

But the march drew more attention from curious Bicentennial tourists than legislators, who are almost all out of town on congressional Easter recess.

What Is A Catalog Surplus Store?
Many people have the feeling that it is an assortment of odds-n-ends, one of a kind items and customer returns. While this is true, it amounts to a very small portion of the merchandise available to you, our customers. Most of the goods are brand new, first quality merchandise in which we have bought more than we can sell during the life of our general catalog or similar sale catalogs. We must liquidate it as surplus--and this we do at reduced selling prices through our Catalog Surplus Stores. Our loss is your gain—Make shopping a habit at Sears Catalog Surplus Stores and save on clothing, household items and appliances for you and your family.

Chel's bill on elderly gains

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

Assemblyman Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, reported Saturday on the progress of legislation for tax relief and for creation of a state Department on Aging.

Chel said "major tax relief" addressed to the plight of the elderly "being virtually driven from their homes" is contained in Assembly Bill 3204 which he coauthored and which was approved Friday by the Assembly Committee on Revenue and Taxation, of which Chel is a member.

HE SAID the bill would add a program of senior citizen renters' assistance to the existing $37 renters' credit, recognizing the fact that a person paying $91 monthly rent contributes, in effect, $220 a year toward his landlord's property tax payment.

Under a sliding formula based on household income, Chel said, a senior citizen with $1,400 annual income would get 96 per cent of the $220 or $211 more assistance. Added to the renters' credit, the tax benefit totals $248. Assistance for couples is slightly higher.

The Senior Citizens Property Tax Assistance program would be revised by lifting the assessed value upon which assistance is granted, Chel said, and would recognize for the first time the citizen's ability to pay.

"A single person with a home worth $41,000 and a household income of $5,000 would gain nearly $259 in tax benefits," Chel said. "The married couple with the same income would realize a gain of nearly $317."

TOTAL additional tax relief under the program is estimated at $58 million in 1977-78. He said the measure has the support of the Brown administration.

Chel introduced a bill Thursday to remove the tax now paid on certain imported goods despite the fact they may not be actually ready for sale.

"There is no reason to subject items such as transistors to a tax when they aren't even in a condition where they can be sold on the open market," he said. "The result of this inventory tax has been that many imported goods are being transferred to Mexico for assembling....This is robbing Californians, especially those in my district, of jobs and wages."

He said this bill is one of a series he has introduced or supported this session to end taxes which jeopardize employment opportunities, including AB 3372 to exempt small business from the business inventory tax.

CHEL'S bill creating a Department on Aging passed the state Senate 29-1, carried by State Sen. Joseph M. Kennick, D-Long Beach, in that body and now returns to the Assembly for concurrence in Senate amendments.

"In accordance with the recommendations of legislative analyst A. Alan Post, upgrading the present Office on Aging to departmental status will provide greater liaison among all state departments on problems affecting the elderly," said Chel.

Lungren assails Bond's brochure

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

The quest for the Republican nomination in the 34th Congressional District turned intramural Saturday as Dan Lungren charged fellow GOP candidate Bill Bond with distributing a deceptive and misleading brochure, "a mere recycling of Bond's unsuccessful congressional campaign of 1974."

Bond's brochure reprints 1974 endorsements of President Ford, former Gov. Ronald Reagan, former Rep. Craig Hosmer and former Orange County GOP Chairman Thomas C. Rogers.

Noting Bond's use of a disclaimer with the letters that they "should not be interpreted as current endorsements," Lungren said the disclaimer then adds that the endorsers' observations on Bond in 1974 are "still true today."

Lungren said the disclaimer is cleverly worded and in small type but, further, the observations do not apply today and Bond's use of them "is a calculated distortion designed to mislead the voters in this primary."

THOSE 1974 endorsements, Lungren said, came to Bond as the GOP nominee in the general election; "none of them were made during any primary when Bond was being contested by other Republican candidates.

"Moreover, the currency of the thoughts expressed in the letters themselves is in question. Mr. Bond knows that in the context of the present Republican congressional primary President Ford has not and will not endorse any Republican candidate, much less state that Bond is 'clearly better prepared to represent' the 34th District. He has to be aware that neither Ronald Reagan nor (Rogers) is publicly supporting his primary candidacy.

"Most importantly to the voters of this district, Bond is fully aware that Craig Hosmer has given me his endorsement in this primary, the first primary endorsement he has made since his retirement. Therefore, the present use of Craig Hosmer's words of former support for Bond's 'election to Congress' constitutes nothing less than an abuse and a patent misrepresentation of those very words."

Bond replied that Lungren "is straining to develop an issue."

HE DEFENDED the disclaimer statement on his brochure and pointed out that its type was larger than the type in the reproduced letters and that the 1974 dates on the letters was purposely included.

"Second," said Bond, "I don't think Lungren really wants to suggest that comments made about a person's abilities and experience would be true in 1974 but not so 18 months later.

"President Ford said I was an outstanding legislator and a fiscal conservative. My record hasn't changed, nor has my philosophy. Gov. Reagan said he developed great admiration for my ability, judgment and devotion to public service. We have had no falling out since. And (Rogers) commended me for fighting to halt tax increases and for helping to restore the death penalty. I did those things.

"Possibly what galls Lungren is former Congressman Craig Hosmer's observation: '. . .There is simply no substitute for experience. . .Bill Bond has it with 15 years of full-time experience in the State Assembly and Los Angeles County government.' I do have considerable experience in government, plus five years of college training in political science and public administration. All of these things are still true.

"Hosmer has endorsed Lungren," Bond continued, "but this isn't surprising since, as Hosmer indicates, he has personal reasons, such as: 'I have known you (Lungren) for your lifetime. The Hosmer and Lungren families were neighbors for many years.'

"Finally, Lungren is new to the voters. I am certain they would be interested to learn more about him than that he is endorsed by an old family friend."

LUNGREN, striking at the "contrived confusion" of Bond's brochure, said the district needs a candidate who can beat incumbent Democratic Rep. Mark Hannaford in the fall, adding, "This can only be achieved by someone who deals with today's issues and today's realities."

Bond said he would be happy to accommodate Lungren's request for a comparison of qualifications "because I have always felt strongly that a person who seeks public office should be prepared by way of relevant education and experience. Congress seems like a long jump for someone 2½ years out of law school.

"In any event, I see Democrat Hannaford's unrealistic and unresponsive economic and social philosophy as the overriding issue. I will continue to point up our differences because they are vast."

State Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, will speak at a Friday noon luncheon meeting for him and Mrs. Deukmejian in the Long Beach Elks Club, a $4.50-per-person event hosted by the Women's committee of the Deukmejian campaign committee.

Deukmejian is unopposed in the GOP primary for the new 31st Senate District which covers the Long Beach area. Councilwoman Renee Simon, Long Beach, is unopposed in the Democratic primary.

The Deukmejian committee is cochaired by Mrs. Lorin Smith and Mrs. Richard Smith. Mrs. Wolf deLyre is luncheon chairwoman.

Members of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera will sing. Reservations may be made by calling the candidate's headquarters at 426-DEUK.

Hayden at Arena

U.S. Senate candidate Tom Hayden, Democrat, will address the annual convention of the California Jaycees at 9 p.m. Saturday in the Long Beach Arena.

Hayden will speak at a noon rally May 3 at the speakers platform on the Long Beach State University campus.

Hayden's campaign will be the beneficiary of receipts of the Orange County premiere of the film, "An Evening with the Fondas," at 7:30 p.m. Saturday in the Anaheim Convention Center.

Actress Jane Fonda (Hayden's wife), her father, Henry, and her brother, Peter, are scheduled to attend the screening and a post-theater party at the Orange residence of former POW Col. Edison Miller, USMC Ret.

Tickets for the premiere and information on the post-theater party may be obtained through the Orange County Hayden Headquarters at 835-7766.

Registration

Republican Headquarters, 3386 Orange Ave., Long Beach, will remain open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Thursday this week to accommodate persons who wish to register to vote in the June 8 primary election, according to office manager Thelma Morris.

Brown offices

Nick Betancourt, president of the Mexican American Democratic Club of Wilmington, announced that a club committee has opened a headquarters for the presidential candidacy of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. at 1152 Broad Ave., Apt. 14, Wilmington.

In charge of the headquarters will be John M. and Dorothy M. Murello. Betancourt said the headquarters will have an information service and will sell Brown buttons and bumper stickers.

Dana for Udall

Comedian Bill Dana will attend a rally for Democratic presidential candidate Rep. Morris Udall, Arizona, from 7:30 to 10 p.m. Tuesday in the residence of Dianne and Frank Modisett, 1700 Cumbre Dr., San Pedro.

Aki Toyooka, a Udall campaign coordinator, said there would be no admission charge for the rally. The public is welcome.

Project survival

The Rainbow Players, a group of college students supporting Prop. 15, the Nuclear Power Plants Initiative on the June 8 California primary election ballot, will present their message in the form of a musical comedy review, "Noah '76," in Long Beach this week.

Their first show is scheduled for Wednesday noon at the speakers platform at Long Beach State University. The group will appear at 11 a.m. Friday on the Long Beach City College central campus.

LWV election

The League of Women Voters of Huntington Beach-Seal Beach will have its annual meeting at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday in the Peek Family Colonial Terrace Room, Bolsa Avenue at Beach Boulevard in Westminster.

The group will elect officers and adopt its program for the coming year. Reservations must be made by Monday with Merle Moshiri at 536-2017.

Italian debate may aid Reds

ROME (AP) — The ruling Christian Democrats, stung by the Lockheed payoff scandal, Saturday called for a showdown in parliament that could lead to the Communists' getting a share of power.

A date for the parliamentary debate on Italy's economic, social and political problems will be set Tuesday. It was taken for granted that it would start sometime this week.

The debate will end in a vote of confidence likely to topple Premier Aldo Moro's government — Italy's 34th in three decades — and lead to early elections, in which the Communists could become the largest party.

The Christian Democrats' decision to face the debate marked the failure of their attempt to rally a majority behind Moro's 2½-month-old minority government for quick action on an economic austerity program.

The call for the debate was announced after a meeting of the party directorate. It urged Moro to "verify in parliament whether there exist the conditions that can assure the solidarity of the majority" that voted for Moro.

Party Secretary Benigno Zaccagnini had just completed a round of talks with all parties except the right-wing Social Movement on a last attempt to win support.

Soviet industrial production up 5 pct. for first quarter

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet industry got off to a good start in the first quarter of 1976 with output and labor productivity increases exceeding the official planners' goals, according to a report Saturday by the Central Statistical Administration.

The report, published in the government newspaper Izvestia, said industrial output during the first quarter rose by 5 per cent compared to the first quarter of 1975. The Spartan 1976 plan calls for a year-long increase in output of 4.3 per cent over last year.

The statistical administration said labor productivity during the quarter rose 3.7 per cent compared to the same quarter last year. The 1976 year-long plan calls for a 3.4 per cent labor productivity increase over 1975.

The report said that during the quarter the value of goods produced above the plan totaled more than $2.6 billion.

Peking incident blamed on Teng

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese who quelled a violent incident at Peking's Tien An Men Square April 5 charged that ousted Vice Premier Teng Hsiao-ping was the "root cause and behind-the-scenes boss" of the affair, a Peking broadcast reported Saturday.

Representatives of 447 soldiers, militiamen and security officials gave their account of the incident at rallies at two Peking indoor stadiums, the official Hsinhua news agency said.

The official heroes of the incident said bourgeois elements, reactionary intellectuals and "trouble-making hooligans" came out April 5 to "openly laud Teng and file complaints on his behalf."

The demonstrators "madly spearheaded their attack on Chairman Mao and tried futilely to split the party Central Committee headed by him," the Peking rallies were told.

The speakers warned that the class enemies behind the ousted Teng would not take their defeat lightly, expecting them to "struggle to the last ditch, and so we should not slacken our revolutionary will."

The 447 "outstanding individuals," each wearing a large red flower pinned to his jacket, were awarded works of Chairman Mao Tse-tung, banners and honorary citations at the rallies for their role in crushing the Tien An Men protest.

The Tien An Men protesters reportedly were angry that posters of the late Premier Chou En-lai, Teng's mentor, were removed from the square on April 4. They returned the following day and the protest rapidly escalated into a riot, apparently directed against Maoist hard-liners in the Peking regime, symbolized by the new premier, Hua Kuo-feng.

Calm, order urged at Portugal voting polls

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — President Francisco da Costa Gomes condemned political violence and urged peace in today's parliamentary voting, Portugal's first free national elections in more than half a century.

Calm and order at the polls is "the best response to those who doubt the viability of a democratic Portugal," the president said in an address to the nation Saturday, adding:

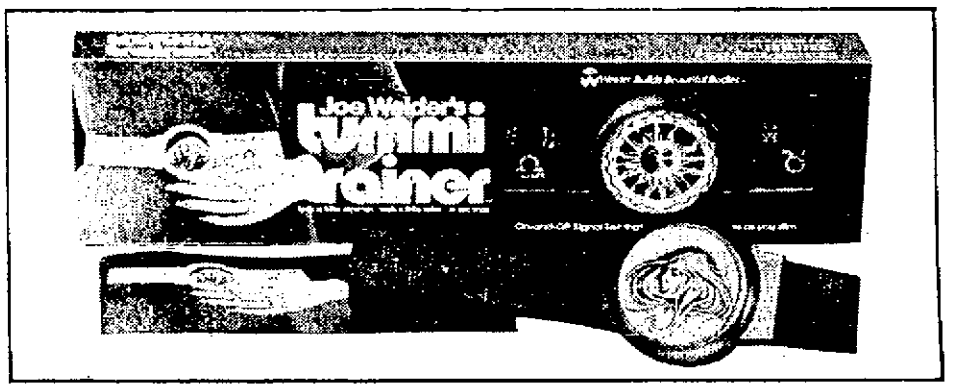

"It is not with dead and wounded that the Portuguese will succeed in building the free, porsperous and socially just country we want."

As additional insurance, Costa Gomes has ordered the army, navy, and air force on full alert to keep order as the country freely chooses a parliament for the first time since 1925.

At stake are 263 seats in a new Assembly of the Republic. The new parliament marks a major step in the transfer of power from the hands for the military to civilian politicians. The armed forces have been running Portugal since they overthrew the former rightist regime two years ago from election day.

Paint sniffing

I know of children and teen-agers sniffing spray paint, and I think it is very dangerous to their health. Please obtain a medical opinion on the dangers of this practice. J.W.A., Long Beach.

Sniffing paint, or other very toxic substances such as model-airplane glue, paint thinner and gasoline, can produce a temporary and acute state of psychosis, characterized by hallucinations and sometimes panic, according to a clinical psychologist with the Long Beach Health Department's drug clinic. "There is dispute over the chronic long-term effects on the body from this practice, but there have been reported incidents of death," he said. In other words, you can not only get high; you can get dead. When these and other substances are inhaled from aerosol cans, the propellants "cause a very fast-acting effect—usually in 30 seconds—of dizziness, giddiness, uncontrolled laughter and hallucinations." The effect usually lasts from 5 to 10 minutes. "Sniffing any aerosol product is extremely dangerous. It could cause throat and lung damage and has caused deaths." Freon propellants present a particular danger. "They are very cold when they first come out of a can, and the cold itself can cause damage to the larynx which can result in suffocation." The doctor said anyone found acutely intoxicated from sniffing should be taken to a hospital's emergency room. He called sniffing "just plain stupid" and said anyone who is sophisticated about drugs doesn't do it. It generally is limited to preteens and teenagers.

Deposit transfer

Our apartment building recently was sold to a new owner. All the tenants had paid the original owner a cleaning and key deposit plus their last month's rent. The new owner has said he isn't responsible for refunding these deposits when we move. Is this true? R.E., Long Beach.

Not according to Eugene Zechmeister, head of the Apartment Association of Southern California Cities in Long Beach. He said the new owner should have made sure these deposits were turned over to him as part of the escrow instructions. But, even if he didn't, it is still his responsibility to assume these obligations, Zechmeister said. You could take your landlord to small-claims court for any of these deposits due you if he refuses to pay when you move out.

Glass shower

I drive to and from work on the San Diego Freeway (405), and many times I have had to follow large trucks stacked with mashed cars. The trucks pelt vehicles behind them with showers of glass and metal. Is there a law that requires this type of cargo to be enclosed? G.B., Westminster.

The cargo has to be either enclosed or loaded in such a way that the contents can't leak, sift, drop, spill or blow from the vehicle. A driver whose cargo escapes from his vehicle onto the highway will be cited if a police officer sees this happening, according to Sgt. Dave Helsel, spokesman for the California Highway Patrol in Los Angeles. "This is a continuing problem, and we do write a lot of citations," he said. The antispill law, under Section 23114 of the California Vehicle Code, doesn't apply to loads of "clear water, or feathers from live birds."

Federal housing

My son and I are interested in building low-cost housing for senior citizens. We have heard that there is a government agency that will help finance such a project. Can Action Line get us information on this? L.C.M., Bellflower.

You and your son would not be eligible for the loan you refer to, which helps finance the construction of low-rent housing for senior citizens. It is made available only to nonprofit corporations through Section 202 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, and is administered through the Housing Production and Mortgage Credit Division of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. A HUD spokesman told Action Line most applications for the federal funds come from churches with a large congregation of elderly people. And he added that all the loan money appropriated for fiscal 1976-77 already has been earmarked.

Voting due in Lebanon

ed and flights later resumed.

Bowing to increased pressure from leftist Moslems and his own Christian allies to end a drawn-out political deadlock, Franjieh agreed to step down six months before his term expires.

He was supposed to have signed the amendment a week ago.

Moslem leftists have been demanding Franjieh's resignation along with drastic economic and political reforms as a condition for ending the civil war with the country's influential Christian minority.

The signature was announced first by a radio station supporting Franjieh, then by Beirut Radio, which is controlled by Franjieh's opponents.

At nightfall, an aide to house speaker Kamel Assaad confirmed he had received the document. Assaad will begin consultations to convene an emergency session of the 99-man parliament in the next two weeks for the election.

Commenting on Franjieh's move, Beirut Radio said the road was now clear for election of a successor "which, hopefully will push the war close to a settlement and end this insufferable agony."

House speaker Assaad, a Moslem, declined to say when parliament would meet to choose a successor to Franjieh, elected in 1970 and due to leave office Sept. 23. But Beirut Radio quoted several deputies as saying the election would be held sometime this week.

The new president is expected to have to deal with Moslem demands for a new formula of coexistence with the Christians.

Moslems, now believed to be a majority of the population, want an equal distribution of seats in parliament, where Christians now hold a 6-to-5 plurality. They also want civil service jobs equally shared.

Both warring sides reportedly agree the president should continue to be a Christian and the premier and house speaker Moslems.

Crash landing dampens pair's waterbed bliss

A hit-run driver made one of the world's splashiest crash landings in Paramount early Saturday morning, turning a haven of rest into a miniswimming pool.

The haven's occupants, Jane, 21, and Earl Gallup, 26, asleep on their waterbed at 14056 McClure Ave., awoke to the havoc shortly after 1:30 a.m. and paddled out of their bedroom, soggy but unbowed. Also unable to locate the driver who had fled without even a "Pardon me."

The Gallups found that the car that smashed through the wall, punctured their bed and set the bedroom awash was on the loaned or missing list. By late Saturday officers still hadn't located the owner or the driver.

Meanwhile, the Gallups were treated for facial cuts at Doctor's Hospital in Lakewood and allowed to go home for the mop-up.

Effort to aid rig crew in capsule told

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Choking back tears, a tugboat mate Saturday described his unsuccessful efforts to evacuate a rescue capsule before the capsule flipped, killing 13 of the 20 men trapped inside.

The testimony of Jimmie Lee Madison concerning the rescue operation that followed the sinking of an offshore oil rig also seemed to scuttle theories that a line from the tug Gulf Viking gave the impetus that turned the capsule over.

Madison, breaking occasionally into sobs, said his deckhands released the last line holding the capsule before the craft reared and toppled in house-high waves.

"It (the rope) was chaffing and smoking and burning their hands so they let it go," Madison told a Coast Guard board of inquiry. "Ain't no way in the world four men can hold that weight (of the capsule)."

Madison said he saw the ¾-inch nylon line being washed overboard by water, then saw the capsule upend and hover momentarily before his own feet were knocked out from under him by a wave.

Kissinger starts tour of Africa

Kissinger said before takeoff from an air base northwest of London that the United States would support new negotiations to give Rhodesia's black majority control of the country.

Kissinger said he agrees with the British position that Rhodesia's white minority must move quickly toward black majority rule.

About 274,000 whites rule 5.7 million blacks in Rhodesia.

A negotiated settlement would be in the interests of both blacks and whites in Rhodesia, Kissinger said, but the solution must be "by African methods in Africa.

"We believe that time is running out, but the opportunity for a negotiated settlement that may still exist must be seized almost immediately," he said.

Kissinger's first visit to black Africa is described as a fact-finding mission in developing a new American policy toward the continent.

HE WILL be looking particularly to President Julius Nyerere of Tanzania for advice on how to lend support to black liberation movements.

After his stop in Kenya, Kissinger is to visit Tanzania, Zambia, Zaire, Ghana, Liberia and Senegal.

Some African leaders suspect Kissinger's tour was forced by Soviet and Cuban involvement in Africa, especially in the recent Angolan civil war won by Russian-backed and Cuban-led forces.

But Kissinger said before setting out, "We are not in Africa to match Soviet efforts. We are in Africa for our own purposes."

While Kissinger was en route to Kenya, the Sunday Nation newspaper in Kenya published an editorial saying his visit appeared likely to "have a giant impact in Afro-American relations."

"IT MUST be conceded that Dr. Kissinger has adopted a Johnny-come-lately attitude in his Africa policy," the newspaper said.

But, it said, "Dr. Kissinger has said he is coming to Africa with an attitude of goodwill. It is in that same spirit that Africa must welcome one of the most skillful and adept diplomats of modern times."

In South-West Africa, ruled by South Africa's white-minority government, troops were combing the border region Saturday, hunting for guerrillas who killed four white South African soldiers.

Westside redevelopment in court

The EDC ultimately jobbed out part of its planning task — the question of how much is disputed in the lawsuit — to two private contractors: Langdon & Wilson, Architects, and later the Pasadena Research Institute.

As the city's network of agencies began to gear up for the project in late 1974, so did the Westside community itself. Under auspices of the EDC, and in conformity with state law, a 21-member Project Area Committee (PAC) was created.

The PAC, initially, was to survey area residents on the idea of Westside redevelopment. It also was to provide grassroots feedback to the other agencies involved in creating the plan.

By last April it was apparent that Westside residents and property owners—at least, that minority voicing any opinion—opposed the redevelopment project. They preferred things as they were.

On June 24, the city held a public hearing on the redevelopment plan's initial draft. It did not satisfy the opposition.

On July 1, the council adopted the plan as a municipal ordinance. On Aug. 14, 28 individuals and businesses filed suit to stop the redevelopment.

Among the plaintiffs were eight members of the PAC, including two subsequently elected president and secretary-treasurer of the community group.

The lawsuit alleged that state laws had not been complied with in creation and administration of the redevelopment plan.

It alleged that the plaintiffs, as taxpayers, were harmed because tax dollars were being spent on an illegal project.

It also alleged that some plaintiffs, as property owners, were "threatened with unlawful condemnation and use restrictions."

Specifically, the lawsuit alleged that before the City Council adopted the redevelopment plan, the plan's basis—the Langdon & Wilson report—was "withheld and concealed from plaintiffs."

Hankla, the suit alleged, withheld information from PAC and other interested persons.

It alleged that, meanwhile, EDC directors had access to the plan's draft as early as April and hoped to turn the information to financial advantage.

"Such conduct and relationships not only create an irreconcilable conflict of interest, but are wrongful and unlawful," it alleged.

That lawsuit was filed, not in Long Beach, but in Los Angeles Superior Court. According to a legal statement filed by one of the plaintiffs, that was because of the influence wielded locally by backers of the redevelopment plan.

"WE HAVE found that the people with influence who might help are either directors of the corporation (EDC) or are closely involved with, or are friends of, these people," alleged plaintiff Nick Ortega.

It took the city and its Redevelopment Agency one month to file a weighty legal response to the lawsuit.

For starters, their answer alleged, the plaintiffs were misrepresenting the laws that held sway over the redevelopment project; there had been no illegalties.

It said the PAC had been given all pertinent information before last June's hearing and had submitted its own report on that information.

When the City Council approved the plan in July, it alleged, the version it was approving included changes recommended by the PAC.

The city's response noted that the first Langdon & Wilson draft "on studies and plans for implementation of the Redevelopment Project" reached the EDC on Feb. 12, 1975.

It also stated that "after several revisions thereof the Board of Directors (of EDC) on or about June 4, 1975, approved the final draft" and that the final draft was sent to the PAC a month later—one week after the plan's adoption by the City Council.

The city's answer went on to contend that all workings of its agencies had been legal and that "no public information or record has at any time been withheld from plaintiffs, PAC, the public. . ."

OTHER allegations in the lawsuit were denied by the city in its legal response. Shortly after that, the EDC filed a sweeping legal denial of its own on behalf of its directors and Hankla.

In the months since those legal documents were filed, there have been bitter exchanges between the two sides in the courts and other public forums.

Opponents of the redevelopment plan lost a battle to keep their lawsuit in Los Angeles courts, and the suit was transferred to Long Beach; the EDC lost an attempt to have the court throw out part of the lawsuit affecting it.

Last month, before Long Beach Superior Court Judge Hampton Hutton, the sides split a decision on another pretrial matter.

And last week Hutton set the stage for the hearing which could air the central issues. The May 6 hearing is scheduled for Hutton's court at 9:30 a.m.

Chilly start seen for DST in L.B.

Southland residents can expect a familiar weather picture today—night and morning low clouds followed by hazy skies and afternoon temperatures in the high 60s or low 70s.

National Weather Service forecasters, however, predicted that afternoon winds would cool down coastal areas, giving a chilly reception to the first evening of extended light under Daylight Savings Time.

Saturday's high was 72, following overnight temperatures in the mid-50s

Auditor wants exemption from price freeze

L.B. 'losing millions in oil revenues'

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

If the price of Long Beach oil had been equal to that paid for foreign imports or to the highest price for decontrolled U.S. oil, it would have boosted revenues by $450 million in fiscal 1974-75 alone, according to City Auditor Murray Courson.

Courson noted Friday that the city and state have been trying to get higher prices for local oil and recommended that they also seek an exemption from the Federal Energy Administration's oil-price freeze for oil owned by the taxpayers.

The auditor's office also recommended that city and state officials seek "a fair and equitable retroactive settlement of taxpayers' oil revenues lost as a result of FEA price regulations."

If necessary, Courson said, legal action should be instituted to insure that the taxpayers receive the true market value for their oil produced from the Long Beach fields.

The comments were part of the city's audit of Long Beach Oil Development Co. operations for the 1974-75 fiscal year, which will be filed Tuesday with the City Council, but they apply to all tideland oil operations.

"The price now being paid for Long Beach oil, which averaged about $4.25 per barrel during 1974-75, is only about one-third of its value," the audit said.

Oil operations reports by the city auditor's office for the past several years have repeatedly expressed concern over "inequitable" low prices paid for crude oil produced from the Long Beach tideland trust oil operations, Courson said.

"We have also pointed out the serious consequences this condition has on shortening the economic life of these operations," the audit said.

"For every barrel of oil that ceases to be produced from the Long Beach operations, an additional barrel has to be purchased from foreign producers at three times the current Long Beach oil price," it said.

The audit said the Long Beach pricing inequity has "worsened significantly" as a result of the FEA price-freeze regulations.

Most of the $450 million that the city auditor's office said would have resulted if Long Beach oil prices had been at parity with foreign or decontrolled U.S. oil would have been paid to the state, the report said.

Long Beach's share of tideland oil revenue is limited to $9 million annually, but the city would have received "several million dollars" annually from the higher prices through its "upland" oil operations, the report said.

No-campus college in the works

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The Orange Coast College District, which operates Coast College at Costa Mesa and Golden West College at Huntington Beach, has plans to start another—one without a campus.

It will be called Coastline Community College and will cater to those who have jobs but want more schooling.

The college will have at-home courses and classes in community meeting halls, bowling alleys, banks, stores or anywhere there is room.

It will have Dr. Bernard Luskin, 38, of Huntington Beach, as its president. He will take over May 3 and begin to select a staff.

THE NEW college will need a dean of admissions, a dean of instruction, a dean of students and a director of business services, Luskin said.

Luskin has been vice chancellor of educational planning and development at Coast College.

Dr. Norman Watson, chancellor of Coast Community College District, heralded the new concept as "innovative." He said it is "the American counterpart of England's highly successful Open University" and that added it will be fully accredited to grant degrees.

Watson said that Coastline's goal "will be to take educational programs to the people in innovative ways." He said this included class instruction, education by television on Coast district's own Channel 50 and use of coordinated instructional systems available at the district level.

THE COLLEGE district trustees decided to organize the college-without-campus after student growth projections showed there will be up to 50,000 more students hoping to attend community colleges within the next 10 years.

The trustees say the average age of the community college student is 27 and many need training for jobs, retraining, personal enrichment and "lifelong learning opportunities."

Luskin earned an AA degree in business administration from Long Beach City College in 1958 and a master's in school administration from Long Beach State University in 1961.

Talk set on juvenile bill

Doug McKee from the district attorney's office will speak on Assembly Bill 3121 Thursday at a special meeting of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities Youth Council.

The meeting, open to the public, will be held at the Covenant Presbyterian Church, 607 E. Third St.

AB 3121, which is authored by 24 legislators, would require the district attorney to appear in juvenile court to prosecute minors who are second and third offenders, as well as those who are considered violent.

Master plan for port out

THE WATERFRONT

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Los Angeles Harbor has published its comprehensive master plan for future port development through the year 1990.

The inch-thick, 265-page book with numerous illustrations and foldout charts is available from the department at cost—$20 per copy. For those interested in only reviewing the report, copies will be made available at harbor area libraries and at departmental headquarters, Pacific Trade Center Building on Fifth Street in San Pedro.

One of the port's shortcomings, the report repeatedly points out, is that the harbor's channels are simply too shallow to accommodate the new deep draft vessels currently being built in shipyards around the world.

Los Angeles Harbor has a main channel depth of about 33 feet, depending on the tides. That's too shallow to allow the passage of supertankers, massive bulk carriers and modern container carriers.

If Los Angeles is to remain competitive with other Pacific Coast ports, including the 60-foot deep Port of Long Beach, it must deepen its channels and berthside docking facilities. If the deep-hulled ships can't enter Los Angeles Harbor, they will go to ports where they can.

Port officials want to dredge the channels and use the scooped-up sand to create new land areas. Those plans are strongly opposed by various environmental organizations on the grounds that such dredging and landfilling would have a detrimental effect on the environment.

The report submitted by Voorhees, Trindle & Nelson of Irvine, points out "the urgent and long overdue need to substantially upgrade the port." The consulting firm notes that the port's basic railroad lines were laid out 86 years ago; the basic pierhead lines were established 68 years ago; the previous master plan is 48 years old, and the last main channel deepening down to its present 33-foot depth was done 46 years ago.

While the plan was submitted by VTN it does not mean the plan will be adopted in its entirety. It may be altered, added to, or even scrapped by the Board of Harbor Commissioners. By making copies of the plan available to the shipping industry community and the general public, the commission hopes to gain some input before acting on it.

Channel pipelines

Shell Oil Co. and Gulf Oil Co. are seeking permits to dig a trench across Cerritos Channel in Long Beach Harbor to hold two pipelines linking Terminal Island and the mainland. The companies plan to dredge about a 14-foot-deep trench in which to put 42-inch and 10-inch oil pipelines.

Because the top 10 feet of the channel bottom are considered polluted, state law won't allow the material to be put back in the trench to cover the pipelines. To do so would be an act of pollution of state waters and that, of course, is a no-no. The companies plan to dispose of the material by either hauling it to a landfill dump site in Palos Verdes Hills or barging it about six miles south of Point Fermin and dumping it into a 600-foot dimple in the ocean's bottom.

The ocean floor at that location is considered a marine desert, free of life that might be affected by dumping the polluted dredge spoils. That is the Federal Environmental Protection Agency's opinion. The agency has approved the location as a disposal site for such material.

But, according to recent studies by the University of Southern California, the dumped spoils do not sink—at least not entirely—to the sea floor, much being caught in subsurface currents and drifts as seaward as Catalina Island, polluting the water between the dump site and the island.

The question raised by some port engineers is:

Wouldn't it be better to put it back into the trench in the close confines of the Cerritos Channel than to pollute the 25-mile-wide San Pedro Channel or to take it to a rapidly filling canyon in Palos Verdes and speed up the filling of one of the few remaining dump sites in the Southland?

Coastal plan hit

State Sen. James Q. Wedworth, D-Torrance, has labeled it "ridiculous, unsound, and destructive" to include the Los Angeles Harbor area in the proposed California Coastal Plan now before the Legislature.

He said he would recommend exclusion of the harbor, King Harbor, the urban renewal region in Redondo Beach and the Standard Oil properties in El Segundo.

"I just don't understand why the harbor commission should have to go to some state commission, hat in hand, for permission to replace piling or piers, or to repair docks, and other facilities—but that is what would happen if this plan were adopted in its present form," he said.

"Effects of this plan as it is presently written would be disastrous not only to the healthy economy of the South Bay and harbor areas but would, in the long run, be disastrous to the very environment we are attempting to protect."

3 weeks of high danger

By STEVE WEINER
Associated Press

VANCOUVER, B.C. — Off the rocky, storm-swept shores of British Columbia and Vancouver Island, fishermen in oilskins struggle and sometimes die to bring an ocean delicacy to Japanese tables.

They face numbing gales, snowstorms and 50-foot seas in one of the most dangerous fisheries anywhere. They are driven to their rough-and-tumble struggle because the season is so short for the herring they catch. The fish must be netted and the eggs extracted during a few weeks in late winter and early spring when this roe is at its peak of flavor.

The fishing is done, mostly by Canadians, in unsheltered and hard-to-navigate waters along a craggy area of Canada's Pacific Coast, just off the northwest corner of the state of Washington.

Fourteen men were killed fishing for herring last year — the worst death toll on record. Four died in the season just ended, 10 in 1974 and six in 1973. Over the past decade more than 50 boats have capsized, sunk or been wrecked on rocks.

Each year, 3,500 herring fishermen endanger their lives to meet the strict demands of the Japan market.

The Japanese send technicians who determine when the herring should be caught for the tastiest roe and then signal the fleet. The Japanese won't accept roe from herring caught before or after the period designated by their technicians.

Earnings up to $6,500 per man

It's usually a three-week period in March and early April, when the herring come to spawn in coastal streams, but three weeks of the most treacherous weather in these waters.

The fishermen each earn up to $6,500 for the risks they take, and once the roe is processed and shipped, the wholesale value of the annual harvest is about $30 million. The Japanese pay $15 a pound for herring roe. Only the wealthy can afford it.

The herring itself is ground up to extract oil and make fish meal.

The men go out in gill-netters — one and two-man craft as small as 30 feet — and purse seiners, which run up to 85 feet with as many as seven in crew. Most of the 1,100 boats are wooden, all are used for the summer salmon harvest, and a few are 60 years old or more.

This year's total catch was about 70,000 tons.

A government study conducted after the record number of fishermen killed in 1975 concluded: "Although each casualty had individual factors, the main cause was undoubtedly the lucrative nature of the herring-roe fishery. This, with the exacting quality requirements and limited season, brought about a climate of urgency which for some overcame customary caution."

Cap. Bill Kragback is among those who deny that herring fishing is dangerous. He said:

"You can go up and down the coast for years — I don't care — 10 or 20 years — and one day you are going to hit. It's just the kind of place it is. It's that kind of coast."

Kragback's boat Canfisco, with her cargo of 110 tons of herring, most of it picked up from other fishing boats to take to shore, was a $250,000 loss when it foundered on rocks last month. One man was killed.

One suggestion: stricter licensing

There have been calls for stricter licensing of herring fishermen to weed out the incompetent.

"Several boats were lost last year because of bad decisions," says W. F. Thomas, accident-prevention officer for the British Columbia Workers Compensation Board. "Men would go out when they shouldn't have."

Some call the fishermen greedy. The fishermen disagree.

"This is the time of the year when you have storms," a Canadian Fishing Co. spokesman says. "We lost a boat, but it has nothing to do with herring. It was a snowstorm. You can't blame it on the herring season."

Says Kragback: "If you're a good fisherman and you make $50,000 during the year, and then you run out after herring and drown doing it, that's greed. But if you're a poor guy, and you've made only $10,000 or $15,00 during the last year (usually from salmon) and you've got to make payments on your boat, call it necessity."

Search for 6 Cuban refugees suspended

MIAMI (AP) — The Coast Guard suspended a search Saturday for companions of a young Cuban who said he fled from the Communist island to avoid conscription for army service in Angola.

"We're waiting for sightings or any other reports. That's the only reason we'd go back out there," a Coast Guard spokesman said.

Julio Cesar Gutierrez-Cordoba drifted ashore at Key West Friday and told police of a week-long ordeal that began when he and 11 others tried to flee Cuba on homemade rafts.

He said three companions were shot and killed by a Cuban gunboat and a fourth was wounded and made it back to shore. He said he and the rest continued on four rafts tied together.

"He was crying like a baby," said Det. Robert Lastres after another officer found Gutierrez-Cordoba wandering on a Key West street. "He said the Cuban hospitals were packed with kids from Angola."

Coast Guard officials launched a 2,000-square-mile search for survivors, but suspended it after finding no rafts, men or debris.

Ship firms doing well

International lending institutions are not likely to suffer any extremely damaging direct losses from their loans to the shipbuilding industry, a Chicago banker said Saturday in San Pedro.

George Baker, vice president of a Chicago banking corporation, also said: "Shipbuilders will undoubtedly continue to defer payments on principal while interest charges will be met...More ships, including tankers, will be needed in the future and the shipping industry in general has a strong ability to generate capital."

Baker was at Todd Shipyards to launch the 35,000 ton Zapata Courier.

How to become a Secret Witness

Secret Witness seeks information from the public leading to the capture of fugitives and the arrest and conviction of criminals.

For this purpose a guaranteed fund of $100,000 has been established by the Independent, Press-Telegram to be used for rewards of varying amounts.

Identities of informants will be kept secret.

You will be paid a reward if the information you give Secret Witness results in the arrest and conviction of a criminal or the capture of a fugitive in cases publicized in this column. Rewards also will be paid for information given to Secret Witness resulting in arrests and convictions, or the capture of fugitives, in cases not published in Secret Witness.

To contact Secret Witness, telephone 436-2526 from 8 a.m. to midnight on weekdays, or from 3 pm. to 11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday. Do NOT give us your name. Or write to: Secret Witness, P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, Calif. 90801.

"This is how the last page of your "Secret Witness" letter should look after you have typed or printed your information about a crime.

DO NOT SIGN YOUR NAME. Instead, select a code name for yourself . . . any name, as long as it's not your own . . . .and place it and a code number at the bottom of your letter. The code number should combine three letters and three numbers in any combination.

Tear off and keep a corner of the last page, with the same code name and number on it. Mail your letter to "Secret Witness," P.O. Box 67, Long Beach, 90801.

Jail's medical services hit

By BOB GEIVET
Staff Writer

The Orange County Grand Jury called Friday for additional medical services for County Jail inmates, recommending that two more physicians be hired and nurses be trained to assume more responsibility.

The jury disclosed that its recommendations followed a probe into the deaths of a female inmate and a male prisoner in recent months under circumstances indicating there might have been inadequate medical care.

The family of the male prisoner, who died after a fall in his cell, has sued the county for $4 million.

The woman's illness occurred during a time when no physician was on duty, and a registered nurse cared for her.

Inmates in the jail told grand jurors there might have been an improper diagnosis of the woman's illness.

Grand jurors cautioned Sheriff Brad Gates that nurses should "confine their activities to legal nursing procedures and let medical diagnosis and prescription of treatment become the responsibility of the jail physician."

They also stressed that prisoners have the right to adequate medical care.

Recommendations by the grand jury included an overhaul of the medical-procedures manual, last updated in 1969; definite demarcation between medical and nursing duties; a protocol of diagnosis, treatment and handling; choosing of an assistant jail physician, along with a general practioner or internist as the third physician, and additional training of nurses to serve as nurse-practioners or physicians' assistants.

Jurors praised Dr. Paul Engle, acting director of the County Health Department and director of professional services, for beginning the upgrading of the manual and considering extended training for nurses.

They also recommended a perdiatrician for the county's Juvenile Hall.

POLICE BEAT

2 sought in dance shooting

Long Beach police Saturday were searching for two youths who allegedly shot up a building where a rival organization was holding a dance Friday night.

According to officers at the dance, which was held at the Escuela De La Raza, 2600 E. Seventh St., the two fired between 30 and 50 shots through the windows of the building.

The officers were keeping the building under surveillance because members of La Raza Association, a Long Beach State University organization which was holding the dance, had reported that they expected trouble from a rival gang.

No one was injured seriously, but police said one of the men at the dance, Norman Arthur Yergean, 25, of 15127½ Gundry Ave., Paramount, suffered a crease wound on the top of the head.

Suspect asleep in wrong bed

A 32-year-old Hacienda Heights woman didn't know the youth who was sleeping in her bed Saturday, but after sheriff's deputies arrested and searched him they found out why he had been in her home.

Robert Burns, 18, who told deputies he lived in both La Mirada and Hacienda Heights, was booked on suspicion of burglary after Judith Allen returned home at 5 a.m. and found him sleeping in her bed. Police said the suspect apparently had entered the home by breaking a window on the kitchen door.

Burns was searched before being booked at the Commerce sheriff's station. Deputies said they found $1,100 worth of rings, which Ms. Allen told them had been taken from her jewelry box.

1 dead, 1 hurt after crash

An Ohio man died Saturday and a Fullerton man was in serious condition after their car skidded off the road and struck a power pole in Fullerton, police said.

The passenger, Herbert Roth Jr., 22, of Austintown, Ohio, was pronounced dead at St. Jude Hospital in Fullerton at 8:10 a.m. The driver, 23-year-old Allan Bord, was in serious condition at the same hospital.

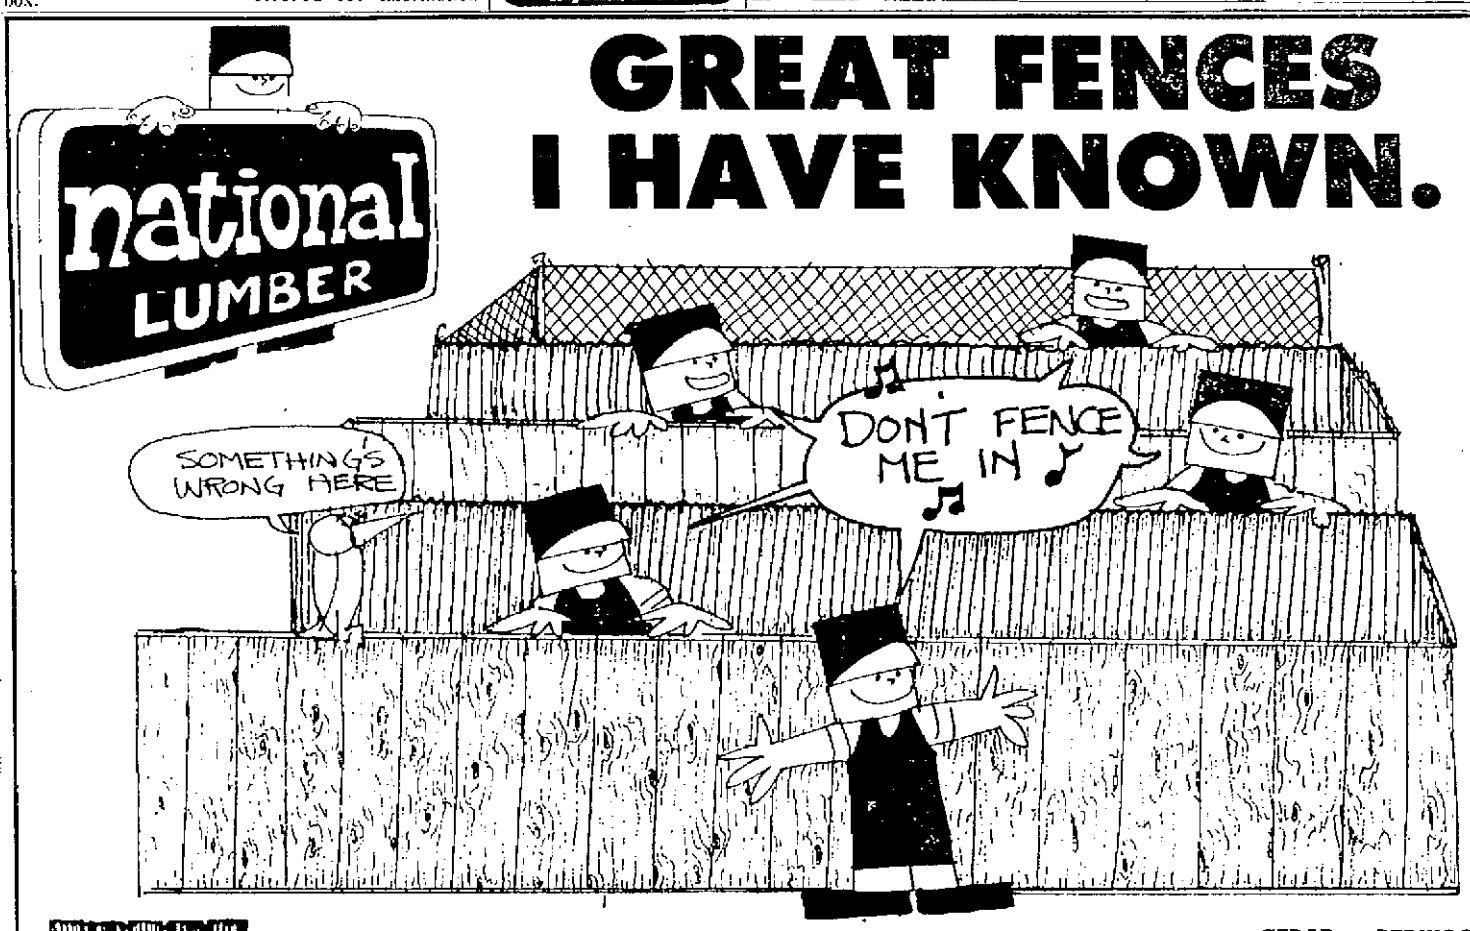

Lt. G. A. Causley said the accident occurred about 9:15 p.m. Friday at 1610 Brea Blvd. The car, southbound on Brea, skidded off the road, hit a tree, knocked over a street light and came to rest against a utility pole.

Escape to 'make-believe' islands

PICTURESQUE ST. PETER PORT, GUERNSEY, IN THE CHANNEL ISLANDS

By JOANNE NORRIS
Staff Writer

CHANNEL ISLANDS, Britain — Sshhh! It's news you'd like to suppress.

There are bits of the earth still untrampled by American tourists and not yet in the grip of world-wide inflation — little gems shimmering out of the sea with a relatively mild climate and ablaze in spring with the brilliant yellow of daffodils, forsythia and gorse.

They aren't totally untouched. Tourists from Britain and the continent have known about them for years. But most Americans on their standard trips to Europe have not included Britain's Channel Islands in their itineraries.

At least not yet. But during what the British Tourist Authority hopes will be a mammoth Bicentennial pilgrimage ("Come home, all is forgiven") to the Mother Country, the Channel Islands will be featured as places to find a few days' idyll after the castles and the cathedrals and the "If it's Tuesday, it must be Belgium" pace.

Do the BTA people really know what they're doing in exposing the islands to the American onslaught? They think they do.

Small as they are, the islands are geared for visitors. Among the cows and the country lanes are dozens of hotels and smaller hostelries, many first class and some of the smaller ones amazingly cheap. And they're prepared to show Americans how the other fraction of a per cent lives.

They live in a vale of charm as thick as the cream their bovine populace produces. There is the 11th century Mont Orgueil Castle, a refuse for King Charles II, on Jersey, and the fascinating Victor Hugo house on Guernsey, decorated by the author during his exile.

ST. PETER PORT, the capital of Guernsey, has to be among the most picturesque ports in the world.

In other parts of the islands there are steep cliffs dropping down to dozens of hidden bays, dramatic tides and ideal places for surfing and scuba diving.

But the islands have more than an overabundance of quaintness.

They have a proud history: relics of paleolithic times, the Viking invasion, the Norman Conquest and the sudden occupation by the Germans during World War II.

As much French as British, a fact that has had a commendable affect on the cuisine, the islands have their own forms of government, the smaller ones retaining a feudal one-family rule.

Free from the power of the British Parliament, the ruling bodies make their owns laws, subject to approval of the Queen (they believe firmly in capital punishment but she commutes all the sentences to life in prison).

The tax laws are favorable. Income taxes are 20 per cent compared to up to 85 per cent that the British pay. Not only is the tax bite less, prices generally are a little lower and there is no V.A.T. (value added tax) that is found throughout the rest of Great Britain.

SO ENTICING is the islands' financial picture, particularly during Britain's current grim financial battle, that the Crown has acted to keep the populace at home. Immigraton to the islands is severely restricted now and the islanders cooperate by making it very difficult to buy property unless one is a native or married to one.

The island residents, friendly and warm, nevertheless display the strong conservative streak common to those who have found Paradise and want to maintain the status quo.

Night life is subdued although there are some friendly bars and restaurants and a few movie houses. However, when one starts a leisurely eight-course meal at 9 and finishes it at midnight, the absence of something to go on to is hardly noted.

The chief administrative officers of Jersey and Guernsey are appointed by the queen, but the legislative bodies are composed of volunteers.

Jersey and Guernsey with populations of some 73,000 and 53,000 are the large islands, Jersey with 45 square miles the most sizeable.

Sark is the other best known, brought to prominence not only by its old-world charm but by the fierce rule of the Dame of Sark who died about a year and a half ago. Her successor, a grandson now the Seigneur of Sark, was just moving into the ancestral manor house this month and cheerfully showed a dozen American visitors about, his casualness belying his power over the tiny fiefdom.

For example, only he can own a female dog and when anyone sells property, he gets a slice. Likes his predecessors, the Seigneur has banned all cars from the island. There are a few farm tractors, but horse-drawn carts, bicycles and the human foot are the modes of travel down the incredibly beautifuly little lanes, perfumed with the coconut aroma of gorse.

Alderney is the island to the north, and there are tiny Herm and even smaller Jethou and Brechou, all three controlled by single families.

The islands make ideal popping off places for France. On a clear day the Brittany and Normandy coasts are visible from a number of points.

But then you look around. You spread some more clotted Guernsey cream (as yellow as a buttercup) on your scones. You think about another scenic lane to stroll. And no matter how hard the continent or London beckon, it's hard to decide to rejoin the real world.

Where flowers grow

The concept "Say it with flowers" was imported from The Netherlands. The Dutch grow more, give more flowers than anybody. From hotel breakfast table to stately banquet settings, fresh flowers are always there creating a smiling mood, distinctly Dutch.

Of Holland's many symbols, such as the windmill, the one the Dutch themselves use as their tourism logo is the tulip, although tulips are actually only a constellation in Holland's floral galaxy.

This graphically reflects that above all else Holland likes to project its image as the Garden of Europe, the Flowerland of the World. The Netherlands grows and exports more flowers, and vegetables, too, per capita than any country on the globe.

The tourist season in Holland peaks prematurely in Spring because the tulips and other bulb flowers burst out by the millions in a thousand colors and present, in a concentrated area adjacent to the North Sea dunes, one of nature's greatest shows.

All this happens from the beginning of April to the middle of May in the coastal area between Leiden and Haarlem. But fortunately floral Holland is not confined to these dates and to this region.

West Holland's great glass covered horticultural industry provides a year round profusion of cut flowers of every species imaginable to satisfy an ever growing domestic and world market appreciation for the gift of nature, lovingly given.

IN THE Netherlands there is dramatic evidence of this colorful traffic in the world's largest indoor flower auction at Aalsmeer, close to Schiphol Airport. Here, from early in the morning until 11 a.m., some 4 million cut flowers are brought in, auctioned in three computerized Dutch style auction halls — with buyers vying against descending price auction clocks — and shipped by land and air everywhere.

An enormous quantity of flowers and plants are bought by the Dutch themselves — and their love for flowers can be seen in street flower stalls, luxurious town flower shops, open air flower markets, and in homes whose curtains are invariably open to share with passersby their decorative arts usually enhanced by floral arrangements.

There is perhaps no other country that has special road signs designating bulb flower routes and blossom routes. The bulb routes are in the West and North of The Netherlands; the blossom routes to the East and South.

When visitors depart Holland from Schiphol International Airport they often make a quick stop at one of the flower shops in the Tax Free Shopping Center for last minute flower postal orders for friends, and take along a seasonal Dutch treat bouquet as a thoughtful souvenir from the land of windmills and flowers.

A STREET SCENE IN CONSTANZA, ROMANIA

GAL-IVANTING

Frolicking along the Black Sea

CONSTANZA, Romania — Ovid, the playful Roman poet who advised lovers to play the game of love without becoming involved, is celebrated at every turn here. It was to this fashionable resort on the Black Sea that he was banished in 8 A.D. for not taking his own advice.

He had fallen in love with Julia, the granddaughter of Emperor Octavianus Augustus who nourished nobler hopes for his granddaughter's mate than an obscure poet.

Ironically, Ovid still is remembered throughout the world. The licentious Julia, eventually banished also, is remembered only for her affair with the poet.

True to his fashion, Ovid did not suffer the pangs of unrequited love for long. After writing, "How little you know about the age you live in if you fancy that honey is sweeter than cash in hand!" he immediately switched his affections to an elegant lady of Constanza.

PERHAPS MORE than any woman, however, Ovid grew to love the wiles of the Black Sea. His epic Metamorphoses, written while he lived in Constanza, is considered one of his finest.

Today, you can sit in the sun at a sidewalk cafe on a broad plaza dominated by Ovid's toga-clad statue and sense the beauty that he found in exile. Flanked by ruins from an ancient Greek colony 3500 years old and an elaborate 17th century town hall, the plaza's cobblestone paving has endured countless changes.

During the first half of the 5th century B.C., Greek colonists from the coast of Asia Minor established an important port called Tomi here.

They were followed by the victorious Roman emperor Constantinus the Great, who changed the city's name to honor his own. His influence did not run without interruption, however. For a period around 1878 the port fell under Turkish rule and was known as Kustendje.

Extensive artifacts from all of these periods are exhibited in Constanza's grand Museum of Archaeology or left in place throughout the city. Recent diggings have produced evidence of an even earlier mysterious Getic population that Romania's archaeologists are attempting to identify now.

WHILE I EXPLORED old streets that twist along the Quay, the Royal Viking Star put into port and expelled some 500 cruise passengers.

With the babble of voices and energetic vibes of cruisers making the most of a port call, it became easy to imagine Constanza in its early days. Then, slaves carried bundles of grain and clay vessels of olive oil to deposit in the miles of underground galleries cut from rock that criss-crossed the ancient Tomi peninsula.

The vast market place, a polychrome mosaic terrace at the edge of the sea, remains today. Its stylized flowers, heart-shaped ivy leaves and concentric scroll designs are as freshly brilliant as when they were set in the fourth century.

It was here that the metal tools and slabs of marble from Tomi's ancient workshops tempted visiting traders from Scythia Minor and across the Danube. This port that Ovid described as "the fair metropolis in the Pontus" was one of the greatest trading centers of the world.

THE ENTIRE city is a museum of ancient edifices, catacombs, aqueducts, statues and broken walls, but perhaps a more popular attraction is the modern beach resorts at Mamaia on the outskirts.

Although weather is generally mild in winter, the resort season reaches its height in the summer when the three-mile-long beach attracts some 50,000 bathers a day.

They come primarily from Germany and Scandinavia. Hotels are plentiful in the resort colony.

The easiest way to reach these Black Sea resorts is via train to Constanza from Bucharest. Scandinavian Airlines has direct flights from Los Angeles to Bucharest via Copenhagen.

Hotels from Belgrade to London

Belgrade

A few American tourists spilling over from the Grand Tour find their way to Belgrade. Traffic insane, but a pretty good town.

Slavia Hotel (B class) was $10 double with breakfast. Private bath. Good deal.

Skadarlija is the place for dinner, a kind of Greenwich Village area. Whole cluster of restaurants in a crooked row.

Tri Sesir (means "three hats") is good. Place got the name from three local cats who came up short and couldn't pay the bill. Left their hats for security and split. Never came back.

Charm and color. Strolling violinists with music to cry by. Lots of smeared mascara around. Waiter looked like a short Cesar Romero.

Rissoto with oysters and paprika. Pink veal with fiery Yugoslav sauce. Vlasotince wine. About $8 for two.

BELGRADE like Munich, escalates you up and down. Corridors of bouliques and cafes underground. Good one is Verona. Dimly lit cellar. Only room for 20 couples, all of them carrying on.

Order something called Muckalica Leskovacka. (Menu spelling rough here.) Veal. Tomatoes. Garlic. Pimientos. Peppers. Other mysterious inserts.

For salad, three whole pimientos with chopped garlic. Some wild Dalmatian wine. About $7. Love to go back.

WHAT TO do about going to Europe with the dollar going up, up, up? Should we buy all our foreign currency here in advance?"

Who knows? I don't THINK the dollar is going to go down. I carry money in U.S. dollar travel checks.

Always handy for changing countries: A couple of $5 bills and 10 in $1s. You've cashed in that country's money.

Now you're in the departure lounge at the airport. You need cigarettes. A $1 bill keeps you from having to cash a $20 travel check. With all your change in unwanted currency.

And from one country to another, don't cash into dollars! Like London to Paris. You are holding British pounds. Don't go into dollars and THEN into French francs. Go from pounds to francs — either in the London airport bank or at Paris.

Each exchange costs a small fee. Time to go into dollars is your last airport headed home.

" ... some colorful hotels in London and England?"

Trust Houses (write for map and folder, 81 Piccadilly, London, W.1.) has a big chain of fine, remodeled old coaching inns. Several first class hotels in London. All stiff and starched as afternoon tea and watercress sandwiches.

CHECK YOUR BILL! Their bookkeepers are madmen. I NEVER had a correct bill. And some so far out, I didn't know what they were talking about. Neither did the manager.

TWICE I've had the manager slice unknown charges off the bill. I mean like $50 a crack.

For the first time in history: You're able to fly non-stop to Tokyo.

Until now, the only way to get to Tokyo was with a stop in San Francisco or Honolulu.

Now you have another choice: no stops.

Starting April 25, Pan Am will introduce the new 747. The 747 SP. The SP standing for special performance.

And its first special performance will be Los Angeles to Tokyo two hours faster than ever before.

Starting May 7, we'll have flights every day. Until then we'll be going every Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Sunday. Flight 3 will leave at 12:30 pm and arrive in Tokyo at 3:45 the following afternoon.

Each flight features a choice from among 4 entrees in our expanded first class section, and 3 in economy. There will be a movie shown along the way ($2.50 per headset, no charge in first class). And at no extra charge, all the room a wide-body plane has for you to stretch out.

Naturally, the 747 SP also has our elegant first class upper-deck dining room. (As always you can arrange to have a seat at one of the tables by reserving in advance.)

To get on one of our new 747 SP's, see your travel agent.

If you want to go to Tokyo, from now on nothing will be stopping you.

Rent an apartment abroad

Vacation apartment rentals in Europe, difficult to obtain through normal channels, are now available by advance arrangement through a number of organizations in the U.S.

One is Idyll, Ltd., P.O. Box 405, Media, PA 19063, which lists apartment rentals in Swiss villages to be used as a base for extended holidays. The organization also provides advisory services in planning vacations, recommends economical trips to other countries in Europe and escorts in Switzerland.

The advantages of chalet rentals rather than using hotels, according to the program sponsor, include a deeper experience of the European life-style and avoidance of tourist traps.

Roaming streets of Paris

NOTRE DAME Cathedral has been a Parisian landmark for centuries.

travel

.....Almost everything is special about Paris, a city possessing a magical quality that enables a traveler to revel in its many attributes while overlooking shortcomings.

It is the home of "haute cuisine" and "haute couture" and throughout modern history has been the workplace of great artists, writers and philosophers. Paris still retains its magnetic appeal for people of all ages.

The city was designed more for walking than for driving, with numerous small back streets providing picturesque shortcuts for traveling from landmark to landmark.

The River Seine which cuts through Paris serves as a useful landmark for orientation. For streets running perpendicular to the Seine, numbers start at the river. Streets running parallel to the river have numbers going east to west.

Public transportation is clean, fast and efficient, with a money-saving Billet de Tourisme (Tourist Ticket) good for four or seven days of unlimited travel on both bus and Metro.

You get a better view riding the buses, but during rush hour Paris streets are at a standstill and the underground Metro is the fastest way from point to point.

Metered taxis are quite plentiful and can be flagged down in the street or found at any train station.

THERE IS NO shortage of hotels in Paris, ranging from small renovated townhouses to towering glass rectangles. Rates range from $50 up at prestigious palaces such as the Ritz, Meurice, Grand and Intercontinental Paris, to $25 and down in a list of 100 lesser-known hostelries available from the French Tourist Office, 9401 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, CA 90212.

Paris boasts more than 8,000 restaurants and bistros, each with its own "specialite de la maison" and most featuring a regional French cuisine native to the section of France where the proprietor was born.

There are some who say Paris has no really bad restaurants. While this might conceivably be true, it is certain that some restaurants are better than others.

When it comes to prices there is a wide spread between a three-star "haute cuisine" establishment listed in the Guide Michelin and the many neighborhood places offering first class meals at a cost most Americans can afford.

It is possible to eat inexpensively in Paris, and the favorite of many in this category is Pied du Cochon (Pig's Foot), in Les Halles district where the famous central markets stood until a few years ago. You can dine for $5 per person, including wine, choosing from such fare as steak with shallots or a hearty cassoulet.

You don't have to look any further than the nearest street corner to find a handy little bistro for a mid-afternoon respite for a glass of wine, a beer or some other lightly titilating beverage.

Sit outside, weather permitting, and don't feel obligated to run up a big bill. Bistros are for relaxing, small talk and just watching the Paris scene develop on the nearby street.

BISTROS ARE instantly recognizable by their small, round tables, striped awnings and waiters wearing white aprons and carrying trays.

Choose whatever form of nightlife you prefer, and there is more of it in Paris than just about any other city in the world.

Jazz clubs, just now returning to their previously held position of prominance in the United States, have been going strong in Paris since before World War II.

The Slow Club, on Rue de Rivoli, caters to a young, irreverent audience that dances out of time to a first-rate jazz band. It's a long-time haunt of trumpeter Miles Davis, and on Saturday night the club is so jam-packed it's impossible to reach the bar.

For strip joints, Crazy Horse and the Lido reign supreme. The first one is a bit more refined, with the latter somewhat gaudier.

UNLIKE MANY innocuous islands that sit in the middle of rivers that bisect thriving cities, Ile St. Louis is an enclave containing certain Parisian gems not found anywhere else. The ambiance is tranquil and artsy, and its residents include many entertainers.

Until four in the morning, the island's colony of night people can be found eating and drinking hearti-ly in La Brasserie Alsacienne, one of the few late night restaurants in the city.

Retail establishments run the gamut, from the world famous flea market — Le Marche aux Puces — and the numerous small specialty shops to designers' showcases and magnificent department stores.

Au Printemps and Galeries LaFayette are two of the biggest and shiniest, featuring the ready-to-wear collections of Cardin, Lanvin, Cacharel and other well known French designers.

Both of these "grands magasins" have free booklets for foreign travelers outlining the discounts available for goods purchased for export. Check into it; the discounts are between 17 and 20 per cent, depending on the article being purchased.

It's this discount that makes it all worthwhile, since without it the prices are no lower than comparable merchandise bought in the United States.

Greece to save ruins

The government of Greece has established a budget of more than $1.5 million for restoration of some of the ancient and famed ruins that are found throughout the mainland and the more than 3,000 islands of the Aegean.

The fumes of modern day industry and traffic are taking a toll of the seemingly indestructible monuments of 4,000 years of Greek history. Experts say that the unique structures have been damaged more in the past few decades by pollution than they were by weather exposure over four centuries.

The initial concern is for the Parthenon and other monuments on the Acropolis of Athens. Visitors are now banned from the interior of the Parthenon and a five-man team of Greek archeologists is studying recommendations for the preservation of the buildings.

ANOTHER immediate concern is the Temple of Apollo at Bassae near Olympia, one of the best preserved temples of ancient times. Another team of experts from UNESCO is preparing a report containing both short and long-term measures to be taken, and to be used as a basis for financial help from UNESCO and other international organizations.

More than three million tourists visited Greece last year and it is expected that this number will increase during 1976.

Further information may be obtained from the Greek National Tourist Organiztion offices at 627 W. Sixth St., Los Angeles, CA 90017.

PENNY-WISE TRAVELER

The pluses and minuses of a Europabus ride

jane morse

If you liked Eurail, will you love Europabus?

After a $7 sample bus ride, from Barcelona, Spain, to Perpignan, France, I felt like a one-potato-chip eater, greedy for more and cross with myself for biting off so little.

Europabus is the motor coach system of the European Railways, originally intended to supplement intercontinental Eurail service, but now spread like trailing ivy over its own 70,000 scenic miles. What turns me green is that it goes from London to Teheran and I didn't.

My little bit was still a lot, and I think I saw a light. If you can't tour Europe with your own Rolls Royce and chauffeur, a shiny, clean Europabus is a reasonably classy substitute.

On the trip I took one chilly but sparkling winter day, a hostess who spoke English, Spanish and French welcomed us aboard. Then, on schedule to the dot, our queen of the highways cruiser sped off, smoothly passing one minicar after another to assume its rightful place in the inside "fast" lane.

The road to Perpignan is curvy, with modern towns and dusty, decaying villages to focus on between hilly panoramas and dazzling glimpses of the Mediterranean. Traveling through narrow streets or plunging along highways with sudden stop-and-go traffic, there were always the eyeball-to-eyeball encounters that are a built-in fascination on bus travel.

EVEN SO, Europabus is as unlike its American equivalents as cheese is sausage. For instance:

travel

— Does Europabus go everywhere and let you see everything?

No, 70,000 miles is not as much as you might think it is, and some knee bones do not connect with thigh bones, meaning lots of blanks exist that must be filled in by trains or local bus lines. To continue from France to Italy using only Europabus service, for instance, I'd have had to backtrack clear to Belgium.

Practically speaking, what you need to do is send for a Europabus system timetable (11 E. 44th St., New York, N.Y. 10036) and try to match what you want with what it has.

— Is Europabus the lowest-priced way to go? Very rarely. Second-class rail is often cheaper and usually faster.

— What, then, does Europabus have that makes it worth thinking about? Limited though it is, it's still Europe's only transcontinental bus line.

There are a variety of local lines that link one or two countries, but arranging a trip through Europe via other brands of buses is, from this distance, a tough row to hoe. Europabus offers inter-country schedules you can buy tickets for right here.

— THEN YOU just travel as usual from one place to another? Not necessarily.

Strange as it may seem, long-distance service such as Madrid-Lisbon or London-Athens requires that passengers buy all-inclusive tickets for transportation plus prearranged food and lodging. Europabuses, you see, are not fly-by-nighters.

For the most part, they move during daylight hours only, deposit passengers at a hotel around dinner time, then reboard them after breakfast the following morning. Munich-Istanbul thus turns out to be a three-day junket.

— Can you make stopovers along the way? Yes, anywhere and easily, though it's necessary to speak up at the time you buy your ticket.

— Can you reserve seats? Forget "can" and think "must." Space is generally easy to come by in winter, but once all seats are sold, that's it. No extra sections are ever added.

— How much baggage is allowed? Two pieces per person and then only at the owner's risk. Passengers are advised to personally witness the loading and unloading of baggage. Insurance is obviously a good idea.

— WHAT kind of bus will you travel on? Any of many. Europabus is an amalgamation of different companies, each with its own makes and models of coaches. All are modern, equipped with picture windows and reclining seats for 40 to 44 passengers (30 on short runs).

Most carry drinking water but not lavatories, and there are normally hostesses aboard to answer tourists' question. If it's important, ask ahead about air conditioning; a few coaches lack it.

— Any discounts or promotional fares? No promotional fares, but often reduced rates for Eurail Pass holders and lower fares for children ages 4-12.

— Can the system stand improvements? Certainly, and when I am running the world, they will occur. Heating systems will function perfectly and never (as mine did) overcook ankles resting next to blowers.

Porters will be installed by the gross; overhead storage racks will be enlarged, and all stations will remain open at all hours, the better to function as baggage checkrooms for passengers en route.

Meanwhile, I would recommend wearing layers of clothing to peel off or put on in case the heating or air conditioning is acting up, and carrying as little luggage as possible. Buses can be beautiful, but not baggage chores that give you blisters.

TWA's East. 3 ways better than the competition.

There's no better time to go back East than this Bicentennial year. And there's no better place to start making your plans than right here. Because no matter what your style—whether you prefer being chauffeured around in a spacious Motorcoach, on your own on the road, or Freestyling it in the East's history-rich cities—TWA has a tour for your pace at your price. Choose the tour and the airfare that best suit your plans. Nobody but TWA offers variety like this. Take a look:

1. Exclusive Motorcoach Tours. First class comfort, lots of extras. $277-$679.

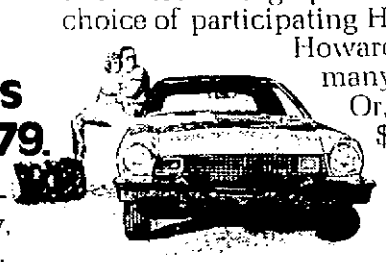

Only TWA offers European Motorcoach comfort in the U.S. Quite simply, one of the most relaxing ways to travel. Reclining airline-type seats, big glare-proof picture windows and an expert guide who'll handle all the details for you. Choose from 8 historic tours of the East, from $277 to $679 per person, based on double occupancy.

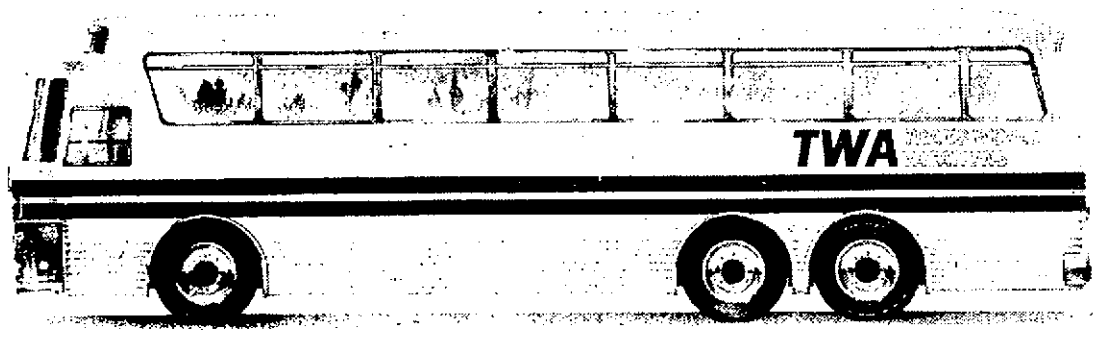

For example, take our splashy Eastern Escapade. Starting in New York up to Newport's palatial seaside mansions, on to Boston, Niagara Falls, Hershey, Gettysburg, rustically charming Pennsylvania Dutch country; then on to Washington, Colonial Williamsburg, Philadelphia and back to New York. 13 days for $679.

Pick up TWA's Getaway* Motorcoach USA brochure from your Travel Agent for the complete itinerary of this tour and 7 other Bicentennial tours originating from Boston, New York and Washington.

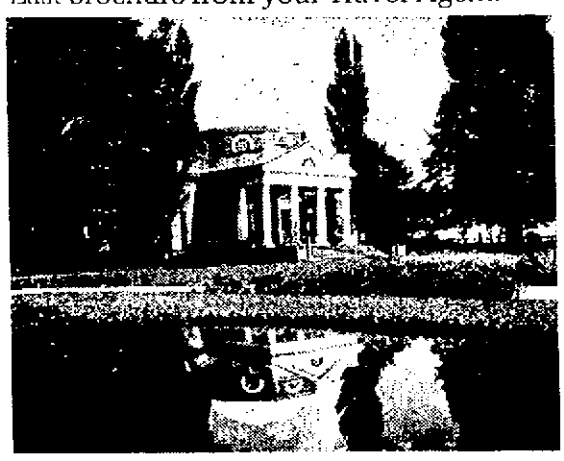

2. Freewheeler. The most flexible Fly/Drive program going. From $19 a day.

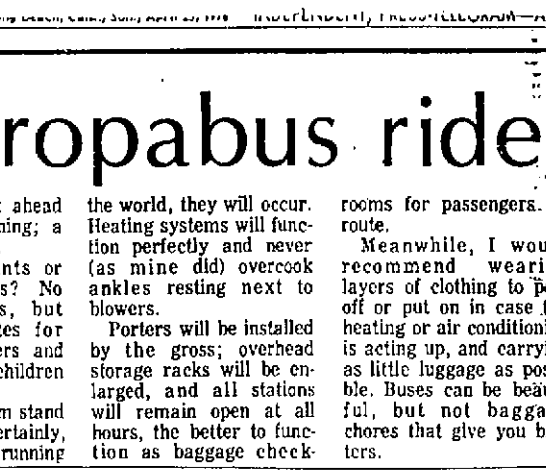

Tour the East at your own pace, your own price. From $19 to $46 a day, per person, for 7 days or more, based on double occupancy. You get a Hertz car with unlimited mileage plus a room at your choice of participating Hyatts, Sheratons, Howard Johnson's and many other fine hotels. Or, for as little as $39 to $49 a day, you get a room at participating Holiday Inns that accommodates up to 4 people and a Hertz car with unlimited mileage.

Start your trip from any of the 4 cities listed on the chart plus 10 others. For all the details, pick up TWA's Freewheeler East brochure from your Travel Agent.

3. Freestyle. Easy-going vacations with sightseeing. $20-$30 a day.

TWA's Freestyle vacations are available in Chicago as well as the cities listed below. For every day you stay at any participating Hilton, Sheraton, Hyatt, Howard Johnson's and many other hotel chains, you get a half-day's sightseeing tour or dinner at a selected restaurant—a TWA exclusive.

Visit one city or take in several. Rates are from $20-$30 per person, based on double occupancy, per night, based on 2 nights or more. For all the specifics, including detailed itineraries of the sightseeing tours, ask your Travel Agent for TWA's Freestyle USA brochure.

New USC offense: Ricky Bell and then some

JOHN ROBINSON
Still winless

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

John Robinson grinned as a dozen or so football writers gathered around a screen in a private room at Julie's, the famed USC oasis.

"I had a class in college in which I learned that if you're dealing with slow learners, you had better use films," said the new Trojan football coach.

With that, Robinson unveiled the Trojans' Hairtrigger offense, which will feature "half-roll" passing, "change-up substitution" and a strong reliance on all-America running back Ricky Bell, the Terror of Troy.

As the films showed JC transfer quarterback Walt Ransom flipping a quick swing pass to Bell, Robinson said: "We're trying to get the ball out there right now. We want to get the ball to Ricky out there and say, 'You tackle him.'"

As holdover quarterback Vince Evans hit split end Randy Simmrin down the middle, Robinson commented: "That was a helluva pass for a guy some people say can't pass. I'll say this about Vince—he's improved his decision-making a great deal this spring."

Robinson emphasized that he's not dumping the running game which John McKay utilized to bring USC four national championships before he left to take over the Tampa Bay Buccaneers of the National Football League.

"We want to get the ball to Ricky and say, 'You tackle him.'"

"We must have run 28 pitch (Student Body Right) a million times out there this spring," he said. "I just thought you might be interested in some of the new things we're trying.

"A lot of our thought process is based on quick short and medium passes, which we believe will control our opponents' defenses. If we can get them to lay back, we're going to run. If they come up, we're going to throw from a half-roll by the quarterback."

Among innovations will be a slot-back formation from which flanker Shelton Diggs and other receivers will line up at fullback, then shift to a wide positions.

"That would give us three split receivers," Robinson pointed out. "It's difficult for the other team to spot change-up substitutions like that. We hope to create situations in which a linebacker will have to cover someone like Diggs, who has had a tremendous spring."

Robinson said Ransom and Evans are one-two at quarterback, not necessarily in that order, but added that he expected baseball player Rob Hertel to make a strong challenge for a starting job when he reports in the fall.

"My key responsibility is to make the quarterback position successful at USC," he said. "No one in history has made the tailback position as successful as coach McKay did at USC.

"We want to create the same kind of environment for the quarterback."

But it was obvious that Bell still is Robinson's main man.

"My key responsibility is to make the quarterback position successful at USC."

As the 220-pound Bell whipped through a hole and charged through the secondary toward a lone defensive back, Robinson said: "How would you like to be the guy out there?"

He said the USC coaching staff is attempting to make it more difficult for opponents to defense Bell.

"Our hope is that the teams we play will have to worry as much about Bell on the pass as they will on runs. That way, they won't have as much time to work on stopping him on the Blast play.

"What coach McKay's 1972 and '74 national championship teams did so well was take what was there—what their opponents would allow them to take. That's what we're aiming for, too."

Robinson laughed. "You know, I haven't won a game as a head coach. The thing that's scary is that we might not be able to pass or run. A balanced offense—bad running and bad passing."

He said the keys to the 1976 season are the "intangibles—how well our good players perform."

"How well will Ricky Bell play? How will the guys we rate as outstanding play? Can we motivate Gary Jeter and Marvin Powell to play their best?

Wooden chides Bartow

CINCINNATI (AP) — Retired UCLA basketball coach John Wooden believes his successor, Gene Bartow, "is a little too sensitive" to press criticism which resulted in unnecessary pressure on the new coach.

Wooden said Bartow faced the pressures of his winning tradition but added the former Illinois and Memphis State coach may have overreacted to a few critics.

"I guess I shouldn't be saying this—he'll be coming in for this clinic and he will probably be willing to comment on it—but I thought the writers were very good to him, for the most part.

"But you're always going to have one or two critics, no matter how successful you are, and I think he allowed those relatively few critical writers to get to him."

Wooden was in Cincinnati for a basketball clinic and a visit to Dayton, Ky. where he began his coaching career.

"It's something I'm sure he'll learn to cope with and that will relieve some of his pressure," Wooden said of Bartow.

"I'll say this, it would have been much harder if he hadn't been left with a nucleus of good, extremely talented basketball players," Wooden added.

"I don't think anyone will deny we left Gene with a fine basketball team. I expected this to be one of UCLA's best teams, really...and naturally, it was."

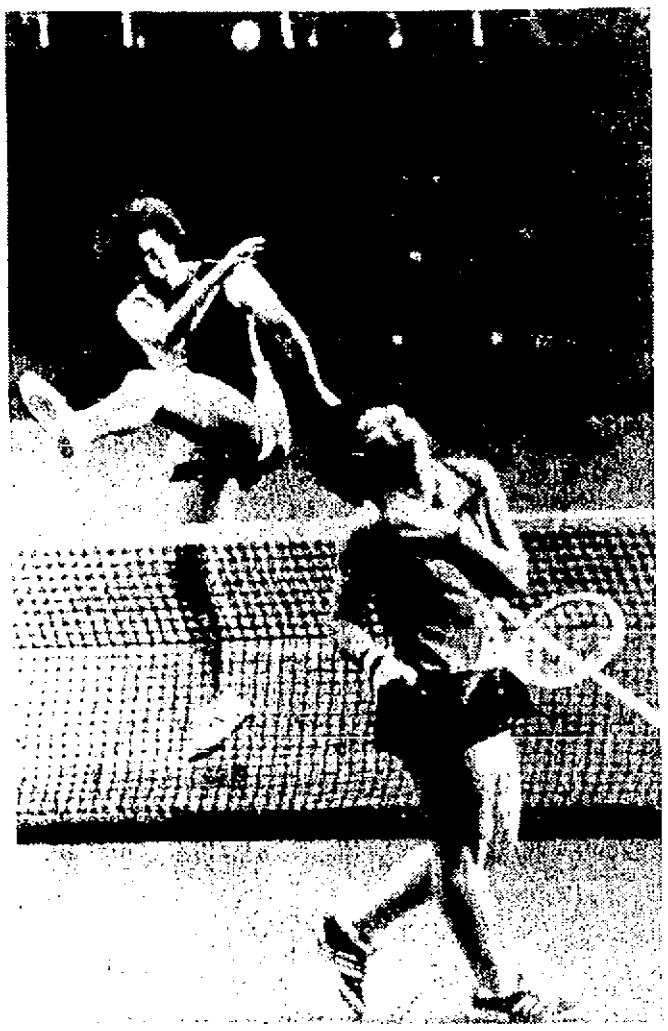

Wooden guided UCLA to 10 NCAA basketball titles in 12 seasons.

Bartow's first year team produced a 27-5 record at UCLA, another Pacific-8 Conference championship and a third place finish in the NCAA tournament.

"Certainly, Gene felt pressures. But I think for the most part he was a little too sensitive to the situation and that added more pressure, perhaps unnecessary pressure," Wooden said.

Sutton struggles to first win, 2-1

By GORDON VERRELL
Staff Writer

Don Sutton finally got his first victory of the season Saturday night—his first since last August, actually—as he clipped the Chicago Cubs, 2-1, before 26,000 Dodger Stadium fans.

Dodger of Day

DON SUTTON earned first victory, beating Cubs, 2-1.

But like the few wins the Dodgers have this year, it didn't come easily.

The Cubs had the tying run on third base in the top of the ninth inning and no one out.

"It was a nice feeling to have to bear down a little and hit the spots," said Sutton, "The last couple of times I had to do it in the fifth or sixth inning."

Sutton, who had lost seven successive decisions since that last victory on Aug. 10, pitched impressively after he walked Jerry Morales to lead off the ninth and then wild pitched him to third.

He got Andre Thornton and Manny Trillo on harmless grounders to a drawn-in infield and then fanned pinch hitter Joe Wallis to end it.

"I certainly didn't plan on walking Morales," Sutton said. "But he's a guy who can tie the game with one swing. I had to make good pitches to him. I did but they just missed."

Sutton's complete game was the first all season by the Dodgers and it was Sutton's 111th, moving him into a tie with Don Newcombe for second place on the club's all-time list behind the immortal Brickyard Kennedy (279).

It's ironic that Sutton should snap his personal skid against the Cubs, a club he's managed to beat just a half-dozen times in 22 decisions.

"I made some mistakes tonight," he said, "but when I did the next batter hit the ball right at somebody. In the last couple of games they'd hit it into the $2.50 seats."

Three times double plays helped Sutton out of what might have been touchy situations. The last time was in the eighth after the Cubs had scored a run to cut the Dodger lead to 2-1 and they still had runners on first and second with only one out.

But Bill Madlock, the National League's batting champion in 1975 and a .314 hitter at game time, lined sharply to shortstop Bill Russell, who flipped to Ted Sizemore at second for the double play and the Dodgers were out of trouble.

Sutton's offensive backing was about all the Dodgers have been capable of recently.

World record in discus: 226-11½

By JIM McCORMACK
Staff Writer

Traditionally, two of the most popular events at the Mt. San Antonio Relays are discus throwing and discus ducking.

The discus always draws a world-class field, and those world-class athletes throw their wood-and-steel implements all over Mt. San Antonio College's Memorial Stadium.

But the only thing flattened during the feature day of the Mt. SAC Relays Saturday was John Powell's world record.

Mac Wilkins, a soft-spoken former school teacher from San Jose, powered the discus 226 feet, 11½ inches to shatter the 226-8 standard set by his Pacific Coast Club teammate a year ago.

The effort enabled Wilkins to become the eighth discus thrower to be honored as field athlete of the meet in the 18-year history of the Relays.

Wilkins wasn't particularly impressed.

"It was an 'arm' throw," he said after bettering his lifetime best by seven feet. "From a technical standpoint, it wasn't that good a throw."

It was doubly impressive, however, since Wilkins competed with a back injury.

"I hurt my back last week during a weightlifting session," said Wilkins, "and it hurt when I got out of bed this morning."

While accepting the world record, Wilkins declined the favorite's role in the discus at Montreal.

"Powell still has to be favored," declared Wilkins. "He's been the national champion the past two years and he's the most consistent thrower in the world."

Wilkins and Powell are scheduled for head-to-head combat twice in the next week, Saturday at the San Jose Invitational and Sunday in the Long Beach Invitational at Long Beach State.

Saturday's other award winners were Dedy Cooper of San Jose State, who won the 110-meter high hurdles in 13.6, and Debbie Brill of Canada, who set a national record by winning the women's high jump with a leap of 6-2¾, a meet record.

The spectacular competition expected in the pole vault, which had five 18-foot vaulters in its field, failed to materialize.

Roland Carter of the Gulf Coast Track Club and Larry Jessee of Maccabi Union tied for first at 17-4¾. World record holder Dave Roberts (18-6½) was third at 16-10¾.

Long Beach State's Don Baird went out at 16-10¾.

It was a good day for Long Beach ladies.

Olympic veteran Martha Watson leaped 20-2¾ to win the long jump and Kathy Schmidt set a meet record of 211-6 while winning the javelin.

Kathy's toss broke her meet record of 192-1—and a jinx.

"I've never thrown well here, and I don't know why," said Ms. Schmidt, who has just dropped out of UCLA to concentrate on this summer's Olympic Games in Montreal.

Kathy ended the jinx Saturday by throwing 202-2, 211-6, foul, 203-0, 209-7.

"I thought that was a real good series. I've thrown 211, 215 and 209 now and pretty soon I'm going to have to make some kind of big leap into the 'teens.'

"I want to throw consistently in the 'teens' and then, every so often, 'pop' one beyond 220."

Kings have momentum; Boston has the home ice

By AL LARSON

BOSTON — The Kings have reached the moment of truth. Tonight's Stanley Cup game with Boston in the Bruins' cozy little arena will decide if coach Bob Pulford's skaters sharpen their skates for the semifinal series or head home to their favorite vacation lands.

The somewhat bizarre quarterfinal set finally has come down to the seventh and final game and Southland viewers will see if the Kings can follow up Thursday's stunning victory with another shocker. Channel 5 will telecast the match starting at 4.

"I think we've got the momentum now," Pulford said following Saturday's workout at Boston Garden. "It's a one-game series now and both teams have an equal chance to win."

"Coming back the way we did the other night gives us a great lift and I think we have the momentum to beat Boston now," Mike Corrigan proclaimed.

Butch Goring, whose second overtime goal of the series forced what seemed like a soft series for the Bruins to the limit, said, "Our win Thursday gives us tremendous momentum. We didn't want to go out quitters and we won't tomorrow night. If Boston beats us, they'll know they were in a game," Goring predicted.

Kings general manager Jake Milford said, "We're better prepared than we were the last time we played here. That overtime win was a big boost for us. I think we have a good chance of winning now."

The wizard of odds, Jimmy (the Greek) Snyder, still favors the Bruins at 8-5.

However, the Boston camp isn't quite as confident as it was 48 hours ago.

Coach Don Cherry said, "We'll be ready. We'll have to be ready.

General manager Harry Sinden analyzed his team's recovery from their emotional OT loss. "It will follow the natural course," Sinden said. "There was the absolute shock right after the game; the depression the next day (Friday); and then the revival by tomorrow night."

Well, maybe, but the Bruins have a good deal to think about.

Their recent history in overtime is, well, awful. They lost to Philly and Chicago in last year's playoffs, and twice to the Kings this year on Goring goals.

On a bright note, the Bruins are 18-1-4 in their last 22 home games. But always there's that nagging "anything can happen" notion.

TROUBLE IN MILWAUKEE FOR ANGELS: RAIN, PAIN

MILWAUKEE—Even though the Angels were idled Saturday by a day-long freezing rain, they came up on the minus side.

Pitcher Andy Hassler was returned to Anaheim with appendicitis and will be hospitalized for two or three days.

The appendicitis is mild rather than acute. Hassler will undergo a series of tests before a decision is made on whether he will have the appendix removed.

Hassler, 0-2 this year with a 9.31 ERA and without a victory since last April 29, had lost his job in the starting rotation to Gary Ross.

He complained of a searing pain in his right side prior to Friday night's game with the Brewers and, after overnight observation at a local hospital, flew back to Southern California Saturday.

Saturday's washout was rescheduled as part of a twi-night doubleheader on July 19 when the Angels make their second and final trip to Milwaukee.

Weather permitting—and again the forecast is doubtful—the Angels and Brewers will try it once more today with Frank Tanana scheduled to oppose Pete Broberg. KTLA (Ch. 5) will televise the game beginning at 11:30 a.m.

In the series finale Monday night, Nolan Ryan is matched against Bill Champion in a twilight affair.

PREP SHUNS $1.7 MILLION; WILL $3 MILLION SWAY HIM?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Louisville Male High School basketball star Darrell Griffith has already turned his back on a $1.7 million professional contract.

Now an agent who represents several American Basketball Association players says he will give Griffith a chance to weigh a $3 million offer.

Tommy Meehan, who said he has been commissioned by two ABA clubs to make the offer, refused to identify the clubs but did say that he was not representing the Kentucky Colonels.

According to a copyrighted story in Saturday's Louisville Courier Journal, the offer includes a $100,000 bonus for signing and an annual salary of $50,000 for 35 years.

Griffith at one time entertained notions of submitting his name for consideration in the National Basketball Association's hardship draft, but finally decided to accept a scholarship at the University of Louisville.

Meehan said he had earlier offered Griffith, through an intermediary, a $1.7 million contract. But the 6-foot-3 guard turned it down. Meehan said it was his idea that Griffith submit his name for the hardship draft in order to see what price he might command, but that "somebody got to him" to change his mind.

Meehan added that he didn't know until he arrived here this week that Griffith had signed with Louisville.

"That changes it," Meehan said. "I don't know how deep his commitment to college is. I don't know that I'll even talk to him now," said Meehan, adding that "I might try one more approach."

Wilkes leads Warriors' win

DETROIT (AP)—Jamaal Wilkes was the humiliated Thursday, being the principle victim of Curtis Rowe's 33-point night. Saturday he was a hero.

Wilkes made up for the humiliation and helped pace the Golden State Warriors to a 113-96 National Basketball Association playoff victory over Rowe and the rest of the Detroit Pistons.

It gave the Warriors a 2-1 lead in the best-of-seven quarterfinal series.

Wilkes, who scored only two points the first three quarters, scored 15 in the final period as Golden State took an 86-83 lead in the last 9½ minutes and won in a walk.

"He hadn't been shooting well," Warrior coach Al Attles said of Wilkes. "He was one-for-eight. But nobody got down on him and he did the job. We have a lot of confidence in our team, and the type of individuals we have doesn't allow for anyone to get down on anyone else.

"Jamaal came off a tough ball game," Attles added. "We had to keep him in there or it would have hurt his confidence the rest of the series."

In the opposite locker room Piston coach Herb Brown admitted, "Jamaal Wilkes killed us down the stretch.

"It wasn't a good game," he said. "We substituted a lot, trying to find the right combination. Under our system we ask the guys to go as hard as they can and a couple of them were tired."

Attles didn't seem to believe it was the final quarter that spelled the turning point.

"The first quarter was the turning point, when we got back from 10 down," he said. "If you don't get back then, you don't get back."

Rowe managed just 10 points Saturday, all in the second half, while Pistons' star Bob Lanier wound up with only 23. He scored only 11 points in the final three periods and grabbed just six of his 16 rebounds in that span.

DISCUS MARK—

Long Beach also had a pair of solid seconds. Albert Shorts of Long Beach State ran 46.5 behind Benny Myles (46.1) of UCLA in the 400 meters and Rory Kotinek jumped 7-1¾ to finish behind Reynaldo Brown (7-3) in the high jump.

Kotinek, the former Millikan High and UCLA standout who now represents the PCC, passed all heights until 7-1¾ and then made that on his first jump.

"I don't feel good," said Kotinek. "All I wanted to do was get in a jump or two."

Kotinek then passed again until Brown went out at 7-4. Rory had the bar raised to 7-4¼ and missed three times.

"I jumped like I was sick," Kotinek said of his final three attempts.

Brown's 7-3 enabled him to retain his Mt. SAC title for the sixth consecutive year.

"But this one was special," said the former Compton High School star, who works in Pomona and has practiced for the past three months at Mt. San Antonio College.

"I've won this meet six years in a row," said Brown, "but in the past some of the fields have been kind of weak. This is the biggest meet I've been in since I won the NCAA championships in 1973.

"It's a thrill to face some of the best jumpers around and still be able to win."

49ers take pair from Aztecs, move to 2nd

Long Beach State rallied from a six-run deficit to win the first game Saturday, then got shutout pitching in the nightcap to sweep a doubleheader from visiting San Diego State and move into second place in the Pacific Coast Athletic Association.

The 49ers won the first game, 8-7, and the second, 2-0, to improve their PCAA record to 9-6 and their over-all standard to 26-18-1. The losses knocked San Diego State (8-7) into third place.

The 49ers had to rally from a 7-1 disadvantage in the first game after San Diego touched Jim Davis for six runs in the first five innings.

But reliefer Ed McGraw came on to stifle San Diego's offense and the 49ers got two runs back in the seventh. They won it in the eighth when 10 men came to bat.

Bob McRae shut out the Aztecs on four hits in the nightcap, improving his record to 6-4. Steve Fenoglio took care of the runs, singling and eventually scoring on a groundout in the third and then belting his fifth home run of the year in the fifth.

Harris K's 18 in 4-0 LBCC victory

When Greg Harris pitches, his Long Beach City College teammates usually are quiet with their bats, and that's the way it was Saturday at Pasasdena City College — with one important difference.

While the Viking hurler was tossing an 18-strikeout, three-hit masterpiece, his support surprised him by getting maximum production from only four hits and the result was a 4-0 Metropolitan Conference win.

Leftfielder Brad Liebeck struck the big blow in support of Harris, a home run over the fence at the 340 mark with a mate aboard in the eighth.

Liebeck, who also had one single, and third baseman Rick Kienast who had a pair were the entire Viking offense.

Harris was never in serious trouble. He permitted balls beyond the infield and among the victims of his low-outside curve was Lancer Aurdie Culbert who whiffed three times with a man on base.

Loser Colin Danielson also made a game of it until Liebeck's blast. He gave up only three hits as 19 LBCC batters grounded out.

In running his league mark to 9-2, Harris further improved his ERA which was on the low side of 1.5 going into the game.

LBCC, which started the week one game out of the league cellar, is now 4-3 in Metro play and stands in third place.

Coach Bob Meyers' club hosts Bakersfield Thursday.

USC—

"I'll tell you this, we want to go to the Rose Bowl and we want to win a national championship. That's what USC is all about."

Robinson laughed. "Right now, our goal is to get through today's practice."

The football coach at USC still has a sense of humor.

They managed eight hits off Cub starter Bill Bonham but stranded 11 runners.

It was through the generosity of the Cubs that the Dodgers got their first run.

Bill Buckner doubled to open the game and, after Sizemore and John Hale flied out, Steve Garvey grounded to first baseman Thornton. But Bonham, who covered first on the play, lost Thornton's throw and Buckner scored.

How they scored

DODGERS FIRST
Buckner doubled. Sizemore and Hale flied out. Garvey grounded to Thornton at first, but Bonham lost Thornton's throw for an error. Buckner scoring, Garvey going to second. Garvey took third on a wild pitch. Cey walked. Ferguson forced Cey. One run (unearned), one hit, one error.

DODGERS FOURTH
With one out, Cey tripled to right. Ferguson doubled to right, scoring Cey. Cruz grounded out. Russell flied out. One run, two hits.

CUBS EIGHTH
With one out, Summers batted for Bonham and doubled to right. Monday was safe on Sizemore's error, Summers taking third. Cardenal singled, scoring Summers, Monday holding at second. Madlock lined into a double-play. One run (unearned), two hits, one error.

Suburban schools set pace in Gahr meet

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Kennedy High of Barstow and two Suburban League schools, Gahr and Artesia, turned in impressive relay efforts at the third Gahr Invitational track meet Saturday night at Cerritos College.

With two 9.5 sprinters in its lineup, Kennedy did nothing to tarnish its reputation as one of the State's premier sprint teams, setting meet records in the 440 (42.2) and 880 (1:28.3) relays, then coming from behind to win a wild eight-man mile relay.

Larry Jones, Donnie Hill, Glen Kelley and Norris Jones comprised the 440 and 880 alignments and were also the last four runners on the eight-man mile, rallying their team from next to last in a nine-team field after the fourth handoff.

Host Gahr was the only other school to win more than one relay, taking the distance medley and mile.

The Arriola brothers, freshman Dennis and senior Jim ran the 1320 and mile legs in 3:13.6 and 4:21.9 to beat Arteisa and its three sophomores in the distance medley.

Donn Thompson, who had earlier pulled his team to second and third place finishes in the 440 and 880 relays, anchored in 48.3 to make up a 15-yard deficit and win the mile relay for Gahr in 3:23.3.

Greg McSeveney of Gahr won the discus at 170 feet, 2¼ inches, exceding his previous best by more than a foot.

Fred Stillings was Artesia's standout. Only a soph, Stillings ran a 1:55.7 half-mile leg in the distance medley, then a hour later came back and ran 1:55.3, going from fifth to catch 4:15 Cantwell miler Joe Aker to win the sprint medley.

Poly was was fourth in the 440 relay and missed higher finishes in the 880 and 8-man mile due to poor handoffs.

San Pedro slugger fights at Forum

A woman's place is in the . . . ring?

All right, panel, it's time to play What's My Line?, and our first guest is Pat Pineda of San Pedro, California. She is the mother of two children and, in a manner of speaking, self-employed. The questioning will begin with Arlene.

"You're a belly dancer in a Greek restaurant."

Sorry, Arlene. Bill?

"She looks athletic to me. Hmm, San Pedro . . . you're a channel swimmer!"

Nope. What do you think, Soupy?

"I've got it—you're a professional pizza twirler at the Majestic Cafe."

Panel, you're not even close. Ms. Pineda is a professional boxer.

THE FACT IS that Patricia Linda Garcia Pineda, 29, does not look like a professional boxer . . . but, then, what woman does?

"I don't think I'm going to end up with any cauliflower ears," she says, "but you never know. Just one solid punch could do it."

PAT PINEDA...the mother

Even after her first pro fight at the Sahara Tahoe in February, she had no misgivings.

"I didn't even know I had a black eye until I looked in the mirror. Then I thought, oh well, I'll just take out my makeup. I put my eyelashes and eye shadow on."

Pat lost a decision to one Princess Red Star, 24, whose fight manager father had been training her since the age of 6.

"She was good," Pat says, "but after 18 years' experience I expected her to really knock the hell out of me. All her other fights I think ended by knockouts. They thought I'd go down in the first round, but I proved them wrong."

The proper cliche would be that Pat proved she had heart.

"I proved I had tough skin," she laughs.

HER SECOND fight will be Wednesday night at the Forum, part of the Danny Lopez-Famoso Gomez card. Her opponent will be Kim Maybee, an 18-year-old graduate of Marshall High in Los Angeles who has had no pro matches.

Pat's cause is not for women's lib, but the two young ladies are the first of their sex to be licensed to box professionally in California, the commission having ruled that women have as much right as men to get their noses flattened in public.

They will go four two-minute rounds, after which the referee and two judges will render a decision. The decision may be that the whole affair was almost as ridiculous as some of the other bouts the commission has sanctioned.

Pat hopes not, because she takes her trade seriously. She has tried working as a waitress and even studied voice — "I go from classical to pop" — until she became involved in boxing about two years ago.

"I was married at the time," she says, "and it gave me something to do. It was after I'd had my little girl, and I came down to the gym just to work out and lose some weight."

THE GYM was located in the basement of the Harbor View House on Beacon St. It used to be the San Pedro YMCA and is now a halfway house for former mental patients. Dave Goodwin, an L.A. Harbor Division police officer, was instructing housewives in self-defense and Pat became interested.

PAT PINEDA...the cook

"He said my potential was pretty good, so he introduced me to Dee," Pat says.

Dee's last name is (stay with us, folks) Knuckles and she is the physical education director of the facility. She is a remarkable lady well equipped to deal with almost any situation, including the management of women boxers.

"A male fighter gets out of the ring, goes home and relaxes. When I go home I've got my kids, the wash, the cooking and the housecleaning."

Pat has fought several exhibitions and charts her progress by the fact that "I've dropped a considerable amount of weight."

THE POUNDS came with the bearing of two children after a highly active youth in the girls' athletic programs at Dana Junior High and San Pedro High.

Pat, one of six children in her family, says, "I liked to play all the sports, but when I was in elementary school I hated it. All the girls acted like sissies . . . like they couldn't sock a ball or kick a ball. There were a few that were good, and we were usually the ones that would stay after school and play."

But there is still some doubt whether she can hack it as a fighter.

"I don't have any killer instinct," she admits. "Maybe just an instinct to win."

Dee says, "In her first fight she had too much compassion for her opponent. It's something she'll have to learn."

Her parents, she says, "are typical parents. They worry about it. But I can't blame them. They've always been overprotective with me."

SHE NOW SEEMS quite capable of protecting herself against potential mashers or ringside cads.

"If I was alone," she says, "he'd better kill me or he'd be in pretty bad pain—and I wouldn't use my hands."

She breaks up laughing at the unlikely prospect of inflicting severe injyry on anyone. Although she has shed one husband, along with an undisclosed amount of ugly fat, she is not exactly a woman alone in the world.

RICH ROBERTS

"It was something that was coming on before I even started boxing," she says of the divorce. "I'm happier now. I'm the type that always needs more freedom, and he couldn't give me the freedom I needed, so I couldn't stay with him.

"It's pretty good now. I have someone that allows me the freedom to do whatever I want, whenever I want, and that's good."

AS MUCH FREEDOM, that is, as one can manage while raising her son David, 3, and daughter Alina, 2. Pat bristles when asked whether she works as hard as male fighters.

"Wait a minute! A male fighter gets out of the ring, goes home and relaxes. When I go home I've got the cooking, the wash and housecleaning. I don't stop until my kids are asleep, and sometimes not even then.

"I used to hear my mom tell my dad, 'All you do is go to work,' and I used to think, well gosh, that's hard.

"Then when I became a mother and from morning till night there was no break period I thought, Lord, it's not that easy."

PAT PINEDA..the athlete

SHE BARELY finds time to indulge herself in every housewife's escape capsule, the TV soap operas.

"I dig on soap operas. In fact, I was thinking about one today. I never found out what happened because I had to work out."

Her children attend pre-school during the day, but Pat says, "From the time they're out of school until it's time to go back they're with me."

Except when she goes to the gym or to fight.

"He (David) understands when he sees me on TV or in the papers that it's to do with the boxing, and he gets kind of excited.

"But he also understands when I tell him I have to leave, and he doesn't ask to go. They're too small to see me get hit or hit somebody else."

THE BRASS IS NOT BLAMELESS

BUD TUCKER

All items considered and placed in perspective, the millionaire free-agent super stars may be getting altogether too much credit as the parties responsible for the possible destruction of the structure of professional athletics.

That is, the likes of Catfish Hunter and Larry Csonka and Andy Messersmith may be misleading the general public.

The arrogance with which they conduct themselves during the peddling of their flesh to franchise owners tends to irk bystanders. Therefore, the importance of their carrying on is often exaggerated.

Then too, the intelligence of the average citizen is abused. When Catfish Hunter says money had nothing to do with his preference for the Yankees and Larry Csonka says he is intrigued bythe future of the New York Giants and Andy Messersmith says he is captivated by the integrity of the proprietor of the Atlanta Braves, the inclination is to throw up.

STILL, IT IS the uncluttered view from here that the high-priced athletes are being credited far too highly. They are playing a vital part in screwing things up, to be sure, but it seems unfair that they get the major portion of the finer-pointing.

Equal credit should go to the people who own franchises and control and govern the leagues in which the teams compete. These guys perform beautifully and nothing should be taken away from their efforts.

The National and American Leagues of professional baseball clubs have a commissioner who is hired by the operators to sit in judgement of local and family disputes and controversies and generally concern himself with the image of the game they continue to present to us as the national pastime.

Now there is a city in Canada to which both leagues entertain notions of placing ball clubs. Expansion is no longer a matter of a city wishing major league baseball to approach with hat in hand to romance existing franchise holders.

NORTH AMERICA is running out of likely communities and the major leagues can only be workable with a certain number of teams. Therefore, if a city such as Toronto appears to have all the qualifications as a revenue producing member of the lodge, both leagues find it desirable.

Toronto being no New York or Chicago or Southern California, it would seem an unlikely area for two major league teams. Consequently, a ruling from the commissioner of baseball appeared called for.

The commissioner announced his ruling to baseball.

Baseball, at least a part thereof, told the commissioner what to do with his ruling.

The National Football League is drowning in a sea of legal complications which have, to date, contributed to at least one vital area — the cost of a seat at an NFL game.

Whether the legal implications are such that they can cause the NFL to go down three times and come up twice remains to be determined, but there is no question whatever great trouble is visiting professional football.

The NFL people conduct their annual convention in San Diego. The agenda contains discussion on such matters as the time it shall take a team to break its huddle and a firm decision not to change the shape of the ball.

If a word is spoken on the legal agonies confronting the league, nobody hears it.

The National Basketball Association continues to snatch youngsters out of colleges and raise the average salary of its players, raise its barriers against merger talks with the other league and raise the price of tickets. Many National Hockey League owners condone brawls wherein players get arrested.

SO IT IS, then, the combined efforts of the players and owners are to be credited with the exhaustion of the patience of the general public.

Continued diligence may one day lead to the pros becoming as accomplished at creating havoc as the amateurs. The latter group has progressed through lesser events and today stands on the threshold of its greatest accomplishment — the destruction of the Olympic Games.

Of course, it should be pointed out the amateurs have an overwhelming advantage inasmuch as they are able to enlist the aid of the world's politicians.

Coliseum having suite thoughts

For almost a quarter of a million dollars you may be able to watch football games at the Coliseum in comfort some day.

The Coliseum Commission has a plan to remodel the 55-year-old facility and thereby permit you to enjoy football first-class—in a private suite with a wet bar, closed-circuit TV, refrigerator, drapes and carpeting.

But there is a big "if."

The contemplated remodeling includes:

- Addition of a number of expensive, plush boxes.
- Elimination of the expensive Tartan track which has been the scene of a number of top track and field meets.
- Moving the east end zone seating forward from the peristyles and closer to the playing field, thereby improving seating for 30 per cent of Coliseum fans.
- Improving the landscape.
- Adding escalators and elevators.

THE CONTROVERSIAL, big "if" is the planned construction of 138 suites, 70 along the rim of the Coliseum and 68 in the east end. Each suite would seat 16 persons.

The Coliseum Commission originally had sought to get 218 suites built but subsequently reduced the figure by 80.

"If the suites are not sold, the remodeling project will not get off the ground," said Supervisor Pete Schabarum, president of the Coliseum Commission. "Everything hinges on sale of the suites.

"The money accrued from sale of the suites is necessary for financing. We can't remodel any other way."

SELLING THE SUITES may not be so easy. A patron first would have to purchase a $125,000 bond. Then he would have to sign a contract to lease the suite at an annual fee of $20,000 for five years. That's an additional $100,000.

The total package thus would be $225,000 for the privilege of seeing the Rams, Trojans and Bruins play football for five years.

On Wednesday the Coliseum Commission approved the project to be marketed and Schabarum said that notices would go out to prospective buyers the first of this week.

So-called letters-of-intent would go out to interested patrons in May, at which time a $10,000 deposit would be required.

THE REMODELING PLAN has been supported for the last three years by Ram owner Carroll Rosenbloom. He has insisted that the Coliseum be renovated under an implied threat of playing Ram games elsewhere.

"Rosenbloom hasn't backed us into a corner," said Schabarum. "He has merely pointed out some things that the Coliseum Commission has been aware of for a long time."

Seating capacity would be reduced to 80,000, but quality of seats would be improved. Current Coliseum seating capacity for Ram games is 91,038. Capacity was 103,000 until a Coliseum mini-remodeling project 10 years ago.

Many seats have arm rests, and additional theater-type seats for the balance of the Coliseum will be provided under the proposal before the Commission, according to Schabarum.

The Coliseum packed in 104,953 for the 1947 USC-Notre Dame football game, but because of the present "bad" peristyle-end seats and the advent of television, crowds that size are not expected any more.

SCHABARUM EMPHASIZES that taxpayers won't foot this improvement bill.

"Taxpayers won't pay a thing," said the former University of California football star. "To go ahead with construction plans, we must sell the suites. If there are no buyers, there will be no improvements.

"This financing mechanism never has been used before. We are experimenting, but we think we're on the right track.

HANK HOLLINGWORTH

"The rental and bond money from the suites also would give us enough gross dollars to pay off the $5 million Sports Arena bonds. (The gross from just 20 suites alone would be enough to pay off the arena bonds.)

"If our plans reach a conclusion, we will have a very creditable stadium. It will be ultra-modern and at the same time will retain its historical value.

"But everything now is conjecture. I'm assuming that we'll get a healthy annual rental and bond money, and that the public will be interested.

"If my assumption is wrong, the construction will not get off the ground."

SCHABARUM SAID that if Los Angeles again bids for the Olympic Games, a new track would be installed. (The Tartan surface, which will be eliminated if the remodeling project gets the green light, was unveiled March 4, 1972, after being installed for a cost of $180,000.)

But would there be room for a full 400-meter track, with the old one eliminated and the space to be otherwise utilized?

"According to the architects, there would be room—the section that we're now planning to excavate could be filled in," said Schabarum. (If the Tartan track is removed, the field would be dropped 16 feet.)

But the Coliseum Commission president thinks that Los Angeles' chances of securing a summer Olympic Games in the near future are dim.

"IN MY JUDGMENT," declared Schabarum, "from talking to individual members who sought to secure the '76 and '80 Games for Los Angeles, the International Olympic Committee is interested only in politics.

"In their sort of cold war, it appears highly unlikely that the power blocs of the International Olympic Committee can be persuaded to throw their support to the United States.

"Also, since Montreal has the '76 Games, I feel that in picking order, any North American city's chances are minimized for a long time."

The Coliseum was built in 1922 and remodeled in 1932 for the Olympic Games of that year. The stadium has stayed basically the same since then and has been the focal point of Los Angeles' attempts to bid for the '76 Games and the 1980 Games, which went to Moscow.

GLENN MON, of the Coliseum staff, said that during the commission's four-hour meeting Wednesday a negative declaration was approved, which means that any Coliseum improvements would have no significant impact on the environment.

"The commission didn't approve any specific plans—it still was thinking in generalities, awaiting the suite outcome," said Mon.

Meanwhile, for their near-quarter of a million dollars potential, Coliseum suite renters can contemplate activities other than football—such things as the Billy Graham Crusade and motocross.

They also may choose to see the Watts Summer Festival rock concert and/or the Fourth of July fireworks shows.

The wet bar and refrigerator should be especially welcome during the latter two events.

Thank you, Bowie, for making all of this possible

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press

Thank goodness, commissioner Bowie Kuhn stepped into baseball's labor crisis and the season got under way on time. It would have been a shame to delay the start of all this silliness.

Baseball has been doing business for two weeks now and it's been better than ever for strange goings-on.

Already, we've had two beanball wars—on consecutive nights—a protested game over, of all things, sweatshirts, another protested game over the height of a pitchers' mound, a superstar sitting in Arizona, waiting to be coaxed to Baltimore, a swarm of bees delaying a game, a Monday night network television game that dragged over 17 innings into Tuesday morning and all manner of other developments.

The beanball battles involved first Baltimore and the Angels and, one night later, the New York Mets and St. Louis.

At the height of the Oriole-Angel argument, Angel catcher Andy Etchebarren and Baltimore pitcher Jim Palmer were doing some heavy jawing at each other. They've talked before, of course. They were, after all, batterymates with the Orioles for eight years.

Slugger Reggie Jackson missed that little set-to. He hasn't reported to the Orioles yet and he says unless Baltimore does some fast contract talking in the next day or so, he's going to stay in Arizona all summer. So there!

The Mets-Cards war started after two-run home runs by Felix Millan, Del Unser and John Milner left St. Louis pitcher Lynn McGlothen somewhat unhappy. He responded by hitting Unser and Jon Matlack with pitches. It was no accident, admitted the Cardinal pitcher.

"I threw the baseball to hit Unser," McGlothen said. "I thought the situation called for it. I felt like I was being intimidated. I felt I had the right to let the hitter know I have the ball and there are certain things I can do with it."

McGlothen may still have been mad from the last act. The night before, Unser had hit a 17th inning home run, ending a marathon ball game. The people most delighted with that development had to be broadcasters Bob Prince, Bob Uecker and Warner Wolf who had the task of covering the game for ABC's Monday Night Baseball (Los Angeles-area viewers saw the Dodger-Houston contest). Before they finished, it was Tuesday Morning Baseball.

The bees were the central characters in Cincinnati last Saturday and delayed the game between the Reds and San Francisco Giants for 35 minutes until they could be persuaded, under duress, to depart Riverfront Stadium.

When they hired pepperpot manager Billy Martin, the New York Yankees knew this season wouldn't be dull. It hasn't been.

Martin protested his team's first game loss in Milwaukee, claiming the mound wasn't constructed properly. In the second game, he saved a Yankee victory when he directed New York first baseman Chris Chambliss to call time out an instant before Don Money hit what would have been a game-winning grand slam homer for the Brewers. After Brewer circled the bases, the umpires ordered him back to bat after a not-so-gentle reminder from Martin that he had called time.

In Milwaukee, the Yankees had used two non-roster catchers, Juan Espino and Rick Stelmaszek, as extra hands in their bullpen. But when they got to Baltimore, Martin's old friend, Oriole manager Earl Weaver, said nothing doing.

Weaver refused permission for the two minor leaguers to dress and sit in the Yankee bullpen. Martin, however, had the last laugh when he got complete games from Catfish Hunter and Dock Ellis and never needed a bullpen catcher because he never had to warm up a pitcher.

When the Chicago White Sox got to New York with their snazzy, new-look uniforms, Martin and Yankee owner George Steinbrenner beefed over the white sleeves on their sweatshirts. They demanded that pitchers Bart Johnson and Clay Carroll not be allowed to use those shirts. The umpires, not aware that the fancy getups had received American League approval, agreed and the white sleeves were not permitted.

White Sox manager Paul Richards protested a 5-4 loss and then Chicago billed the Yankees $18 for the two handsome sweatshirts that had been victimized in the previous day's assault on white sleeves. Steinbrenner graciously paid the price.

Now all of this extracurricular nonsense might ordinarily come to the attention of the commissioner. Kuhn has other matters to keep him occupied.

It seems that the American League has granted this expansion franchise to Toronto but the commissioner thinks that would be a dandy spot for the National League. That little dispute is still cooking.

It may, however, be academic. Unless Marvin Miller and John Gaherin...you remember those two, don't you...reach some sort of understanding on a collective bargaining agreement, all major leaguers may be free agents in the next two years.

Now the question is whether there will be 25 who choose Toronto, regardless of which league it's in.

Reds throttle Expos in 11th

MONTREAL (AP)—Dave Concepcion's two-run single in the 11th inning gave the Cincinnati Reds a 6-4 victory over the Montreal Expos Saturday.

Dan Driessen led off the 11th against Don Carrithers, 0-1, with an an infield single and Johnny Bench was safe when third baseman Larry Parrish bobbled his grounder. Mike Lum bunted the runners ahead and Cesar Geronimo was intentionally walked to load the bases. Then Concepcion delivered his single to right-center field.

The victory went to reliever Rawly Eastwick, 1-0.

Montreal grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first on Gary Carter's run-scoring single to left off Pat Zachry and made it 2-0 in the fourth on Pete Mackanin's sacrifice fly.

The Reds struck for a run in the fifth on Lum's homer, then went ahead 4-2 in the sixth on Joe Morgan's three-run blast, also off starter Steve Rogers. A walk to Pete Rose and Ken Griffey's single preceded Morgan's third homer of the season.

Mackanin's single gave the Expos a run in the bottom of the sixth and they tied it 4-4 in the seventh on Ellis Valentine's first homer of the season, a leadoff shot against reliever Pedro Borbon.

Rudi powers A's over Tribe

CLEVELAND (AP) — Joe Rudi's two-run homer in the ninth inning Saturday vaulted Oakland to an 8-7 victory over the Cleveland Indians and snapped the A's four-game losing streak.

Rudi's first homer of the season, off Tom Buskey (0-1), that curled around the left field foul pole followed a two-out walk to Claudell Washington.

It wiped out a 7-6 lead Cleveland had built with two runs in the bottom of the eighth on Rick Manning's triple, Buddy Bell's RBI-single, Boog Powell's single that sent Bell to third and a sacrifice fly by Rico Carty.

The Indians took a 4-0 lead through the first two innings but the A's struck for five in the third, three on Don Baylor's second homer of the year.

The A's made it 6-4 in the fourth but Cleveland got the run back in the seventh on singles by Bell and Powell and Carty's sacrifice fly.

The Indians had a chance to pull it out when they loaded the bases in the ninth inning, but Jim Todd slammed the door on the threat.

Charlie Spikes led off the bottom of the ninth with a single off winner Rollie Fingers, 2-0. That brought Todd out of the Oakland bullpen.

Spikes was sacrificed to second by Alan Ashby and Larvell Blanks was safe on a hard bouncer down the third base line which Sal Bando flagged down, saving a possible run.

Manning walked, loading the bases with one out, but Todd got Duane Kuiper on a liner back to the mound, then ended the game by getting Bell on a grounder to short. It was the second time the Indians left the bases loaded. Cleveland stranded 14 runners.

Rangers halt Tigers on error

DETROIT (AP) — Rightfielder Rusty Staub's ninth-inning error on Gene Clines' pinch-single gave Texas the tiebreaking run and the Rangers went on to a 5-4 victory Saturday over the Detroit Tigers.

Jeff Burroughs started the inning against Detroit relief ace John Hiller with a single and pinch-runner Dave Moates was bunted to second. Tom Grieve was then walked intentionally and Clines, batting for Mike Cubbage, lined a single to right.

Moates held up momentarily at third, then dashed home to put the Rangers ahead 4-3 when Staub over-ran the ball. Grieve took third on the error and Roy Smalley's sacrifice fly to Staub scored him with what proved to be the winning run, offsetting Ben Oglivie's pinch-home run in the bottom of the ninth.

The Rangers had tied the score in the eighth when Smalley singled, raced to third on Len Randle's single to center and scored when Juan Beniquiz hit into a double play. Texas got a pair of runs in the seventh on Grieve's second homer of the season.

Giants go 'wild' over Rooker, earn 3-1 win

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jim Rooker's wild pitch in the third inning with the bases loaded allowed one run to score and set up another that gave the San Francisco Giants a 3-1 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates Saturday.

The Giants, handing the Pirates their fourth successive loss, got to Rooker, 1-1, for a first-inning run on Von Joshua's leadoff triple and a sacrifice fly by Darrel Thomas.

In the third, Thomas led off with an infield single and went to third on Bobby Murcer's single to right. Gary Matthews walked to load the bases, Thomas scored on the wild pitch and Chris Speier's sacrifice fly drove in Murcer, who had moved to third on the wild pitch.

Winner Ed Halicki, 2-2, scattered eight hits before being lifted in the eighth inning after Rich Hebner led off with a single. Gary Lavelle took over and the Pirates averted a shutout on Willie Stargell's single and Dave Parker's grounder.

Schmidt rips 9th HR; Phils, 10-5

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt's two-run homer, his ninth of the year and eighth in the last six games, capped a five-run eighth inning as the Philadelphia Phillies scored a 10-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves Saturday night.

Schmidt, the major leagues' home run leader, ripped a linedrive shot over the leftfield fence off reliever Elias Sosa (1-2) to score pinch-runner Jerry Martin. Martin entered the game after Greg Luzinski started the rally with a double to right-centerfield.

Garry Maddox singled, stole second and scored on Bob Boone's single. Tommy Hutton, batting for relief pitcher Ron Reed, walked. That finished Sosa and brought in Bruce Dal Canton. Dal Canton struck out Dave Cash and the Philies pulled a double steal.

Fuentes, San Diego shuffle Cards, 4-3

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A run-scoring single by Tito Fuentes snapped a tie in the ninth inning Saturday night and sparked San Diego Padres to a 4-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

Fuentes, who led a 10-hit San Diego attack with four, delivered his game-winner against Cardinal reliever Harry Rasmussen to give the Padres their second win in a row over the Cards.

Pinch-hitter Gene Locklear walked, pinch-runner Enzo Hernandez was sacrificed to second by pinch-hitter Jerry Turner and Johnny Grubb also drew a base on balls to set the stage for Fuentes.

The Cardinals had tied the score, 3-3, in the top of the ninth off Padre reliever Butch Metzger on Bake McBride's two-out infield single.

Seaver does it all for Mets

HOUSTON (AP) — Tom Seaver limited Houston to three hits and drove in two runs in New York's four-run eighth inning as the Mets downed the Astros 7-1 Saturday night.

Seaver, 2-0, yielded only three singles in working his first complete game of the season.

Walks to Dave Kingman and Bud Harrelson and a single by Wayne Garrett loaded the bases off Larry Dierker with one out in the eighth.

Seaver then came to the plate and worked a full-count against the Astro hurler before lining a two-run single to left, scoring Kingman and Garrett. Larry Hardy came on in relief of Dierker and surrendered RBI singles to Bruce Boisclair and Del Unser before retiring Ed Kranepool on a pop foul to end the rally.

Frazier-Foreman fight relocated

NEW YORK (AP) — The Joe Frazier-George Foreman heavyweight fight, knocked out of Yankee Stadium, will probably be held in Chicago Stadium June 15, the New York Post reported Saturday.

Promoter Jerry Perenchio had wanted to put the fight in Yankee Stadium June 15, but the Yankees balked.

Yanks deal (9-8) KC 'Royal-flush'

NEW YORK (AP) — Chris Chambliss' fourth hit of the game, a one-out single in the 11th inning, scored Roy White from second base and gave the New York Yankees a wild 9-8 victory over the Kansas City Royals Saturday.

The Royals blew a chance to win in regulation when Jim Wohlford missed third base as he raced home on John Mayberry's apparent single with two out in the eighth inning and the score tied. New York third baseman Graig Nettles appealed to umpire Nestor Chylak and what looked like a run-scoring hit became an inning-ending forceout. There was no argument from the Royals.

Kansas City also failed to score with runners on first and third and none out in the third inning. Another scoring opportunity was squandered when Fred Patek was thrown out at the plate to end the sixth attempting to score on Frank White's double.

Chisox rained out

CHICAGO (AP) — The game between the Boston Red Sox and Chicago White Sox Saturday night was postponed because of rain and wet grounds and rescheduled as a day game August 19, which originally was an open date.

Thompson, Minnesota 'weather' Baltimore

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota shortstop Danny Thompson saves his best performances for bad weather and nationally televised games.

"This had to be the worst day I could remember for playing," said Thompson, whose fourth hit of the game—a 14th-inning double—helped reliever Bill Campbell and the Twins beat the Baltimore Orioles 2-1 Saturday.

"Maybe this is my kind of weather," added Thompson, referring to the cold drizzle which fell for the first eight innings of the game. "It was miserable and the wetness really made it sting."

Luis Gomez led off with 14th with a single up the middle off Grant Jackson, 0-1, and Thompson's double to right-center field sent him third. Dan Ford's sacrifice fly to right then scored the winning run.

The game began in 43-degree temperature and winds gusting from the northeast up to 36 miles an hour.

"We were thinking one run or however many we could get," said Minnesota manager Gene Mauch. "But that's the ironic thing about baseball. We played from the third to the eighth inning in conditions you'd never start a game."

Veteran American League umpire Bill Haller probably summed it up best, though. "If you start in that kind of stuff," he said, "it's pretty hard to stop in it."

Campbell, 2-1, pitched 5⅓ innings of two-hit ball to pick up the victory.

11,000 at Crowley Lake

Record trout fishermen

By DONNELL CULPEPPER
Staff Writer

BISHOP — Trout season opened in the Sierra Nevada Saturday and as usual the emphasis was on famed Crowley Lake, 30 miles north of Bishop.

A headcount of anglers at midafternoon showed 3,600 were fishing from Crowley shores and 7,526 were angling from 1,979 boats.

A shore angler, Dan Valliant of Covina, was leading all others for the top prize of the day at Crowley with a four-pound brown trout caught on a worm-baited hook.

The number of boats and shore anglers at Crowley exceeded last year's total of 1,213. It was 32 degrees at sunrise but the temperature rose rapidly to the 70s, perfect weather for fishing.

Angling success was generally good, with lure fishermen doing exceptionally well. Bait fisherman were averaging five fish each at midafternoon.

THE bluebird weather caused possibly the greatest influx of anglers that Inyo and Mono Counties have ever seen. There was heavy pressure on every lake under 8,000 feet.

The June Lake Loop was crowded with anglers. John Frederickson and his son, John, Jr., of the June Lake Marina, said they had never seen such an outpouring of people for the opening weekend.

Bob Richardson of Long Beach topped June Lake anglers with a 4¾-pound rainbow. Dal Morehouse and wife Linda of Bellflower had weight limits of rainbow with one four-pounder caught by Morehouse. There were numerous weight limits taken by boat anglers.

The influx of visitors extended as far north as Bridgeport and the Twin Lakes there. Warden Dick Padgett reported a 25 per cent increase in anglers over opening weekend last year. George Mack of Stockton took a five-pound brown from Bridpegport Reservoir and John D. Lee, Long Beach, got a 4¾-pound brown on the East Walker River.

Several weight limits were taken from Bridgeport Twins.

Stream fishing was slower this year even though most creeks were low and clear. Numerous weight limits were reported at Convict Lake and there were some citations by Department of Fish and Game wardens for limits that were too hevay.

SABRINA Lake yielded small trout to several hundered fishermen. Warden Walt Mansell said 100 anglers fished through the ice at Rock Creek Lake and caught some 18-inch rainbows.

Mary and George Lakes in the Mammoth area were frozen over but ice was breaking up on Mammoth Twins. Skiers and fishermen were in evidence everywhere in the lower Mammoth area.

The runoff this year is 43 per cent of normal so it looks like a dry, late summer in the Sierras.

That 43 per cent figure is the second lowest in this century since records were started in 1906.

A personal touch: Rolla Williams, outdoor editor of the San Diego Union, his friend, Jack Swank, and I fished Crowley from 5:30 to 9:30 a.m. We trolled special lures made by a Bishop man, Hal Janson, 83 years young, and we got our three limits by 9:30. There were several 1½-pound brown tout among the 21 fish. Janson's lures are not for sale. He was a die maker at San Diego in World War II and he makes these lures as gifts to his frends.

Bishop held its annual Rainbow Tout Celebration Saturday night with scores of displays of fish in the city park.

Cerritos 'saved' by Olivarez, 5-4

Reliever Tim Olivarez set down all three batters he faced after entering the game in the top of the ninth with a run in, a man on second and no outs to save a 5-4 victory for Cerritos College over visiting Fullerton JC Saturday afternoon.

Cerritos had tallied twice in the eighth inning to generate a 5-3 lead but Fullerton opened the ninth with a triple and a run-scoring single off winning pitcher John Gordon before Olivarez squelched the rally.

Offensively, the Falcons were paced by Mike Sammons, who knocked in two runs with a pair of hits, and Mike Carpenter, who scored three times.

Cerritos stole five bases and defeated Fullerton's Dennis Sandoval for the third time this season. Sandoval went the distance, allowing eight hits, but was erratic, striking five Cerritos batters and permitting the winning run to score on a wild pitch.

'Shabby' 67 gives Ziegler 2-shot lead

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—"It was a poor, shabby round," said Larry Ziegler, who wasn't even thinking about the lead.

"I was just trying to keep from shooting a bad score," Ziegler said Saturday after a scrambling five-under-par 67 had put him two strokes in front of the pack in the third round of the $175,000 New Orleans Open golf tournament.

He chipped in twice, once to save par on the first hole, just missed holing it from the fairway on the third hole but spent most of the overcast day fighting his way out of sand traps—he was in three, hacking his way out of the woods—three trips there—and slashing out of the deep, wiry rough—a half-dozen times there.

But his troubles were as nothing to those encountered by Jack Nicklaus and shaken second-round leader Barney Thompson, who scored a nine on one hole and, ashen-faced, observed, "It kind of leaves you in shock."

Nicklaus once had a share of the lead before scoring double bogey seven and bogey five on consecutive holes.

"Obviously not a very good round," Nicklaus said. "For the week, I've played the par fives one over and," he paused, then continued with a wry smile, "that's not too sharp.

"The only thing that saved it was the two birdies at the end. That left me in position to make a run at the lead tomorrow."

He finished five strokes back of the journeyman Ziegler's leading 54-hole total of 204.

That's 12 under par on the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course, a tame and timid tabby for the first two days of the tournament. But, suddenly toughened by 25-mph winds, it turned into a raging tiger that claimed its victims with near regularity.

Standing on the 11th tee, Nicklaus was tied for the lead. When he walked off the 12th green he was tied for eighth, five shots off the pace. A couple of birdies by Ziegler and a double bogey-bogey stretch by Nicklaus, wandering tightlipped and angered through trees and traps, accounted for the swing.

Ziegler, whose close friend Joe Garagiola was handling the telecast of a 14-inning baseball game that cut the viewing time of this tournament to 15 minutes, chipped in twice to turn a potentially poor round into a leader.

"The first eight holes I just played awful," Ziegler said. "It looked like I was gonna shoot 75. I wasn't thinking about the lead. I was just trying to keep from shooting a bad score."

Ziegler, who chipped in twice in Thursday's first round, did it again to save par on the first hole and dropped one from deep rough for birdie on the 12th.

Martin assumes LPGA lead

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Kathy Martin birdied her last three holes Saturday to take a four-stroke edge over first-round leader Jan Stephenson at the Ladies Professional Golf Association's Birmingham Classic.

Miss Martin, who shot a 65 Saturday to accompany a 66 Friday, took the lead after 36 holes with a 131. Miss Stephenson shot a 70 Saturday for a 135.

Six shots off the pace was Long Beach's Laura Baugh, with a 137 total. Debbie Austin was at 138 and defending champion Maria Astrologes and Betsy Cullen were tied at 139.

During the overcast, rain-sprinkled day, Miss Martin pulled out nine birdies. "It was a fantastic round," she said. "I started a bit shaky, but I hit it better and better as I went along.

On her last hole, she hit her tee shot through the 18th fairway and played a driver down the adjacent 13 before winding up behind some trees. She then pulled out a five iron and hit the flagstick. All that remained was a six-inch tap-in for the birdie.

Miss Stephenson, who led Miss Martin by one-stroke going into Saturday's play, said, "I'm not disappointed. I am mad and disgusted.

"I didn't get one break today," she said.

Gahr, Glenn advance to tourney finals

Gahr and Glenn High moved into the finals of the Downey-Warren Tournament Saturday with narrow victories over Mayfair and Warren.

Gahr survived a three-run home run by Mayfair High's Greg Eaton to register a 6-5 win.

Jay Adamson picked up his first win of the season for Gahr as he went five innings before being relieved by Glenn Prater.

Glenn scored twice in the seventh inning to rally for a 4-3 victory.

A double by Rick Mendoza and a triple by Nick Klistoff with an ensuing error helped Glenn move into the championship matchup.

Tartars edge Glendale, 5-4

Compton College pitcher Keith Thomas drove in the tying run in the ninth inning and scored the winning run in the 11th Saturday as the Tartars posted their third Western State Conference victory of the season with a 5-4 decision over host Glendale.

Thomas' single pushed across Curly Thompson in the 9th and Thomas scored in the 11th on Ken Smith's double.

The Tartars are 3-10.

Trentonian key to Indy 500

Janet Guthrie faces test

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Janet Guthrie's career as an auto racer and her bid to become the first woman to drive in the Indianapolis 500 next month faces a crucial test in today's 15th Trentonian 200.

Ready for action

Miss Guthrie, 38, a slim brunette New York City physicist who has spent the last 13 years in sports car racing, makes her debut in Indianapolis-type cars at the tricky kidney-shaped 1.5-mile Trenton Speedway. Although a near record 28 entries have been received for the 22-car field, most observers agree Miss Guthrie should be able to earn one of the starting spots for the nationally televised event.

"I may be a woman, but when I get in that car I'm a race driver," said Miss Guthrie. "I don't pretend this type of racing is easy, but I believe I can get the job done.

"If I can't, I've promised myself I'll have the courage to admit it and park the car."

Miss Guthrie, who is the first woman to file an entry for the Indianapolis 500, is not likely to get permission to compete for a spot at Indy strictly on her credentials in sports car racing. Previous experience in open wheel racing at some level is a prerequisite for any rookie to be allowed to even start the Indy drivers' test.

"I think that's fair," Miss Guthrie said. "I just hope I get a reasonable opportunity to prove myself."

IN TIRE TESTING at Trenton last week, Miss Guthre achieved speeds in the 150 mph range with her Offenhauser-powered Vollstedt, which would have earned her 14th starting position in the race at Trenton last fall, said officials of the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club.

"But it is not without considerable hostility that a certain number of entrants accept Miss Guthrie's presence.

Drivers threatened a boycott if Arlene Hiss, who broke the sex barrier in Indinapolis-type racing in an unimpressive manner last month at Phoenix, was permitted to drive.

"I'm not happy about this whole thing. I've made that perfectly clear before," grumbled Bobby Unser, the Phoenix winner and a five-time former Trenton victor. "I've said all I'm going to say on the subject for now. Let's just hope we all come through this in one piece."

"I'm sorry Bobby feels the way he does. I hope I can change his mind about me," said Miss Guthrie, who refers to Unser as "Male Chauvinist Pig".

While the controversy about Miss Guthrie simmers, a highly competitive race, which is expected to draw a near-record crowd, is on tap with four former Indianapolis winners and as many as a dozen drivers considered reasonably capable of winning.

The entry list includes A.J. Foyt, the defending Trentonian champion, and Gordon Johncock, winner of last fall's race.

Qualifying is in the morning and the race begins at 1:30 p.m. (PDT).

MARCIS SITS VIRGINIA POLE

MARTINSVILLE, Va. (AP) — For the fourth time in the nine races in this season, Dave Marcis will be on the pole today for the 21st Virginia 500 Grand National stock car race at Martinsville Speedway.

Marcis earned the No. 1 spot for the richest short-track event in NASCAR history when he turned in a qualifying speed of 86.286 mph Friday in a Dodge over the .525-mile track.

While Marcis failed to crack the Virginia 500 and track qualifying record of 86.369 mph set in 1973 by David Pearson, he picked up the $1,000 bonus by leading the trials that determined the first 20 spots for today's race.

Pearson, the Mercury driver who's won four of the five races in which he's competed this year, took the outside pole at 85.809 mph in his first start on a track under a mile in length.

Trailing Marcis and Pearson in the qualifying were Grand National point leader Benny Parsons with a speed of 85.026 mph and Darrell Waltrip at 84.820 mph. Both were driving Chevrolets.

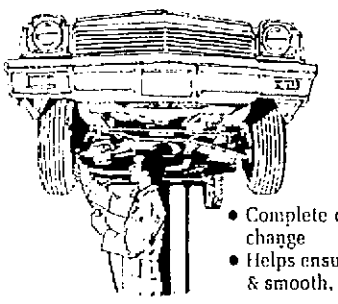

Earlier this year, Marcis won the pole at Rockingham, N.C., Atlanta and North Wilkesboro, N.C. His only race victory came in the Capital City 400 at Richmond, Va.

Regatta of Champions

Drags, hydros vie at Marine

Renewing rivalries paralleling the USC-UCLA and Harvard-Yale feuds, five unlimited blown fuel hydros, representing the five hull makers in the sport, will engage in the "manufacturers challenge" portion of the Regatta of Champions today at Long Beach Marine Stadium.

The Regatta, sponsored by the Long Beach Boat and Ski Club, will feature races for blown fuel hydros, K runabouts and unblown gas boats, plus head-to-head drag competition, invitational outboard, jet boat and cracker box races and a special high speed water ski exhibition.

All five of the "challenge" hydros have eclipsed the magic 200-mile-per-hour barrier for a quartermile in head-to-head competition.

Earl Barchant of Fresno will be in the cockpit of Golden Thing, the National Drag Boat Assn. record holder at 203.60 mph. A Brendella hull, the boat is owned by Shane Magan of Fresno and has been clocked at 204.08 for a quarter-mile run. To qualify, records must be backed within three per cent over the previous standards.

Out A Sight, a Howard hull owned by Howard Brown of Bellflower, holds the American Power Boat Assn. record of 201.34. Gary Owens of Canoga Park will drive.

Three other boats have been clocked faster than the APBA record, but were unable to back up their marks. Climax, a Sanger hull owned by Jack Davidson of Fresno and driven by Doug Hilton of Redondo Beach, has an unofficial 205.01 while Hondo's After Shock — a Hondo boat owned by Peggy Ann Brendel of Sylmar and driven by Dennis Pollaccia of Redondo Beach — and Mr. Ed, owned by Ed Wills of Fresno with Kenny West of Fresno at the helm, have each clocked 202.46.

In today's circle racing, Julian Pettingill of Phoenix is a double threat. He will compete in both K (blown fuel) and SK (unblown gas) and is a favorite in both classes. Ron Bolton of Long Beach is the top challenger in the K class, while Rick Lee of Incline Village is a strong contender in SK competition.

Gate will open at 8 a.m. today with five hours of continuous racing beginning at noon. Transistors are suggested as there will be no public address system. The race will be carried on a close loop broadcast at 540 on the AM dial.

Admission is $5, with children under 12 admitted free if accompanied by an adult.

Handball tourney at Long Beach AC

The Long Beach Athletic Club will play host to the United State Handball Association-sanctioned Western Regional Tournament May 6-9 and 13-16.

Competition in 11 categories is scheduled. Division winners earn a berth in the National USHA tournament in Las Vegas, June 6-13.

Entry information may be obtained by telephoning 426-5577. Admission is free to all sessions.

Thirteen tangle in Century Handicap

Thirteen of the nation's top grass specialists, including four from Charlie Whittingham's power-packed stable, are scheduled to go postward today at Hollywood Park in the $115,500 Century Handicap at 1⅜-mile on the lakeside turf course.

The first of three hundred-granders for handicap marathoners during the 1976 Hollpark season, the Century is an international affair, as fully seven of the entrants have raced in foreign countries.

Whittingham is represented by major stakes winners Dahlia, the world's richest active thoroughbred; Top Command, winner of the Oak Tree Invitational last fall; King Pellinore, winner of the Irish Stakes, and Riot In Paris, a French grass star whom Whittingahm owns in partnership with Mary Jones Bradley.

Opposing the Whittingham quartet will be Avatar, Elabadoro, Pass The Glass, Toonerville, Zanthe, Cruiser II, Ga Hai, Winds Of Thought and Branford Court.

If all 13 horses start, the race will be worth $70,500 to the winner.

Whittingham listed Bill Shoemaker to ride on both Top Command and Dahlia and selected Jerry Lambert to pilot Riot In Paris and King Pellinore, so there is a distinct possibility the trainer will withdraw one or more of his eligibles.

Florida invader Toonerville, 1975 Hollypark grass champion Pass The Glass and 1975 Belmont Stakes winner Avatar are expected to vie for favoritism with the fans.

Toonerville, won five consecutive grass races in Florida, including the Bouganvillea Handicap at Hialeah in which he set a world record of 1:51⅗ for a mile and 3/16.

To be ridden by Gene St. Leon and to carry 122 pounds, Toonerville showed good speed Saturday morning, blowing out three furlongs in 35⅗ seconds.

Pass The Glass captured the Golden Gate Handicap in the course record time of 1:41⅖ for a mile and 1/16. Turf specialist Fernando Toro will get the mount on Pass The Glass, who also drilled in 35⅕ Saturday.

Avatar, Belmont Stakes winner as a three-year-old and victorious in the San Luis Rey Stakes most recently in his first test on turf, will be the Century highweight at 124 pounds. After several days of trying, trainer Tommy Doyle finally convinced Braulio Baeza to fly in from New York for the mount today.

Century's Envoy goes wire-to-wire

Most thoroughbred trainers will tell you that the ideal horse is one who gives his best every time.

Such a creature is Elizabeth Elmore's Century's Envoy, who Saturday at Hollywood Park treated 37,002 racing fans to a splendid show of determination in winning the $54,450 Los Angeles Handicap.

With leading jockey Sandy Hawley aboard, Century's Envoy led every step of the seven furlongs and reached the finish line two lengths ahead of Home Jerome in 1:20⅘, one second off the stakes and world record.

Home Jerome was another 2½-lengths in front of Sporting Goods.

The Los Angeles was the eighth lifetime stakes score for Century's Envoy and his fourth added-money triumph at Hollypark. The $32,050 he eraned boosted his career bankroll to $348,100.

As the 2-1 favorite, the winner returned $6, $3.40 and $2.60. Home Jerome paid $5.60 and $3.40 and Sporting Goods paid $3.

Hawley had ridden Century's Envoy two weeks ago when he finished second to Sporting Goods in the Premiere Handicap on opening day and had said afterward that he felt his mount might have been a little "short."

"He didn't get tired today," said the 27-year-old Canadian, who is once again running away with the Hollypark riding title. Century's Envoy was Hawley's 10th winner of the week and he now holds a 28-13 advantage over Fernando Toro.

ROYAL GLINT DOES IT AGAIN

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (AP) — Royal Glint ended Master Derby's five-race victory streak by winning the $111,050 Trenton Handicap by a neck Saturday at Garden State Park.

Royal Glint, a six-year-old gelding owned by Dan Lasater, and Master Derby, last year's Preakness winner owned by Golden Chance Farm, each carried co-highweight of 127 pounds for the 1¼-mile. Northerly, owned by Sigmund Sommer, was third.

It was the fourth victory of the season for Royal Glint, son of Round Table, purchased for $87,000 as an unraced two-year-old. After winning the Grey Lag in New York, he was shipped to California, where he won the Santa Anita Handicap, and to Arkansas, where he won the Razorback Handicap before losing by 1¼-lengths to Master Derby in the Oaklawn.

U.S. RACING ROUNDUP

CHURCHILL DOWNS—Amano made his move in midstretch to win the Stepping Stone Purse, the race that two years ago produced Kentucky Derby winner Cannonade. This year only two Derby nominees were entered and the race was relegated to a betless exhibition. Go East Young Man, a Derby eligible along with Amano, finished second after setting the pace for most of the seven furlongs. The winner's time was 1:24⅘.

AQUEDUCT—Proud Delta ($312) surged up on the outside in the stretch and won the $82,425 Top Flight Handicap for fillies and mares. Ridden by Jorge Velasquez, the winner beat Let Me Linger by three-quarters of a length. Spring Is Here was another head back in third in the field of seven. Proud Delta clocked 1:49 for the 1⅛-mile.

Teske hurls 9-0 no-hitter

The Lakewood Barons swept a doubleheader from South El Monte Saturday night at Mayfair Park, using Roger Teske's no-hitter to score a 9-0 win in the opener and some clutch last-inning hitting for a 3-2 decision in the nightcap.

Teske struck out 16 and was supported by Reynolds Wright's home run.

Proud Baron wins Alamitos feature

Proud Baron, the five-year-old Baron Hanover stallion, posted a wire-to-wire victory Saturday night to post his second win in a row in the featured seventh race at Los Alamitos, upsetting the Joe O'Brien tandem of Starred By Bret and Saunder's Perilous.

Driven by defending champion Bobby Williams, Proud Baron took the lead going around the first turn and never looked back, finally pulling away to 1¾-length margin with a blistering 59 second final half.

The winner clocked 1:59⅗, a lifetime best for the improving young pacer who last year turned in a 1:59⅘ mark at Hollywood Park.

The "magic mile" was the 16th such clocking of the current 56-night spring harness season, two away from the all-time single-season high of 18 established last year.

Proud Baron, who carried the field through a 1:00⅗ first half and a 1:30 three-quarters before coming home the final quarter in 29⅗, paid $16.60, $6.20 and $3.40.

Saunder's Perilous, a winner of nearly $95,000 last year, closed ground in the stretch for Stan Bayless to finish second while 4-5 favorite Starred By Bret, under Hall of Famer O'Brien, finished third. Both were making their first starts of the year.

In the night's co-featured sixth race, Adios Rick circled his four opponents in the stretch and got up in time to win, but it was 3-5 favorite Lumber Bye Bye who tied a state harness racing record.

The heavy odds-on favorite in the five-horse field, was claimed by David Bellucci through trainer Larry Gregory for a Los Alamitos track record of $35,000.

The former Alamitos standard was the $27,000 paid for Saint Clair Event. The $35,000 purchase equaled the state record held by St. Clair Carl in 1974 at Hollywood Park.

Good start, mild winds for yachts

The Newport-to-Ensenada Race got under way with no problems and moderate winds Saturday as a huge field of 572 yachts broke at noon from the starting line inside Newport Harbor.

Winds were 6-8 knots throughout most of the clear, balmy day. If winds of such force prevailed, the first yachts should have finished the race early this morning.

The field was divided into four divisions, including 420 entrants in the Performance Handicap Racing Fleet. The fastest yachts, catamarans and trimarans, competed in the Midget Ocean Racing Fleet.

LBCC eyes repeat title

By ELAINE RISINGER
Staff Writer

The way prospects are shaping up, the finals of the San Bernardino Invitational Volleyball Tournament, which opens Friday, may turn out to be a repeat of last year's event.

Long Beach City College's defending champions go into the competition first in their league with a 10-1 record. L.A. Valley College, LBCC's victim in last year's finals, won its league and again figures to be the Vikings' strongest challenger.

Competition Friday will continue through semifinals. The title will be decided the following Wednesday, said LBCC coach Merri Machado.

Merri's Viking varsity finished off Orange Coast College Wednesday, 15-9, 15-11. Lori Doerr sprained her ankle during the game, but she should be back in the lineup by tournament time.

OCC got some solace, beating the Vike JVs, 15-10, 16-14 defeat.

Matches with West L.A. College Monday and Golden West Wednesday should provide some good pre-tournament competition.

JERRY MILLER'S ESP concerning last weekend's women's national elimination races at Newport Beach was right on beam. LBCC's two Flying Junior entries came through with wins in the team sailing.

Eligible for nationals later in the year will be Joanne Ellerman, skipper, and her crew, Andrea Zahn, and Cathy Black, who with the assistance Lorna Ramos, was overall low point skipper.

The four competed against teams from San Diego State — which finished behind LBCC — UC Santa Cruz, UC Santa Barbara and UCLA.

"The competition was close until the ninth race, and then it was LBCC all the way," Jerry reported. "But the interesting part was watching all those girls sail. Collegiate sailing is primarily a men's sport. Women have generally taken non-active roles as hostesses or crew."

Some great water competition a little closer to home will be staged Friday through Sunday at Long Beach Marine Stadium. The camp sites of the Greater Long Beach Girl Scout Council and the adjoining stadium channel will be the scene of the 1976 Mariner Gam which will attract senior Girl Scouts from 15 cities and communities and an estimated 1,500 visitors.

WOMEN IN SPORTS

The three-day event will afford the young women an opportunity to demonstrate mariner skills and experience inter-troop and inter-council camping. The public is invited Saturday from 11:30 to 4.

Competition is scheduled in 15 land skill and 11 water events. These will include first aid, aids to navigation, knots, nautical terms, inter-national flags and Morse codes, rowing, paddleboard, canoeing, sailing for form, flipper sailing and trimaran sailing.

On the planning committee are Teri Wohlgemuth, GAM officer of the day; Val Braly, assistant officer of the day, and Tori Lee, Cindy Stalkup, Sharon Pattee, Christy Lennon, Jennifer Talley, Shannon Colvin, Debbie Bene and Cathy Johnson.

MOST OF us read about the Boston Marathon and shudder. Not Jane Kuchins, a graduate student at Long Beach State, and Mary Frank, women's athletic trainer.

The two decided a few months ago to go into training for the grueling event. Last week they hopped a plane to the eastern city where they not only finished the 26 miles but had good times.

Jane, who probably placed in the top 10 women (the results have not yet been confirmed), did the distance in three hours, 37 minutes. Mary had a time of four hours, 10 minutes.

ALTHOUGH the LBCC softball team outhit East Los Angeles College 16-10, they came out on the short end of the final 15-9 score. "We just weren't able to put it together," coach Donna Prindle said.

Top hitters for the day were Beth Tasker, three for four; Cindy Mast, two hits and two RBIs; Kim Doyle, two hits including a triple; Barbara Fernau, two for three with a triple and two RBIs; Vicki Lewellyn, two for three with one RBI, and Jane Baker, two hits, including a triple.

Kim Doyle leads the team with a batting average of .451 followed by Cindy Mast .441, and Kim Kelly .344. The team average is .335.

SOFTBALL score: Cerritos, 69 runs, opponents, 1. The single run that broke the Falcons' shutout streak hit the board Wednesday when Chaffee College lost to the strong Cerritos team 9-1.

Cerritos, undefeated in league play, has three league games remaining. The Falcons will meet LBCC Friday at 1 on the Viking field; Rio Hondo, the following Monday, and LBCC, May 5.

Barbara Reinalda threw a two hitter at Chaffee. A single brought her batting average to .500, and three RBIs solidified her lead in this statistic with 17 in league play.

Bullfights open at Tijuana May 2

TIJUANA—Curro Rivera will be the featured matador Sunday, May 2, when the 39th bullfight season opens at El Toreo de Tijuana, the downtown bullring.

Marina to be recommended to L.B. Council

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

A 571-slip marina, to be financed and built by the Feinberg Development Corp. in the area between the Queensway Hilton Hotel and the Queen Mary, will be recommended Tuesday to the Long Beach City Council.

The project would include facilities for parking, dry-boat storage, boat pump-out, minor repair and sales activities and an area designated as the site for a yacht club.

To protect the marina, a 2,400-foot breakwater would be built, running from a point of land just northwest of the Queensway Hilton to the rock dike which now surrounds the Queen Mary.

City Manager John R. Mansell said preliminary studies conducted at the request of the Feinberg Corp. indicate that a floating breakwater may be sufficient to protect the marina complex.

"This type of breakwater was strongly recommended from an aesthetic viewpoint by the Planning Department in its review of the project," Mansell said.

To proceed with the construction of the marina, the Feinberg Corp. proposed a lease with the city and an amendment to its existing lease with the Harbor Department covering the hotel complex.

Mansell said the Harbor Commission previously approved the project in principle and would consider the more detailed proposal at its meeting Monday.

The proposed 40-year lease with the city would begin upon completion of construction, or two years after the necessary permits have been secured, whichever comes first, Mansell said.

He said it was the sole responsibility of the Feinberg Corp. to obtain financing and develop the improvements, with the exception of the breakwater.

Under the agreement, the city would apply for a State Department of Navigation and Ocean Development low-interest loan to finance construction of the breakwater. The Feinberg Corp. would assume full responsibility to pay the city total amortization costs of the loan, he said.

Mansell said the city estimated the cost of the breakwater at $2 million and the loan amortization payments at $135,000 annually.

Once constructed, all facilities would be maintained by the Feinberg Corp., he said.

In addition to the amortization payments, the Feinberg Corp. would pay the city and the harbor six cents per square foot of water area per year, plus 24 cents per square foot of land area per year, or 11 per cent of gross income from slip rental, whichever is greater.

A percentage of sales of other revenue-producing ancillary features would be negotiated as they are developed, Mansell said.

Based on a review of the project prepared by J. Jay Feinberg of the Feinberg Development Corp., the city has estimated the annual lease payments to the city and the harbor would be about $100,000. Inasmuch as about half of the proposed marina would be in the city and half in the harbor district, the two jurisdictions would divide the revenue, with the city receiving about $50,000, plus the loan amortization payments, Mansell said.

Mansell said his office, in conjunction with the Departments of Planning and Engineering, believed the proposed marina would be an asset to the city and would "significantly enhance the area between the Queen Mary and the Queensway Hilton Hotel."

Council members will be asked Tuesday to approve the project in principle, authorize negotiations for an agreement between the city and Feinberg Development Corp., and authorize an application to the State Department of Navigation and Ocean Development for a low-interest loan for the breakwater.

The proposed marina first was suggested to the City Council by Feinberg last September. Council members referred the matter to the city manager's office, and Feinberg was asked to bring in a conceptual plan for the marina and its ancillary facilities.

Plea for peace

This mural, depicting a plea for an end to gang violence in the Southland, was dedicated at the Wilmington Recreation Center, 325 N. Neptune St., Saturday. It was created as part of the Los Angeles Citywide Mural Project, a project that seeks to involve street youths in constructive enterprises. With money for the project deleted from the city's proposed budget, this may be the last mural painted under the program, sponsors say.

Bureaucratic red tape of welfare programs ripped

By KRIS SHERMAN
Staff Writer

Welfare systems have too long been "inefficient, inequitable and difficult for all concerned parties to cope with," a group of antipoverty workers was told Saturday in Long Beach.

And the best way to remedy the situation is for government officials and members of the public to take a more positive approach to helping people in need, said Bud Weisbart, executive director of the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities.

His remarks came as part of a panel discussion entitled, "People in Need: Reforming the Welfare System," during the Third Annual California-Nevada Community Action Program conference at the Edgewater Hyatt House.

About 400 delegates from some 32 community antipoverty agencies attended the three-day conference, which concludes today.

About 35 persons attended the welfare reform panel, one of several conducted simultaneously Saturday afternoon.

Weisbart, who moderated the discussion, set the tone with his remarks, which were followed by similar messages from representatives of state and county government.

Basically, the panelists agreed that bureaucratic entanglements designed to keep nondeserving persons off the welfare rolls have instead worked to the disadvantage of those who are truly in need of aid.

The problem is further complicated by a negative public attitude toward welfare recipients, the condescending, sometimes even hostile, attitude taken toward applicants by eligibility workers and the huge amount of publicity given to welfare cheaters, the panelists added.

"The government is making it as hard as hell for people to get what they need to survive," Weisbart said. "Only the most tenacious people manage to get through all the red tape. . .this is far from the best approach to take. We need to change our attitudes about welfare from reaction to pro-action."

Dr. Arnold Munoz, deputy director of the State Department of Benefit Payments, said:

Postal Service no match for guitar made of matches as gift for Elvis

By DENISE KUSEL
Staff Writer

It took Karen England three months to glue together 3,500 stick matches to make a unique guitar for her hero — Elvis Presley.

It took the U.S. Postal Service three minutes to shatter her dreams.

"The post office wouldn't mail the guitar because they said it was too fragile," Mrs. England said.

"It nearly broke my heart. We don't have enough money to go to Memphis to Elvis's home at Graceland. I thought I'd try shipping it by bus, but then there was no way of making sure Elvis would receive the guitar."

The mother of three sat in a love seat in her Pico Rivera home. She explained that an automobile accident in November left her in constant pain from a ruptured spinal disc.

"I needed to find something to occupy the long hours at home. I've been an Elvis Presley fan ever since I saw him on TV in the early '50s," the 31-year-old blonde continued. "I have every record Elvis has ever recorded. I thought about the happiness his music has given me. I guess that's when I decided to make this guitar for him."

The standard-sized guitar is fashioned completely from ordinary kitchen matches with the tips removed.

Mrs. England used white glue to affix the matches to a cardboard mold. Then she stained the matchstick guitar a rich brown and stretched a set of strings over the guitar neck and attached them to a set of keys. Both the guitar keys and neck are also made out of matches.

Mrs. England planned to attend Presley's matinee performance today at the Long Beach Arena, where officials promised to deliver the guitar to his dressing room.

After the concert, Mrs. England is to enter the UCLA Medical Center for back surgery. Her chances for complete recovery are slim.

"I've been told that I may not walk again," she said.

People Talk

E.C. Anderson

THE ROCK OWNERS Club, Inc., apparently is leaving no stone unturned in an effort to get publicity for its new club publication, Rolling Rock. The club even went so far as to send me a press release, probably theorizing that any man who writes a daily column must have rocks in his head.

I don't think that igneous is bliss, which is why I am not an owner of a pet rock. However, I am not antirock, for my music library contains a recording of the "Rockmaninoff Concerto," my bar abounds in vodka on the rocks, and I have rocked around the clock with a squalling granddaughter.

I suppose the real reason I haven't adopted a rock of my own is that the very word "rock" induces trauma in my psyche. I feel again the slings and arrows of an outrageous welterweight boxer named "Rock" who hastened my departure from the fight game.

I was 17, naive enough to think that speed and a clever left hand could keep my obvious glass jaw a secret from my ring opponents. On my good nights, the deception worked, and I collected purses of up to $20, before expenses.

My booking with "Rocky" at a club smoker in southern Indiana was not one of my better nights. Oh, I was fast enough, so fast that "Rock's" Sunday punch was arriving two days ahead of schedule; so fast that I kept answering bells before they rang.

The site of the fight was a drafty hall in the local Moose Lodge. The time was the dead of winter, and what heat there was emanated from a pot-bellied coal stove situated just outside the ring ropes.

I studiously avoided the hot stove area until "Rock" applied a stiff uppercut to my infamous glass jaw. This insult to my physiognomy caused me to sail backward at an alarming rate of speed. The ring ropes parted, and the seat of my trunks made contact with the hot stove.

I was literally stung into action. I was smoking at both ends as "Rocky" came in for the kill, only to take the full fury of my fistic onslaught. Sizzling from stern to 8-ounce gloves, I was a terror, an irresistible force. "Rocky" went down for the count. I went out a winner.

Nothing motivates a boxer more than the fire of competition. I found my motivation in a red-hot coal stove. It was either the means to an end, or the end to the means. No matter, it hurt.

That wasn't my last fight, but it was my last encounter with a hot stove at ringside. My competitive fires were banked, becoming cold ashes on a spring night in Gary when my glass jaw was introduced to the left hand of a Polish-American light-heavyweight, once in the bigtime but now reduced to cheap club fights against the likes of me.

The lights went out in the second round, and when they came on again I was a retired boxer, a 17-year-old graduate of the school of hard knocks.

I remember coming to in that ratty locker room in Gary. The first face I saw was that of the slobbering, watery-eyed punchdrunk pug who handed out towels and did odd jobs around the gym, his pay a free flop and loose change.

I was a tough kid in those days, but I bawled like a baby when I looked up and saw that ravaged face staring down at me. I was gazing into a mirror five years into my future. The face of the punchdrunk ex-fighter was my face; the void behind his out-of-focus eyes was my future. And I wanted out; oh, God, how I wanted out.

Common sense threw in the towel for me that long ago night in Gary. I have been grateful ever since. Even so, the pain of memory is a sharp and punishing as the blows I took and gave in the ring.

Courage is climbing through the ropes around the ring. Sanity is in leaving that ring—for good. Whenever I look at my deformed fingers, which knitted badly after being fractured in bouts, I know I made the right decision. Deformed fingers are preferable to a deformed life.

Boxers will understand this. Fat, cigar-chombing slobs who sit at ringside and clamor for more blood and hurt never will. But, then, the pain is never theirs—is it?

HAM WHAT AM: Don't forget the annual ham dinner sponsored by the Long Beach Junior Concert Band. It happens from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday, May 2, at Belmont Plaza. Proceeds support the band's work, pay the kids' way to parades, where they win all those trophies and honors for Long Beach.

Eat dinner with the bandspeople. You'll eat higher on the hog, and they'll feast higher on the musical scale.

"WELL, WHAT HAVE YOU BEEN UP TO?"

Brown makes an odd choice

SACRAMENTO — Every once in a while, Jerry Brown seems to be settling down and doing predictable political things, and newsmen trying desperately to respond sagely when asked about the governor optimistically think they're beginning to figure him out.

No way!

THE GOVERNOR last Wednesday announced the appointment of one Cruz Reynoso to the Third District Court of Appeal in Sacramento. Cruz Reynoso is a brilliant lawyer, a hard worker, an excellent administrator and a compassionate human being, and will probably make a splendid justice.

But perhaps nothing Jerry Brown has done since he became governor is going to get more people mad at him than his appointment of Cruz Reynoso.

He can now add to the list of his critics (a) every farmer in California (although most are already on the list), (b) practically every lawyer in the state, (c) probably every judge in the state, and (d) the spouses, relatives and friends of same.

THE FARMERS have a different reason for being distressed than do the judges and lawyers, but distressed they all are.

In the late 1960s and 1970s, Cruz Reynoso was executive director of California Rural Legal Assistance, a federally funded poverty law program. CRLA gave farmers and state agencies dealing with agriculture and with agricultural workers more problems than Cesar Chavez ever dreamed of giving them.

Jesse Unruh, John Burton and some other Democrats nettled Ronald Reagan some when Reagan was governor. Cruz Reynoso probably came closer than anyone else to giving him an ulcer.

CRLA's instrument of irritation was the court. The CRLA lawyers, under Reynoso's direction, simply went to court asking that existing laws be enforced. The laws dealt with sanitation, health, health care, safety, minimum wages, the hiring of illegal aliens, the hiring of children, with consumers, with voting, with what one writer at the time called "the necessities of life."

Bob Schmidt

View From Our State Bureau

THE CASES rarely involved complex legal or philosophical questions. Here is the law, your honor. The state is not enforcing the law. We ask that the state be ordered to enforce the law, your honor.

Judges had very little choice. The state was so ordered. Time and time again, the state was so ordered.

Farmers had fits, and Ronald Reagan had fits. He thought a governor had authority to oversee CRLA. It turned out he had no such authority. He had Sen. George Murphy amend a poverty law funding bill to let governors have final veto power over such programs, and asked his friend Richard Nixon to support the amendment. Richard Nixon said no.

Reagan was forced to yield. CRLA kept on filing lawsuits. And winning them.

IN 1972, WITH the principle of independence established and with CRLA's management in good hands, Cruz Reynoso became a professor of law at the University of New Mexico.

He has been there ever since, and it is that fact which explains the distress expected to be felt by lawyers and judges.

When Governor Brown appointed Cruz Reynoso of New Mexico to a highly coveted California judicial post, he as much as said that no lawyer now practicing in California, no judge now sitting in California, is as qualified as Cruz Reynoso to be an appellate court justice.

And there is no way that can be so.

It can be argued that Reynoso's appointment has a certain symbolic value. He is the son of farm workers, raised and educated in California, self-made.

BUT THERE HAVE been Chicano lawyers working within the system in California, trying to assure that justice occurs here. It is damning of Jerry Brown to allow the conclusion to be drawn that none can match Cruz Reynoso's qualifications. But he invites that conclusion.

Ronald Reagan invited such criticism when he appointed his executive secretary, William Clark, in rapid succession to the superior court, appellate court and supreme court. But Clark, at least, had illustrated by his continued presence here that California was important to him.

It is good to have Cruz Reynoso back in California. It is good to have an attorney of his great competence on the appellate bench.

BUT IT MUST be wondered why Jerry Brown would cause a controversy when none need have been caused.

About the only thing predictable about Jerry Brown is that he will continue to be unpredictable.

Zarb has good advice

In a speech to the American Power Conference in Chicago, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb warned that there is "a disturbingly great chance" of another oil embargo by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Such an embargo, Zarb said, "would make the last one look like a picnic."

HE CALLED FOR steps to make the nation "embargo-proof" by 1985. The steps: more energy conservation, greater use of abundant U.S. coal resources, accelerated development of nuclear power, and more development of oil and natural gas from domestic sources.

The last point is a key one. Energy conservation can only be carried so far before industrial growth is diminished and prosperity is hurt. Coal causes air pollution. Nuclear power is increasingly hedged about with government restrictions resulting from public fears; although those fears are excessive in many cases, they are a powerful force nevertheless. But few Americans would quarrel with the idea of stepping up exploration and development of our oil and gas resources.

These resources will not be fully utilized, however, if crude oil prices are arbitrarily kept too low. A case in point is Long Beach's Wilmington Field, in which oil production has been severely curtailed because of federal price ceilings. Federal regulations set the price for low-gravity California crude oil 88 cents a barrel lower than for oil of comparable quality produced elsewhere in the United States.

THE DECISION on whether to lift the ceiling on Wilmington Field oil is up to Zarb. If he applies his own general advice on developing U.S. oil resources, he will lift the ceiling.

In February, Zarb told Rep. Mark Hannaford that the request from Long Beach and California officials to lift the ceiling will be given "favorable and speedy consideration."

Governor Brown has advised Zarb that the current price ceiling is costing California $100,000 a day. "Unless prompt relief is granted," the governor said, "further substantial reductions will be made in the production of Wilmington Field crude oil."

THE GOVERNOR and the entire California congressional delegation, as well as Senators Cranston and Tunney, have urged Zarb to end the price freeze.

We hope Zarb heeds their advice, as well as his own warning to the American Power Conference that we must take all reasonable steps to reduce our dependence on foreign nations for petroleum.

Best to keep laughing

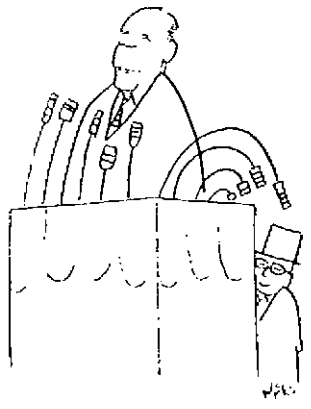

It is reported that some of President Ford's aides are miffed at Ron Nessen for appearing on a program in which comedian Chevy Chase poked fun at the President.

The President may be miffed, too. At least he apparently has not reassured Nessen. And Nessen must be concerned; he cussed out a Chicago Sun-Times reporter who tried to discuss the matter with him.

WE HOPE THE President and Nessen do not lose their cool or their sense of humor. The nation has enjoyed the amiable manner in which Gerald Ford has taken all the jokes about his pratfalls. It would be a pity if the President were suddenly to turn stuffy.

He probably won't, even in the face of funny, phony newscasts by Mr. Chase (who apparently took his name from the Washington, D.C. bedroom community of Chevy Chase, Md.).

"Mr. Ford was on the campaign trail, announcing in Detroit that he has written his own campaign slogan," Chase said one night. "The slogan: 'If he's so dumb, how come he's President?'"

FORD AND THE comedian met March 25 when both spoke at the annual dinner of the Radio and Television Correspondents' Association. After a friendly conversation, Chase ran through one of his Gerald Ford routines. The President provided his own Chevy Chase routine. "Chevy Chase," the President told the comedian, "you're a very, very funny suburb."

Ford's gag writer may not be quite as good as Chevy Chase. Still, we hope the President lends him to Ron Nessen for a day or two. The two of them might work up some barbed but funny answers to reporters who raise ticklish subjects.

Democrats face a dilemma

WASHINGTON — A couple of years ago, it didn't seem possible that the Democrats could blow the presidential election of 1976. They still may not be able to do it — but they're trying.

They are getting into a mess in the struggle between Carter and Humphrey.

James Reston

New York Times News Service

Many of the elders of their party, backed by the leaders, organization and money of Big Labor, are ganging up on Carter. They are trying to be clever at a time when the people of the country are sick of clever presidents, and longing for somebody new and moderate.

THIS IS A very dicey strategy, for the independent voters now outnumber even the registered Democrats, and Carter clearly has appeal across party lines. He has demonstrated the one thing any candidate of either party has to have to win the presidency — an ability to win the commitment of many of the uncommitted voters.

We cannot tell from the primary elections so far how wide or deep Carter's support is. Only about a quarter of the eligible voters have gone to the polls in the state contests, but two things we do know:

First, Carter has won most of the head-on confrontations with the other announced candidates, and second, his supporters are either fiercely loyal to him personally or hostile to the Democratic party candidates and pro-Democratic political and labor leaders who oppose him.

THIS IS THE dilemma that is now dividing the Democratic party. Carter may not have enough support to regain the White House for the Democrats after eight years, but if they do him out of the nomination by party and labor manipulation, his supporters may very well vote for Ford rather than Humphrey and keep the Republicans in the White House.

In fairness to the people and organizations trying to stop Carter, many of them obviously believe that Humphrey would be a better president — more experienced than Carter on both domestic and foreign affairs.

If you could get an honest secret vote of all members of Congress and even all the leading members of the Ford administration, including President Ford, about the Democrat best qualified to be president, if the Republicans didn't win, there is little doubt that Humphrey would win their votes by a large majority.

But there are other considerations. An election is not a judgment on the past but a bet on the future. Half of the people alive in the world today are under 25 years of age. Both at home and abroad, people are looking to Washington for new beginnings that can deal with the coming world.

THIS IS Carter's strength. He is not a man of the past, or of the right like Ford, or of the left like Humphrey. He is at least something new, and yet, paradoxically, something very old-fashioned in political, ethical, and even religious terms, and this seems to be touching something deep and enduring in the mind of many voters.

The guess here is that Carter's faith and character may be the "sleeper" in this election: It is not only that he is somebody new in a country that is disillusioned with the old, but that he believes in something in the American ideal we have lost.

Hubert Humphrey is going to have to deal with this at some point or ignore Carter and risk the resentment of Carter's supporters. He is not doing either now.

Humphrey says he is standing aside and leaving the outcome of the Democratic presidential nomination to his party, but he is not really standing aside. He is showing up in the critical primary states. He has been appearing at the labor rallies in Pennsylvania and elsewhere. He is deeply involved in the stop-Carter movement, and if he succeeds, he will have to deal with the consequences of Carter's resentful backers.

HUMPHREY IS betting on the power of the political and labor union leaders of the Democratic party, and on programs of full employment and federal medical assistance.

Carter is appealing, not primarily to economic but to philosophic remedies. He is saying that we cannot solve our personal problems at home or abroad by talking merely about budgets and the gross national product, but that we have to find unity and peace closer to the intimate places of the hearts and minds of our own people.

We have never had a debate quite like this since Woodrow Wilson ran for the presidency. Carter, another outsider, doesn't speak as eloquently as Wilson, but he is getting at the same thing — at the moral apathy and spiritual bewilderment of the nation.

With one difference. Carter combines his philosophy with the toughest political organization and most devoted team of volunteers seen in national politics in a long time. He is Mayor Daley of Chicago in the binding of a hymn book, and the Democratic party establishment is going to have to accept him or come to terms with him — or face the loss of the election.

Questions for Jimmy Carter

HARRISBURG, Pa. — Anybody who still doesn't understand the nearly mystical appeal of Jimmy Carter to the American people in 1976 should have been at the West Shore Senior Citizens Center in New Cumberland Township near here on Friday. To a packed house of several hundred Pennsylvanians in the center's recreation hall, Carter spoke of three recent national traumas as follows:

Vietnam: "We killed hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese — little babies and children and mothers and fathers. But we never really wanted to fight over there, without quite knowing why. The people were not part of the process."

Watergate: We trusted (Richard Nixon) in 1972. . . . Watergate came about because we were not told the truth. We were not part of what the government became."

CIA activities: "I wouldn't plot murder. You wouldn't plot murder. So why should our government plot murder?"

CARTER'S AUDIENCE was rapt throughout these formulations, except for a few heads nodding sagely. The proverbial pin might have been heard dropping as the candidate told in all these ways that there was nothing wrong with them, that he understood what he called the "hunger in this country to get back those precious things we've lost."

Carter is telling the people what they seem desperately to want to hear — that they are not to blame for what has been happening in the country, that what is really needed is "a government as good as our people."

None of this is meant to support the charge that Carter ducks or straddles the issues, or shifts his positions with the political weather. Carter's policy statements are as specific as anyone's, and more thoughtful than most.

But the Carter campaign is based on the premise that, this year, issues matter less than the American psyche — that the way to win is to persuade the people that "precious things" like truth and brotherhood and idealism and pride in the country can yet be regained. Carter seems to have made the restoration of the people's faith in themselves his primary campaign strategy.

THE RECORD so far suggests how politically astute that judgment was. But there are troublesome questions about it, nonetheless. Is it really true, for example, that "a government as good as the people" would have avoided Vietnam and Watergate? Did Cold War fever and public fear of unrest and dissent have nothing to do with them?

A political campaign may not be the time to call for sacrifice, or even the long view as against immediate interest, but such a time would surely come for a Carter in the White House. It seems reasonable to ask whether he would not then find it harder to overcome the greed and prejudice and passion and indifference of a people he has so assured of their essential righteousness.

Finally, could Jimmy Carter or anyone keep his end of the bargain, if elected, and never lie, never mislead, never betray the people's confidence, while restoring the "precious things" of the American myth? The question reflects Carter's great appeal to so many; but merely to ask it explains the skepticism he evokes in so many others.

Views of police misconduct

I have to disagree with Police Chief Ralph Kortz when he says criminal action would be difficult to document and harder to prove.

The pressure the vice officers must face from their peers is as real as any union or political party could put upon three individuals, but is as wrong and unlawful as the acts themselves.

Chief Kortz stated: "It is one thing to be able to say this is disgraceful conduct that we cannot tolerate in the department and another thing to say this conduct is a crime." He is wrong again. These vice officers should be brought before the City Council or a grand jury, an agency outside the police department, and under oath — along with any officer involved and any witnesses. The truth might be reached, right from wrong will be seen, and justice for all concerned achieved.

I have just read where Officer Dennis Maloney has been recommended for one day off without pay for his misconduct at a party for a fellow officer.

I realize that a police officer must conduct himself above reproach at all times, but police officers are only human. The stress and strain they must face 24 hours a day must never be allowed to come out.

Officer Dennis Maloney is not a personal friend of mine, nor do I know him in his off-duty hours. Officer Maloney stopped and offered his services to me when a police officer was welcome. He stopped, identified himself as a police officer, and by doing this he prevented a minor problem from turning into a serious one.

I ask you to please consider all the good things Officer Maloney has done for the people of Long Beach, and for the ones that were only passing through Long Beach.

I am so sick of all this garbage about the Long Beach Police Department I want to scream!

The only people I've ever heard talk like this are criminals, or would-be criminals if they had the guts.

You asked why they kept it quiet for so long. Well, you have your answer in all this trash you keep writing in the paper.

All right, so all of our police aren't perfect. Does that make the department a little Mafia?

... I am a licensed beautician and thank God I'm not responsible for the whole city of licensed beauticians! Believe me, some of these beauticians should be in jail. And they still have a license.

What do the police do when they get a bad beautician? They look until they find a better one. Why don't you try that?

In all my years of living in Long Beach, I have never found a police officer that was not a gentleman and would go out of his way to help me in any way he could, even though some of my requests were sort of dumb.

Never in all the years we've been taking your newspaper were we so glad to get it as when we turned to the B section and read all those letters from residents of Long Beach expressing just how they feel about our holier-than-thou police.

We, too, have had encounters with some police officers who treated us like we were the criminals instead of the victims.

In 1964 my son and I went out to make his collections for a paper route he had. It was dark when we were coming across a vacant parking lot and were suddenly surrounded by boys on bikes. We couldn't get out of their circle.

They then lit matches at my son and me and my nylon jersey dress caught fire. I finally made a mad dash and got through. I ran to a close-by incinerator and grabbed a couple of sticks and went back and rescued my son. We ran across the lot. The boys followed us for a way, but when we came to a street light close to some houses, they turned and took off in a hurry.

As soon as I got home, I called the police. Two policemen came about two hours later. They took down what I told them, and I showed them my dress and where it had burned.

Both officers had smirky smiles on their faces, like I was lying. When they had finished, they said they'd go look for the boys, but doubted they could find them by that time of night. When they left, one of them said I really had a lively imagination, that that had been some way-out story. I even told them the name of one of the boys and where he lived.

As they got into the car, I noticed the one on the right side dropped something in the gutter. What do you think it was? It was the report he had been taking — all crumpled up.

I called the police department. A policewoman told me she knew all about it, and how in the world did I expect anyone to believe such a story?

I first came to Long Beach April 1951. At that time it was a very nice city. The beach stretched, unhampered, from Belmont Pier to west of Magnolia Pier. It was easily evident how the city got its name.

Today we have the Queen Mary, the Grand Prix and hardly any beach. Add on the recent brawl involving drunken off-duty police officers, and I feel it is time the town were renamed. How about Downhill, California?

What a sad state of affairs when vice officers are afraid to call for help in controlling drunken off-duty police officers? It reminds me of the parents on my street who are afraid to discipline their teenagers for fear of reprisal.

Your editorial "Police need discipline" was a good one because it told the basic fact that Chief Kortz's mild penalties are a part of the problem. All 13 should be fired. How can we respect a bunch of hooligans that do not set a proper example for our youth?

Perhaps instead of the citizens of Long Beach getting so upset by what they've read in the newspapers and heard on TV about the recent "episode" of some of our police officers, it might be a good idea if we have all the facts first.

So far, we've only heard one side of the story. Where did the information come from that was printed in the paper? Have these police officers been interviewed by the newspapers?

Perhaps because I'm a businesswoman in Long Beach and have the occasion to need some of these officers' assistance from time to time and know that they do a good job, I feel so far they've been treated unjustly.

How about hearing both sides of the story? If a trial is the only way, then let's do the right thing. Don't be so quick to judge until you're heard both sides.

Invitation to panic

April 21 is a date that should be remembered. On this date, our local responsible leading newspapers could find nothing spectacular to put on their front pages to help sell them, so they resorted to something akin to witch hunting or fortune telling and predicted in their headlines a "major earthquake within year."

Now that's just what the residents of this area need, on top of all their other problems.

Is this what you call responsible reporting and good journalism?

Isn't it bad enough that we have manufacturers cutting back on production, and massive lay-offs, without our press trying to discourage potential new employers from settling in our area?

Pending disaster can be dealt with, but only if everyone is prepared in advance and panic is not allowed to run rampant.

Wrong publicity

I have lived in the Long Beach area for 16 years and am deeply concerned in the events taking place in the city. I would like to comment on the first annual Queen Mary great egg drop.

I realize the Queen Mary needs publicity to increase support and revenue. I am well aware of the problems concerning the ship and the city of Long Beach. But I feel the great egg drop was a terrible waste.

A waste since many people in this country do not have enough to eat. Why should we throw eggs off the Queen Mary? This is poor publicity, and I hope this will be the only annual great egg drop.

Feminist sermon

Sunrise Easter services have always been a real thrill for our family until this year when we made the mistake of going to services at Forest Lawn, Cypress, and listened to the Rev. Phyllis Wayman, a campus minister at Long Beach State University. She gave us a lecture on women's lib with an excerpt about Cesar Chavez and never once mentioned Christ.

About 50 people were wise enough to get up and leave.

At the end of her dissertation, a man down front rose and said, "Christ is risen," to which we all echoed "Amen." The only reference to the fact. If this is the type of religious counseling we can expect our students to get at Long Beach State, small wonder they turn to rioting and fanaticism!

Feminist propaganda is purely antiscriptural and deserves no place in an Easter Sunrise service.

The music was the only worthwhile part of the service, and all of it was exceptional.

Shorten TV news

The present reporting of news is perhaps satisfactory to most TV viewers; however, the length of time taken does not seem to be justified.

The late Walter Winchell could give out all the news in 10 or 15 minutes. Some of these present-day characters take the rest of the hour in goofing off, cracking jokes and so on. Of course, they may not be entirely to blame. The station must come in for its pound of flesh. It might have some dog food to sell, or a flea collar or two.

What are they doing to save energy? Give us 15 minutes of news. Then we could turn our sets off, saving much-needed energy, and they could have the rest of the hour for themselves. Then everyone should be happy.

Redesigning chickens

Russell Baker

New York Times News Service

God having rested on the seventh day, man gazed upon His creation and decided it needed improvement. For one thing, all the chickens had been built with feathers on the outside. The human race lived with this error in chicken design for a long time. There were, after all, so many other improvements that had to be made. Recently, however, genetic engineers at the Universities of Connecticut and Maryland have finally rebuilt the chicken right. Which is to say, without any feathers at all.

This new improved chicken is nakeder than a jaybird. By breeding her without feathers, scientists believed, they could raise her economic efficiency. It seems that ordinary chickens spend a quarter of their protein intake on developing plumage, and since there is no demand at all for Kentucky fried feathers this is a waste of investment.

THERE ARE still bugs in the new design, of course. Chickens that have to go through life naked are prone to stomach ulcers, chills and nervous seizures. Some spend so much energy scurrying around to keep warm that they eat more than feathered chickens. Others, according to Dr. Ralph Somes of the University of Connecticut, "get so miserable that they stop eating and simply waste away."

Nevertheless, there are signs that the unfeathered chicken is the fowl of the future. Early models weigh 6 per cent more than the original feathered model and, because they develop less fat to shrink during cooking, leave 16 per cent more meat in the pan.

I have spent some time trying to imagine what it must feel like to be a chicken doomed to go through life without any feathers on and believe I can understand why many of them develop bad nerves and stomach ulcers, but my ability to sympathize with chickens is slight. I am far more interested in the human implications of such genetic redesigning.

IF WE CAN say without blasphemy that God botched the chicken design, and blithely rebuild His work to get rid of the wasteful feathers, may we not also concede that His basic human design also contains absurdities which might better be engineered out of future models?

Do teeth, for example, make any sense at all? Imagine for a moment that you are designing the basic human being and that an assistant comes to you and says, "I think I've licked the eating problem." And then he dumps on your desk several dozen small white objects of varying sizes, and you say, "What's this junk?" and he says, "Teeth."

And you say, "Is this a gag?" And he says, "Listen, all you do is, you put half of these teeth into the upper jaw and half of them into the lower jaw, and then when the jaws move open and shut the teeth will bite and grind against each other until the food is ready for the stomach."

And you say, "What keeps them from falling out?" And he says, "Twice a day and after every meal, the human being will scrub them with a hand brush and soap, and twice a year he will have them all X-rayed and scraped and drilled and tightened up while writhing in agony in a chair."

I DON'T know what you say then. I think you fire him, or at least take him off the human-being project, possibly by demoting him to chicken design. Why this wasn't done in the beginning I don't know, except that it was a crash project — all done in one day — and a lot of incompetents probably weren't weeded out.

Like the chicken's feathers, human teeth were an error of commission, and it seems very likely that they led to the most singular error of omission in the human structure. I refer to the absence of an eye in the back of the head. Surely this necessary appurtenance must have been planned for in the original blueprint, since at that time there was no way of foreseeing the invention of the rearview mirror.

What happened? My guess is there was one of those confusions in the shop such as account for so much botched auto repair. Once it was decided to go ahead with the teeth, there would have been a terrible job trying to get all the teeth placed correctly in the two jaws. This would have ended with the head lying backside down on a workbench and a great deal of laboring and grunting over the impossible task of getting the wisdom teeth properly occluded, eliminating overbite between the incisors, and so forth. At the finish of this job, with the head lying faceup, even an assiduous designer might easily have failed to notice that nobody had remembered to install the eye in the back of the head.

WHETHER GENETICISTS can amend this oversight is doubtful, but the mistake in the eating mechanism is easily changed. Breeding toothless humans should be as easy as breeding featherless chickens. And once we are rid of teeth, it will be a simple business to equip every person with an electric food chewer, which when placed on tables will chew food to a scientifically calculated consistency perfect for swallowing and transmit measured portions to the diner's mouth.

Will there be philosophical objections to this refinement on divine work? Very likely, for man in his present state is sometimes said to have been made in the image of God. As Mark Twain noted, however, the only authority we have for this information is man, that redesigner of chickens.

Microwaves renewed

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has resumed full-scale microwave bombardment of the U.S. embassy in Moscow at a level unsafe for American personnel — an unannounced move spelling failure for Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's efforts to smooth over an exceedingly ugly dispute through "quiet diplomacy."

The Ford administration early this year secretly removed some electronics intelligence equipment from the embassy roof in return for reduced Soviet microwave bombardment. It worked — for a while. The bombardment, obviously a countermeasure against U.S. electronic spying, was reduced in duration and intensity. But within the last month, the Russians returned to around-the-clock, full-force microwave bombardment.

THIS PROBABLY creates electromagnetic radiation at the embassy higher than maximum safety levels, causing Dr. Kissinger's critics within the administration to say I told you so. These officials had felt removing spy equipment was a blunder from any standpoint. If the U.S. were really crippling its intelligence capability, this would be appeasement. If the U.S. were only pretending, the Russians would not be fooled for long.

In fact, the latter may have happened. Officials here believe the Soviets resumed microwave countermeasures because they concluded the equipment removed from the roof was of no great importance.

Accordingly, hard-liners in the administration feel now is the time for what should have been done originally: demand that the Kremlin follow civilized behavior by shutting off the microwave machine.

With President Ford and his inner circle immobilized for non-campaign activity by Ronald Reagan's challenge, nothing is being done about the Moscow situation. Ironically, if Mr. Ford took a hard line, he might score an effective counterthrust against Reagan's Panama attack.

FOR SEVERAL minutes after President Ford telephoned her at 2:30 on Sunday afternoon, March 28, Mrs. Jenkins Healy, a Reagan-leaning Republican just elected GOP county chairman in Natchez, Miss., was sure she was talking to an impostor.

But after 20 minutes on the phone, Gail Healy was convinced it was, indeed, none other than Gerald R. Ford. The conversation took place just two weeks before the Mississippi Republican convention would select their delegation to the presidential convention. The President knew Mrs. Healy would be a member of the delegation. That was the strongest sign yet of Mr. Ford now stroking even low-level Republicans to advance his cause against Ronald Reagan.

The President congratulated Mrs. Healy for her election the previous day as Adams County chairman. When she told him she had not publicly declared her preference between him and Reagan, Mr. Ford asked how the trees were "blowing in the wind." Toward Reagan, she replied. Mr. Ford asked: "Are you in that tree yourself?" Mrs. Healy ducked, saying she would definitely support the party's nominee, whoever he is.

For that answer, a laughing Mr. Ford replied, Mrs. Healy deserved appointment to the diplomatic corps. In fact, however, she is a Reaganite of long standing.

Two weeks later, the Mississippi state convention justified the President's concern. It not only gave Reagan a 2-to-1 margin over Mr. Ford among the 30 convention delegates, but also voted the unit rule — assuring that if Reagan is still a candidate at Kansas City, he will get all 30 first-ballot votes.

REAGAN AND Republican hard-liners are not Mr. Ford's only problem. Not only does the excessive use of Q-and-A sessions make it difficult for him to establish a theme, but many answers are surprisingly ill-prepared. A key backer in Evansville, for example, privately expressed dismay at Mr. Ford's lapsing into bureaucratic jargon in response to a question on housing needs.

Even an overwhelmingly friendly Evansville audience tittered when Mr. Ford at one point referred to policy established by "President Johnson and (pause) — his successor." One smartly dressed matron turned to her husband and said: "Now, I can't imagine who he's talking about."

If Jerry Ford's 20-month tenure as President has not transformed him into a finished platform performer, neither has it destroyed the impression given of a nice, plain, decent Midwesterner. That image, plus the still formidable Indiana regular Republican organization, ought to dispatch Reagan here.

It may not be nearly adequate nationally against Jimmy Carter. But although this frightens the highest and lowest levels of the Ford campaign organization, strategic planning likely will remain immobilized while Ronald Reagan is still around.

Busy week for Lakewood

Parade kicks off Pan Am fest

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

The Saludos Amigos Parade, starting at 1:30 p.m. today, kicks off the week-long Lakewood Pan American Festival.

The parade, which starts at Palo Verde Avenue and Del Amo Boulevard, will move west along Del Amo, then north on Clark Avenue to the Lakewood Shopping Center. Some 20 bands, 16 floats and about 4,000 people will participate.

Rep. Mark Hannaford, D-Long Beach and a former mayor of Lakewood, will be grand marshal, and Maj. Gen. Robert MacKinnon, deputy commander of the U.S. Sixth Army, will be the reviewing officer for military units participating.

This year's parade and festival will have a Bicentennial theme because the honored country for the 30th annual Pan American celebration is the United States.

Other events in the Pan Am week celebration include a barbecue dinner served by the Optimist Club at Mayfair Park from 3 p.m. until 7 p.m. today.

On Tuesday, the Chamber of Commerce-sponsored La Unidad Pan Americana Luncheon will be held at Bullock's Lakewood at 11:30 a.m. This will be followed at 2:30 p.m. by a parade of flags ceremony in the green belt at the Lakewood Shopping Center.

Local high schools will participate in the ceremony, in which the flags of the 21 Latin American republics and historical flags of the U.S. will be presented. Counsels from the Latin American countries will be guests at the luncheon and the flag ceremony.

Thursday, the four-day La Fiesta de Amistad carnival will begin at Mayfair Park, with local clubs and organizations operating games booths.

Saturday's activites include a pancake breakfast served by the Kiwanis Club at the park from 8 a.m. until 11 p.m. Entertainment Saturday will include a show by the Maria Quiroz Folklorico group at 1 p.m. and a demonstration of Civil War skirmishes by members of the Civil War Associates at 2 p.m.

Saturday night, the Lions Club will host the Counselor Ball at Rochelles.

Hours for the fiesta at Mayfair Park are Thursday, from 4 p.m. until 10 p.m.; Friday, from 4 p.m. until 11 p.m.; Saturday, from 10 a.m. until 11 p.m. and next Sunday from noon until 9 p.m. The fiesta will include a show of Latin American arts and crafts.

Kiddie love

Mary Ann Hadley, 9, of Costa Mesa, gives a kiss to one and a hug to the other of her twin kids Brandy and Burgundy. Mary Ann will show the pair at the 4-H Youth Fair to be held at the Orange County Fairgrounds May 1 and 2. She is a member of the Irvine Star Ranchers 4-H Club, and her twins are a part of her project which includes rabbits and poultry. There is no admission charge for the fair.

Orange Co. speeds building

As the weather moderates and the end of its fiscal year approaches, Orange County is stepping up its program of capital improvements and will pump millions into the building industry.

Contractor H. W. Sant of Anaheim will build a branch library at Westminster, at a cost of $619,495. His bid was lowest of 12 submitted to the county supervisors for the job, which the county estimated might cost only slightly more. High bid was for $689,000.

SEVENTEEN bidders sought to win the job of widening the 17th Street bridge over the Santa Ana River, and Brutoco Construction Co. of Covina won with a bid of $821,293. The highest bid was for $1,052,799. The engineering estimate was for $1,180,226.

The county will take bids May 10 for a $280,000 job on the Talbert flood control channel in Huntington Beach.

It asked for bids May 17 for an estimated $377,000 worth of improvements to El Toro Community Park.

Widening of the Ball Road bridge over the Santa Ana River, linking Anaheim and Orange, may cost $810,000. The county asked for bids to be in May 10.

BIDS WERE asked for May 17 for three flood control projects. They include work on Fullerton Creek channel and Kimberly storm channel, at probable cost of $500,000 for the project in both Anaheim and Fullerton; and an estimated $1.2 million worth of work on the Anaheim-Barber City flood channel, between Sioux Road and Edwards Street, Westminster.

Bids for this job also were to be in by May 17.

Work on Laguna Niguel Regional Park may cost $180,000; bids were asked for May 24. The project involves constructing a concessions building, and doing some site work.

Burglars steal bank from home

Burglars who pried open the front door to enter the home of Denise Young, 906 Euclid Ave., took a large bank containing $360 in coins and currency, Long Beach police reported Saturday.

First Contestant

Stephani Scott, 24, interior design student at Long Beach State University, signs up to enter the Miss Welcome to Long Beach contest May 23 as Ray Terpstra, center, entries chairman, and Rick Taver, pageant coordinator, back up her decision. Contest deadline is May 1 for residents between 18-27, who must be single and ready to function as "ambassador of friendship and goodwill."

Ex-Gov. Brown to debate nuclear initiative

Former Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, who heads the statewide campaign against Prop. 15, the Nuclear Initiative, will debate the issue May 13 at 7 p.m. in UC Irvine's science lecture hall.

Opponents and advocates of the issue will participate in a program that will close the university's four-day forum on energy.

Brown and Dr. Lester Lees of the Environmental Quality Control Laboratory at California Institute of Technology, Pasadena, will oppose the Prop. 15 control.

Advocates will be Dr. John Gofman, UC Berkeley physics professor emeritus and head of the Committee for Nuclear Responsibility, and David Brower, president of the Friends of the Earth and past head of the Sierra Club.

"The words 'welfare reform' were, in my mind, turned into a dirty phrase by the oppressive Reagan administration." He explained that most persons, particularly politicians, connect the term to efforts aimed at eliminating welfare cheaters and reducing welfare rolls.

Instead, he added, people should think of "welfare reform" as a means of making the system run more smoothly and serving people in need through programs that allow poverty-level mothers to stay home with their children and families to stay together.

"We will make an effort to keep people who don't belong there off the welfare rolls," he added. "But at the same time, we shouldn't make it too tough for the really needy to get aid."

Munoz said statistics show that only 2 per cent of those on welfare are so-called "cheaters."

"When we take such a negative attitude toward welfare," he added, "we're making it hard on the 98 per cent who are truly in need. People are always asking, 'why don't those people on welfare go out and get jobs?' Well, of those 98 per cent who deserve aid, about 88 per cent are too young, too old or too disabled to work. Why should we make them feel guilty for receiving help?"

Freddie Pinson, community relations representative for the Los Angeles County Department of Public Social Services, agreed but added that the county was trying to make it easier for people to get help.

"One of the main problems—and it's been a problem for many years—is the attitude of workers that serve the recipient population," she said.

Welfare recipients have often complained that eligibility and social workers pay too little attention to their clients, do not explain things clearly and make them feel uneasy about applying for welfare.

Mrs. Pinson said a cultural awareness training program, designed to acquaint workers "with the ethnic and cultural differences of various peoples so they may deal with problems more sensitively" is to begin next month.

Munoz and Assemblyman Fred Chel, D-Long Beach, said state programs aimed at helping people in need get aid more easily also were in the works. They include an overhaul of welfare forms and regulations, nutrition programs, tax-relief bills and various job programs.

Munoz said his office also was working with Congress to reform food stamp regulations. "If you deserve $10 worth of food stamps, you should get $10 worth of food stamps," he said.

"But under present regulations, you have put up $37 to get $47 worth of food stamps; you have to put up $100 to get $166 worth of food stamps. Where are poor people supposed to get that kind of money?"

During a discussion session following the panelists' presentations, several members of the audience said they agreed with the message, urging their fellow community workers to "go out and challenge the system."

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Monday

Your birthday today: This year you learn to follow your intuition and convert latent talents and hidden resources into ready cash. You won't be easily understood by most people; relationships survive and improve mainly by deliberate service you offer plus a determined effort to communicate via symbols rather than just words. Today's natives have a magnetic quality and a lasting interest in the outdoors.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Today's conditions put something out of commission. Take it easy and give your equipment a chance to function. Exaggeration provokes competition.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Use delays on the job constructively, clear up confusion and matters that are left from last week or earlier. There's an odd story at home.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Allow for extrasensitive moods. Cut back expansive moves and straighten out recently negotiated changes. Friends have problems, few of which are within your reach to help.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Putting your work and business situations into optimum order is your theoretical goal. Pursue the obvious and don't wait for encouragement. Rely on intuition.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): Get in step with your official duties and don't go along with free-swinging adventures. Casual travelers and visitors don't have to work, but keep in mind that you still do.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Resistance arises from outside your range of action. But you are not to blame for the problems; it's simply the attitude of people in general. Sit this one out.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Getting along with people is essential now. Use familiar tactics that worked before. Select tasks requiring the least cooperation for this day of mixed conditions.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Pay attention: watch for surprises. Don't shirk responsibilities. Things that you don't finish during the day get in the way of your plans this evening. Don't bicker.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Much is to be said for keeping quiet. Let others boast and strut while you attend to essential details. Ignore the aloofness of loved ones.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): More demands are made on your time and energy. Get busy with what you can organize quickly and call in available help. Work on upgrading your own property.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Let well enough alone; you carry the full burden of any changes you dream up. You're under close observation. Pursue ordinary activity.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Hold onto your ready cash. Stay within budget for both money and materials used in your work. Exert yourself a bit beyond usual.

Oakland resident seized in slaying

OAKLAND (AP) — A 34-year-old man was arrested Saturday in connection with the slaying of a man found near the Russian River. Officers said Charles Seguin was taken into custody at his home.

The victim's name was withheld pending notification of kin, but investigators said they believe he was slain Wednesday in Oakland during an argument.

School Board agenda

Here is the agenda for Monday's meeting of the Board of Education of the Long Beach Unified School District and Community College District. The meeting will be held at the board building, 701 Locust Ave.

Executive session (closed to public), Room 364, 2 p.m.

1. Personnel matters.
2. Student actions.

Adjourned meeting (open to public), board room, 3:45 p.m.

1. Presentation of a grant for the Economic Literacy/Career Awareness Program.
2. VEA application, Parts A and B.

Unified School District meeting (open to public), 4 p.m., board room.

1. Economic literacy grant.
2. VEA application.
3. Resolution for the formation of regional adult and vocational education councils under Assembly Bill 1821.
4. Readmission of students.
5. Approval of state textbooks in mathematics.

Community College District meeting (open to public), 4:20 p.m., board room.

1. Panel: "Teaching Communications Skills."
2. Personnel actions.
3. Business-services actions.
4. Grant application for Bilingual Teacher Corps Program.
5. Resolution for the formation of regional adult and vocational education councils.

EDUCATOR FINDS FORTUNE IN WORMS!

A Long Beach professor who turned his $40,000 investment into over $200,000 in the lucrative worm market in just 8 months now wants to share his good fortune with others.

Samuel Chatam of S & R Worm Garden, says. "This is a business which does not require large amount of money to get started. It demands little time and offers phenomenal financial returns on a reasonably small investment. There is a ready market. One can sell nationally, while maintaining a low overhead. In fact, a grower can start in his garage, backyard, or on a farm. I have a friend who grows earthworms inside her apartment, in dresser drawers."

"Study this growth rate," Chatam said. "A 3x8 bin of worms should net between $15 and $75 monthly. If a person starts with one bin and splits it every 75 days, by the end of the year he will have 32 bins of worms worth from $250 to $325 per bin. I don't know of another business that offers this kind of return on your money, with such little overhead."

A man of abundant energy, Chatam has held two teaching positions in the past eight years. However, he was so impressed with the profit potential of these wiggly creatures that he gave up his teaching post at UCLA to begin this company.

Within nine months, S & R Worm Garden has grown to become one of the largest earthworm farms on the west Coast. It plans to sell over 100 million worms in 1976.

The billion dollar market is wide open and growing at a rate of about 25 percent a year. The market is so lucrative that many companies are selling to only one segment of the market. However, S & R Worm Garden plans to eventually develop the capacity to sell to several different segments.

When Chatam was asked how this could be done, he replied, "that is a tremendous job, which cannot be done by my labor force alone. So I intend to multiply my efforts through others. I'm going to conduct FREE grower success classes. These classes will equip others to do the same thing I'm doing—grow and harvest worms—with the hope they will sell back to me. Anyone from the age of 8 years to 80 can work this business."

Starting at 10 a.m. Saturday, May 1, Chatam says he will begin a series of three, 2-hr. FREE classes at the Embassy Auditorium, 847 S. Grand in Los Angeles and another series of classes at 7 p.m., Sunday, May 2 at the Edgewater Hyatt House, 6400 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. in Long Beach. These classes are for people interested in getting into the worm business. The first two classes are open to the general public. Each class will cover a different aspect of worm farming. Anyone who is interested in earning an additional income, or in starting his own business, should attend the first class session.

Some journalists have dubbed them the Elusive Eleven. Others have unprintable names for them. They share a common bond: Out of hatred, fear, contempt or simply lack of interest, they do not talk to the press.

Almost nothing will persuade them to sit still for an interview—not the offer of a cover photo or the temptation, offered by some publications, of reading and sometimes even editing articles about themselves before they are published. And since they are all millionaires, highly successful in their profession, they can smugly treat writers with disdain without fear of the consequences.

It's not only newspapermen who register annoyance over the Elusive Eleven's aloof attitude. Studios and independent movie-makers express irritation, too. When "The Towering Inferno" opened in New York, film bosses begged Steve McQueen to help publicize the picture. He never bothered to show up.

BARBRA STREISAND

His turnabout from "great guy" to "belligerent hermit" can be traced to his romance and subsequent marriage to Ali MacGraw. Some gossip columnists suggested that McQueen "stole" the actress from film chief Bob Evans. Others sympathized with McQueen's bereft wife, Neile Adams. The actor found himself painted as a libidinous S.O.B.

That did it. McQueen stuck a "Keep Off" sign on himself, and it has been "No Trespassing" ever since unless some intrepid reporter wants to risk getting his nose broken.

Two other show-business greats in the McQueen mold are Frank Sinatra and Barbra Streisand. Both also enjoyed pleasant relations with the press for a time until an unbridgeable chasm developed.

In Sinatra's case, the bitterness erupted after his marriage to Ava Gardner disintegrated. Writers dissected the breakup from every angle. The stories rankled the emotionally upset singer, and yet he didn't become truly venomous until after his 1953 Academy Award-winning role in "From Here to Eternity." With newfound fame, money and power, he mounted a counteroffensive against certain writers. Any criticism of him was met by a vicious personal attack. Even today, Sinatra will often go out of his way to zing an insult at a writer while performing on stage.

As the only woman on the Elusive Eleven list, Streisand richly merits her position. Her excuse for not being cooperative is that she has been the object of cheap shots. One of her public-relations men says simply: "Barbra's been deeply hurt."

Without question, the three most difficult celebrities in the world to interview are Marlon Brando, Bob Dylan and Elvis Presley. Unlike most artists, Brando never sought publicity even in his anonymous days. He has been always convinced that his talent would be sufficient to win recognition, and he has been right.

Brando's unorthodox philosophy runs counter to every claim made by advertising men. A product, they will tell you, needs favorable and frequent exposure to public view to be continuously successful. But Brando has shunned public attention, interviews, parties—everything that would enhance his image with moviegoers. He has made it strictly on his own, and is a phenomenon in that respect.

In many respects, Bob Dylan is similar to Brando. He disregards the press entirely while getting his message across with his talent. Dylan is even more slippery than Brando. As the logical successor to the Invisible Man, his whereabouts remain a mystery for months on end.

Elvis Presley is another of those ephemeral celebrities. If newspapermen didn't actually see him perform, they wouldn't believe he existed. Ever since his first pelvic wiggle, he has treated writers as though they were nothing but hound dogs. His statements all come down second-hand through his shrewd manager, Col. Tom Parker.

When Presley does deign to permit writers in his royal presence, he conducts a mass press conference at which reporters are unable to follow up on their queries. In addition, nobody can obtain an exclusive story, the goal of every writer.

WOODY ALLEN

In these circumstances it's not unusual for wild myths and rumors to swirl about Brando, Dylan and Presley. Since it's impossible to check the facts out with the stars themselves, reports about them often take hold for a considerable time before they are finally discovered to be false.

Al Pacino, Dustin Hoffman and Woody Allen fall into the "shy" category. They honestly believe it's a waste of valuable time talking about themselves, and feel no one could really be interested in their dull lives. And though they protect their privacy against all intruders, the trio are the most approachable among the Elusive Eleven. They're tolerant toward the press instead of downright hostile, and they occasionally relent on their "no interviews" policy.

If a writer is fortunate enough to catch Hoffman during one of his mellow periods, it can be extremely rewarding. He holds nothing back while baring his soul. When I interviewed him eight years ago, he openly wept when recalling his working days in a mental institution.

Pacino also conceals nothing during an interview. He throws himself into it in much the same way he does a dramatic role. He's never evasive, provides anecdotes dating back to his childhood and is a pure delight for an inquisitive reporter. But again, the problem is persuading him to consent to an interview. These days, he's more reclusive than ever.

No one can predict Woody Allen's moods, but he has never underestimated the value of press coverage, especially when he has investment in his own picture, and therefore can occasionally be persuaded to chat with a reporter. But, unlike either Pacino or Hoffman, he dislikes discussing his personal life. Just nailing him down is a coup, though, and many writers don't quibble over his choice of subject matter.

In television, now that James Arness has stepped down as "the Greta Garbo of Dodge City," Johnny Carson stands alone for more reasons than one. He's the least accessible TV personality and is one of the worst interviewees in the world. Carson is suspicious, cynical and uncommunicative toward the press.

Carson leaves you frustrated and angry. What makes him unique is that almost everyone else on the TV scene is so cooperative. People like Carol Burnett, Carroll O'Connor, Telly Savalas, Mary Tyler Moore, Robert Blake, David Janssen and William Conrad are just a few of the performers that make a writer's work joyful.

As for Robert Redford, he's typical of several movie stars. When first on the film scene, he was eager to appear in papers and magazines to get his name known. As Redford's popularity built, his reticence grew.

BOB DYLAN

Now that he is No. 1 in the box-office charts, Redford obviously feels he no longer needs articles written about him. In the golden days of Hollywood (circa 1935-1950), studio chiefs exerted firm control over film stars, and every contract specified that the performer must agree to be interviewed in connection with a particular movie. This applied to James Stewart, Bette Davis, Katharine Hepburn and all the other luminaries of the period. Not even Clark Gable (the acknowledged "king") balked when ordered to sit down with a writer. In fact, Gable accepted the studio suggestion that he take the Atlanta mayor's daughter to the premiere of "Gone With The Wind" for publicity purposes.

When the major studios lost their influence with the advent of television, stars negotiated their own contracts and accepted interviews only when it suited their purpose. And that attitude still prevails.

Baboons make monkeys of men

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (AP) — For the baboons it was more fun than a barrel of zoo keepers. For the zoo keepers it was an exercise in exasperation.

The 50 baboons began making monkeys out of their bosses on April 14 when they escaped over a 12-foot fence at Kings Island amusement park.

Officials were stunned. They said the baboons are not supposed to be that smart.

After the little escapees outsmarted every elaborate attempt to recapture them, from an electrified fence to tranquilized fruit, handlers began corralling them Thursday night with an old-fashioned wooden trap.

"We couldn't have done this a week ago because they were still timid of us," said spokesman Ed Daniels. "Once they began accepting food from us they felt easier about coming back into their compound."

Daniels said the box trap was baited with fruit and snapped shut by handlers once a group got inside.

"Fortunately, they came in waves — like patrols — to get the food, so we were able to get a number at a time. They didn't signal the others with a distress call. They knew they were beaten," Daniels said.

However, some of the baboons wanted nothing to do with the bait.

"They are more cautious," said Daniels, adding that if the trap doesn't get them, the handlers planned to go after them individually.

The baboons, except for one who was reported following the Little Miami River north out of the area, romped around a tree-studded knoll on park property since they escaped.

Sarah Miles' Hair: she won't dye for her art

NEW YORK — Sarah Miles is a most unactressy actress. She plays herself down.

"This is my real hair," she says. "God must have given me fluffy hair for a reason. I used to spend a lot of time getting ready to go out, but life's too short. Now I take 10 minutes. I don't wear any makeup."

But wasn't she a centerfold girl?

"What have I got that deserves to be centerfold? ME?" With her hands she indicated a certain flatness.

Actually, however, the man-eating Miss Miles has been in one of the men's magazines in love scenes from "The Sailor Who Fell from Grace With the Sea," with Kris Kristofferson. And people are asking, "That the Sarah Miles who was in the papers when a young man committed suicide at Gila Bend, Ariz., over her a couple of years ago? Burt Reynolds was making a movie with her at the time and helped her through it."

"Did the suicide of David Whiting affect your life?"

"Who knows what might have happened if he hadn't done what he did?" She brushed it aside with a wave of her hands. She and Robert Bolt, the English producer and writer, were recently divorced, and she is living with their son, Thomas, 8, in Los Angeles — without any man for the man-eater.

In her new film, Miss Miles and Kristofferson take up the philosophy of Japanese author Yukio Mishima, who committed hara-kiri at 39 in his belief that people should remove themselves when no longer productive.

"I don't think suicide is necessarily a coward's act," said Sarah, who has been associated with other suicides besides Whiting's.

"Sometimes it's courageous. Sometimes the people are bored. They want to see what happens next out there. They have finished one story, and they want to see the next story begin.

"They're sick and tired of this story, obviously."

Mishima felt productive people should die at their peak.

"And that's what the movie's about. There are those who think heroes should remain heroes. He (Kristofferson), the sailor, comes into the harbor on the biggest boat ever seen. He falls in love. The question is: Should he return to the sea or settle down and help a lady in an antique shop?"

Miss Miles wrote 18 songs for a concert about her Skye terrier, Gladys. "She's a very strange, extraordinary animal," Miss Miles said. "In the concert I will sing a song while walking on my hands like Gladys."

Looking me straight in the eye, Miss Miles told me she probably wouldn't be in films except for a stubborn streak. She refused 15 years ago to dye her hair for a picture.

"They wanted a blonde for the part in the picture, 'Term of Trial.' I was the only brunette auditioning. I stormed out, saying, 'You obviously want a blonde. My time is being wasted.' They called me back again and again and finally said, 'Will you dye your hair blonde?' I said I wouldn't dye it for either Laurence Olivier or Peter Glenville, the director. But I got the part.

"You dyed it after all?"

"No, I wore a wig."

TODAY'S BEST laugh: While the price of everything else has skyrocketed (says Franklin P. Jones in Quote), a cab driver will still give you a lot of lip for a dime tip.

WISH I'D said that: A girl described her boy friend's apartment: "It's so small that when he moves an ashtray he calls it 'rearranging.'"

REMEMBERED quote: "Every speaker should observe two rules: Never drink on an empty stomach, and never speak on an empty head."

EARL'S PEARLS: Strange how the candidates all say they can run the nation's economy — while they're running out of money for their campaigns.

Phyllis Diller complains she had no adolescence: "I went right from baby fat to middle-age spread." That's earl, brother.

Music review

Old, new from Stern, Mercer

By DAVID LEVINSON

An old warhorse and what might very well become a new warhorse were the features of violinist Isaac Stern's appearance with the Los Angeles Philharmonic Thursday.

The old favorite was Brahms's violin concerto. The new favorite — with me, anyway — was a concerto written for Stern by George Rochberg and given its first performance by Stern last year.

The Brahms received an expectably eloquent performance: warm, not quite as silken as usual from Stern, but unfailingly rich in tone and understanding. Zubin Mehta and his band were sensitive partners.

That the Rochberg should have been the easily accessible, melodically appealing work it is was surprising. It was more surprising that Mehta and company handled their parts as comfortably as if they were playing Mahler.

Here and there they might have been, for this romantic piece owes much to the music of Mahler and post-Mahler Vienna. It is not in the ordinary sense eclectic, however; it does not borrow the style of Mahler or the early Schoenberg, although it would not have existed if those composers had not lived.

Rochberg is a highly intellectual composer — as most serious composers are these days — and he has written brilliantly on the problems composers face. He has also written music of considerable complexity. But this concerto gives no hint of intellectualism except in the traditional ways composers have been intellectual. It is not an application to composition of theories about what music should be. It is an application to music of inspiration and of standard techiques of construction. The result is a coherent, confident expression of a mature and brilliant composer.

Even at first hearing, its coherence and strength are obvious. Ten years from now, if it gets the repeated hearings it deserves, it will seem as simple as the Brahms.

The concert opened with a powerful performance of Dvorak's "Carnival" overture.

A TRIBUTE to Johnny Mercer was the feature of UCLA's fourth "Cavalcade of American Popular Music" at Schoenberg Hall on Friday evening.

Students and faculty members used a minimum of props: a desk for "P.S. I Love You," a moon in a deep-blue sky for any number of other songs, slides of sheet-music covers for all. They used a maximum of good-humored mugging. Above all, they used some striking vocal and dramatic talents to present an effective run-through of what must be almost the entire corpus of songs for which Mercer wrote lyrics.

I had always thought of him as a composer, and he did write some pretty good tunes: "Dream," "G. I. Jive" and "Strip Polka." But his best efforts were to the music of Harold Arlen, Harry Warren, Hoagy Carmichael, Richard Whiting and others.

David Morton of the UCLA faculty was a genial master of ceremonies and a bouncily bright pianist in the small combo that accompanied the two dozen singers and dancers.

At Long Beach State earlier in the week, old songs had seemed to puzzle the students in the chamber choir. At UCLA, apparently more people are looking backward. The UCLA performances were idiomatic without being in the least stiff or contrived.

Carson's spring concert set today

The Carson Symphony Orchestra will present its spring concert today at 2:30 p.m. in the Datsun-Nissan Building, 18501 S. Figueroa St., under the direction of Pete Quesada.

Works on the program for the free concert include Rossini's Overture to Sr. Bruschino; Haydn's Concerto for Oboe in G Minor.

Realtors say buyers outnumber properties

Lower interest rates spur single-home sales

By JOE SEGURA
Staff Writer

Single-family home purchases, according to Long Beach-Orange County realtors, are rivaling the sales boom of the early postwar years.

The improved climate for home buyers, they say, results from declining interest rates (now in the 8½ to 9 per cent range) and from mortgage money being much more available this spring.

"There are many more buyers than there are properties available," claims Donovan Rudman, president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors. "Long Beach is experiencing some drastic changes for the good of the city. Many projects now under construction in the downtown area will add even more to this sound economy."

"Sales are definitely up," says a Red Carpet spokesman in Long Beach. "The condo-apartment concept really doesn't fit into the American style of living. Most buyers want a little plot of land on which they can keep their family more closely knit."

Rough estimates of single-family home sales in the greater Long Beach area show an increase between 20 and 25 per cent over the same period last year.

In the Lakewood area, the increase in sales is up between 25 and 30 per cent. The difference is attributed to newer homes and conformity of living standards in the community.

The same factors are attributed for good single-family unit sales records in Orange County.

"It's been our best year in history," says Bob Lind, director of marketing for Walker & Lee in Orange County. "Sales are up about 30 per cent, most of it single-family construction."

However, Lind isn't overly optimistic about the sales boom.

"Business looks good to 1977," he says. "I would worry, however, about the length of the boom beyond that time. It all depends on the availability of money."

Jerome L. Howard, the president of the Mortgage Bankers Association, has predicted interest rates would decline slowly by as much as one-half of one per cent by the end of the year.

And, a research bulletin issued by Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co., predicts a "substantive break" in mortgage rates by midyear, reflecting an imbalance between the supply and demand for mortgage credit.

While total housing production is down from the two-million-unit levels of the early 70's, single-family houses are about as strong as ever, according to statistics from the National Association of Home Builders.

In the 1972-74 period, for example, there was approximately one single-family house built for each multi-family unit, whereas this year the ratio will be about 2.7 to 1, according to the Home Builders' stats.

Mortgage interest rates on new houses, according to a report by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, were unchanged from early February to early March, but rates on previously occupied houses declined.

According to the same report, the average contract rate on loans for previously occupied homes fell by 12 basis points, accounting for the entire decline in the average effective rate.

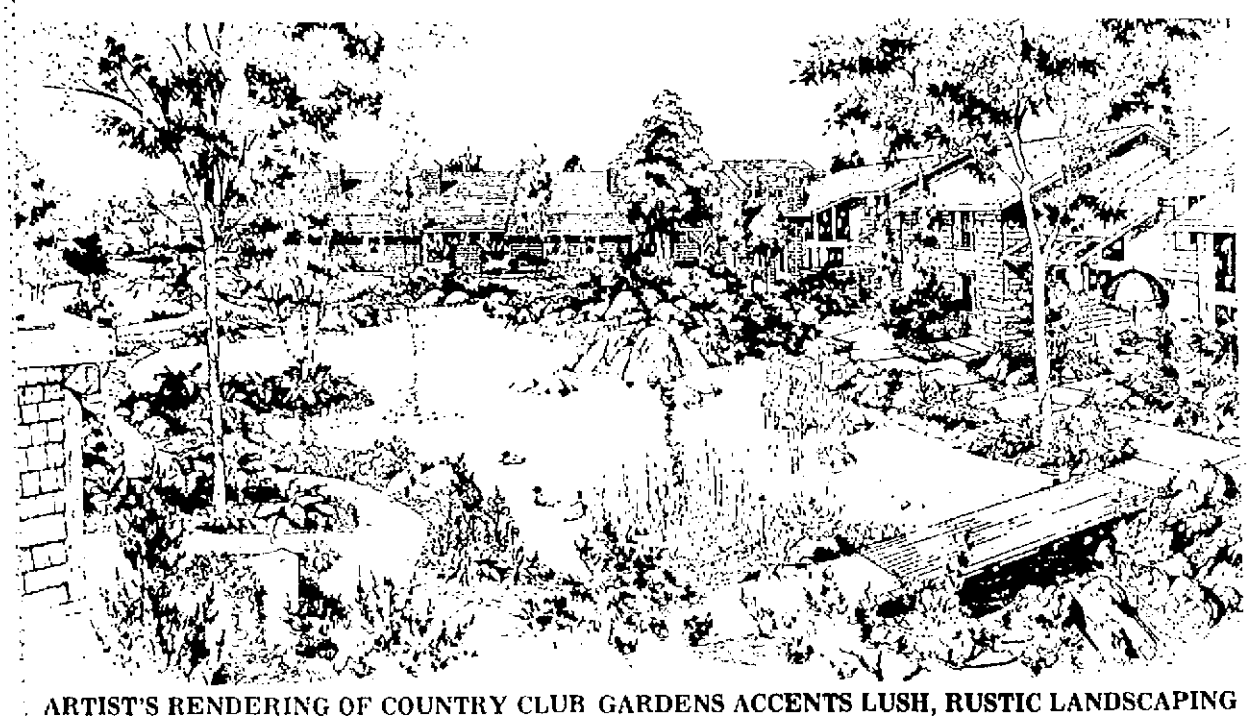

The average contract rate was 8.91 per cent while initial fees and charges amounted to 1.22 per cent of the principal.

The National Association of Realtors reported the median price of existing single-family homes continues to rise and in February was $36,200 nationally or 6.9 per cent higher than the year before.

The median price in Orange County, according to Lind, is $54,000 for homes resold, and $61,000 for new homes.

The median price in Long Beach and Lakewood is $43,500.

A number of factors, notes Lind, continue to increase in Orange County land value: New Irvine industry construction, greater government expenditures that increase the need for greater taxes, increased material and labor costs for public construction.

Adult-oriented townhomes

Sandalwood in prestige setting

Country Club Gardens in Long Beach presents an innovative plan for sophisticated adult living in "The Sandalwood," a luxury, split-level townhome available at the prestigious Virginia Country Club area development.

High light of the dramatic three-bedroom home is the elegant master suite with lavish dressing room/bath, secluded on its own top level and overlooking the living room below.

Stepping down from this unique master suite to the third level, owners have two generous secondary bedrooms and full bath.

The Sandalwood's main activity area features a formal living room with fireplace and cathedral ceiling, spacious dining room and convenient kitchen with breakfast nook and pantry.

The plan also includes a large two-car garage with inside access and laundry area.

Special features of this home are an atrium-balcony and garden patio, ceramic tiling, plush wall-to-wall carpeting and Tappan appliances. Prices range from $52,950.

All are in rustic contemporary exterior stylings designed in keeping with the area's fine homes and feature custom architectural detailing, roofs of cedar shake, trellised entries and private garden patios.

All remaining Country Club Gardens homes look out on some of the community's many water amenities.

Extensive greenbelts surrounding the residences feature waterfalls, streams, bridges and reflection lakes, amid winding lighted walkways and drives.

The maintenance-free adult community also includes a large, free-form swimming pool, jacuzzi and night-lighted paddle tennis courts in private recreation areas.

Immediate occupancy and excellent conventional financing are available now at the community of 72 townhomes, where sales have passed the 75 per cent mark, according to the builder, Sterling Development Corp.

The sales office and model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. at 3855 Country Club Drive and Cedar Avenue for selection of the final group of homes.

The development's ideal central location, near Los Cerritos Park and tennis courts, Lakewood Golf and Tennis Club, beaches and marinas, is freeway-close to employment and metropolitan areas of Los Angeles and Orange County.

Country Club Gardens may be reached by taking the San Diego Freeway to the Long Beach Boulevard exit, then north on Long Beach Boulevard to 36th Street and west on 36th (which becomes Country Club Drive) for one-quarter mile to Cedar Avenue.

62 Showcase homes open

Showcase on the Lake, a new series of one-and two-story homes in Lake Forest presented by Showcase Homes, is celebrating the grand opening of its final phase of 62 homes today.

The $10.9 million development of 186 three- and four-bedroom homes with two or three baths offers six floor plans with from 1,351 to 1,806 square feet of living space.

Prices range from $50,500 to $72,950 and excellent conventional financing can be arranged with 8¾ per cent interest (9 per cent annual percentage rate).

A Showcase exclusive feature is "custom completion," enabling home buyers to select door positions, window placement, put in or remove interior walls except load bearing walls, and to add individual features, depending upon the stage of construction.

All plans can be customized to include a 400-foot master bedroom suite with space for a study or sitting room in addition to the private bath and oversize wardrobes or walk-in closet.

Two-story plans have private balcony and all plans are dramatized by vaulted or elevated ceilings.

To see the five furnished models at 24342 Toledo Lane, prepared by Vicki Welsh of Modern Interiors, take the San Diego Freeway to the Lake Forest Drive offramp in Lake Forest. Turn left on Lake Forest Drive to Toledo, turn left on Toledo and drive one-half mile to the models and sales information center which is open from 10 a.m. to dusk.

Nuclear initiative opposed

Opposing the nuclear limitation initiative, Proposition 15 on the June ballot, Engineer David J. Fogarty of the Southern California Edison Co. will address the Orange County chapter of the Building Industry Association of California Monday at the Airporter Inn.

As vice president in charge of power supply operations, Fogarty is strongly in favor of continued expansion of energy sources, including nuclear energy.

Arguing for an informed "no" vote on the initiative, he considers the measure will have far more impact on the daily lives of Californians than the decisions on which Democrat and Republican are selected to run for the presidency.

He is predicting a great deal of controversy as the opposing campaigns begin, and he characterizes the proponents as designing their campaign to deliberately confuse the real meaning of the measure.

"We know that the building industry, among many others, is heavily dependent upon energy. Therefore, the outcome of this initiative in June will have a crucial effect on future energy supplies," he said.

The 7:30 p.m. dinner meeting will be preceded by a social hour.

Monarch Summit sales top 50%

"Consistency" is the name of the game at Monarch Summit II, the $23.7 million all-adult townhome community in Laguna Niguel, reports Frank Babcock, sales manager.

Since the Orange County development opened in January, homes have sold at the rate of one every two days. Now, only 31 of the 67 homes in this first phase remain, Babcock says.

"This represents sales totaling more than $3 million," he adds.

Babcock says home buyers first react favorably to the location of Monarch Summit II.

Situated on top of the highest point along Orange County's coastline, the view is of the mountains on one side and the Pacific Ocean on the other.

" . . . and at night, lights in the valley provide a kaleidoscope of restful fascination," report homeowners Newton and Kathleen Withers.

Price, and quality construction by Lan Ron Enterprises, Inc., Newport Beach, are two more very important ingredients in the success of this development, Babcock continues.

Three individual floor plans are identified in the furnished model complex at 22956 Solera Drive.

Homes are priced from $59,900 to $74,500. Plan A has 1,670 square feet. Plan B has 1,650 square feet, and Plan C has 1,400 square feet.

EACH HOME has two spacious bedrooms and two baths. The two larger models also have a den that converts easily into a library or sewing room.

An attached two-car garage, an enclosed entryway that lends itself to floral gardening and a shaded, private rear patio are other desirable amenities.

A 6,000 square foot adult-oriented recreation center, now under construction, will include a swimming pool, jacuzzi, pool and bridge rooms, a lounge with a fireplace and a fully outfitted kitchen.

Bright kitchens with General Electric built-ins, ceramic counters, old-fashioned kitchen pantries, ceramic baths and showers, cable TV outlets, a brick fireplace with gas log lighter and pre-wired telephone outlets are other features.

To reach Monarch Summit II, take the San Diego Freeway to Crown Valley Parkway in Laguna Niguel, and turn west to Pacific Island Drive. Turn north up the hill and follow the signs with the sea gull.

The course is open to the public.

Marketing seminar scheduled all day

The opportunity to question a "Million Dollar Round Table" will be available to those attending an all-day seminar sponsored by the Sales & Marketing Council of the Building Industry Association Friday, April 30, at the Grand Hotel, Anaheim.

"Emotional Merchandising Gets You Where You Live" is the theme for the day's program, which will include talks by heads of the industry's leading advertising, decorating, landscaping and sales display companies, panel discussions by these experts and 15 others, and a free-for-all question-and-answer session between the audience and the experts.

Leading off, at 8 a.m., will be a message on how to achieve super-success in business by Dr. Robert H. Schuller, originator of the philosophy of "Possibility Thinking" and founder of the Garden Grove Community Church.

Talks will be given on advertising by Bryan Hardwick, president and creative director of Bryan Hardwick Associates; on model home decorating by Carole Eichen, of Carole Eichen Interiors; on project landscaping by Courtland Paul, of Courtland Paul/Arthur Beggs & Associates; and on sales displays by Gary Davis of Charles Gary Corporation. They also will lead the panel discussions.

Participating in the panel disucssions will be Trent Wilson, Advertising; Joe Martin, Martin Advertising; Jann Church, Jann Church Advertising & Graphic Design; David Arnold, Designed Communications; Roger Holloway, Motivational Design & Marketing; Chuck Crockett, Crockett & Associates; Ron Sasse, The Design Committee; Pamela Ayers, Pamela Ayers & Co.; Beverly Thompson, Beverly Thompson Interiors; Beverly Tripp, Color Design Art; Mel Grau, Mel Grau Design Corp.; Rob Sawyer, Sawyer Landscape; Frank Radmacher, Frank Radmacher Associates; Rae Price, Courtland Paul/Arthur Beggs & Associates; Bob Cardoza, Cardoza/Dillallo & Associates.

Chairman for the seminar is James E. Lenon Jr., vice president of sales and marketing for American National Housing.

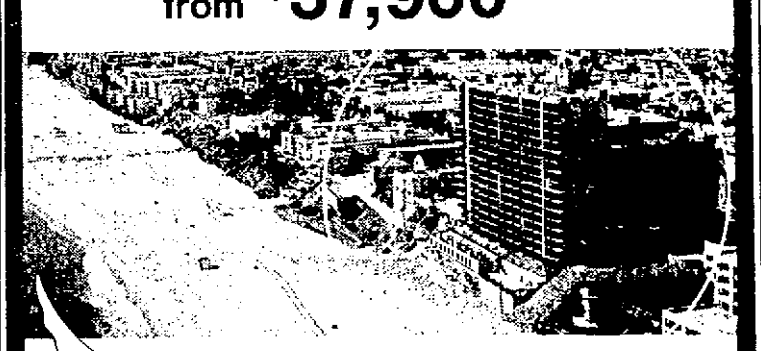

The fee, which includes continental breakfast, luncheon and a book of reference material, is $40. The seminar is open to the public.

High atop Laguna Hills

New Leisure World unit open

A new building featuring penthouses and improved architectural styling will be introduced at the Grand Opening of Del Prado Village in Leisure World, Laguna Hills today.

The new building, known as El Mirador, will be at the top of one of the highest hills in Leisure World with views across cattle ranches to the East. It offers new floor planning and will contain 22 villas on three floors.

Top floor penthouses will have three bedrooms and 2½ baths and are priced at $89,800. Each will have two subterranean parking spaces. Other residences in El Mirador will have two and three bedrooms and are priced from $52,400 to $77,800.

Del Prado Village also will offer two Villa Nueva buildings, each with a total of 21 residences on three floors. They are priced from $38,400 to $61,400.

They will be carpeted, except kitchens and baths, and have an entry hall, separate dining area, large patio/balcony and a fully equipped kitchen with frost-free refrigerator-freezer, dishwasher, waste disposer, range with double oven, luminous ceiling and natural finish hardwood cabinets.

BATHS HAVE Corian vanity tops, luminous soffit in the master bath and luminous ceiling in the second bath, stall shower in the master bath, tub with "telephone-type" shower in the second bath, grab bars and electric heat lamp with timer switch.

Each residence is wired for cable TV and telephone, and has fully insulated exterior walls and ceilings, sliding glass doors to patio or balcony, electric radiant ceiling heat and double shelves in wardrobe closets.

Leisure World is for adults 52 and over. It has a population of about 18,000. The community is walled and guarded by some 250 security officers. Fare-free minibus service is provided within the community and health services include a Laguna Hills hospital and medical center which provides house call service to Leisure World residents at all hours of the day and night.

Information may be had at the Leisure World New Model/Design Center near the El Toro exit of the San Diego Freeway. It is open daily to 5:30 P.M.

Parents' offer to son may not be all that attractive

By DON CAMPBELL

Doing something nice for the kiddies is one of those hangups that all parents go through and, unfortunately, it sometimes gives rise to family disputes. Are we "killing them with kindness?" Shouldn't they be encouraged to "stand on their own two feet?"

Or, maybe, the favor we're doing them isn't as much of a favor as it seems to be.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We own a small home which we rent for $200 a month ($2,400 a year, less taxes of $454). There is no mortgage and it's appraised at $30,000. We own another home where we live. The mortgage is $155 a month and will be paid in eight years. Value: about $50,000 to $55,000.

I would like to sell the small home for $30,000 and lend our son about $20,000 to build his home. (He already owns a lot.) This would be a 20-year mortgage and he would pay us $200 a month. Therefore, we would NOT be losing the rental income of $200 and I figured it would save him the high interest rate of the bank.

My husband objects, stating it would put him in a higher income bracket, thereby raising his income tax. I understand we will be taxed twice — first when we sell it because it will increase our income, and second, because it is income (business) property. Would you advise selling the small home to help finance our son's new home? — Mrs. R. L. C., Buffalo, N. Y.

ANSWER: The motivation for selling the home to finance your son's project is admirable. Naturally, you WILL have a tax obligation on the sale of the house, but this will be taxed as a capital gain and it really shouldn't be a staggering blow for you.

I don't understand your objection about having to pay taxes because the son's home is an "income" producing property. So is the present home which you are renting, and on which (I hope) you've also been paying taxes.

As I say, your motivations are fine, but did you realize when you outlined this plan to your son that $20,000 financed over 20 years at $200 a month figures out to an annual interest rate in excess of 10 per cent? I suspect you didn't, because he should be able to beat that through virtually any conventional lender.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We are in the process of buying a new home, and I was thunderstruck to find out that we're responsible for paying the "points" on this sale. I was under the impression that it was the seller who had to make up this difference. — W. W. C., Long Beach, Calif.

ANSWER: It IS the seller's responsibility in the case of either an FHA- or a VA-financed home. In the case of a conventional mortgage loan, however (and that apparently is what yours is), the buyer pays the points. Sorry about that.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We have just about given up trying to find the kind of house that we need but have managed to buy a detailed floor plan that would be perfect for us. I don't know anything about building, myself, but why couldn't I hire the work done, myself — the carpentry, the plumbing, heating, etc.? — Mr. W.F.D., Long Beach.

ANSWER: It's a great idea — in theory. It's when you get into the practical aspects of this sort of do-it-yourself project that you can run into a real horror.

The trouble is that building a house is a lot more complicated than it looks on the surface, and it requires very careful coordination.

So your first and most important job is to line yourself up with a good general contractor who, in turn, will negotiate with the individual crafts and oversee the whole job. Check his references carefully and have a good lawyer draw up the agreement with him to protect yourself — particularly in such matters as completion time-schedules.

(Campbell welcomes your letters and comments, but can answer only representative questions of general interest. WRite him in care of the L. P-T.)

Lloyd Realty named Corte Vista agent

Larry Lloyd Realty has been named exclusive sales agent for Corte Vista, according to Bill Koll, president of Costa Construction, Inc., builder of the residential complex across from Alta Vista Golf Course in Placentia.

The Irvine-based real estate firm is headed by Larry Lloyd, who has been in new home sales for leading Orange County developers four years.

Corte Vista is a new community of single story cluster homes at Rose Drive and Buena Vista Avenue in Placentia. The homes are under construction, with preview showings to begin this month.

Prices of the two-to four-bedroom residences will range from $49,500 to $56,400 and will include custom-quality features and enclosed double garages. Four floor plans are being offered in a variety of Spanish-styled exteriors.

The maintenance-free community will have two private tennis courts, a swimming pool and jacuzzi within landscaped greenbelt areas and is near schools, shopping and major freeways.

On Sales Staff

Steven L. Andre and Elizabeth Zuercher have been named to the sales staff of Saddle Hill Ranch in Orange. Mrs. Zuercher, of Irvine, had been with Century 21, Irvine Plaza Realty Sales. Andre, of Fullerton, has a ranching background and for the past five years has been in real estate sales in Anaheim.

A FLASHER UNIT, part of an elaborate rooftop burglary warning device at The Cove, is described to Newport Beach police officer J. Costelow by Jerry Wooters, president of the firm that installed the electronic burglary prevention system.

The Cove has devices to prevent burglaries

This bicentennial year Americans will spend an estimated $100 million on an assortment of locks, alarms, bolts and bars for their homes in an effort to halt the seemingly unstoppable rise in home burglaries.

However, homeowners at The Cove, the new $8.9 million waterfront home development in Newport Beach, at 1001 Bayside Drive, near Jamboree, have something special going for them, noted Frank E. Hughes, president of Irvine Pacific Development Co.

"Electronic burglary-prevention devices built into each home minimize the possibility of home burglary and reduce the worry by homeowners," Hughes said.

These precautions, Hughes pointed out, include the most advanced, trouble-free security systems in existence — a passive infra-red intruder motion detector — is one defense.

The turn of a key keeps this system operating while the homeowner is away or while asleep at night. Any intruder will be immediately detected, and a rooftop horn-flasher-helicopter beacon will be activated. An interior visual-audible system also will arouse the homeowner.

An additional feature is having the system extended directly to the police department over a leased telephone line. Plus, there are a wide variety of optional, individually tailored systems that some homeowners at The Cove have already installed.

"The affluency within the Newport Beach area does play a role in attracting burglars from many Southern California areas," said Sgt. John Simon, head of the Newport Beach Police Department burglary detail.

"Most of these burglars are narcotic addicts who will steal anything from anyone in order to support their habit."

Resort homes selling

Homesite sales of more than a million dollars in a two-week period have marked the opening of the spring season at Silver Lakes resort.

Construction activity at the McCulloch Properties community meanwhile has surged past the $4-million mark with 32 homes completed and an additional 86 now under construction.

"We expect to see a continuation of this growth," said Gene Vogt, executive vice president of McCulloch Development Co., "with more buyers taking advantage of the immediate availability of more than $8-million in resort and recreational facilities."

Included among those facilities are a 27-hole championship golf course, two of California's largest private lakes, and a million-dollar clubhouse complex featuring swimming pool, tennis courts, and exercise rooms.

On old tourist camp site

Oak Forest, a single-family development on the oak-covered site of a former 1930s tourist camp in Glendora, will open in August. Reflecting the times of those camp visitors in a groundbreaking ceremony are, from left, Miss Glendora, Suzanne Richards; Presley W. Carter, vice president and project manager and Marshall Fant, executive vice president of Biddle Development, Inc., builder of the homes, which are priced from approximately $44,000. Oak Forest is at Foothill Boulevard and Valley Center Drive.

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, APRIL 25, 1976 LIFE/STYLE—L/S-1

Heritage activities May 1-8

It may not be as exciting as dumping tea in the harbor, but the League of Women Voters will stage its own version of the Boston Tea Party next week by inviting you to put your complaints on Bicentennial scrolls.

The League will participate in Long Beach Heritage Week sponsored by the Junior League and other community organizations and businesses.

You are invited to the League office, 1001 E. Fourth St., May 3-7, to have a cup of tea and register your complaint. The scrolls will be sent to government officials in the areas involved.

During the observance from May 1-8, a Bicentennial showcase will be on display at Long Beach Memorial Hospital West by the Associate Guild of Children's Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

The Auxiliary will give Long Beach Heritage certificates to every baby born at Women's Hospital Memorial Medical Center during that week.

The first 76 babies born at Long Beach Memorial Hospital will receive Bicentennial receiving blankets from the Fiorella Guild of Children's Memorial Hospital Auxiliary.

Everyone in Long Beach will be encouraged to fly the American flag in front of his home or place of business by members of the Kiwanis Club of Downtown Long Beach.

A display of early American surgical instruments will be offered in the Long Beach Community Hospital lobby by the hospital's Auxiliary.

Long Beach Day Nursery children will make flags, mosaics, murals, a quilt, and participate in parades. You are invited to visit the nursery in your neighborhood.

Posters, pamphlets and displays illustrating their activities will be presented at the Eldorado Public Library by members of the National Council of Jewish Women.

Pacific Hospital of Long Beach will show a collection medical supplies, uniforms and other memorabilia.

SPECIAL EVENTS will be scheduled each day during Heritage Week, May 1-8, by local institutions and organizations beginning Saturday.

From 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Rancho Los Alamitos will present artisans making soap, churning butter, weaving and doing leatherwork reminiscent of the old Rancho Days.

Also on Saturday at 10:30 a.m., the Altrusa Club invites you to tour the nature trail for the handicapped at Eldorado Nature Center, 7550 E. Spring St.

On Monday, an open house and fashion show of Oriental costumes will be presented at the Assistance League Clubhouse, 388 Roswell Ave.

Bicentennial art objects handcrafted by members of Boys' Clubs of Long Beach will be shown during an open house at the Lakewood branch, 4654 Charlamagne, 3-8 p.m., Tuesday.

A filmstrip on the history of the Children's Home Society will be shown by members of the Sandlarks Tuesday at 125 E. 14th St. from 1-3 p.m.

Wednesday, expectant mothers and their guests are invited to ceremonies by the Nightingales at 9:30 a.m. in the Long Beach Memorial Hospital Medical Center. The organization will give the Bicentennial Stork Club a $25 U.S. Savings Bond for presentation to a child born this year.

The Las Madrinas Guild of Memorial Hospital Thursday will present historical books, book marks and bicentennial coloring books to the hospital's patient library.

The 14th Annual Treasures and Trifles Fair entitled, "Potpourri 1776-1976" will be staged Friday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. by the Dames Club of Long Beach at the Recreational Community Center, Bruins Den, 4900 E. Seventh St. The fair will feature a fashion show along with displays of handmade items, artworks, candies and pastries.

Heritage week will close on May 8 with Junior League, Bullock's and the Rancho Los Cerritos Docents offering, "Fiesta De Rancho Los Cerritos." The works of artisans will be diplayed and music, dancing and Mexican food will be offered between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. at Rancho Los Cerritos, 4600 Virginia Road.

A poison prevention puppet show will also be staged Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. at Bay Shore Library by members of the auxiliary to the Long Beach Pharmacy Association.

A recreation event called "Bicentennial Affair" will be offered by the Long Beach Recreation Department in Houghton Park at Atlantic and Harding. Continuous entertainment featuring period costumes is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Saturday.

DESPAIR IS evidenced by this teen-age girl, who ran away from home and developed a severe drinking problem. She is now receiving help in a small group atmosphere and attending school again. She is what is known as a status offender and the juvenile justice system is being criticized for its handling of cases like hers.

No easy solutions for plight of teen offenders

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

"If a man has a stubborn and rebellious son, who will not obey the voice of his father or the voice of his mother, and though they chastise him, will not give heed to them, then his father and his mother shall take hold of him and bring him out to the elders of his city...Then all the men of the city shall stone him to death with stones; so you shall purge the evil from your midst."

— Deuteronomy.

The moon is setting as William bicycles back to the farm. Again, he comes home, but it's not really home. For years, there has been trouble in his strict religious family. At 16, he can't fit in. He can't stand staying home each night, can't stand the Bible study, can't stand the fighting.

So he rode away on his 10-speed bike, enjoying the wind against his face, the tiredness in his muscles and new freedom and friends at a lake resort.

This time, his father is waiting, taut and hunched, his face hardened, his hands pale fists in the moonlight.

Silently, father and son fight. The father kicks the son between his legs. The son strikes his father's face.

His father takes William to juvenile court.

Is this a case for the elders of the city?

RED-EYED FROM TOO much liquor and too many tears, Ralph's mother cradles his baby brother and waits for Ralph to come home. It's an old story. It's 3 a.m. and he's not back after their last argument.

Ralph was her first born in happier times, but baby after baby came between them. No time for Ralph. No husband to help her. Now at 14 he's almost never home, hardly goes to school. Ralph has stolen and sold appliances in the apartment. She thinks he's using drugs.

When he comes home he's often drunk, usually sullen. If she complains; he shoves her against the wall. The other children hide.

His mother takes Ralph to juvenile court.

Is this a case for the elders of the city?

Emily is 14 and she's in love. She's been sleeping with her 20-year-old boyfriend. He gives her attention she doesn't get at home. Her parents are furious. Her mother cries and threatens to send her to her real father. Her stepfather calls her a tramp.

They say she's just a child and order her to stop seeing him. Marie refuses. More fights, more name-calling, more tears. Her stepfather slaps her. She tells them both to go to hell and slams the door.

Her parents take Marie to juvenile court.

Is this a case for the elders of the city?

THESE CHILDREN and thousands of others are at odds with themselves, at war with their families and at the mercy of their elders, the juvenile court. It aims not to punish but to protect and rehabilitate.

They are runaways, truants, incorrigibles. They are wayward, disobedient and beyond control of their parents. They stay out too late, drink too much, use filthy language, keep bad company and make love, all to their parents' dismay.

Officially, the court calls them status offenders, not delinquents. Status offenses, like truancy and curfew violation, apply only to those with the legal "status" of minors.

These kids misbehave but have not been convicted of any crime. Theirs are teen-age trespasses, the sins of childhood for which there is no adult equivalent.

But status offenders jam police departments, probation departments and courtrooms. They account for more than 200,000 of the 600,000 children held each year in pretrial detention throughout the country, according to federal statistics. They are 40 per cent to 50 per cent of all children held in correctional institutions.

Status offenders have a multitude of personal and family problems. Many are more antisocial and self-destructive than juvenile delinquents, and later often become delinquents and criminals. The boy who is out drinking every night can be more troubled than the boy who steals a car on impulse.

STATUS OFFENDERS represent every adolescent growing pain, every failure of parenting, every neglect by society. They range from deprived products of the ghetto to spoiled offspring of the suburbs.

Some already have committed delinquent acts but are plea-bargained and treated as status offenders. Some simply are clashing with unreasonable parents. Poverty, broken homes, neglect, alcoholism, unemployment, poor school records — these are common problems in the family of a status offender.

What to do with these children is a fundamental issue at a time when the overloaded juvenile justice system is under fire for being unable to stem the tide of crimes by children.

The debate focuses on whether to leave status offenders at home, or place them in small group homes, or in foster homes, or in reformatories and training schools. A key question is whether the juvenile courts should have jurisdiction.

William, the boy who fought with his father, was sent to a group home for seven boys run by New York state. But he trails behind in school. He needs constant attention and love. He's aggressive, explosive and punches his fist through walls in rage. To William, being a man is being physical.

There's a lot of goodness in William, much of the impulsive puppy doing crazy things. He's making progress slowly. But his parents don't want him back and he's disrupting the group home. He probably needs a foster home. He wants to join the Marines.

What is best for William? How can he be helped to grow up? He lives with nice people, he sees a psychologist, but sometimes nothing seems to work.

The ideal, many believe, is to help children and their families in their own homes — before there's a crisis, before the family crumbles, before a desperate parent takes a child to court.

The Lower East Side Family Union in New York tries to keep families together and children from getting into the juvenile justice system by coordinating voluntary family services.

Thirteen-year-old Marie was coming home late and hanging out with an older crowd. Her mother worked nights as a keypunch operator and wanted Marie to babysit for her three brothers and sisters.

'Let's be candid,' says a federal judge, 'we haven't the slightest notion of what really works.' The juvenile court system doesn't help many children in trouble and neither the home nor the community provides adequate solutions.

THIS 16-YEAR-OLD BOY is also a status offender and is confined to a New York State youth home. The circumstances which brought him to the home may not have attracted legal attention except for his age. What to do with status offenders has become a key issue for the juvenile justice system, which is overloaded with such cases.

Glad you asked that!

TALK SHOW host Johnny Carson — humorous observation on Olympics.

Q: Is Muhammad Ali serious about fighting the Japanese wrestling champion Antonio Inoki, in a no-holds-barred bout? What can he gain by it? — Carl Dentoni, Minneapolis.

A: Only about $6 million plus! The match is tentatively scheduled to be staged in Tokyo on June 25. But first, rules, regulations and finances must be resolved. And how the points will be scored — by rounds or by the murderous tactics of the professional wrestler — kicking, eye-gouging, karate, judo, heads bashed against the brass-covered ringposts, etc.

We asked Dr. Ferdie Pacheco if he, trainer Angelo Dundee and Ali are worried about the risks involved. "By the time the match is confirmed," Ali's ever-present doctor said, "everything will be spelled out to protect the innocent. As usual Ali's the only one in our camp who is not worried about the whole thing. To the champ it's just another evening of fun and games!"

Sidelight: Shortly before Rocky Marciano was killed in a plane crash, he told us that at the height of the cold war between the U.S. and Russia, he challenged any Soviet athlete to an "anything-goes" man-against-man brawl — the winner to be whichever one had enough strength left to stand up and walk out of the ring under his own power. The challenge was ignored.

Q: Wasn't it a father who suggested there ought to be a Mother's Day? — Birdie Thomas, Flushing, N.Y.

A: No. It was a Miss Anna Jarvis who offered that suggestion at a public meeting in Philadelphia in 1907. She proposed wearing a carnation on the second Sunday of every May. Philadelphia was the first city to adopt the idea, designating May 10, 1908, as the first Mother's Day. It was adopted nationally on May 12, 1914.

Q: I see where actress Kim Novak married again. How many husbands has she had? And which of the beauty titles she won before she became famous tickled her the most? — Mrs. R. Dunn, Richmond, Va.

A: When the studio publicity department had her crowned "Miss Deepfreeze!!" Kim was previously married only once. To

hy gardner

actor Richard Johnson, with whom she's been a close friend ever since they divorced in 1969. At which time she commented: "My marriage did not work out because I'm a loner. I have to be."

Q: What do you consider to be the wittiest topical comment of the week? And who made it? — Mrs. B. Robbins, Shreveport, La.

A: Johnny Carson, talking about the Winter Olympics: "The Russians won three times as many medals as the U.S., but it is nothing to be ashamed of. We can be proud because it proves that our wheat makes good athletes."

Q: I was told that both Doris Day and Dinah Shore had to overcome being crippled at birth. Is this so? — Dolores Diaz, Orlando, Fla.

A: Not at birth. Dinah, when she was only a year and a half old, was stricken with polio. But thanks to her mother she learned how to walk through physical therapy, swimming and studying ballet.

Doris Day, in her early teens, suffered severe injuries when a car which she was driving home with some friends was hit by a locomotive and a freight car. The doctors doubted if she'd ever walk again. When her bones almost healed, she tried to do a tap dance at home, slipped on a throw rug and fell — breaking the leg all over again.

On crutches, she auditioned to sing at Charlie Yee's Shanghai Inn in Cincinnati and got the job — singing Sundays for $5 a session. Eighteen months after the accident, still on crutches, Doris got a job as the girl winger with Barney Rapp and his New Englanders for $25 a week.

Q: I keep seeing Linda Cristal annually co-hosting the cerebral palsy telethon with Dennis James. Doesn't she do any other kind of work? And what is her nationality? — Wendi Olson, Long Beach, Calif.

A: Linda was born Victoria Maya in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Her parents, Italian and French, were killed in an auto accident when she was 13. Her brother sent her to France to be brought up by her five aunts, all nuns. En route, the ship broke down in Vera Cruz where fellow passengers invited her to settle in Mexico. There she began making films, later doing the same in Europe and Hollywood, where she also starred in the TV series "High Chaparral."

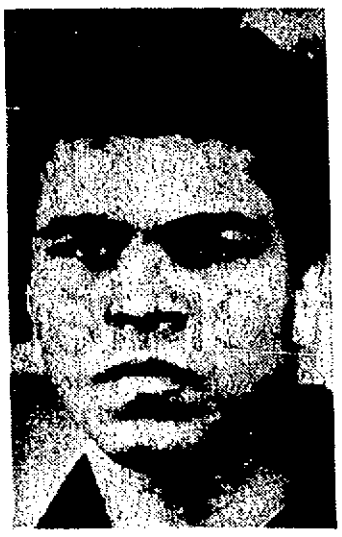

Lately the actress has concentrated on a singing career and doing telethons which she does so successfully in both English and Spanish. She also taped a Spanish daytime soap opera series which is very popular with Latin viewers. She lives in Beverly Hills with her two sons.

Q: While we realize that news shows aren't expected to capture too many viewers, we're curious how "60 Minutes" does in the ratings race. — Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Robertson, Pittsburgh.

A: In racing parlance, "60 Minutes" is an entry you can bet will run in the money. In the Nielsen last month, for instance, it outrated such strictly entertaining programs as "Chico and the Man," "Maude," "Harry O," "Mac Davis," "Phyllis," "Movin' On," "Kojak," "Tony Orlando and Dawn," "Flip Wilson" and "McCloud," amongst other talked-about non-news-oriented programs. Our conclusion? "60 Minutes" will be around as long as there is news, good, bad or indifferent.

HEAVYWEIGHT champion Muhammed Ali and the late Rocky Marciano, former champ — international challenges met and unmet.

ACTRESS Linda Cristal — relying on bi-lingual talents now.

SINGERS Doris Day, left, and Dinah Shore — both overcame physical disability.

Grey flannel suit is a costume for Peter Fonda

HOUSTON — Freshly starched shirts sealed in plastic go limp in Houston's unholy humidity. There's a chill in the early spring morning, but the surly driver, affecting a passe hippie hairdo that doesn't completely hide a strip of his bright red neck, has the air conditioning blasting in a bouncy, beat-up company car.

The cardboard sign in the windshield advises the guards that we are "Futureworld" people, so they let us pass, with only a wave, into the compound from which the United States commanded mankind's first magnificent "moonwalk."

Inside the gates of NASA's Johnson Spaceflight Center at Clear Lake, Tex., there are acres of buildings, looney-shaped water towers and landscaped walks studded with the carcasses of Apollos I, II and III. (Only in Texas can one find a used-rocket lot.) Gigantic generators expose color-coded pipes and hardware to admire.

It is an art show more awe-inspiring than anything downtown Houston's chic galleries can offer. In one of these buildings stands a pressure chamber seven stories high and three stories wide. Here, man, with his technical wizardry, can simulate climatic conditions of any distance in outer space. Standing at the vault-like door, I feel like Tom Thumb at the bank.

An elevator takes me to a platform circling this monster pressure cooker, where I find super-hippie Peter Fonda, formally dressed in gray flannels, tweed jacket and Gucci loafers. The ubiquitous hot-pilot sunglasses are the only familiar clue to the Peter Fonda I know.

Houston's humidity notwithstanding, he's in a cheerful humor. He relishes the local folklore about the first time technicians tested the chamber by creating freezing outer space ozone, then innocently returned the pressure to normal by pumping in Houston air — resulting in a raging blizzard within the chamber.

ONLY A MOVIE could bring Peter Fonda together with that anecdote. Only a movie could put Peter Fonda in gray flannels. Reading my mind, he grins: "My kids think this movie is a costume picture. They've never seen me out of blue jeans."

A pleasant young woman, called "Dolly Spritz" by the company, appears suddenly and squirts sweat on Peter's brow as he resumes his precarious position perched in the skimpy scaffolding seven stories above NASA. "Futureworld" director Richard Heffron signals a hand-held camera to start, and a simulated chase begins. While the actors indulge in some action-thriller derring-do, I look around and can't help but admire what must be the most expensive and sophisticated movie set since "2001: A Space Odyssey."

Fonda throws a huge nut and bolt onto a metal grill walkway and the whole place goes up in a shower of hissing sparks. I jump back to find I'm standing on the Guccied toe of someone who not only looks like Peter Fonda but is dressed just like him!

"That's Peter's clone," says a youthful voice behind me.

"A clone?" I looked down into a handsome, hauntingly familiar face.

"I'm Leland Hayward III, Peter's nephew. This is Justin, Peter's son, and this is Tom, Peter's stepson. After lunch Portia (Peter's wife) is going to take us to meet Astronaut Colonel Carr, who will show us the inside of the Space Shuttle's control cabin. Did you know that the Space Shuttle may be operative by 1980?"

Maybe it's the word "operative," but I have a creepy feeling that I'll never begin to know what this 12-year-old has already forgotten about man's thirst to travel through outer space. But then it's his generation's future world, not mine.

"Futureworld" is the name of the movie that Peter, Blythe Danner and Arthur Hill are romping through in the once off-limits areas of NASA.

It's an honest-to-pete science fiction sequel to "Westworld," and it even features Yul Brynner in his original role as the gun-slinging robot who gets to rape Blythe Danner. The producers also asked "Westworld" star Richard Benjamin to do a cameo performance, but he was too cranky the day they asked.

THE PRODUCERS of "Futureworld" are an interesting trio. First there is American-International Pictures' one and only, Sam Arkoff, the past master of mass entertainment movies that make fistfuls of dollars — and marks and francs and lira and pesetas.

Sam aspires to make classier mass entertainment movies now, so he's hitched his distribution connections and financial acumen to two other producers, Paul Lazarus and ex-MGM executive James Aubrey, both of whom were involved with "Westworld." Arkoff is only seen in person during the Cannes Film Festival, hosting sumptuous lunches at the Eden Roc for the international press. Sam loves the press, and the press loves Sam even when they hate his movies.

Long, tall, lanky James Aubrey grins for no apparent reason beneath his visor cap. His shetland sweater, shirt, casual pants and sneakers suggest a spaced-out gym teacher, not a man who, as head of CBS-TV, once so terrorized the industry that he was known as "The Smiling Cobra."

He still smiles a lot, but he has a new, simple lifestyle — uncluttered by the alcohol, sexy women and power complexes that made him the model for Jacqueline Susann's famous novel, "The Love Machine."

The once-feared and hated Aubrey today is a teetotaling, jogging, soon-to-be grandfather who retires each night after an early dinner. Lazarus and Aubrey work hard, which is why they are called "grunt" producers. They are responsible for "Futureworld" having these authentic, priceless settings.

PETER AND PORTIA Fonda have gathered their clutch of "skateboard commandos," as they call the kids, for a tour of NASA.

of having a bacteria-free space hospital operative (that word again!) by 1986. (A space hospital doesn't need beds; just tie us with a yellow ribbon to the old center post so we don't float off to Jupiter, please!) Peter hangs back, focusing carefully on his lovely new wife.

Portia Rebecca Crockett Fonda is as tiny a whirlwind of efficiency, charm, hustle and strong-armed patience as her pioneer family name implies. Peter met Portia down in Key West when he filmed Tom McGuane's disastrous "92 in the Shade." She was married to Tom at the time.

The movie got lousy reviews, but Peter got Portia. He is still the godfather of Portia and Tom's son Tom, who is now Peter's stepson. (For Heaven's sake, it's better than being cloned.)

Admiring Portia's dazzling smile as she herds her flock in and out of the space exhibits, Peter remembers:

"When I first met her, I thought she was a remarkable woman, and that was that. I never said to myself, 'Gosh! I wouldn't mind having an affair with her!' Our meeting was just not on that level. I had too much respect for her as a woman, and one who was married to one of my best friends at that. I do remember thinking that nobody really appreciates that girl.

"Then, when I met her again in September 1974, she was very sad because she was divorcing Tom — and ding dong! Bingo! I'm the lucky fellow who now appreciates her. We were married in November 1975. She's the sweetest girl I've ever known."

STARRING IN "Futureworld," a science-fiction thriller, is Peter Fonda. Among locations for the film was the NASA space center in Houston.

FLEA MARKET

Marble played an early role

dan d'imperio

Q. "When was marble-top furniture fashionable in America?" — Mrs. G. P., York, Pa.

A. Marble for the masses was the chant of Victorian furniture makers. Between 1840 and 1900, American furniture emporiums exhibited a handsome array of marbletop pieces, including tables, bureaus, sideboards and commodes. It became especially popular with the vogue for rococo revival and renaissance revival styles of the mid-1800s. Sometimes white marble was utilized, although striking color combinations in shades of white and gray and pink and chocolate were also offered. Marbletop pieces are real flea market heavyweights. Value guide: bureau, walnut, 4-drawers, circa 1870, $250; table, walnut, oval marble, medium size, $275.

Q. "I'm on the prowl for Wallace Nutting prints! — Amy, Vancouver, Wash.

A. Lovely Nutting prints, distributed between the late 1890s and early 1940s, are rapidly becoming flea market favorites. The interior views are more valuable than the exterior views. Print buffs are surely making something out of Nutting! Value guide: A Bit of Sewing, 14-inches by 12½-inches, $30; Below the Arches, 10-inches by 13-inches, $28; Coming Out of Rosa, 11-inches by 13-inches, $25; The Way Through the Orchard, 17-inches by 15-inches, $20; Very Satisfactory, 14-inches by 17-inches, $32.

Q. "Has my collection of Daisy and Button glass gained in value?" — Mary, Petersburg, Va.

A. This clear and colored glass pattern has been pleasing homemakers since it was first introduced in the late 1800s. Despite the reproductions, many collectors deem Daisy and Button best. Value guide: butter chip, square, clear, $1.50; Bowl, oval, 12-inches by 9-inches, blue, $80; celery vase, triangular, green, $32; finger bowl, amber, $17; goblet, vaseline, $30; sauce dish, tri-cornered clear, $12; toothpick holder, hat-shaped, blue, $17; tumbler, amber, $21.

Q. "I've decided to start collecting old straight-edge razors. What can you tell me?" — John, Dallas, Tex.

A. You're starting your collection in the nick of time as these shaving accessories of the late 1800s and early 1900s are rated as tomorrow's antiques. American manufacturers, such as J. R. Torrey of Massachusetts, were competing for sales with imported straight-edge razors of European origin. The handles were made of various materials, including metal, bone, ivory, bamboo, wood and celluloid. Those with the fanciest handles fetch the fanciest prices. Value guide: Kenn Kutter, Simmon's Hardware Company, $12; Red Imp. with original box, $14.

Appraise your antiques with Dan D'Imperio's book and value and guide "The ABC's of Victorian Antiques", Dodd, Mead & Co., $9.95. An autographed copy may be ordered from the Star-Telegram Syndicate, Inc., 400 W. 7th St., Fort Worth, Tx 76102. Please include check or money order.

Long-lost heroines are something to sing about

By LINDA ZINK
Staff Writer

Gluttons for work, some would call them. Or crazy ladies, maybe.

Why else would these women be doing what their doing?

Their answer: "because it's fun."

"We've had a great time," agreed Betty Wylder, Jane Bradley and Harriet Williams, three Long Beach women who hope to produce a musical comedy about Revolutionary War heroines sometime this summer.

"We've discovered the most fascinating things in our research...amazing things you'd never read in a history book."

Mmes. Bradley and Williams instigated the project last fall after several unsuccessful attempts to get production rights to the satire "Stan Freberg Presents the United States of America."

Undaunted by the rejection, they decided to write a comedy of their own. Mrs. Bradley was called in to write the book for the musical.

"Except for writing a couple of songs, we didn't really get down to work until December," Mrs. Williams said.

"Mostly we worked on our own," Mrs. Wylder added. "We tried for a while to get together on a regular basis. But if you've ever taken a look at our calendars you'd realize it was a miracle we could get together at all."

MRS. BRADLEY, an environmentalist who is neck-deep in community projects, wrote most of the music.

"We have 13 songs in all," she noted. "Harriet wrote most of the lyrics, though in some cases she wrote both music and words and in other cases I did."

The women have tentatively agreed on the title "Patriots and Petticoats."

"We stole it right out of an article in National Geographic," Mrs. Wylder chuckled. "Fortunately for us, magazines can't copyright titles."

Initially the musical's theme was the general subject of the American Revolution. The trio later decided upon a Bicentennial salute to Revolutionary War heroines "because the women were more interesting."

Several little-known characters emerge in the hometown rewrite of American history. Among them is Deborah Sampson, who disguised herself as a man and distinguished herself on the battlefield. Another is Sybil Luddington, who like Paul Revere rode her horse across the countryside to alert patriots that the British were coming.

"Sybil had the more successful ride," Mrs. Wylder observed. "She didn't get caught."

Another principal character is Mary Katherine Goddard, editor of the Baltimore Advertiser. Editor Goddard was the first publisher to print the Declaration of Independence — and the first journalist to refuse to reveal her sources.

BILLED AS a musical comedy, "Patriots and Petticoats" (or whatever it is to be called) is more likely to get smiles and chuckles rather than deep belly laughs, the women agreed. In many scenes — such as one where a quiet Quaker girl writes her friends about the men at Valley Forge — the humor is subtle. But other scenes verge on slapstick, such as "The Father of Our Country Softshoe."

Research sources included the National Geographic article from which the musical's title was taken, a Time magazine special and numerous history books. Mrs. Bradley, a retired Long Beach librarian, did much of the formal research.

"After the first few songs were written — we'd agreed that these were characters that had to be in the show — we'd get together and talk about other possibilities," Mrs. Wylder said. "After a while, we just had to stop. The more research we did, the more potential we saw."

Aside from the minor rewriting, work on the musical is nearly completed. What remains is to assemble a production crew and a cast — a minimum of 16 singers, dancers and actors are needed — and put together financial backing.

"Depending on what we have to pay for — rent, musicians, stage crew — $5,000 might do it," Mrs. Wylder said.

A trial run of sorts is planned for June when the women will be taking their musical to Claremont for a meeting of the General Assembly of the Unitarian-Universalist Association. Other bookings are still up in the air.

"Everything's shaping up great," Mrs. Wylder remarked. "I think we're going to have a real fun show to present."

Hadassah plans youth luncheon

Annual Youth Aliyah luncheon sponsored by Long Beach Chapter of Hadassah will take place Wednesday at South Coast Plaza Hotel, 666 Anton Blvd., Costa Mesa.

"Hand in Hand" is theme for the 11 a.m. event, which benefits child rescue fund.

Guest speaker will be Mrs. Joseph Heller, past president of South Pacific Coast Region of Hadassah. A fashion show of Israeli designs from the Alex Selizberg School of Fashion also is scheduled.

In charge of arrangements are Mrs. Jimmy Bytel and Mrs. Randall Miller. Mrs. Corrinne Raynes is chapter president. Tickets are $36.

Britannia fete

Britannia Society of Long Beach will host a dance Saturday at 7:30 p.m. in Recreation Center, 3 Elm Way.

SOCIALLY SPEAKING

Gone fishin' for real

AFTER NEARLY 30 years with the Long Beach Recreation Department, Dick Weston has retired to go fishing.

Fishing rod was presented to him at a surprise retirement party at the Elks Club.

More than 200 guests watched as Dick's stepbrother, Ray Dunn, presented him with a refurbished rod that had belonged to Dick's father.

The sentimental offering was only one of many gifts including a Citizen's Band Radio presented to Dick at the buffet dinner dance.

Dick has held several posts with the department including senior park leader at Pan American Park for the past eight years.

Jackie Loeb was in charge of arrangments which included tracking down co-workers from past years and young people, now grown up, who "played at Dick's parks." Helpers were Carole White, June Stone, Glenn Swinburn and his wife, Eve, who served as co-conspirator.

Since the Westons recently observed a 40th wedding anniversary, she lured him to the Elks Club with a promise of a small family dinner.

Among family and long-time friends on hand to offer congratulations were the Westons' son, Rick and his wife, Adeline and daughter, Shirley Heely, and husband, Steve, Imogene Dunn, Dr. Ed and Doris Platz, new Mayor of Signal Hill Nick Mekis and Betty, Dick and Micky Chesnut and their son, Harry and his wife, Kathy from up Oxnard way and Mac and Alice Hamby from Hemet and Buddy and Adeline Kalench from Camarillo.

DRAT! I MISSED another bus trip.

Could have gone but I don't function well at eight in the morning and the invitation read SHARP!

Group JD of Ebell of Long Beach bused it to Barnsdall Park for a tour of Hollyhock House, designed by the famed architect Frank Lloyd Wright. He built it for Ailene Barnsdall in 1920.

Somehow or other the estate passed into public hands and is now open to the public for tours and is occasionally used by Los Angeles Mayor Tom Bradley for official entertaining.

Picnicking is also allowed so the JD's catered in from Stottlemyer's before reboarding the bus for a visit to the Los Angeles County Art Museum for a look at the Ahmanson Gallery and Sculpture gardens.

Everyone "did" the second tour except Bev Card and Joyce Sarver who split for nearby Farmers Market for some gourmet shopping.

Bus skipper was Ilene Cole.

Other tourers included JD Chairgal Louise Schinnerer, June Harris, Bev Fishbaugh, Joyce Ashcraft, Donna Nelson and June Meigs.

EQUAL TIME for the men readers.

Are you a member of Zeta Beta Tau Fraternity Inc.?

Or Phi Eps, Phi Sigs, Kappa Nu's or Phi Alphas. These fraternities have merged under one umbrella and rain or shine they will meet for a Founders' Day celebration.

The date is this Wednesday so you had better hurry and make a reservation.

Since the note I received on the event didn't include a reservation who, I suggest you call the Westwood Hyatt House located at 930 Hilgard Ave in Westwood to get your name in the pot.

AND FOR the lady Greeks.

Kappa Kappa Gamma Mother's Club at USC held its annual fund raising and fashion show at the chapter house.

Mothers and daughters attending from the Long Beach area included Mrs. Max Graham Miller and Penny, Garnette Hedley and Carolyn, "TD" Mahannah and Kim, Mary McMullen and Lisa, Mrs. Tom O'Toole and Colleen and Mrs. Frank Sunofsky and Jan.

Also Mrs. Lewis Webb and Karen, Jackie Campbell and Bonnie, JoAnn Gray and Debbie, Pat Roice and Lynn and Mrs. Willard Walls and Kristi.

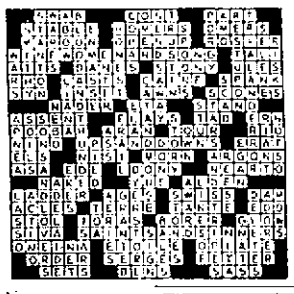

IT WASN'T a meeting of the Century Club.

It was a family reunion and joint birthday party for Herman Merrell who is three quarters of a century old in this Bicentennial year, Marge Williams who reached the half century mark and her sister, Carolyn Dickerson, who observed the quarter century birthdate.

Naturally, the buffet dinner was topped off with a red, white and blue cake bearing the names and ages of the honorees and a replica of the Liberty Bell.

Among those watching the cake cutting were Marge's son, Tom Williams, wife, Donna and their children Debbie, Casey and Russell, Marge's daughter, Gail Mistretta, husband, David and children Ramie, Paula, Nancy and David.

Others were Wayne Dickerson, husband of one of the honorees and their daughter, Melissa of Lindsay, and Helen Baggett also of Lindsay, Helen Merrell wife of one of the honorees and Faye Poling of Hotchkiss, Col.

AT WIT'S END

Accent the accent and she's yours

Advertisers have known for years what I am just starting to suspect.

Americans will buy anything if the pitcherperson has a foreign accent.

I'll buy a camera from Sir Laurence Olivier that I don't need, a car from Ricardo Montalban that I can't afford, and a headache from Joan Fontaine that I already have.

It's more than just the authoritative way in which a product is presented to us. I think Americans are just plain impressed with people who speak another language — even if it is their own.

It's dumb when you think about it. Take coffee. The housewife's authority on good coffee has to be Mrs. Olson. Old "spout mouth" whips in and out of houses like a revolving door spreading the richest kind of whole-bodied goodness wherever she goes.

Think about it. Sweden exports about two cups of coffee a year — not exactly their gross national product. So why should I believe Mrs. Olson?

OR BALLPOINT pens. I watched skier Jean-Claude Killy sit before a roaring fire penning a bit of prose to someone with his new pen and went out and bought a couple of dozen. Since when is France the ballpoint pen capital of the world?

In our minds we have built up myths about different countries. We believe that all European

erma bombeck

women are beauties and have flawless skin. (Would it shock you to know that I once saw a contessa with a cold sore?)

We know that all Italians are good cooks, the Irish smell like soap, and the Japanese are fanatically neat and would never throw a candy wrapper on the floor.

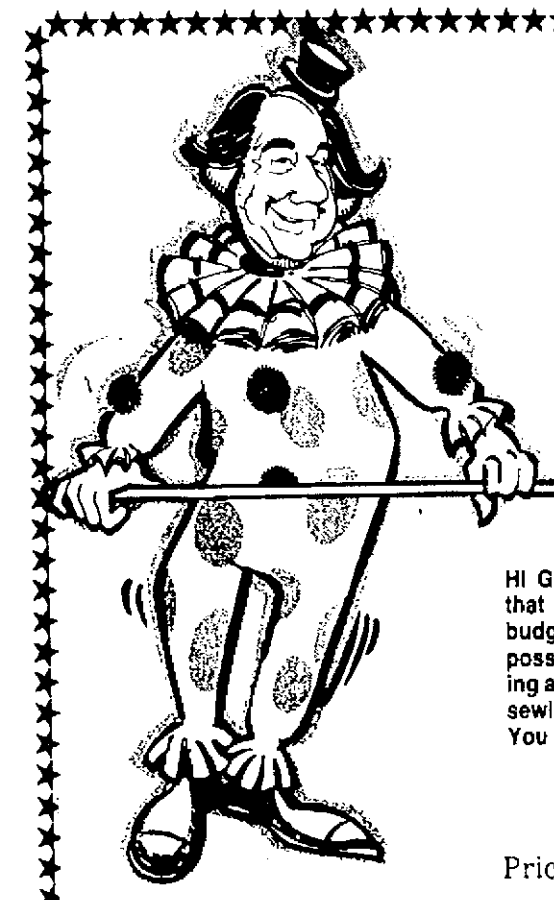

And when it comes to men, we all know it's Frenchmen like Louis Jordan who would send us flowers or Englishmen like Peter Sellers who would fly us first class anywhere in the world.

I even bought the bit from the Spanish beauty who said, "I am a shy person. Please go out and buy my wine so I won't have to make any more commercials."

FACE IT, we're still under the influence of the old world. I expect any day now on the Bicentennial minute to hear: "The voyage from Southhampton to the Colonies was a rough one and would have been rougher without Mother Hill's Seasick Pills. They soothed upset tummies, brought down fever, and took care of irregularities. The Pilgrims arrived in their new country feeling refreshed and ready to revolt. This is Queen Elizabeth and that's the way it was."

KEITH D. CURRY

CHEF OF THE WEEK

Easily identifies with needs of youth

He appears to be making coffee, but that big can is just the photographer's prop. However, there is a similarity in that word "big." Keith Curry, today's chef of the week, has a BIG job!

Effective Jan. 16, he was appointed by City Manager John Mansell as director of Long Beach's new Division of Youth Affairs.

At the age of 20, he is the youngest division head in the city manager's office.

Job of the Division of Youth Affairs, Curry said, will be to coordinate all Long Beach programs and services for young people, both those of government and private agencies, and to evaluate their effectiveness.

mildred flanary

Born in Long Beach, Curry attended Long Beach public schools, graduating with honors from Millikan High School. He is a student at Long Beach State University, majoring in political science with concentration in public administration and urban studies.

APPOINTED BY the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors to the Los Angeles County Commission on Youth, Curry has served as chairman and instituted publication of a commission newsletter. He also was responsible for conducting hearings into the Juvenile Justice System, and testified before the Board of Supervisors' inquiry into that subject. A member of the legislative, education and political awareness committee, he developed the "Research Associate" program which allows young people to receive school credit while gaining experience in state government.

Curry also has traveled to Sacramento to lobby on behalf of commission proposals and served as panelist at both the League of California Cities, and the California Junior Statesmen Conferences. He also was keynote speaker at the 1975 Federation of Community Coordinating Council's annual conference on juvenile delinquency.

CURRY'S WORK with youth started during his high school years. While at Millikan, he was student body treasurer for three terms; served as commissioner of publicity and as lieutenant governor for Key Club, (Kiwanis youth honorary. He was captain of the debate team; a California Junior Statesman, and served on both the student advisory committee and the ecology board.

In college, he was a member of the Associated Student Senate; Kappa Sigma Fraternity, and was appointed representative for the county Bicentennial committee.

Curry is described by a close friend as being "very professional, quick minded, sharp and perceptive. He's impeccable, always wears a three-piece suit with matching shirt, and has not a hair out of place."

We're also told that even though he has lived in his new apartment for two months, he still doesn't know where the range is. However, we attribute that situation to his busy schedule.

Curry says, "I worked during school in Farrell's Ice Cream Parlor — at the hamburger range. I've always been a 'meat and potato' man, and a great seafood fan." Today his recipe is for Broiled Halibut Steak complete with Parsley Butter Sauce.

BROILED HALIBUT STEAK

Marinate 1-inch steaks in salad oil and lemon juice for ½ hour. Wipe dry and broil until flesh is white and firm, turning carefully when first side begins to brown. Before serving, spread with Parsley Butter.

PARSLEY BUTTER SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter
1 teaspoon minced parsley
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Salt and pepper

Cream butter, add parsley, lemon juice, salt and pepper. Spread over hot broiled fish or steak.

Dear Mother Earth:

DEAR MOTHER EARTH:

I received a beautiful Boston fern for Christmas but I'm at a complete loss about how to care for it. I hear so many different versions that I'd appreciate it if you'd set me straight once and for all. I'll be forever grateful. I don't want my fern to die. — A.S.

DEAR A.S.:

Unfortunately, the mortality rate among ferns is very high; most people simply can't find a proper place for these delicate beauties. There are, however, certain rules to follow for maximum results. If this is repetitious for some of you, use it as a "booster" shot, if you will, because there's really nothing quite so beautiful as a fern that's weathered the transition from greenhouse to your house. We've seen Bostons up to 40 and 50 years old that are, simply stated, magnificent.

Make sure your fern is either hanging or sitting on a pedestal so the fronds can fall free and breathe properly; make sure the spot is light and cool and keep the fern dampish at all times, making sure to give it a thorough watering at least once a week. Feed a slightly acidic plant food or special fern food at least once a month during the growth period and constantly trim off the brown fronds that will inevitably appear no matter how well your fern is doing. If you can succeed with ferns, you will be eligible to join a small but elite group of very proud plant people who can smile impishly when they ask, "How's your fern?" Happy growing!

(If you have any questions to ask DEAR MOTHER EARTH, send them in care of this paper. As many as possible will be used in this column.)

ADVICE TO THE TAXLORN

Compute lifetime income

DEAR MR. SMITH: I am eligible for retirement income credit. However, my wife has not received earned income in excess of $600 in each of any 10 calendar years before 1975. Since we are married residents of a community property state, would she be entitled to the retirement income credit? IRS instructions are not clear to me.

If she is not entitled to retirement income credit, can you tell me why the old fashioned housewife, who works hard but not for salary, is penalized by our tax system? — A.T.W.

Your wife is probably entitled to the retirement income credit, based on the facts you state. Your complaint about housewives losing out is at least partly answered in community property states.

The IRS says that your wife can establish eligibility for the credit by using her own wages for any years that she worked, plus one-half her husband's community income earnings for any year in which they lived in a community property state. Combine those earnings, annually for her entire lifetime; each year that has a total of more than $600 counts as one year toward the 10 years needed.

jacob smith

Remember that all earnings count for this purpose — even though, for some reason, the earnings weren't subject to income tax or social security tax, at the time they were earned.

DEAR MR. SMITH: I granted two easements through some land which I own to a California public sewer district. I received no remuneration. I have received different opinions as to whether the donation of the easement is deductible as a charitable contribution. What is your opinion? Is there any government publication which can help me in this matter. — B.T.

A gift to any governmental unit may be designated as a charitable contribution if the gift is for exclusively public purposes. If you specified in advance of making the donation that you must receive some direct benefit from it, then you have not made a charitable gift.

The IRS has ruled that the gift of a restrictive easement in perpetuity to the U.S., for example, is deductible as a charitable contribution. Therefore, if you made a gift of perpetual easements to a California state unit, and if you received no benefit in exchange, you may have a valid charitable deduction.

The final question is how to compute the amount deductible, which will be based on current market value rather than on original cost. You may be able to determine the specific current value of the easements granted by comparing the value of the total property immediately before and after the date of the gift.

Aces on bridge

Dear Mr. Corn:

I understand that screens separate partners from each other's sight in high level bridge matches. Is the purpose to prevent cheating?

Custom Drapes,
Des Moines

Answer: Partially, yes, but more important to remove the clouds of suspicion of inadvertent cheating. There's practically never any deliberate cheating.

Without screens, it is most difficult to keep from telltale hesitations, voice and tone inflections and other mannerisms so easily interpreted by experienced high level players.

The screens eliminate the problem and the concensus of players canvassed has established that the game is easier without having to worry about the possibility of unintentionally transmitting illegal information.

ira corn

Eugenie Mathe, who writes the L.O.L. column for the Southern Calif. Bridge News tells of her experience as a monitor (with screens, a monitor calls out two bids at one time made by two opponents on one side of a screen).

"One exhausted player dozed off while waiting for his opponent to point to his bid. The monitor waited politely, thinking some deep thought was in progress. Suddenly a small snore cleared up the situation. Another plus for having curtains. Imagine your consternation if you realized your partner had fallen asleep!"

Dear Mr. Corn:

How many points do I need to overcall after an original pass?

Need Help
Perth Amboy, N.J.

Answer: In overcalls the quality of the suit is more important than raw point count. A good general guide is the rule of two and three. If vulnerable, an overcaller should reasonably expect to take within two tricks of his bid in his own hand. If not vulnerable, within three tricks.

Dear Mr. Corn:

This was the bidding and I passed my partner's double. He claimed it was for takeout. Was I forced to bid?

Opp.	Me	Opp.	Part.

Women are asking...

'I'd like to expand my world, but I have so little time to read. What can I do?'

By REBA and BONNIE CHURCHILL

"To learn more, read more!" That's the opinion of a group of experts who suggest by practicing speed reading you can expand your world. They point to outstanding successes who have taken the average 250 words per minute reading rate and jumped it to 900 words and higher.

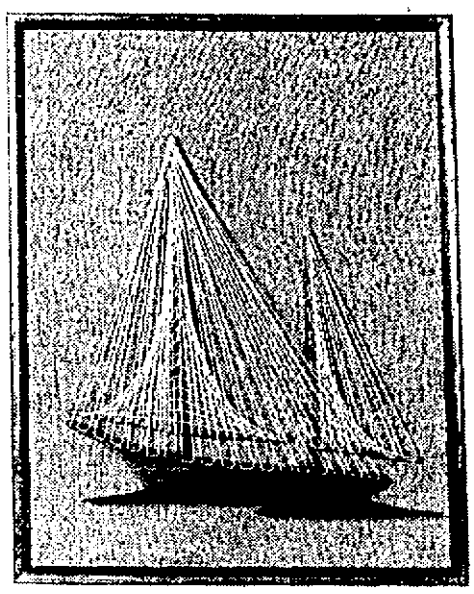

Let's see how fast you read. Read a book, magazine or newspaper for five minutes. (Use a stop watch, if possible.) Mark how far you have read. Then, count the number of words and divide by five. The resulting figure is your words-per-minute rate. If you'd like to accelerate, again practice reading. Place two fingers on your throat. If your larynx moves, you are "subvocaltzing" or mouthing the words to yourself. You're slowing yourself down because you cannot read words faster than you can pronounce them.

Another "slower-downer" is listening to each word formed as you read. However, if you can recognize the word and communicate it instantly to the mind, you can read as fast as the eye can see. This "sight" reader is ahead of the others when it comes to speed.

Educators point out it's not necessary to look at every letter of every word to get the idea of the sentence. They suggest using a pencil or ruler and moving vertically down a column in the newspaper or the page of a book. Focus on the line and read vertically. Read phrases (to make words stand out, focus just above the words instead of on the line itself). Do not let eyes or head swing from side to side. Make gaze read vertically, stretch your word span, try to progress faster than you believe possible.

One goal is to make sure the eyes stop no more than three times per line. Schools and special reading courses offer specialized help for your particular needs. See how your world expands as you are able to read more books and articles faster.

P.S. Like to expand your learning power? Check the 12-page booklet which gives pointers on speed reading, memory improvement, vocabulary and study habits. Send 50 cents in coin and a self-addressed,, stamped envelope to: Reba & Bonnie Churchill, "Expand Your Learning Power," Independent Press Telegram, P.O. Box 46-181, Hollywood, Ca. 90046.

Workshop

Here's a project anyone can tackle with shipshape results guaranteed. Just string up this sailboat and hang it in your den, children's room or the living room. Folks won't get over how clever you are!

All you need is some elastic cord (available at yardage dealers) or a good quality white string. Then get some brass nails, a few scrap pieces of wood for the hull and waves (it's a 3-dimensional picture) and some doweling for the masts.

Finally, pick up a piece of plywood, cut to 18" x 24" and cover it with tan-colored burlap. Once you have the materials, just follow the step-by-step pattern. Simply string the cord piece like the one shown here. The only way we could make it any easier would be to make one for you...and that would spoil all your fun!

To order the full-size Sailboat Wall Plaque Pattern 527, send $2 (includes first class postage and handling) by cash, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Independent Press Telegram, Pattern Dept. P. O. Box 2383 Van Nuys, CA 91409.

FASCINATING FABRICS

Resurgence of quilting interest

frances dietrich

Quilting, the assembly of two layers of fabric and a center of soft padding, was created centuries ago to provide extra warmth in clothing and bedding.

Eventually, women with inherent artistry embellished the plain fabric bed quilt with small-stitch patterns — scrolls, shell shape, waves, geometrics. The basic design elements added beauty and practicality; the smaller stitches holding the padding in place more effectively.

An art form was created, which has been popular ever since. The next development was the applique of colorful pieces of fabric to the quilt top. By the 1600s, ornate applique and quilt stitchery designs by professional artists were in demand in England, France and Italy.

Hand-made quilts traveled to America in the Mayflower; cherished possessions. When the quilts wore out in places, enterprising Colonial women patched them with usable fabric salvaged from outworn clothing. Later, entire quilts were made from pieces of used fabric as American women did not have access to new textiles, the British discouraging domestic production and prohibiting imports.

A truly American art-mode was born — patchwork quilting. Out of the disorder of the "crazy" quilt, precise patterns were developed that were indigenous to a way of life. Throughout the 1800s, boys and girls in almost every family cut out pieces for "blocks." Included were Dwight D. Eisenhower and Calvin Coolidge, who also helped sew the blocks together. Quilts they worked on are in the homesteads of the respective Presidents.

CURRENTLY, we're experiencing a terrific resurgence of interest in hand-made quilts and quilted fabric for clothing, accessories and home furnishings. This is attributable partly to the Bicentennial and to a renaissance in the needle arts.

A notable example was reported in the Cape Cod (Mass.) Times. Colleen Harquil, high school junior, hand-stitched a full-size patch-work quilt in pinwheel design, from scraps of dress fabric. She embroidered it with the signatures of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

The three basic quilt types are still the plain fabric top quilted in elaborate design; appliqued and or embroidered top, and the muslin top covered with patchwork. Fabric for top and bottom should be tightly woven and preshrunk. Patches and applique should be colorfast, nonraveling and preshrunk. Broadcloth, muslin, calico, chintz, gingham and percale are suitable, preferably 100 per cent cotton. Polyester or a blend of polyester and cotton may be used if not permanent press. Resin finish makes fabric too rigid for the amount of handling required and it is resistant to needle thrust.

Batting (filling) available today is far better than material available to our ancestors. A modern example is Mountain Mist batting in either cotton or polyester. It is surface-treated with a gossamer-like covering that maintains an even thickness during quilting and usage; no thick and thin places. It is available in standard size, can be abutted without a ridge.

READER SERVICE: The book, "Anyone Can Quilt," has complete instruction for the beginner and numerous tips beneficial to the expert; color illustrations of handsome applique and piece designs as well as quilt stitch patterns. It may be obtained by sending check for $3.20, which includes postage, to Sears and Foster, P.O. Box 15380, Lockland, Cincinnati, Ohio 45215.

Tea for Gold Star Mothers set

The fifth annual tea for Gold Star Mothers sponsored by the Los Angeles Area Chapter of the U.S. Submarine Veterans of World War II will take place next Sunday at 12:45 p.m. in Gold Star Manor, Santa Fe Avenue and Spring Street.

Special guests will be the eight Gold Star mothers in the area who lost sons on submarine duty during World War II. They are Mmes. Elizabeth Barber, Della Bird, Lillian Brazier, Adele Flader, Ettie Hicks, Janice Moore, Gladys Mullaney, Ann Porter and Agnes Pugner.

A bell tolling ceremony will commemorate the men lost at sea.

Let's all pull together!

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Editor

Even the weather has cooperated for 10 years to make the annual Friends of the Museum's Art Bazaar one of the jolliest events of the year. There's every reason to suppose that the sun will shine and the sky be blue next Sunday when the grounds of Long Beach Museum of Art, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd., again will ring with the sounds of people having fun — youngsters, teens, adults, seniors. It's an everybody-join-in, very informal affair that will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m.

The theme?

"Pulling Together"— what else?

It's the spirit of pulling together that has brought everyone involved with the museum to this exciting time when we're looking forward to a handsome new museum in the Civic Center.

THE OLD, THE NEW and the avant-garde will have places at the bazaar next Sunday. Consider: Some 80 Southland artists have been invited to display their work for sale, ceramics, sculpture, jewelry, stitchery, graphics, watercolors, batiks, macrame, mixed media.

Admission is free, but if you want to buy door prize tickets for only 50 cents each, you might take home some special works of art after the drawing at 3:30 p.m.

Six artists have donated prizes: Ruth deNicola, a composition; Kenn Glenn, sculpture; Robert T. Healy, jewelry; Terry Lande, ceramics; Joan Roundtree, an etching; and Marjorie Trout, soft sculpture.

From the museum Bookshop there's another contribution, reproductions from the Metropolitan Museum of Art of four crystal tumblers in the diamond and sunburst design.

You needn't be hungry. Food will be catered — hot dogs, sandwiches, popcorn — the kind of thing you'd expect on fair grounds.

But the big news here is that for the first time there will be a Pub where beer and pickled eggs will be for sale!

FOR THE CHILDREN, Papa Pockets (Jack W. Hazelton) will perform feats of wonder and magic in his revue, "The Whimsey Works." He'll give five shows of 40 minutes each beginning at 10:20 a.m. Plenty of time for you to roam the green lawns to the strains of music, visiting art displays, talking to artists.

Putting all this together is the bazaar committee: Barbara Ferguson, June Young, Suzanne Manton and Joan Joy. Friends president Barbara Fallon even painted a mirror for the Pub setting and countless hours have gone into planning a day of pure fun.

Of course, there's a more serious purpose for the bazaar which comes under the general heading of supporting and promoting the museum. That was the purpose when the Friends formed with only a few members in 1959.

Their numbers have grown to nearly 100 and the original small art auctions they held to raise money have given way to the Art Bazaar which now attracts approximately 5,000 fun-seekers, many of them art buyers, each year.

arts

IN THE PUB, Bruce Ferguson serves as bartender, joining in a toast to good times, with June Young, left, and Judy Millan.

Staff Photos by CURT JOHNSON

THE FRIENDS do other good things, too. They sponsor art classes for children and adults, conduct a docent program and have had an active art rental project. Although some activities have been curtailed because plans for the new museum take office space and staff time, the Friends stand ready to host receptions for the opening of new exhibits and to accept other duties when called on.

Speaking of exhibits, three will be on view in the museum, the "Brett Weston Retrospective" photographic show, "The Health and Safety Game" by Fred Lonider and "Somebody's Making a Mistake" by Philip Steinmetz.

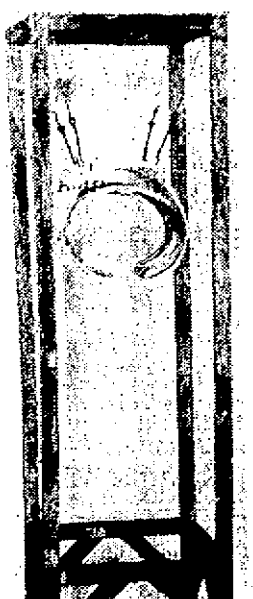

So come along next Sunday, join the crowd, meet the artists, sip some suds or soft drinks, enjoy the art. The Friends and the museum will welcome you!

LBCC exhibits innovative work

Multi-media constructionists Sue Dorman, Brian Miller and John Schroeder have a three-person show at Long Beach City College Art Gallery, 4901 E. Carson St. which will hang through May 7.

'BALANCE' by Sue Dorman is one of multi-media constructions in current three-person show at Long Beach City College.

Gallery director Michiel Daniel says that their works share common characteristics. "All three artists work on a small scale with fetish-like objects, combining a number of media in unusual juxtapositions."

Long Beach resident Sue Dorman creates small objects from unrelated materials to make a very intimate statement; Daniel links her works with new media and conceptual art.

Brian Miller of Laguna Beach, a college photography instructor, uses small pieces of his photographs somewhere within a larger work which, says Daniel, "include odds and ends to create a child-like piece." Miller's work, he notes, is closely related to process art.

John Schroeder, a Los Angeles resident, is a leader in the second generation of assemblage artists. His work takes him to the deserts of Arizona, California and New Mexico, to search for objects related to the American Indian, directly and indirectly. Some of his works are small boxes with glass walls, containing such items as arrowheads, feathers, driftwood and bones. Schroeder also sets aside an occasional man-made object to recall a human presence through personal association.

This admission-free exhibit will be on display Mondays through Thursdays from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The gallery also is open Mondays through Wednesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

STUDENTS of these high schools — Lakewood, Mayfair, Artesia — and of Cerritos and Long Beach City colleges are eligible for the first annual Scholarship Show sponsored by Lakewood Artist Guild. A $100 scholarship will be given to a student artist from each school. The entries will be juried by five members of the guild.

No entry fee is required. Students should begin preparing their exhibits for the June 6 show.

As for guild members, they are preparing for their Open Show at Lakewood Pan American Fiesta de Amistad. Juror will be Joseph Mugnaini, head of the art department at Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles. He will donate his fee to a deserving student at Otis in the name of Lakewood Artist Guild. The show will be at Mayfair Park, Clark avenue and South Street, Lakewood, from Thursday through May 2.

ALL ADULT artists in Southern California are invited to take part in a Bicentennial Art Competition May 22 and 23 in San Pedro. It will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 22 and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. May 23 in the American President Lines Passenger Terminal, Berth 93A, Harbor Boulevard and Swinford. The Sounds of Faith, Watts Symphony, and the Tamburiza Croatia are musical groups that will entertain visitors. Admission is free.

Contest entry forms may be picked up at San Pedro City Hall, Room 408, 638 S. Beacon St., San Pedro 90731.

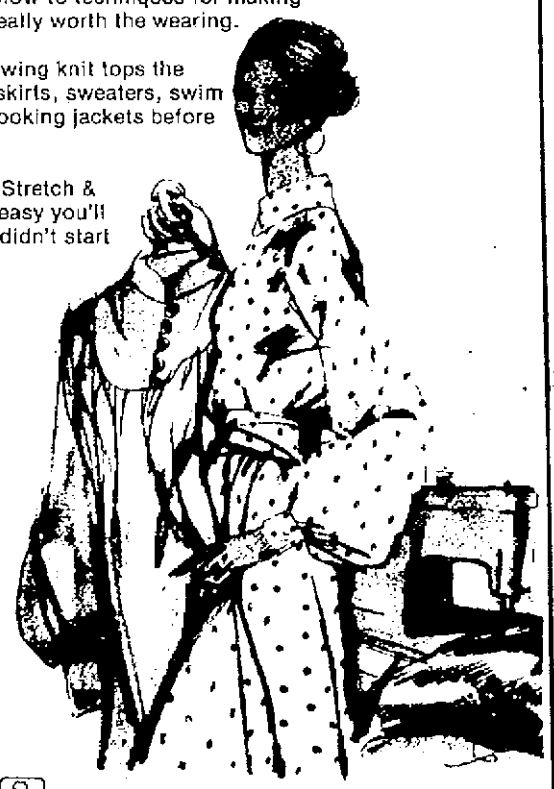

THE UPSTAIRS Gallery has acquired the inventory and location of the Windsor Gallery, 275 S. La Cienega Blvd., Beverly Hills. President Maurie Symonds of the Upstairs Gallery says the company is liquidating most of the Windsor art in order to remodel, refurbish and convert the premises into another Upstairs Gallery. Director will be Herb Hamrell.

The company also has galleries in Newport Center, Newport Beach; Arco Plaza in downtown Los Angeles, and on Reseda Boulevard, Northridge, in the San Fernando Valley.

Headquarters remain in Long Beach where the company started and now is located at 3850 Cherry Ave. The public is invited to meet Leroy Nieman at the Long Beach Gallery May 3 from 7 to 10 p.m. when an exhibition of his art opens. Nieman, one of the largest selling sports artists in the country, will autograph his posters and books.

JAMES L. VILLERS
Unusual dining in Wine Cellar

ON A REFRESHING spring day like this, what could be more appropriate than a brief drive along the California coast for brunch or dinner at Del Webb's celebrated Newporter Inn in Newport Beach?

The inn is at 1107 Jamboree Road, occupying 26 hilltop acres of the historic Irvine Ranch. It has everything from hotel suites to a golf course, the John Wayne Tennis Club, entertainment rooms and epicurean dining in the elegant Marine Restaurant. This department highly recommends the cuisine and waiter service in the old world Marine Restaurant because maitre d' John Vogado has assembled a staff which really cares.

The inn accepts phone reservations for the Sunday hunt breakfast in the Marine Restaurant as well as its dinners. The number is (714) 644-1700. The hunt breakfast, 9 a.m. to 2 p.m., is priced from $3.95, including a glass of champagne. Dinner is served Sundays starting at 4 p.m., emphasizing such continental enchantments as scampi Andaluz, tenderloin of beef Granada; thick juicy prime rib of beef, rack of lamb, medallions of veal, lobster, the finest filet mignon and N.Y. steak. The prices, $7 to over $10, include soup or choice of three salad varieties, potatoes or rice and vegetable du jour.

The new general manager of the Newporter Inn is James L. Villers, who replaced Edward M. Nigro, recently promoted to vice president of operations for Del Webb Hotels, Inc. Villers was formerly director of sales at the MGM Grand Hotel in Las Vegas. Before that he was assistant to the general manager at the Sands Hotel in Las Vegas.

One of the most fascinating restaurants at the Newporter is the Wine Cellar, reminiscent of castle dining in medieval Europe. Decorated with antiques, it is very plush with seating for only 34 persons. Tuesday through Saturday nights, starting at 7, it serves feasts for the gourmet by reservation only. The Cellar has four elaborate feasts, $17 per person. Each is served nightly for one week on a prearranged schedule printed in a small calendar booklet.

The Cellar's feast starting this Tuesday night will feature Menu No. 1. It will include such courses as consomme au sherry, crab legs Juneau, wilted spinach salad flambe, tournedoes of beef tenderloin Rossini, imported cheeses, fresh fruits, sweet meats, chocolate mints and coffee. The Cellar's maitre d' is Marcel M. Orlandie, who has great expertise in helping guests choose from its extensive list of superlative wines.

The Marine Restaurant has entertainment Wednesday through Sunday nights by harpist Rosalie Corson. The Lido Lounge has fast-paced contemporary music and dancing nightly (but not Sundays) to Jackie Nigro and the Plain Truth group.

FROM PARAMOUNT BOULEVARD to the San Gabriel River channel, and from Ashworth Street to Carson Street, the people of Lakewood love to praise the cooking artistry of their beloved Italian friend, Joe Manno.

In nearby cities — from Long Beach to Downey and from Norwalk to Garden Grove — many others also sing the praises of Joe Manno, because he's such a nice guy as well as an artistic restaurateur. For over 24 years, Joe has been a familiar figure on the streets of Lakewood, waving greetings to his many friends, stopping to chat with them in his warm Italian way. When he opened Manno's Italian Restaurant in the early 1950s, it was a small place at 5607 E. South St., just east of Bellflower Boulevard. Today it is large with three dining rooms, each with a different Italian decor and personality.

Why has Manno's been so successful during an era when many other restaurants have failed? You don't have to look any farther for the answer than Joe himself. He loves to cook, he loves his restaurant and he wants to make each visitor happy to be there. Joe has succeeded in doing this since the day he first opened, creating such wonderful entrees and such rich Italian sauces that people often tell him: "Joe, you NEVER let us down. Whenever we bring in our friends, they fall in love with your place."

Born in Naples, Italy, Joe learned the art of gourmet cooking while a chef at the posh Quo Vadis restaurant in London. His cooking is never too "heavy" or too robustly Italian. His regular menu offers classic dishes equal in quality and imagination to the finest cuisine in the finest Italian restaurants of Hollywood or San Francisco. Among the choices are fettuccini Alfredo (noodles in a white buttercream sauce); chicken cacciatore, made with butter, mushrooms and wine; stuffed cannelloni (the big noodles); veal parmigiana (a dish which requires much expertise); rich, cheesy lasagna, gnocchi with marinara sauce, linguine with clams and many others.

The prices are sensible for such quality, $4.15 (spaghetti with sauce) to $5.75. Included are the best minestrone (steaming Italian soup) and salad with bleu cheese or Italian dressing, hot garlic toast and coffee or tea. Manno's (closed Mondays) has special dinners for $3.75 Tuesday through Thursday nights, including all those accompaniments and choice of 11 entrees, ranging from lasagna and cannelloni with meatball to rigatoni, gnocchi and other pastas. For those with smaller appetites, Manno's has many a la carte dinners at lower prices.

Other treasures include steamed clams Neapolitan-style, $3.50, and the New York steak, $7.95 on the large dinner. Joe's wine list is extensive and impressive.

WITH A SCAN time of 20 seconds, Memorial Medical Center's EMI whole-body scanner will enable doctors to differentiate between normal and abnormal growth in soft tissues and abdominal organs.

Body scanner gives quick, thorough tumor detection

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

A new revolutionary diagnostic device that uses X rays is coming to Long Beach.

It's an EMI whole-body scanner and it's scheduled for delivery in July at Memorial Hospital Medical Center of Long Beach.

Through an X-ray picture, it provides the information doctors would see if they could open the body on a hinge.

The whole-body scanner, in essence, allows doctors to "hinge" the body at any site.

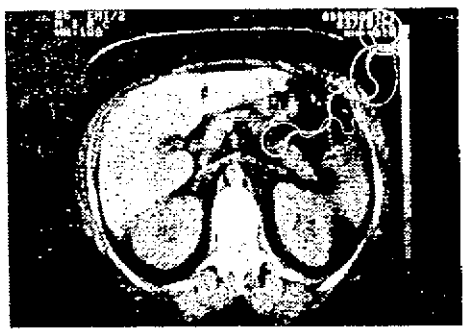

Dr. William J. Wilson, director of Memorial's radiology department, says that conventional X rays can show clearly defined bone structure. But it is almost impossible to differentiate between normal and abnormal growth in soft tissues and abdominal organs.

The new whole-body scanning process, called axial tomography, is able to detect minute differences in soft-tissue density. These differences are presented with unprecedented detail and accuracy, Dr. Wilson said.

"Functionally, scanners marry the penetrating quality of the X ray to the data processing capability of the computer," Dr. Wilson said. "The images produced are created by the computer and not by mechanical or photosensitive means."

The scanner examines thin cross sections of tissue at various depths within the body.

A cross section of the chest, for example, would show the presence of tissue such as bone, fat and muscle — the heart, lungs, spinal column, ribs and skin of the patient.

WHOLE-BODY scan picture shows liver; pancreas, kidneys, spine, spinal cord and aorta (the great artery.

THE PROCEDURE is completely painless. The patient is subjected to the same amount of radiation, or less, than that employed by conventional X-ray procedures.

The patient reclines on a couch which passes through the central aperture of the scanning gantry. Using control switches beside the cough, the technician can adjust the position of the couch and move it horizontally through the aperture until the section of the body to be examined is located precisely between the X ray source and an array of detectors on a frame in the gantry.

The scanning equipment moves around the patient's body. As it moves, it takes thousands of health

individual readings that are processed by computer into a single picture — 100 times more sensitive than regular X rays.

Dr. Wilson says that what makes the EMI whole-body scanner so unique is its speed — the rapidity at which it scans. Also superb are the resolution and definition of the images produced by the device.

"Certain parts of the body cannot be held immobile for the several minutes most other scanners will require," Dr. Wilson commented. "The chest and more specifically the lung tissue must be scanned while the patient holds his breath. But the EMI scan time of 20 seconds, many times faster than other scanners, allows successful processing and display of the delicate lung tissue."

The whole-body scanner should permit earlier diagnosis of acute inflammatory processes as well as show early changes of cancer.

The scanner will replace certain more involved diagnostic procedures which require a hospital stay and administration of anesthesia.

Dr. Wilson said that Dr. William Glenn of the famed Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, will be joining Memorial's radiology department to direct body-scanning procedures.

The EMI body scanner will help physicians detect tumors of the kidney and pancreas, abnormal cavities in the spinal cord, enlargement of the liver and spleen, and blood clots that indicate certain kinds of strokes.

MEDICINE AND YOU

Abortions still denied

Hundreds of thousands of American women who wanted abortions last year could not obtain them even though the U. S. Supreme Court had overturned restrictive state abortion laws.

The Planned Parenthood Federation of America estimates the number of such women to be between 400,000 and 900,000.

The federation has released an 88-page report

ben zinser

prepared by its research and development division, the Alan Guttmacher Institute.

The report shows that more than one-third of the women who could not obtain abortions were poor, and 186,000 of them were under 20 years old.

Dr. Christoper Tietze, the chief investigator, said:

"The shocking fact is that the Supreme Court decision has had little effect on hospitals."

Dr. Tietze, senior consultant of the Population Council, added:

"Most of the unmet abortion needs end up in the cradle."

Because of the inability to obtain abortions, many women enter into precipitous marriages, and others drop out of school, the report says. Other consequences include an estimated 50,000 illegal or self-induced abortions annually, unwanted or mistimed births and out-of-wedlock births.

The report charges that hospitals across the nation, especially public hospitals, failed to undertake abortion services. By the first quarter of 1974, only 15 per cent of public hospitals had performed even a single abortion, it was alleged.

COMMENT: From time to time this column will give both sides of the abortion question, strictly from the medical and sociological viewpoints. Conclusions should probably not be drawn until more is known about reproductive physiology. More research is needed. And education. Few persons understand the physiology of reproduction. A Southland news reporter (and a college graduate) recently wrote that human fertilization takes place in the womb. It doesn't.

Liver affected

Liver tumors may be related to the use of oral contraceptives, UC Irvine researchers report.

One type of liver tumor was found n 23 patients taking oral contraceptives of various kinds. Twenty of these patients went to the doctor with the complaint of upper abdominal pain.

Four of the patients died after liver surgery because of massive blood loss. Another patient died later.

Details are in the journal Obstetrics & Gynecology.

Keeping weight off

Exercise and reduction of food intake are the only two methods by which an obese patient can lose weight and keep it off, says an obesity expert, Dr. Grant Gwinup.

Crash diets only distract patients from making the difficult changes in lifestyle that are necessary for permanent weight control, he says.

Dr. Gwinup is professor of endocrinology and medicine at UC Irvine College of Medicine.

The physician's role in helping obese patients is to educate them to this reality.

Obesity is a leading public health problem in the United States. Finding a cure for cancer would add only two years to the life of the average American. But curing obesity would add seven years to the life span.

Details appear in Family Practice News, a newspaper for physicians.

Labor made easier

Women who use the self-administered Analgizer anesthetic vaporizer often have a smoother labor than thse who are unanesthetized, say doctors in France.

About half of the patients using the Analgizer (methoxyflurane) experienced uninterrupted uterine contractions from the time the medication was started.

Eighty-three of the 100 women in the study reported excellent or satisfactory pain relief. Seventy-one had complete relief from pain.

The report is in Ob. Gyn News, a medical newspaper.

Methodone lessens sex urge

Men on methadone maintenance programs have been found to have impaired fertility and ability to perform sexually, a new study shows.

The study, conducted by doctors at Washington University School of Medicine, St. Louis, showed a number of sexual malfunctions. There also was a decreased sex urge.

The report is in Hospital Physician, a periodical for doctors.

IN-SIGHTS

Groups help child abusers

In the past few years, child abuse has become more "visible" as a significant social problem. The concern for abused or battered children stems not only from sympathy for a helpless child. Of equal significance is the increasingly recognized fact that when abused children grow up, they are more likely to be violent and child abusers themselves.

A continuing problem has been to identify abusing parents and get them involved in some program to reduce the likelihood of their abusing their children. A practical means to identify the problem parents has been suggested by Robert Olson, R.N., M.A., who has worked in maternal-child health for many years.

dr. walt menninger

Olson's paper on "Screening for Child Abusers" appeared in the January, 1976, "American Journal of Nursing," and it presents an index of suspicion for potential abusive adults. He calls attention to four types of family structure or behavior patterns often associated with maltreatment of children:

Family units which are highly structured, authoritarian, inflexibly disciplined, and in which attempts at family-staff interaction are suppressed or rechanneled into superficial conversation.

Family units with documented drug addiction or alcoholism of one or both parents.

Family units with documented psychosis, neurosis, or mental deficiency of one or both parents.

Family units with loose, ill-defined structure, and evidence of emotional immaturity of one or both parents.

AN INDEX OF suspicion is developed by a weighted scoring of various aspects of the parents and child. Specifically noted are (1) the attitude of the parent in dealing with the staff, (2) the family structure, (3) family problems, (4) religious affiliation, (5) circumstances surrounding labor and delivery, (6) cultural factors and (7) history of the child or siblings — hospitalization, bruises, burns, fractures, etc.

Olson offers some case illustrations of extreme risk and very high risk families. One case was identified as an extreme risk after the child was brought to the emergency room twice in her first five weeks of life, with soft tissue injuries and burns. Ten days after Juvenile Protective Services entered the case, the child was brought to the emergency room dead from a brain hemorrhage. Her father had not been able to tolerate her crying and had beaten her with a piece of firewood.

Even if you do have a high index of suspicion for potential child abuse, it is not always easy to know where to turn and what to do. As the awareness of this problem has increased, so have organizations working on it.

RECENTLY established is the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse (111 East Wacker Drive, Chicago, IL 60601). This organization publishes a national newsletter, "Caring," as well as other informational and educational materials, including a directory of Child Abuse Services and Information. It also seeks to establish a volunteer network in 50 states, the first already started in Kansas.

The National Center for the Prevention and Treatment of Child Abuse and Neglect (1001 Jasmine, Denver, CO 80220) has been active for a longer period. They have developed educational and training programs for persons working with abused children and their families, available in audio-casette and videotape forms.

Parents Anonymous, Inc., is a national, self-help organization designed to help abusive parents help themselves. Founded by a parent in California six years ago, it now has branches in many states. The Parents Anonymous Second National Conference on Child Abuse is scheduled for May 13-15 in Dallas, TX. Information about that conference and the organization can be obtained from Parents Anonymous, Inc., 2810 Artesia Blvd., Redondo Beach, CA 90278.

(Dr. Menninger invites your comments and questions. Write to him care of this newspaper. Because of the volume of mail, he cannot answer each individually but will handle questions of general interest in his column.)

Status offenders should not be treated as delinquent

She worried Marie would get into trouble. Mother and daughter fought.

Her mother was about to take her to court, but first she went to the Family Union.

They worked out an agreement between Marie and her mother that allowed Marie to come home at 11. Case workers got the younger children into a recreation program. They helped the mother to change her working hours.

Marie's family was stabilized.

MANY CHILD CARE professionals admit they don't know for sure what works for troubled children. Building a sound personality is not like building a bridge to withstand measurable stress.

"Let's be candid," says Chief Judge David Bazelon of the U.S. District Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia. "We don't have the slightest notion of what really works, except in the most common sense way.

"How do we treat our own children? We feed them, comfort them, play with them, call the doctor for them, talk to their teachers, lecture them, swat them once in a while, and most of all warm them with our love and pride.

"Not many of us subject them to repeated batteries of tests and interviews, isolate them for weeks for misbehavior, make them account for every five minutes of their time, deny them privacy, censor their mail, and refuse them all contact with the opposite sex. Yet in most systems, this passes for treatment."

Many professionals who deal with status offenders are united in opposition to training schools — large, sometimes locked institutions outside communities. They believe training schools should be a last resort.

Many also believe that status offenders shouldn't be mixed with tough delinquents for fear they'll be contaminated by young criminals. But an estimated 85,000 children are committed to training schools each year. About 70 per cent of the girls and 23 per cent of the boys are status offenders.

The new Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention Act requires participating states to deinstitutionalize status offenders in two years.

A recent report by the National Assessment says that despite recommendations to use community programs, all but four states — Massachusetts, South Dakota, Minnesota and Utah — still send most juvenile offenders to training schools and detention centers.

Some status offenders get a break in small state-run urban homes like the one Katie shares with six other girls in New York. She has house parents to talk with and gets help with school work, counseling and group therapy.

Still, going to court put the seal of failure on 16-year-old Katie and her mother. It's going to take a lot to ease Katie's pain:

"No matter what I did, it wasn't good enough for my mother," says Katie, who was declared incorrigible.

"She always told me I was a bad kid and said I was the reason she broke up with Dad," says this girl with cheerleader looks who sits curled up in a chair, twisting a ringlet of hair and pouring out the bitterness of years.

She admits, "I'm no angel, but I'm not a bad kid."

Her voice falls and she's still a little stunned: "It was my own mother who took me to court."

Katie's mother is a 32-year-old thrice-married

Her golfing lessons included hefty green fees

DEAR ABBY: I'm well over 21, and old enough to know better, but six months ago I started dating the golf pro at our club.

It all started when I took some lessons from him to improve my game. One thing led to another very quickly, and he asked me to marry him. I was walking on air. Then he said we would have to postpone the marriage for about a year due to some financial obligations he had to clear up first.

abigail van buren

In order to speed up the marriage I let him have $2,500. Then I found out that he has been seeing another woman. Now I realize that he was only using me, but I must admit he certainly improved my game.

I have too much pride to report him to the club manager, but I would like to get my money back. Any suggestions? — TWELVE HANDICAP

DEAR TWELVE: Forget your pride and tell the club manager that the golf pro is under par in integrity. And don't get so chummy with professional swingers again unless you can remember to keep your head down and your eye on your purse!

DEAR ABBY: I have a nodding acquaintance with a woman who goes overboard when it comes to "remembering" people on their birthdays, anniversaries and all the holidays.

She remembers people she never sees and hardly knows, and I, for one, wish that she would quit "remembering" me because I feel guilty if I don't acknowledge her card.

I always write her a "thank-you" note because I don't feel right ignoring her "good wishes." It's easier than calling her on the phone because she likes to visit, and I don't care for long drawn-out telephone conversations. (She kept me on the phone once for nearly an hour when I phoned to thank her for sending me an Easter card.)

Tell me, Abby, is it necessary to acknowledge a greeting card? If you say it isn't, I'll dance for joy. — A BUSY LADY

DEAR BUSY: Don't dance, dear. All expressions of good wishes should be acknowledged. Get a stack of postcards, and do it the easy way.

DEAR ABBY: I am a high school freshman, and my mother still wants me in the house by 12 o'clock sharp every time I go out on a date.

How can I let her know that I'm not a baby any more? — LYNNE

DEAR LYNNE: She knows. That's why she wants you in the house at 12 o'clock sharp.

DEAR ABBY: Is it still "in style" for a young man to ask the father of a young lady for her hand in marriage, or isn't that done any more? Our children, who are 19 and 21, tell us that this is "corny" and that we are old-fashioned to expect it. We would like your opinion. —OLD-FASHIONED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: It may be "corny," but there's a kernel of good manners there. It is a formality, however. When a fellow asks for a lady's "hand," he usually has both feet in the door.

Status offenders

factory worker. She has a drinking problem and throws things at Katie. She told the court Katie tried to kill her, but Katie says her mother beat her and once clawed her neck until it bled.

Today Katie is getting help, but not her mother.

"It's mostly a matter of giving her love and self-esteem," says a house parent. "She never got much attention at home. She doesn't believe she is pretty or worthwhile or that people could love her for herself."

WILLIAM, MARIE, Mark and Katie — all figure in the debate over whether the elders of the city, the juvenile court, should retain jurisdiction over status offenders.

End jurisdiction over status offenders, say groups like the National Council on Crime and Delinquency, the National Juvenile Justice Standards Project and the American Civil Liberties Union.

Courts have harmed, not helped, most children by their coercion, critics believe, because they are not free and they are not getting the care they need. Removing status offenders, they believe, would free the court to concentrate on kids who actually commit crimes.

"Imprisonment of a status offender serves no humanitarian or rehabilitative purpose," says an NCCD policy statement. "It is, instead, unwarranted punishment, unjust because it is disproportionate to the harm done by the child's noncriminal behavior."

Federal Judge Bazelon told a group of judges: "If the juvenile court had no jurisdiction to commit children in such situations, the community would have to come up with a solution. Neither the parents nor the community need to look for solutions while the juvenile court is available.

"You ought to tell the community that you are failures, yes, failures at preventing delinquency and crime."

But groups like the National Council of Juvenile Court Judges, the New York State Association of Family Court Judges and the New York State Office of Children's Services argue that courts should keep jurisdiction.

When all else fails, the power of the court is needed, they believe, to protect children from their parents and themselves.

They compare the juvenile justice system and subsequent services to a superhighway leading to a cow path. The answer, they believe, is not to tear down the superhighway, but to improve the cow path.

PALM SPRINGS RAMADA RESORT VISITED

Mercedes diesel is thrifty

Story and Photos
By BILL EMERY
Associate Auto Editor

Palm Springs, the desert playground for youths of all ages, is broadening its image to include gracious homes for classic desert living, convention centers to attract winter conclaves from the far reaches of the cold climates, gourmet dinner houses to hold the attention of the jet set and a cultural center designed to compare with the fine institutions of the world.

To visit one of the newest and the third largest hotel in the Palm Springs area, The Ramada Inn International Hotel-Resort at 1800 E. Palm Canyon Drive, we borrowed a new luxurious Mercedes-Benz 300D from Van Palmer, owner of Palmer Import Motors at 3300 Atlantic Ave., in Long Beach.

Also new from Mercedes-Benz, inventor of the automobile in 1886, is the world's first 5-cylinder diesel passenger car ... the 300D, which was introduced in 1975. A four-door sedan, the 300D is an unusual blend of luxury, performance and economy matched to the incomparable engineering of the renouned German motorcar manufacturer.

Mercedes-Benz built the first diesel engine passenger car in 1936. The early diesel cars were efficient and economical, but not too quick in the initial pickup of speed. Down through the years, the performance was improved, and, with the introduction of the 5-cylinder 300D model, the performance is comparable to that of gasoline-engined cars.

With more and more people concerned about low fuel consumption, together with a sensible sized family automobile that's spacious and quality built, the Mercedes fills the bill. Most large cars cannot make it to Palm Springs and back without a fillup on the return run. The 300D made the round trip with more than a half tank of fuel left over and that's with the air conditioning running all the way and with an automatic transmission.

Economy of a diesel engine is further enhanced with the low maintenance requirements. Diesel engines need no sparkplugs, points or distributor and are far less complicated to service.

In addition, their combustion characteristics are so clean burning that diesel engines produce far less pollutants than do gasoline engines and are able to run in California without any emission control devices.

With a 20.6 gallon fuel tank and using the Federal E.P.A. mileage figures for highway driving, the cruising range for the Mercedes-Benz 300D would be 576 miles on each tankful.

Making cars smaller is one way of increasing driving economy, yet it's comforting to know you can still get the fuel economy with a diesel and enjoy safe, roomy transportation for four or five persons with the ultimate in luxury provided by the same Mercedes-Benz engineering that goes into their gasoline-powered luxury sedans.

With the best view of all, The Ramada Inn International Hotel is a self-contained (3-story) oasis of 256 rooms on four sides.

Its spacious grounds are well landscaped with palms, shrubs and grass with a large swimming pool in the center, two outside therapeutic pools and two sauna facilities (for men and women) inside.

RAMADA INN INTERNATIONAL RESORT IS 3-STORY DESERT OASIS

Patio dining and bar service add to the luxury accommodations of the resort hotel. Guests can also enjoy room service for food and beverage.

A touch of levity in the Sunshine room coffee shop will force a smile on patrons who take the troubles of the day too serious. If the waitress can't get you to smile when they greet you for your order, you'll smile when they leave your table. Each has a large "happy-face" covering her posterior.

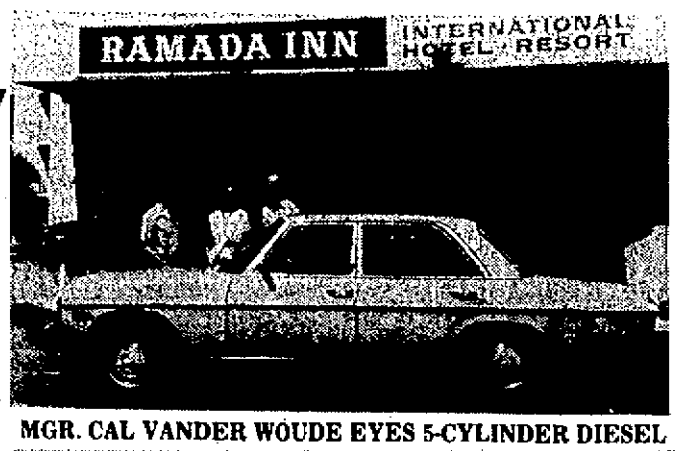

Conventions are big business in Palm Springs and the Ramada International offers banquet facilities for up to 350 persons and a convention center with a capacity of anywhere from 20 to 550.

Hotel guests need not look elsewhere for gourmet dining and entertainment. The Smoke Tree dining room features excellent cuisine along with entertainment six nights a week except Monday. Dennis Ogden, guitarist, entertains from 6 p.m. until 9 with his velvet tones and Kenney Coleman and friends provide dancing music at its finest from 9 until 2. The four-piece group just arrived from the Princess Hotel in Acapulco, Mexico. Vocalist Coleman is backed by a guitarist, piano and drums and the group has an allure to music lovers of all ages.

In downtown Palm Springs on the site of the former Desert Inn Hotel, a new dimension in cultural expression was dedicated January 24, 1976, the Palm Springs Desert Museum. A tri-faceted exhibition center, the museum offers the immensity of the desert natural science, the delight of the performing arts and the broadest spectrum of art.

Three courtyards feature sculpture art and dancing fountains, The art wing offers a constantly changing panorama of internationally important exhibitions in its galleries including the works of Picasso and Matisse and the Annenberg Theater offers an opulent setting for the performing arts. The Natural Science Wing, in its four extensive galleries, is an interpretation of the immediate desert environment and its neighboring regions.

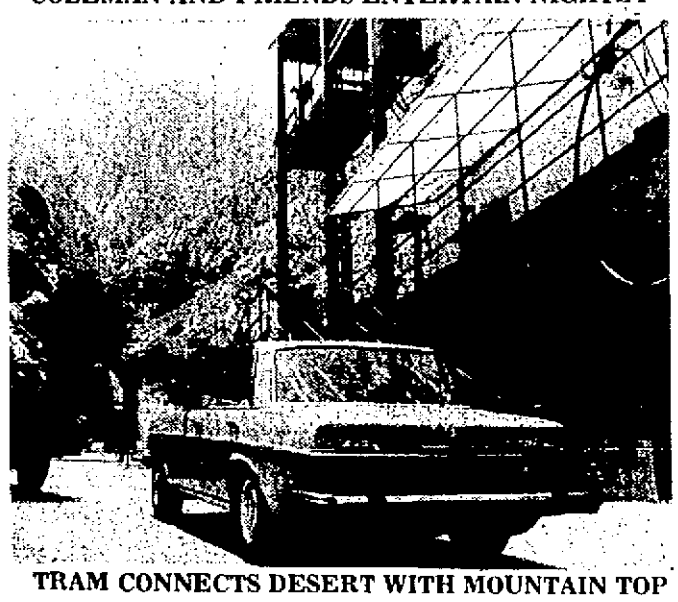

A tram ride from the desert to the top of Mount San Jacinto is a revealing panoramic picture of development in the lower desert. Palm Springs is "where it's at" and the new Mercedes-Benz 300D is the uncompromising way to go there in style and comfort.

The 5-cylinder Mercedes-Benz 300D.

Another engineering milestone that has quietly inspired a change in design.

The Mercedes-Benz 300D has quietly changed the rules of the automobile game. This 5-cylinder Diesel automobile is an engineering milestone that offers a unique combination of performance, luxury, economy and quality.

In fact, the Mercedes-Benz 300D has inspired new thinking in automotive design. It is the most powerful, the most responsive and the swiftest Diesel passenger car ever sold.

For other manufacturers, a car with the myriad blessings of the 300D is somewhere far down the road. The 300D is here now. With it, Mercedes-Benz underscores its reputation for establishing new standards.

Unique in all the world

Four decades ago, Mercedes-Benz demonstrated the benefits of Diesel power. Now, the 5-cylinder engine in the 300D widely expands that list. It banishes forever the image of the Diesel as a rough, noisy workhorse. The 300D is indeed a thoroughbred.

Unlike any other make, the 300D takes advantage of pre-combustion chamber Diesel engine design. This development, pioneered by Mercedes-Benz, delivers a longer, smoother power pulse as well as more efficient combustion. The result: A combination of mileage and exhaust emission levels that no comparable gasoline-engined sedan can approach.

Of course, the exact mileage you get depends on how and where you drive, as well as the condition and equipment of your automobile. But according to estimates published by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (highway driving: 28 mpg; city driving: 22 mpg), the 20.6-gallon fuel supply of the 300D should have no trouble letting it cruise 500 highway miles between fill-ups.

Even if all your driving were in town, your 300D should stop-and-go more than 400 miles on a single tank. Compare that to your present car.

No tune-ups — ever

When you do stop for fuel, a 300D offers several more pleasant surprises. First, Diesel fuel is usually cheaper than even regular gasoline. Countrywide, the difference averages 4¢-7¢ per gallon less. Second, Diesel fuel is plentiful. Thousands and thousands of stations sell it all across America. Third, since Diesel fuel has more energy per gallon than gasoline, every gallon not only costs you less, it takes you farther.

Another plus: With a 300D you can happily forget about that expensive automotive custom known as the conventional tune-up. Because it has no spark plugs, points, distributor, condenser or carburetor, the Mercedes-Benz 300D never, never needs one.

The complete sedan

When you compare it to most full-sized sedans, the 300D is a materials miser. It is not as big, not as heavy and not as thirsty. But it is every bit as practical and comfortable.

In fact, the 300D is a full 5-passenger sedan. Besides its generous interior, its trunk boasts a spacious 175 cubic feet of volume. On top of that, the 300D abounds with countless examples of innovative Mercedes-Benz safety engineering.

The 300D does lack one thing. A lengthy option list. The reason is its complete array of standard equipment. Included are: Power-assisted steering and brakes, automatic transmission, air conditioning, electric windows, cruise control, central locking system, halogen fog lights and an AM/FM receiver.

The forerunner's reward

Clearly, the 300D goes a long way towards previewing the sedan of the future. As a result, this forerunner will doubtless be a standout in a final key area. Resale value. Over the past five years Mercedes-Benz automobiles have held their value better than any other make of luxury car sold in America. It stands to reason that the 300D will be no exception. After all, an automobile which is years ahead today is bound to be a sound asset while the others are trying to catch up tomorrow.

The incomparable Mercedes-Benz 300 Diesel sedan. An engineering triumph that offers you — and the entire automotive world — a look into the future. An automobile whose combination of performance, economy, luxury and innovation has quietly advanced passenger car design a giant step.

FORD BUCHEN NESSEN

Q. One of President Ford's most trusted advisers is his old law partner, Phil Buchen—sweet, kind Phil Buchen of Grand Rapids. I understand Buchen is responsible for the resignation of President Ford's first press secretary, Jerald terHorst, and the near resignation of Ford's second press secretary, Ron Nessen. What's the story?—M.P., Alexandria, Va.

A. Buchen is President Ford's lawyer. It was he who helped arrange during the summer of 1974 President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon. President Ford, of course, knew all about the pardon, as did Gen. Alexander Haig; Jack Marsh, a Ford counselor; Benton Becker, an attorney who was helping Buchen, and of course Jack Miller, Nixon's attorney.

Buchen claims he was under Presidential mandate to tell no one, including Jerald terHorst, about the Nixon pardon negotiations. When terHorst told Buchen he had received press inquiries concerning Benton Becker's presence in San Clemente and asked Buchen what he knew about it, Buchen revealed nothing about the pardon. He said Becker had been to San Clemente to negotiate the return of Nixon's Presidential papers. Buchen admits now that he was guilty of a "half lie."

The truth is that President Ford did not trust his own press secretary of the time, Jerald terHorst, with the truth about the Nixon pardon negotiations, and neither did Buchen. Which is why terHorst resigned.

TerHorst was replaced by Ron Nessen, who this past March threatened to resign—again because the Ford team refused to take the press secretary into their confidence. On March 13, Richard Nixon sent a report to President Ford about his February, 1976, trip to China. When the press asked Nessen about the report, Nessen denied that any such report had been received at the White House. Nessen did not know that he was telling a falsehood, because neither Buchen nor Gen. Brent Scowcroft, Ford's national security adviser, Ford nor Kissinger—all of whom knew about the report—had told him the truth. The fact was that they had received such a report from Nixon, read it, then returned it to San Clemente. Buchen and Scowcroft did not tell Nessen about the Nixon report because they were fearful that, under the Freedom of Information Act, some journalist might apply for it and that, under the act, the Nixon report would have had to be made available.

The fairy tale that the Ford Administration is an "open one" is exactly that, a fairy tale. Gerald Ford did not completely trust his first press secretary, and there is evidence that neither he nor members of his staff completely trust his second.

Q. Does actress Lauren Bacall have a secret British lover who flies to this country every month to see her?—Kay Sardella, Atlantic City, N. J.

A. Lauren Bacall, 51, and English actor Basil Hoskins, 46, are "good friends." They worked together in "Applause" in London 3½ years ago and were attracted to each other. But Hoskins does not fly to the U.S. each month to see Miss Bacall. They see each other when they can—no definite schedule.

Q. Does Fidel Castro have a son?—Raphael Gonzalez, Miami, Fla.

A. Castro's son, Fidel, is in his late 20's, works as an engineer in Cuba.

Q. Omar Sharif and Barbra Streisand—were they ever lovers?—B. B. Holdridge, San Diego, Cal.

A. Yes, tempestuous ones.

SHARIF AND STREISAND IN 'FUNNY GIRL'

Q. In your opinion, how good are Jimmy Carter's chances of winning the Democratic Presidential nomination? And if not Jimmy, who?—Ralph Lanier, Atlanta, Ga.

A. Unless Carter arrives at the Democratic National Convention in New York with 1505 delegate votes sewed up, the convention will probably be brokered. Under those circumstances, a Humphrey-Carter ticket, a Humphrey-Kennedy ticket, a Humphrey-Brown ticket are all possibilities. A recent Gallup Poll shows Hubert Humphrey the favorite choice of veteran Democrats. But much can happen to alter the situation between now and July. Carter will surely be a candidate to contend with, as will "Scoop" Jackson of Washington and Jerry Brown of California, all of whom will have votes to trade.

JIMMY CARTER AND WIFE ROSALYNN

Q. Was Howard Hughes secretly backing "1600 Pennsylvania Ave.," the musical show written by Alan Jay Lerner and Leonard Bernstein? Isn't the show a big, fat bomb?—T.S., Philadelphia.

A. "1600 Pennsylvania Ave." was financed by the Coca-Cola Co., which provided $900,000 and may have to provide more. When the show, which is scheduled to open on Broadway on May 4, tried out in Philadelphia, it received poor reviews. When it moved on to Washington, D.C., it still received poor reviews. Variety, the show business trade paper, panned it as a "Bicentennial bore." The show deals with 100 years of White House history as seen by four generations of a black family whose members have worked as domestics in the White House. The show has been rewritten and cut on the road, hopefully may make it by the time it opens in New York. It offers no big names to help carry the production.

If you are a smoker:

There are many reasons to smoke Now.

If you're a smoker who has been thinking about 'tar' and nicotine, these are the reasons to smoke Now.

Reason: Now is the lowest in 'tar' and nicotine of all cigarettes.

Reason: Now also gives you real smoking satisfaction. Mild and pleasant flavor.

Reason: Now draws free and easy for a cigarette so low in 'tar' and nicotine.

Reason: Only Now has the specially designed filter which makes all this possible for the first time.

Reason: Now comes in both filter and menthol. Either way, you get the lowest 'tar' and nicotine.

You couldn't ask for better reasons to smoke Now.

Now. The lowest 'tar' of all cigarettes.

Sheila Weidenfeld and the First Lady play with a Vietnamese child on the White House lawn. The pert, petite press secretary advised the television appearance on "60 Minutes," and while Mrs. Ford's frankness created a furor, it is now felt that the outcome was salutary in showing her "as she is"—honest and forthright.

Sheila Weidenfeld: The First Lady's Press Secretary

by Lloyd Shearer

WASHINGTON, D.C.

This past August, having turned down more than a dozen TV producers who wanted her boss interviewed on their programs, Sheila Weidenfeld, 32, press secretary to the First Lady, arranged for Mrs. Betty Ford to appear on 60 Minutes, the CBS-TV show presided over by Mike Wallace, Morley Safer and Dan Rather.

"Nobody on the White House staff except me," confides the pert, diminutive (5 ft.) Mrs. Weidenfeld, "wanted the First Lady to do that program. She didn't want to do it herself. But I thought she should. I thought she had to do that talk show or no talk shows at all, because 60 Minutes, in my opinion, is the only program of its type which shows people as they are.

"I felt that the public should see Mrs. Ford as she is, that she was ready for it, and that's why I pressed her to do the show."

Sheila Weidenfeld's decision turned out to be a most repercussive and controversial one.

Unlike her husband who has survived in politics via compromise, waffling, and 180-degree turns, Betty Ford is a woman of candor, forthrightness and honesty.

Touchy questions

When Morley Safer, the fleshy-faced Canadian interviewer on whose 60 Minutes segment she appeared, asked Mrs. Ford her opinions on the Equal Rights Amendment, abortion, and marijuana, the First Lady proved characteristically frank. She favored the ERA. She described the Supreme Court's legalization of abortion as "a great, great decision." And on marijuana, she assumed her four children had probably sampled it (only one has), then added, "It's the type of thing that the young people have to experience, like your first beer or your first cigarette."

Safer, in his facile and friendly manner, edged next onto the ledge of premarital sex. What would the First Lady do, he asked, if she learned her daughter Susan was having an affair?

"Well, I wouldn't be surprised," the First Lady responded. "I think she's a perfectly normal human being like all young girls. If she wanted to continue, I would certainly counsel and advise her on the subject. And I'd want to know pretty much about the young man . . . whether it was a worthwhile encounter. She's pretty young to start affairs [but] she's a big girl."

The following week torrents of mail, much of it from outraged Bible Belt citizens, began cascading into the White House mailroom. The letter-writers accused the First Lady of being amoral, immoral, unmoral, radical, careless, over-permissive. The outrage of the radical right is frequently boundless. So, too, is the criticism of self-appointed guardians of the nation's sexual mores.

The mail, to begin with, was overwhelmingly negative, and in the West Wing of the White House where the Monday-morning quarterbacks gather, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, the tiny, effervescent, size-4 gamine, was chosen "the fall guy" and figuratively nailed to the cross.

One staffer denounced her as "a sparrow-brained zany." Another called her "a kooky, irresponsible kid." A third observer said, "As a press secretary she should have her head examined. After all, Sheila comes from the world of television. How could she have allowed an innocent like Mrs. Ford to wander into the clutches of a super-smoothy like Morley Safer?"

She felt lonely

Says Sheila: "I got the feeling around the White House that I had contracted leprosy."

But then gradually the people began to speak out in favor of Mrs. Ford. Newspaper polls were taken on the First Lady's views and a segment of the public rallied to her defense—as if truth, honesty, and perception of one's decent life-style needed defense. Of the 35,000 letters received at the White House as a result of Betty Ford's appearance on 60 Minutes, 23,400 were negative, 11,000 positive.

Sheila Weidenfeld is a bright hyperthyroid type who learns rapidly. Note that since August, 1975, Betty Ford has not been interviewed by any TV talk-show personality. The First Lady has been exposed to newsmen and newswomen of every stripe. She has appeared on TV at various functions, has been photographed at a variety of campaign locations. She has developed into Gerald Ford's foremost election weapon. But Sheila Weidenfeld will not subject Betty Ford to the interview in depth, because Sheila Weidenfeld knows that potentially Betty Ford is dynamite—largely because the First Lady is by nature and habit forthright. She cannot bring herself to lie.

Playing it safe

Betty Ford is a woman of character who speaks her own mind—surely a risky, dangerous woman in an election year. No Bess Truman, Mamie Eisenhower, or Pat Nixon, she. Ask her a question and you get an honest answer. This First Lady must be treated with intelligence, tact, humor, timeliness, dignity, and scheduled with the utmost care. She cannot be allowed to talk on the issues because that's the candidate's prerogative. But her popularity must be taken advantage of. She projects the image of a truthful woman who exerts great influence upon her husband. Betty Ford cries out for special handling. And that's what Sheila Weidenfeld accords her, for the time being at least, playing it safe—very safe.

Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld, whose father Maxwell Rabb was secretary for six years of the Eisenhower Administration Cabinet, was producing an early-morning TV talk show (Take It From Here) in Washington, D.C., when on Aug. 11, 1974—two days after Gerald Ford was sworn in as President of the United States—she got a phone call from the new First Lady.

Would Sheila come to the Ford home in Alexandria, Mrs. Ford asked, for an interview? The job in question: press secretary—salary $26,700.

Sheila says that she had never before worked as anyone's press secretary. She had never worked for any newspaper. She had moved from Brookline, Mass., to Washington, D.C., as a child in 1952. Owing to her father's position she had swum in the White House pool, sat in President Eisenhower's chair, and grown up in the company of Establishment people. Her father is a graduate of Harvard, her mother a graduate of Radcliffe.

At Brandeis University Sheila had majored in Latin American history, worked during the summer in Texas and Cambridge, Mass., theaters, and then in 1965 headed for New York in search of a television job.

TV experience

"Everyone," she recalls laughingly, "wanted me to take typing tests. But I wouldn't." She got a job through Larry Fraiberg, general manager of WNEW-TV, one of six stations owned by Metromedia, Inc., then graduated to NBC where she labored as a talent coordinator on the Joan Rivers Show. Metromedia offered her a production job in Washington, D.C., to which city her husband Ed, an attorney, had been transferred. There, she agreed to produce Panorama, then moved to NBC and Take It From Here.

"Why Mrs. Ford decided to interview me for the job," Sheila says, "I don't know. Later I found out I'd been recommended by some of the press people whose opinions she respected. Anyway, I had some doubts about the job. I didn't think I would want it. I had never worked for one person.

"When I met Mrs. Ford, she was very honest and very open. So, too, was I. I made it clear that I didn't want a job in which I had to tell people what kind of tablecloths were on the White House dinner tables, and that describing fashions and hairdos was not one of my strong points. I really wasn't interested in trivia. What I wanted to do was to translate to the public the true image of the First Lady and her family.

Sheila converses easily with the President. She seems to be treated as one of the family, and Mrs. Ford says, "I regard us as dear, close friends."

Sheila, seen here chatting with 18-year-old Susan Ford, particularly admires the First Lady for the way in which she reared her three sons and daughter.

First time for both

"We were both pretty unsure of what the job entailed. Mrs. Ford kept asking me if I thought I could do it. And I kept asking her what it was specifically that she wanted me to do. She had never been a First Lady before, and I had never been a press secretary; and after hours of talk we both decided that we'd have to do a lot of on-the-job learning, which we have.

"Mrs. Ford is basically a lovely lady with a terrific sense of humor and a tremendous supply of common sense, grounded in experience. She is also highly intuitive and can assess a situation calmly.

"I was deeply impressed by her essential goodness. There is nothing phony or deceitful about her. She knows who she is, what she has undergone. She was both mother and father to her four children when they were growing up and her husband was on the road, campaigning 200 nights a year. It wasn't easy for her. When her husband came home he was a good father; he'd spend time with his children, but it was Mrs. Ford who always got their problems. She was the disciplinarian. She was the one who told the children what they could and could not do. And so it was she who suffered with them, it was she who was involved, it was she who shared their anxieties and agonies and problems. When he came home he wanted to enjoy the family, and he did.

"But it was Mrs. Ford who reared the four children. Coming from a family of four children, I know that's no easy job. And I'm terribly respectful of her achievement, because she was able to instill in her children conventional values as well as self-reliance. The years took their toll. She is wiser for them, of course, but she also paid a price.

"Anyway," Sheila runs on, "I wanted to be sure I could do a good job for Mrs. Ford as press secretary, so before I took the job I talked to several former press secretaries: Helen Smith, who'd worked for Pat Nixon; Liz Carpenter, who'd worked for Lady Bird Johnson, and Tish Baldridge, who'd worked for Jackie Kennedy. Liz Carpenter was the most helpful."

Liz Carpenter remembers: "Sheila came over to the house one night and went through all the scrapbooks. I think I had 23 of them, of the years I'd spent with Lady Bird, and she asked for some advice. I told her that being a press secretary was like taking a crash course in everything.

"I gave her three tips: 'Never lie. Never remain inaccessible because when reporters can't get to you, they get to making mischief. And try to enjoy what's happening to you, because even though it's irritating and it gets you mad, still you're involved in making some history. You might as well enjoy it."

Says Liz Carpenter, now an account executive with Hill and Knowlton: "I think Sheila Weidenfeld is doing a great job. And one reason is that she's got a great lady to work with. I'm a lifelong Democrat, but Betty Ford is one of the most courageous First Ladies this nation has ever had. She understands the role of women in today's society, and she's not afraid to speak out meaningfully and to advocate equality for women. And in Sheila she's got an equally enthusiastic supporter. They go hand in glove."

Sheila Weidenfeld became Betty Ford's press secretary in October, 1974. "The first thing I tried to do," she recalls, "was to return everyone's phone calls. My office gets about 200 a day, and I found that it was an impossibility, even though I got to the office by 6:30 in the morning and sometimes didn't get home until 2 the next morning, especially when there was a state dinner or some function like that."

Needed more help

Next Sheila learned how to sort out priorities, a necessity since she found her weight dropping from 102 to 95. She also discovered that she needed more than a secretary and an assistant to take care press-wise of the First Lady and her four children.

The only way she could obtain another assistant was to talk Ron Nessen, the President's press secretary, into giving up one of his. Nessen wouldn't hear of it.

"One week," Sheila recalls, "when all of us were in Hollywood, Fla., I challenged Nessen to a swimming race. If he lost I'd get an additional staffer. If I lost I'd have to do with what I had. Mrs. Ford was at poolside and so was Don Rumsfeld and a few others. It was an Olympic-size swimming pool, and the race was to be one lap. I beat Ron by half the length of the pool. That's how I got another assistant. Now I have a staff of five, which is two less than what my predecessors had."

People who have worked with Sheila describe her as a perpetual enthusiast, deeply involved and excited in what she's doing, an achiever, a driver whose relationship with Mrs. Ford is almost a mother-daughter one.

"When Mrs. Ford came down with cancer," confides a reporter who covers the East Wing, "Sheila might just as well have been her daughter. The worry, the love, the anxiety, and then the relief she engendered when Mrs. Ford came through with flying colors—it was of a family nature. Sheila's not exactly an introvert, you know. She wears her heart on her sleeve. And the Fords seem to treat her like one of the family. She in turn sees that Mrs. Ford gets her rest and isn't overscheduled. Mrs. Ford is not the strongest First Lady we've ever had, and Sheila is well aware of her fragility. She behaves towards her like a solicitous daughter."

They're just friends

Mrs. Ford, of course, returns the solicitude. "Sheila and I," she says, "are very close. I wouldn't characterize our relationship as mother-daughter. I regard us as dear and close friends.

"What we have is a give-and-take situation. I'm the boss and I make the final decisions, but it's Sheila who collects and sorts out, who suggests and recommends what I do in the field of press relations.

"She is a vivacious, industrious and talented young woman, intensively dedicated to her job. I'm very happy that Bonnie Angelo of Time magazine recommended her to me. That's how I came to hire her. I hold Bonnie in high regard, and when she said, 'You ought really to interview Sheila Weidenfeld for the press secretary job,' I followed through. I'm glad I did."

How did Mrs. Ford feel in retrospect about her interview with Morley Safer on 60 Minutes?

"I thought for a while," she explains, "that I had done my Sheila relaxes with lawyer-husband Ed Weidenfeld. Though 32, she still wants to put off having a family.

daughter Susan a disservice by not being more explicit on that program. But then as I traveled around the country, mothers of other daughters would come up to me. They would congratulate me for talking about things as they are, for facing life as it is. It was a hypothetical question I was asked, not a true one, and I gave a rather quick answer on the program. In the end my being on the show came out as a plus, and I'm glad I did it.

"I'm always willing to talk to the press, to answer their questions, and, of course, I'm on television a great deal. Practically every place we go there are TV cameras."

Should her husband win the election in November, would the First Lady change any of her staff, possibly her press secretary?

"I'm very proud of my staff," Mrs. Ford maintains, "and I expect to keep Sheila as long as she wants to stay. Of course, she's got a marriage and a husband to look after—working the long hours she does, I don't know when she finds time for that—and I guess somewhere along the line she'd like to have a baby or two.

"I tell you what," the First Lady says with a laugh. "If Sheila gets pregnant, I promise to give her enough time to go to the hospital and then take the baby home. But that's how indispensable I regard her around here."

What the doctor says

Sheila Weidenfeld, who lives in a seven-bedroom Georgetown house on 29th and Q Streets with her husband ("We each have double studies."), has been married seven years. She says that she'd like to have a family. "But I still feel," she adds, "that I'm too young. My doctor tells me that chronologically I'm not quite as young as I think I am. But if I have my druthers, I'd like to put off having a family a few years.

"This is such an exciting and challenging job. I took it because I had ideas. I'd like to implement some of them, like sometime putting President and Mrs. Ford on the same TV program. There's so much I'd like to do—it's just hard finding time to have a baby."

Sheila Weidenfeld, known in some quarters of the White House as "The Firecracker," is a fraternal twin. She is also somewhat of a family maverick. Her twin sister Emily is a lawyer; her brother Bruce is a lawyer. Her father is a lawyer, and so, too, is her husband Ed, who met her when he was working for the Javits (Sen. Jacob K. Javits) law firm in New York City.

How come Sheila avoided the family profession? "The competition," she explains, "was too tough and too close to home."

As the First Lady's press secretary, Sheila Rabb Weidenfeld is the only one of her class in the nation. Somehow that fulfills her sense of achievement.

Nursing Homes Where Life Is Worth Living

by Pam Proctor

A nursing home isn't where the heart is—unless it has cocktails, kids and a chance for sex. At least that's the view of an increasing number of people who are calling for nursing homes that can be places to live, rather than just places to die.

Shocking reports of nursing home abuses uncovered by the Senate in its seven-year investigation have brought home to "middle-aged people that it could happen to them," says Dr. Robert Butler, a research psychiatrist with the Washington School of Psychiatry. Although only about 5 percent of the nation's 22.4 million elderly are institutionalized, the age group over 75 is the fastest growing segment of the U.S. population. If present trends continue, increasing numbers of Americans will end up in nursing homes.

Unfortunately, more than half of the 23,000 nursing homes in this country are substandard, according to Val Halamandaris, associate counsel to the Senate Special Committee on Aging. Only about 5 percent are considered good, and a mere handful are "exceptional," he says.

What are good nursing homes doing to make life sweet for their residents?

During the monthly Cabaret Night at the Hebrew Home for the Aged in Riverdale, N.Y., for example, Scotch and champagne flow at 45 cents a glass and a jazz band provides dance music for residents, their families and staff members. The conviviality has brought some families closer together. After one of the home's bashes, a middle-aged lawyer confided to executive vice president Jacob Reingold that he had just danced with his 82-year-old mother for the first time.

'Extended family'

To enhance the warm atmosphere, the 700-bed Hebrew Home includes young people in the activities. Junior high students from Hawthorne Middle School in nearby Yonkers, N.Y.—part of a "generation bridge" program—helped serve cake and fruit at the Cabaret Night. As an integral part of the home's "extended family," the 40 kids in the program hold discussions with small groups of residents, sing in the home's glee club, and visit grandmas and grandpas they have "adopted."

Observations™

Lady Godiva would be a sensation in "Almost Anything Goes," suggests Sheldon Babyatsky of Tampa, Fla. No, she ought to be in "Rawhide," says Ellis O. Butler, Oneida, Tenn. But John C. Emerson, Hayti, Mo., likes her in "Show Offs," and John C. Scroggins, East Tallassee, Ala., would rather see the lady in "Winning Streak" or even "Naked City."

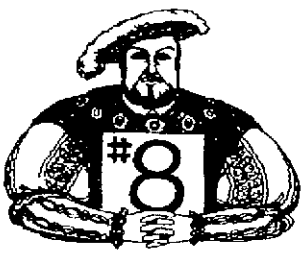

We've selected these and the ones that follow as the winners among the 3,000 or so replies to our request for names of past and present public figures who'd be great in TV roles. (If you see your suggestion but not your name, it's because there were lots of duplicates and, as announced, the $25 U.S. Savings Bonds are awarded for suggestions bearing the earlier postmark.) Here are others we like: Paul Revere, "The Guiding Light" (B.J. Brown, Maywood, Cal.). Betty Crocker, "M.A.S.H." (Lisa Keppler, Derby, N.Y.), Nero, "Fireside Theatre" (Robert Dolinor, Warren, Mich.), and a depressed Sir Lancelot, "The Blue Knight" (Duane Runnels, Indianapolis).

Confucius and Harpo Marx, "You Don't Say" (Steven C. Rice, Independence, Mo., and Steve Keyser, Lincoln, Neb.).

Prince Charles, "The Dating Game" (Robert Keith, Stevens Point, Wis.).

We also liked the idea of Galileo, "As the World Turns" (Ron and Roberta Genini, Fresno, Cal.), Christopher Columbus, "Good Morning America" (W.E. Van Hoesen, Feura Bush, N.Y.) and Sigmund Freud, "Take My Advice" (Karen M. Wilson, Downers Grove, Ill.).

King Henry VIII, "One of My Wives is Missing" (Mrs. David Fields, Conneaut, Ohio), and his wives in "Jeopardy" (E. Mark Leany, Bluewater, N.M.).

Hubert Humphrey, a one-hour "Bicentennial Minute" (Alvin Easter, Minneapolis), or, with Muriel in "The Dumplings" (Gayle Scoper, Arlington, Tex.).

Marco Polo, "Movin' On" (Bruce Ketler, Brooklyn, N.Y.).

Whistler, "That's My Mama" (R.M. Kelly, Rock Hill, S.C.).

Mayor Beame of New York, "Treasure Hunt" (Marian Ruckel, Cleveland, Ohio), and "Emergency" (William Rittenberg, Charleston, S.C.).

Marquis de Sade, "Almost Anything Goes" (George Raymer, Monroe, Wis.).

A final one, though, that's close to Mobil's heart: William Shakespeare in "Masterpiece Theatre" (Rev. T.E. Spofford, Lake Como, Fla.).

Catherine Smith, a lanky 13-year-old with long brown hair and braces on her teeth, visits "grandma" Jennie Barton, 81. "She picked me out from all the rest," said Mrs. Barton, beaming.

George MacDonald, also 13, made table decorations. Later on he wheeled in some of the residents to watch the festivities.

"When I'm with old people, I remember my grandmother who died last year," said George.

Just as communication with kids keeps oldsters in the mainstream of life, so does a more intimate sort of interaction—sex. One 80-year-old resident of a Catholic nursing home, disturbed that an unmarried couple in their 70's had retreated to a room for several hours, complained to Sister Michael Bernadette, an assistant administrator and consultant to the National League for Nursing.

"You know what those two are up to?" the woman said.

Sister Michael shrugged and said, "Have you seen them? Maybe they're playing gin rummy."

Few homes, if any, officially permit cohabitation on a permanent basis, and lack of privacy remains a stumbling block to sexual freedom.

Sex and power linked

Privacy for sex is part of a larger issue of "giving residents a sense of power over their own lives," says Dr. Butler.

Just last year, the American Association of Homes for the Aging, a professional group representing 1300 nonprofit religious, fraternal and governmental homes, adopted a patients' Bill of Rights. One of its provisions supported the formation of residents' councils to air gripes.

The trend toward patient power is evident at St. Joseph's Manor, a 290-bed nonprofit home in Trumbull, Conn., run by the Catholic Carmelite Sisters. Residents there control their daily routines almost as if they were in their own homes. They can use kitchenettes to brew a pot of tea, or they can get on a bus—wheelchairs and all—for a trip to the shopping center. Unlike many homes, it offers a varied menu and a full schedule of activities, including exercise classes and religious services.

About half of St. Joseph's residents are supported by Medicaid. Private patients pay about $900 a month for levels of care ranging from chronic disease to residential, considered among the best in the country.

The home even serves daily cocktails in a rustic spot called The Fireside Lounge. A dog and cat roam the halls, and silver, china and tablecloths instead of plastic trays and paper plates also provide a homey touch. These amenities make the difference between "getting there, and getting there with dignity," says Mother Joseph Mary, the home's administrator.

Physical fitness is encouraged at St. Joseph's Manor in Trumbull, Conn., where residents not confined to wheelchairs enjoy daily exercise class. Anne MacEntee, 85, puts other residents through their paces to help maintain maximum physical capabilities.

Another way of creating a homelike atmosphere is to tend to the medical needs of patients without turning the facilities into "quasi-hospitals," says Peter Samton—a partner with Gruzen & Partners—who is a specialist in nursing home architecture.

For example, in the Hebrew Home's newest building, which Samton designed, the halls can accommodate four wheelchairs abreast. Instead of hospital gray, carpets and furnishings come in bright oranges, purples and blues. Elevator doors open and close slowly.

But even an inviting and convenient physical environment like this cannot make a resident feel completely at home, unless he has a sense of control over his own body.

What would you want?

At St. Joseph's Manor no one languishes in bed. Every morning residents are dressed down to their shoes and stockings. "How would you like to spend several years of your life wearing nothing but pajamas and slippers?" asks Mother Joseph Mary. "It makes people feel good about themselves to get up and dress every day."

Dance therapy is another rehabilitative technique gaining in popularity. Former dancer Karen Nash, 32, heads up the activities program at Coronet Nursing Home, a 113-bed proprietary home in Brooklyn, N.Y. During her weekly dance sessions, residents who are ambulatory stand up and sway to Hawaiian and Caribbean rhythms, those in wheelchairs move their arms and heads to the music.

Although one woman is paralyzed to the neck and can't even move her head, she says, "I dance in my mind." Another woman grabs the wheels and rolls her wheelchair back and forth.

"The elderly themselves have been brainwashed into thinking they're old —that they can't improve," says Elaine Brody, director of human services at the nonprofit Philadelphia Geriatric Center.

Dr. Robert Butler agrees and stresses that 50 percent of the elderly's mental problems—popularly known as senility —are reversible with proper counseling. According to Mrs. Brody, the Philadelphia Center is helping many disruptive and severely regressed patients who suffer from severe memory loss and disorientation.

A good illustration involved an extremely disoriented 81-year-old man who repeatedly hit staff members and other residents. A recreation aide learned that he had worked all his life as a newspaper vendor and began

Feed your plants for up to 6 months in 12 seconds.

New ORTHO® Timed Release Plant Food formulas make feeding and growing healthy plants easier than ever. You just spoon on the clean, odorless granules and mix into the soil.

It takes only seconds to start plants on a steady, uniform diet that lasts from three to six months, depending on plant variety.

Each granule of these scientifically formulated fertilizers provides the balanced combination of nutrients needed by specific plants. The slow release of these nutrients lets you feed whatever you grow indoors or outdoors, from seedlings to mature plants, without the danger of overfeeding or burning.

Look for the family of ORTHO Timed Release Plant Foods at your Ortho dealers: African Violet Food 6-9-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; Pot and Planter Food 5-10-5, feeds 4 to 6 months; General Purpose Plant Food 12-6-6, feeds 3 to 4 months; Tomato and Vegetable Food 10-20-5, feeds 3 to 4 months.

bringing him papers to sell to the staff. This made him feel useful and had a dramatic effect on his behavior.

"He stopped hitting people," said the startled aide, "and though he couldn't always remember his name, he could make correct change for the papers."

In many institutions, "people like this would be given drugs to control their behavior," says Mrs. Brody.

To help other regressed residents, the staff organizes regular activities, including baking sessions for the women, discussion groups based on "Dear Abby" columns, and reality orientation therapy aimed at making each resident aware of who he is and where he is.

Unfortunately, even the few nursing homes that are conscientious about providing a homelike, rehabilitative environment have their drawbacks.

The cost of nursing home care—which now averages $700 a month—is prohibitive for many people not eligible for Medicaid. Long waiting lists for admission and implied obligations to make charitable donations to some homes compound the problems for prospective residents and their families.

Problem for blacks

A pervasive problem for blacks, says Hobart Jackson, a founder of the National Caucus on Black Aging, is that they are excluded from many proprietary homes because of cost and from church-related homes because of race and social class.

"Two to 3 percent of the residents of long-term care facilities are black," says Jackson, "yet the black elderly make up 8 percent of the population over 65."

Thirty-three-year-old Senate investigator Val Halamandaris hopes that these problems, as well as the horrors unearthed in the nation's worst homes, will be a thing of the past by the time he's old and frail enough to need nursing home care. He's somewhat encouraged by the changes he has seen since 1969 when, he says, nursing home administrators gave excuses for problems and indignantly rebutted charges of negligence.

"Today," he says, "administrators are recognizing that they have to become intimately involved with the needs of their patients. They are writing in to ask how they can improve."

Who knows? Perhaps someday we will actually look forward to spending our final years in a home sweet nursing home.

HOW TO CHOOSE A HOME

Val Halamandaris has visited more than 500 nursing homes. Here are his tips on how to find a good one:

1. Call your state health department for a list of licensed nursing homes in your area. Ask whether a home is eligible for Medicaid and about the level of care provided: skilled nursing for the very ill; intermediate care for others; or a combination of the two.

2. If you have a choice between a nonprofit, church-related facility and a proprietary (for profit) home, tentatively pick the nonprofit as your first choice. They generally offer better care. But check further. Some administrators use nonprofit status as a guise for personal profiteering.

3. Talk to knowledgeable people, such as a priest or rabbi, a hospital social worker or the emergency room chief. Nursing homes, like people, have reputations.

4. Examine inspection records at your state health department to see if a home corrects its deficiencies. It's your legal right to see these records.

5. Visit the home but don't be deceived by physical appearances. One of the most luxurious homes in Minnesota, for example, had an egregious record of cruelty to patients. Talk to the administrator. Ask about the ratio of registered nurses to patients, a good indicator of the quality of care. Talk to visitors.

6. Show up unexpectedly at mealtime and use your eyes, ears and nose. Does the food look edible? Also show up at activities periods.

7. Before deciding, bring the prospective resident to the home so that he or she can understand what to expect and can participate in the decision.

TAKE A LOOK AT THESE NEW IDEAS FOR YOUR HOME AND FAMILY ■ BY PETER DRYDEN

CONVERT YOUR LAMP: Fluorescent lighting uses 60-80% less energy to produce the same illumination as incandescent units and lasts many times longer. With a new conversion unit, you can make any lamp a fluorescent. It consists of fixture, ballast and 22-watt, 8"-diameter circline lamp. To install, remove lamp shade, harp and bulb, screw unit into socket, replace harp and shade. The lamp is rated at 12,000 hours. $26.95 ppd. Yorkshire International, Dept. PP, 220 Yorknolls Dr., Washington, D.C. 20027. (above)

OPTICAL TAPE MEASURE: You can measure distances up to 100 feet over water and rough terrain, determine building heights and make other horizontal or vertical measurements, indoors or out—all without moving an inch—using a new pocket instrument. Just sight an object through the viewfinder, adjust a numbered dial, then read distance in feet and inches. From $19.95. Units with ranges up to two miles and with metric calibrations also available. Details: Chris-Brooke Co., Dept. PP, 7115 S.W. 82nd Ave., Portland, Oreg. 97223. (right)

DO YOU NEED A TONIC?

Doctors report iron-poor blood definitely improves with Geritol.

As you can see from the chart and photomicrographs below, medical records show that iron-poor blood definitely improves after you use Geritol. Thin, pale, badly shaped iron-poor red blood cells become round, rich and red.

		Before Geritol	After Geritol	Improvement
Here's what GERITOL can do! (Actual Laboratory Blood Tests)	Blood Count Patient A	3,200,000 red blood cells	3,900,000 red blood cells	700,000 more red blood cells
	Blood Count Patient B	3,800,000 red blood cells	4,900,000 red blood cells	over 1,000,000 more red blood cells

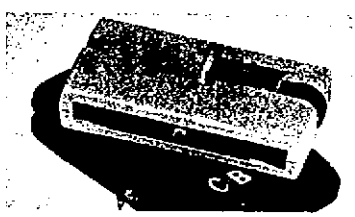

With the help of Geritol iron in your bloodstream, millions more healthy red blood cells are built to circulate all around your body 1500 times a day!

And the Geritol formula also gives you vitamins important for nutrition.

Geritol is the tonic that's protecting so many Americans today. If you need a tonic, try Geritol, tablets or liquid, starting today.

Geritol.
America's medically proved blood builder.

TENNIS AID: Designed to help you achieve better wrist control, a new 3-oz., contoured device fits over the top of the wrist and keeps it firm though flexible during forehand and backhand practice. In addition to improving your game—claims the maker—the training in holding the wrist firmly minimizes the risk of tennis elbow, often a result of improper wrist use during play. In women's/junior and men's sizes, with two-strap Velcro fastening system for individual adjustment. $5.95 in stores. Rist-Lok Inc., Dept. PP, 687 Bergen Ave., Jersey City, N.J. 07304.

WINDOW GARDEN SHELF: Without need for screws, nails or fasteners, a new window shelf for plants holds firmly in place by tension alone; you can position it anywhere on a window, move it without leaving marks. The 5"-deep white baked enamel unit can hold plants in pots up to 5" diameter, comes in two sizes adjustable to fit windows from 16" to 24" and from 24" to 38". $5.95 and $6.95 each. Crestwall, Dept. PP, Box 22128, Cleveland, Ohio 44122. (below)

A LIFT FOR YOUR OUTBOARD: Tilting your motor to "up" position should be easier and free of strain with a new tilt device. Adjustable to fit almost any motor, it slips quickly into place and has a 19"-long handle that provides leverage enough to raise even a large motor readily. Rubber feet on the forward end and heavy vinyl coating on the after end avoid scuffing and scratching the shroud. Suggested retail price: $19.43. Olson Industries, Dept. PP, Box 2520, Sarasota, Fla. 33578. (above)

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

by LLOYD SHEARER

BECAUSE OF VOLUME OF MAIL RECEIVED, PARADE REGRETS IT CANNOT ANSWER QUERIES ABOUT THIS COLUMN.

GOING DOWN The Lou Harris survey reports that American public confidence in U.S. institutions--including the Congress, the executive branch of the federal government and corporations--has sunk to its lowest point since Harris began taking polls 20 years ago.

NUKE THREATS Atomic facilities have become a major target of threats and acts of violence in the U.S.

A Nader-sponsored organization some weeks ago disclosed a list of threats and acts of violence against nuclear facilities obtained from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission in a Freedom of Information request.

The list is startling:

--A pipe bomb was found in the reactor building of the Illinois Institute of Technology.

--Dynamite was found at the Wisconsin Michigan Power Company's (WI) Point Beach nuclear reactor.

--A break-in took place at the fuel storage building of the Duke Power (N.C.) Oconee facility.

--An incendiary device was detonated in a public area of the Boston Edison Pilgrim atomic reactor.

--A fire, possibly arson, occurred in an equipment storage barn at Nuclear Fuel Services, West Valley, N.Y.

WOMEN AND MONEY The earning gap between men and women in the U.S. continues to widen, as does the distribution of wealth.

Women employed year-round in 1973 had a median income of $6488, or 57% of the $11,468 received by men.

The Labor Department's "1975 Handbook on Women Workers" illustrates at various income levels the striking difference between the total money income of women and men.

In 1973, only 1.3% of all women workers earned in excess of $15,000 annually, compared with almost 17% of the men.

More startling is the fact that in 1973 women who had four or more years of college earned on the average $9771. Males, however, with an eighth-grade education earned almost $9406.

"We must begin a totally new resocialization process in this country," says Carmen R. Maymi, director of the Labor Department's Women's Bureau. "A new concept of what a woman's job should be is of the highest order.

"The time to discredit the traditional practice of placing women in only clerical or nursing positions is now. We must assist women in entering new fields. Only as more women enter new areas of employment -- blue-collar jobs, scientific positions -- will the income gap between men and women be reduced."

ABORTION WIDESPREAD According to Worldwatch Institute, a research organization, the percentage of the world's population living in countries with liberal abortion laws has increased to 64 percent from 38 in the past five years.

A preliminary report by researchers Lester Brown and Kathleen Newland reveals three prime reasons for the liberalization of abortion: (1) the growth of women's movements, especially in the developed countries, (2) the awareness of how much death and illness are brought on by illegal abortion, (3) court decisions, as in the U.S.

LETTER OF THE LAW Last year Britain passed a law which, among other things, forbids advertisements that specify the sex of job applicants.

As a result, employers have been wording their want-ads meticulously in order to get the type of labor they need.

One ad designed to scare off female applicants reads: "In honor of the law for equal rights, all available positions for bricklayers are open equally to men and women. Applicants must have a chest measurement of at least 38 inches and be prepared to strip to the waist in summer."

Another in a similar vein asks for a "highly qualified mechanic...sex unimportant so long as the person in question is prepared to use the men's restroom."

A third want-ad requests: "Bar personnel for afternoons and evenings. Applicants should look good in women's clothing."

A fourth says: "Wanted --experienced business manager regardless of sex, assuming you have five years' experience, speak fluent German and look like Marlene Dietrich did at age 20."

JAMES AND SUZY HUNT: IS HE LOSING HER?

BURTON'S NEW BRIDE-TO-BE Suzy Hunt, 27, wife of English racing driver James Hunt, is reportedly seeking a quick divorce so she can marry Richard Burton.

This follows the actor's recent breakup with his second-time wife Elizabeth Taylor. Burton apparently is constitutionally incapable of living a womanless life for any considerable time.

As for Elizabeth Taylor, at 44 married six times, she has gone back to used car dealer Henry Wynberg. No one knows for how long.

In the picture above Suzy Hunt is shown playing backgammon in the Hunts' Spanish home late in 1975 when they were considered one of the "sporting world's most happily-married couples."

Don't you wish you had a nickel for every time Corning made your life a little easier?

You wouldn't necessarily be rich. But you'd probably have a lot of nickels.

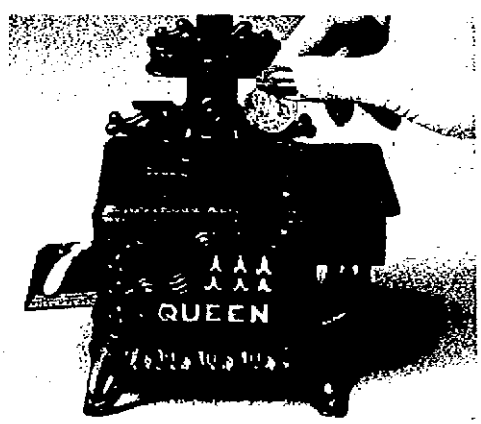

That's because every product we make helps make less work for you. For example:

The PYREX® ware Homestead™ Collection is our newest pattern. No one has to tell you about PYREX® ware. Odds are, you probably own some and use it everyday. But what is new is PYREX® ware's beautiful new pattern. It's like owing a set of early American stoneware. But you won't be afraid to use these "antiques."

Country Festival is our newest CORNING WARE® cookware pattern. Like all CORNING WARE® cookware, Country Festival goes straight from freezer to oven to table. So you have fewer pots and pans to use. And fewer to clean up.

Old Town Blue is one of our most popular CORELLE® Livingware patterns and CORELLE® Livingware is the most popular dinnerware in America. Despite its delicate look, it's far more durable than earthenware or china. Yet it's remarkably lightweight. So you can carry a whole set to the table, in just one trip. Which means less work.

Who can tell how many times Corning will make your life easier? But if you're serious about stashing away a nickel each time, we've got just the thing.

Put your nickels, dimes, pennies, and quarters in this old-fashioned cast iron bank. It's yours for only $5.99 when you buy any Corning product.

This collector's bank is a perfect miniature replica of an authentic 19th Century Queen oven. And it's obviously not one of those mass produced imports. American craftsmen at the famous John Wright Iron Works hand cast their iron bank especially for Corning. You can't buy it from anyone else, at any price.

And our price is just $5.99, plus proof of purchase any pattern you see here. Your participating Corning dealers have all the details.

Actually, there is one more reason we're making this offer. We think anyone smart enough to save a nickel every time we help is likely to spend those nickels wisely. On Corning products.

Please send me_____cast iron range bank(s) @ $5.99 each (plus $1.35 postage and handling for each bank ordered). I enclose a check or money order for $_____. For each bank ordered, I also enclose the product or item description from the end panel of a carton from any item of CORNING WARE® cookware, PYREX® ware or CORELLE® Livingware.

Time savers, work savers, money savers.

PROMISED AN EASIER LIFE The Soviet Union has promised to make life easier for working mothers, to exhort their husbands to help with the laundry, food-shopping, and child-rearing.

Life for working mothers in the Soviet Union is rough, which is why so few have more than one or two children.

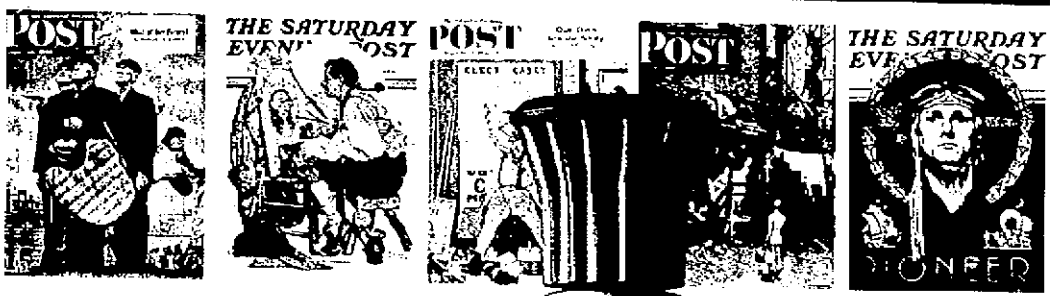

According to Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, mothers are going to be given the opportunity to work shorter hours and fewer days a week. They also will receive better maternity leave.

Russian women who get pregnant receive two months' paid leave but frequently lose their jobs if they don't return within 60 days.

The new plan would grant them partial pay for one year with a job guarantee.

Soviet working mothers take their children to day-care centers, then pick them up after working hours, then cook and clean and shop when they can.

EVA RUEBER-STAIER

A LITTLE COVERS A LOT Three or four triangles of cloth and a few bits of string--that's all one needs to run up a bikini this year.

Eva Rueber-Staier, former Miss World beauty contest winner, is traipsing around the world modeling this tiny bikini designed by Beatrix of Italy.

"It's extremely popular," says Eva, "especially with the girl-watchers."

THE BUSINESS OF VIOLENCE A recently published British government report points out that despite the pervasiveness of political violence in Northern Ireland, the industrial output in that land has increased by 9% since 1969. That compares with a 2.7% rise over the same period for the recession-plagued United Kingdom as a whole.

STILL ON THE BOOKS This Bicentennial year seems a good time to examine some of the bizarre laws still on the books in our various states and municipalities.

For example:

Serving beer with pretzels is not permitted in public bars in North Dakota.

In Lynn, Mass., it is illegal to give coffee to small children.

Marrying your wife's grandmother is illegal in Kentucky.

Laws in California, Idaho, North Dakota and Oklahoma forbid catching birds in cemeteries.

Every man entering Phoenix, Ariz., must be dressed in pants, according to the law.

In Hawaii, putting pennies in your ear is breaking the law.

Eighty-year-old women in South Dakota are prohibited from speaking to young married men on the street.

It is against the law in Wyoming to photograph a rabbit during the months of January through April unless you have an official permit.

CUSTOMERS FIRST One of the most successful taxicab companies in Japan is the MK Taxicab Company of Kyoto. The company president is Sadao Aoki, 47, who insists that every customer be accorded VIP treatment.

"Each person has an ego," Aoki points out, "and we cater to it. Courtesy is really the secret of our success."

All drivers of MK cabs in Kyoto are required to wear peaked caps, navy blue livery and maroon bow ties. When he stops to pick up a fare, the MK driver must get out of the driver's seat, doff his cap, open the rear door, and usher the customer into the cab.

In six years such unusual and exemplary courtesy has quadrupled the MK taxi fleet to 400 from 100. The average MK taxicab driver earns $600 to $1000 a month, a salary level which attracts many university graduates.

According to Aoki, 10 percent of his drivers--80 of 800--have college degrees. Ten of his drivers are women. "With us," says Aoki, "the customer comes first, which is why we have so much repeat business."

LICORICE WARNING The daily consumption of licorice can be harmful to your health. It can cause headaches, high blood pressure, heart palpitations and other symptoms. These are the findings of a study carried out by Mark T. Epstein in Christchurch, New Zealand, on 18 volunteers. In every case the symptoms disappeared after the subjects stopped ingesting licorice.

Grass Seed Is For The Birds! Zoysia Saves Time, Work, Money

Grass Seed Will Never Grow A Lawn Like This!

Save Now. Special Introductory Offer. Up To 200 Amazoy Zoysia Grass Plugs FREE

FULLY DROUGHT AND WEAR RESISTANT. Amazoy lawns take cookouts, parties, lawn furniture. You could even play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Rarely (if ever!) needs watering. If you have a shade problem use this rule: If crabgrass grows in the area, Amazoy will not only grow, it will drive out the crabgrass.

Amazoy is the Trade Mark Registered U.S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

By Mike Senkiw

Years ago I was like nearly everyone else with a lawn. I worried about it more than any other thing around the house.

Then things changed. My company obtained a new grass just released by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture. In honor of the explorer, Frank Meyer, it was named Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

We received only a small amount of this Grass — enough to plant test plots in our Nursery Farm.

From that small beginning, these few precious clumps of Zoysia Grass spread until they built a lawn so thick and beautiful that visitors stopped to admire it.

We Tell People, "Walk On It"

Instead of saying "Keep Off The Grass," we invited visitors to walk on it. It was an unforgetable experience for them — like walking on a thick pile carpet.

After walking on it, visitors learned that Amazoy Zoysia turf was crabgrass-proof, and the next question never failed: "How can I get some?"

Other Lawns Burn Out

Now, grass is my company's business; but it was a long time before an order of Amazoy Zoysia Grass was accepted. First we wanted to see how good this grass was. We really found out!

One summer the heat was so great you could fry eggs on the highway. Daily the sun blazed from cloudless skies; the drought worsened; whole ponds dried up. Meanwhile crabgrass flourished and took over lawns by the thousands.

IT RESISTS DROUGHT, STAYS GREEN THRU HEAT WAVES

Through it all, our deep-rooted Amazoy Zoysia stood out like a green island in a brown wasteland.

Thrives In Poor Soils

When I planted it in sandy, clay soils and sub-soil, it took hold and thrived. Other grass in the same soils struggled and died.

I compared it to other grasses in the winter, too. Ordinary grasses may die or turn sparse and scraggly due to frost and winter, but in such weather my Amazoy Zoysia merely went off its green color . . . it stayed so thick you could walk on it and not get your feet muddy.

Through zero-cold winters and blistering summer droughts . . . through onslaughts by weeds and diseases . . . our Meyer Zoysia had proved it could "take it." It had earned the right to be called AMAZOY, our Trade Mark published coast to coast and border to border.

HOW AMAZOY CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS AND WEEDS ALL SUMMER LONG!

If costly chemicals fail to control crabgrass for good, how does Amazoy Zoysia do it? Your deep-rooted, fully established Amazoy lawn grows so thick and luxurious that crabgrass seeds just do not germinate!

Your lawn chokes out not only crabgrass, but other weeds all summer long — year after year.

You will never need to spend a cent on crabgrass and weed killers again. So if you have wanted to get away from costly and dangerous lawn herbicides, Amazoy is your answer.

Your Own Supply Of Plug Transplants

Your established Amazoy lawn provides you with plugs for other areas as you may desire.

HERE'S WHY AMAZOY PLUGS ASSURE SUCCESS WHERE OTHER GRASSES FAIL

Due to Amazoy's national reputation, other grasses may be offered that sound like it. But Amazoy's pre-cut plugs look different, ARE different. They are deep-rooted, winter-hardy plugs produced exclusive for transplanting.

Each large sturdy plug contains 3 square inches or more of living vigorous Zoysia turf, complete with vigorous root system in its original enriched soil.

NEVER NEEDS REPLACEMENT

AMAZOY Saves Money, Cut Work. Never a seed to sow again with Amazoy! Year after year your lawn grows thicker, like a deep pile carpet. Defies enemies that kill other lawns.

PEOPLE WRITE TO ME

As Mrs. Harry Winslowe writes to me from the heart of wintry New England:

". . . How pleased we are with our Zoysia lawn! We had a lawn that was a disgrace. My husband used weed killers for every known weed, but next season new weeds sprang up. We dug the lawn up twice and reseeded before we learned about Amazoy. It does everything you say."

"Mowed It 2 Times," Writes Woman

Mrs. M. R. Miller writes me how her lawn ". . . is the envy of all who see it. When everybody's lawns around here are brown from drought ours just stays green as ever. I've never watered it, only when I put the plugs in . . . last summer we had it mowed (2) times. Another thing, we never have to pull any weeds — it's just wonderful!"

Wonderful? Yes, Amazoy Zoysia IS wonderful! Plant it now and you'll cut mowing by ⅔ . . . never have another weed problem all summer, for the rest of your life!

PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into hole in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checkerboard style.

When planted in existing lawn areas, plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth including weeds.

Easy planting instructions with order.

AMAZOY CUTS WATERING, CUTS MOWING BY ⅓

Your drought-resistant Amazoy lawn not only cuts your water bills, it cuts your work in other ways: it cuts pushing a noisy mower under a broiling summer sun by ⅓. It resists blight, disease and most insects. It will NOT WINTER-KILL TO TEMPS. 30° BELOW ZERO. After killing frost, it merely goes off its green color, regains fresh new beauty every Spring — a true perennial that ends re-seeding forever!

THERE IS NO SEED

Reports U.S. Dept. of Agric., referring to Meyer Z-52 Zoysia. Experts advise planting only live grass to be sure of getting the famous winter-hardy grass perf. by U.S. Govt., Meyer Z-52.

For Slopes, Play Areas, Bare Spots

Or correct problem areas such as slopes where Amazoy halts erosion, in hard-to-cover spots, around swim pools, in play areas, etc.

NO SOD

Sod of ordinary grass carries with it the same problems as seed — such as weeds, disease, frequent mowing, burning out, etc. Amazoy is sold ONLY in pre-cut plugs . . . never a slab of field grown sod YOU must cut up in order to plant.

PATENTED STEP-ON PLUGGER IS . . . . FREE WITH ORDERS OF 400 PLUGS OR MORE

Amazoy exclusive! No one else can offer you this patented 2-way plugger. Saves bending, time, work. Light, rugged, invaluable for transplanting. Cuts away competing growth as it digs plug holes.

MORE THAN A HALF-BILLION PLUGS SOLD, OUTSELLS OTHERS 10 TO 1!

The controlled transplant quality of Amazoy has made it another word for Meyer Z-52 Zoysia . . . the world's best known Zoysia Grass. If you don't want to take another chance with lawn disappointment, switch to the grass that assures your success: Amazoy. We guarantee every plug will grow, no matter your soil or why other grasses have failed you.

Order guaranteed Amazoy now, get your bonus plugs FREE. Your order will be delivered at earliest correct time for planting in your area.

We ship all orders the same day grass is taken from the soil, shipping charges collect the most economical means.

my favorite jokes

by TOM ADAMS

EDITOR'S NOTE: Tom Adams recently moved to Hawaii, where he has a radio show on KGU in Honolulu, and he's devoted much thought to the fine points of this new experience.

"I moved to Hawaii," he says, "to enjoy life, to have mountains to look at, to take pleasure in new customs like burying my loved ones in treetops, eating off leaves, seeing "Jaws" and rooting for the shark, and wearing a pearl in my ear."

Adams, who has been a disk jockey and done radio comedy since 1957, was twice named "Nation's Top Radio Personality" by Billboard magazine. He is constantly writing one-liners for his joke service, a sheet called "The Electric Weenie," which is sold to entertainers and disk jockeys, some as far away as Australia.

Here then are jokes from Tom Adams:

I'm followed all around by bad luck. Once I rubbed a magic lamp and got lead poisoning.

I asked the boss the difference between a depression and a recession. He said a recession was when he had to lay me off. A depression was when he was laid off.

•

We have a dull staff here at the office. We had a party—"Come as Your Favorite Celebrity"—and we had 28 Captain Kangaroos.

•

A note for bike riders: If you spray starch in your hair it'll look like you're going faster.

During Daylight Savings Time, how do you set tiny time pills an hour ahead?

I just came back from an elephant hunt in Africa. All I got was a hernia from carrying the decoy.

•

Inflation is so bad—all my money has stretch marks.

"What do you want to complain about for dinner tonight?"

I have a lot of bad luck. I went to a meeting of parents without partners; everyone else brought a partner.

Mail service is improved. Today I got back a letter I mailed yesterday.

Took my wife to the doctor. Balling me out, she got a cramp in her tongue.

I'm doing my best to fight inflation. I bought a dachshund for the kids so they can all pet him at the same time.

A cop stopped my wife for running a stop sign, and she wanted to know if this would count against her when she applied for her driver's license.

I was feeling sick yesterday, but I knew I was in trouble when the insurance man came and took back his calendar.

My uncle was in the hospital for a week. It was only supposed to be for one day, but he ate the food by mistake.

People say I'm paranoid, but how would you feel if the operator said,"The number you are calling from has been disconnected"?

Once I tried to join Paranoids Anonymous, but they wouldn't tell me where they held their meetings.

Keeping Up..With Youth

by Pamela Swift

The Generation Gap in Retrospect

During the height of the Indochina war, social scientists in the U.S. declared there was an unbridgeable gap growing between the generations. What has happened to that highly publicized generation gap?

To answer that question, M. Kent Jennings and Richard Nieman of the Institute of Social Research surveyed a representative national sample of high school seniors and their parents in 1965, then reinterviewed a large portion of them during the first part of 1973.

Writing in the American Political Science Review, the researchers conclude that "the flow of the two generations over time has, if anything, worked to bring them closer together now than they were eight years earlier. Only in certain issues and in regard to partisanship were the generations noticeably pulling apart.

"To the extent that differences increased, they consisted of the rising generation's having emerged with slightly to moderately more liberal political views, greater independence of partisanship, and higher Democratic voting behavior.

"Considering that three-fifths of our generation attended college," they continue, "that approximately one-half of the males served in the military, that the country was in an uproar during much of the eight-year period, and that open efforts were made to pit the young and the middle-aged against each other, one can only marvel that the gulf did not widen rather than narrow."

Harvard Law Applicants

About 27% of the 6500 applicants to the Harvard Law School are women, an increase of about 4% from last year.

The school has tried to recruit more minority applicants, primarily from black colleges and universities, but hasn't met with much success.

Matchmaking

Mitsubishi, the Japanese group of 27 companies, has added one more social activity to its growing list—matchmaking.

It has organized the Diamond Family Club, a clearing house for information about Mitsubishi employees in search of marriage. Recently the presidents of the 27 companies agreed to permit the applications of outsiders.

The Diamond Family Club contains 5500 names on its roster and uses a computer to introduce couples to each other. A follow-up is then engineered by "counselors," who are usually the wives of Mitsubishi employees.

Now three times as many women as men are looking for spouses.

The matchmaking service is not free. To be listed on the roster calls for a registration fee of $30. If the matchmaking culminates in matrimony, the couple pays the club $300.

In the past year about 100 couples have made it to the altar.

Native Tongue

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare estimates that between 1.8 and 2.5 million U.S. children speak English so poorly that they must be instructed in the language they speak at home.

To help in their bilingual programs, local school districts in 34 states will get $85 million in Office of Education grants.

JACK FORD CAMPAIGNING FOR HIS FATHER

Pot Winner

Jack Ford has been named the winner of the first American Weed Seed Award by The Daily Beaver, the Michigan-based trade publication of the marijuana paraphernalia industry.

The award is accorded each year to the person "who has done the most, either by purpose or by accident, to bring the legalization of marijuana to accomplishment."

Jack Ford was presented with the American Weed Seed Award because he "contributed more than anyone else in the past year to its acceptance in the mind of the American public."

The truth is that Jack Ford is not in favor of legalizing marijuana. He prefers decriminalization.

While campaigning in Illinois last month for his dad, Jack Ford was asked at the University of Illinois why the President hadn't busted him for smoking pot.

Young Ford replied, "He's not a law enforcement officer."

One local reporter was quick to point out that Article 2, Section 3 of the United States Constitution states that the President "shall take care that the laws are faithfully executed."

Mary, Mary spawns very, very unusual news program

By BOB MARTIN
TV-Radio Editor

Can a conservative, serious-minded newscaster from a small town in the Midwest find happiness as coanchorman on television's most far-out news program?

That's the question facing Charles Rowe, who makes up one-half of TV's latest "Odd Couple."

Chuck Ashman is the other half, and Ashman and Rowe aren't starring in a situation comedy or even a soap opera — but, rather, are the anchormen on a legitimate news program with comic and soap opera overtones.

The show, in case you've overlooked it, is "MetroNews, MetroNews," and it airs weeknights from 11:30 to midnight on KTTV (Channel 11), the Metromedia television station in Los Angeles.

"MetroNews, MetroNews" follows "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman" on Channel 11, and draws both its name and its style from Norman Lear's popular soap opera parody.

Since both newsmen are named Chuck, it's a wonder the program wasn't called "Chuck, Chuck and the News, News," or even "Chuck and Upchuck With the News."

What gave rise to the unusual program? Why, that's easy to answer. It was, simply enough, the tremendous success of "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman," the nationally syndicated comic serial that started running Jan. 5 on Channel 11. Placed opposite the late-night news roundups of the three major networks' affiliated stations in Los Angeles, "MH, MH" quickly proved there are a lot of viewers in the L.A. area who prefer chuckles to hard news — at least, from 11 to 11:30 at night.

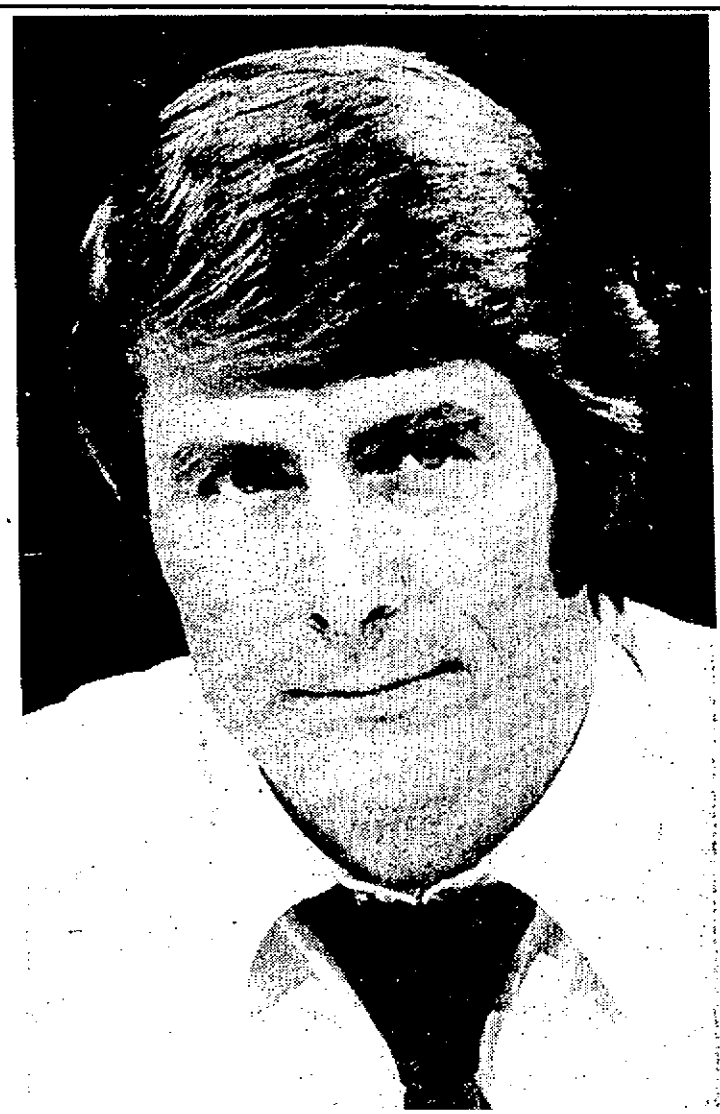

Executives at KTTV put their heads together to figure out how to hold on to the "MH, MH" fans — made up largely of young, hip viewers in the desirable 18-to-34-year-age bracket — and came up with the idea for "MetroNews, MetroNews," which would entertain viewers while offering, at the same time, a certain amount of information.

For anchors, they chose Rowe as the straight man and Ashman, who admits to being a ham, as the far-out, off-the-wall humor man.

ROWE, WHO also anchors a straight news program with Barbara Simpson on Channel 11 from 10:30 to 11, sees "MetroNews, MetroNews" as the next step beyond the "happy talk" format that has taken hold on many news programs in recent years.

"I came to KTTV from WLS in Chicago, which was one of the first of the happy talk stations and very successful at it," Rowe told me at lunch in the Hollywood Brown Derby. It was a little over two years ago that Chuck came to KTTV after five years in Chicago, where he had anchored the morning and Saturday night news on WLS-TV (an ABC-owned station) and also done radio newscasts for the ABC-FM network.

Rowe, who pointed out that "MN, MN" has been called "the National Enquirer of television journalism" and who labeled it "a newscast for people who hate newscasts," admitted that he had reservations about doing the show at first. Why? He was afraid it might lessen his credibility as a serious newscaster and be harmful to his career in the future.

CHARLES ROWE . . . on 'MetroNews, MetroNews'

The show went on the air in early February as a three-week experiment, and, by now, Rowe is pretty well convinced that it isn't going to hurt him. "If I thought it was," he said, "I'd quit."

Although "MN, MN" emphasizes soft, feature-type news items about unusual characters and events (often of a sexual and-or humorous nature), Rowe pointed out that a number of brief hard-news stories also are woven into the program.

Ashman is the clown of the two, but Rowe thinks highly of his partner's ability as a serious newsman, also. "He is, as you know, an excellent investigative reporter, and has broken some big stories on the program," Rowe said.

The more flamboyant of the two Chucks, Ashman has been a lawyer and has written books on Henry Kissinger, Martha Mitchell and John Connally, as well as one titled "The Finest Judges Money Can Buy." He had an interview series on Channel 11 called "The Ashman File" before being tapped for "MN, MN."

IN ADDITION to lending a measure of seriousness to "MetroNews, MetroNews," Rowe brings considerable sex appeal to the show for women viewers. Gilda Franklin, a KTTV publicist who dined with us at the Brown Derby, terms him "outrageously handsome."

Adds Gilda: "You just see him walk down the hall and you wonder how God put that much effort into one person."

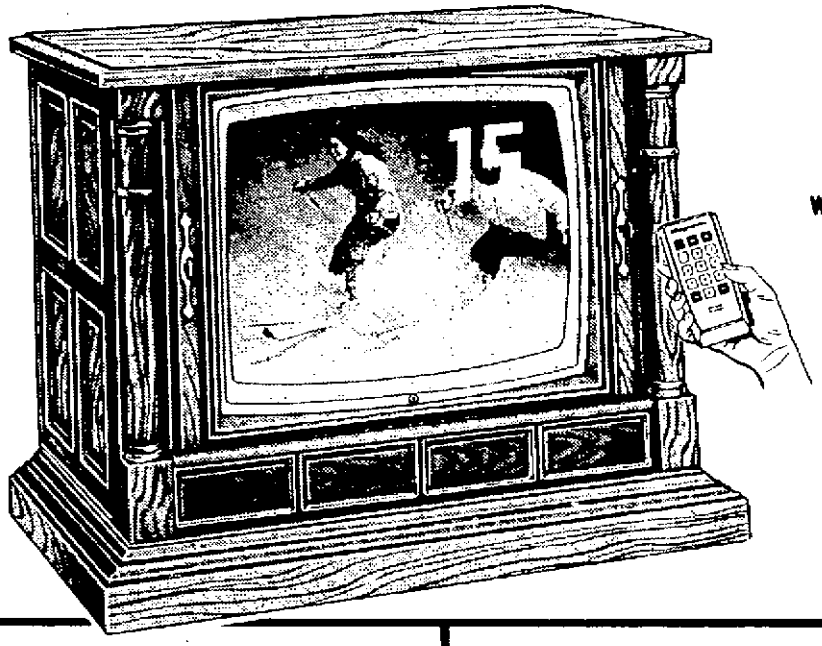

The 6-foot blond, who turns 37 next

DAVID SOUL, who stars as Ken (Hutch) Hutchinson on ABC's "Starsky and Hutch" police series, has been a skier since he was 7. Here, he shares a ski-lift ride with actress Lynne Marta and shows his skill on the slopes in a visit to Aspen, Colo.

'Starsky and Hutch' is a series with Soul

By JIM O'BRIEN
Knight News Wire

PHILADELPHIA — "I'm Soul. He's Glaser."

That was emblazoned on the back of the orange sweatshirt worn by David Soul the other day while here to tape a Mike Douglas show.

Early in the TV season the shirt might have read, "I'm Hutch. He's Starsky," but now the two stars of the popular ABC-TV series are becoming known under their own names.

Soul is the slender, blond young man and plays Hutch while Paul Michael Glaser is Starsky.

RIGHT OFF, I had to ask Soul how he felt about ABC moving the series to Saturday nights next season.

"I guess I'm disappointed," Soul said reluctantly, after some pushing. Obviously, the stars of a new TV series usually have nothing to say about program scheduling.

"Starsky and Hutch" is popular among young people who presumably are dating or roaming around on Saturday nights.

"There's no point in my worrying about the schedule. I'm more concerned about learning my craft, broadening my career and doing the best I can to help improve the show," Soul said.

BROADENING his career means other acting chores during the off-season and more emphasis on the music and singing that many of his fans will find surprising.

"I'm doing an album now in San Francisco and most of the songs are my own compositions. I guess you'd call the songs contemporary," he said.

What many of Soul's fans don't know is that he began his show business career as a hooded singer on the Merv Griffin show a decade ago when the show was produced in New York City. Soul appeared 25 times on the show wearing the hood and it attracted a fair amount of attention but did not make him a star.

"Actually, acting is what I always wanted to do, but music helped me break into show business," he said.

SOUL WAS born in Chicago, lived with his parents in Germany for a time and later was graduated from high school in Sioux Falls, S.D., where he played American Legion baseball and was good enough to get an offer from the Chicago White Sox to join their farm system.

As for "broadening" his career, Soul soon will make a movie for TV but, as he puts it, "I'm not too happy with the present script."

Soul said sudden stardom has not changed his lifestyle.

"I'm still living in the same dumpy place in Sherman Oaks (Calif.). He's living there with his lady, actress Lynne Marta.

Abe Vigoda, at 55, is big Fish at last

By LEE MARGULIES
Associated Press

People who once wondered how anyone could enjoy the antics of grumpy, bigoted Archie Bunker may now ponder another television mystery:

What's the appeal of a tired old police detective who has bad feet, hemorrhoids, a chronic case of the blues and a bothersome wife?

For such is the character of Sgt. Fish on ABC's "Barney Miller" — a role that has made a star out of a 55-year-old, heretofore little known actor named Abe Vigoda.

VIGODA is recognized everywhere he goes these days. He is asked to appear on the TV game shows. Someone wants him to star in a Broadway play. Policemen stop him on the street to request photographs to hang in the station. And ABC may spin off an entire series on Fish.

Max Gail, costar of the series, offers this explanation:

"My belief is that people respond to what's human. The character is so complete, so human. Things like going to the bathroom or being tired — simple, human things ..."

"Fish has been on the force for 38 years," Vigoda explains. "He's not unhappy but he is pessimistic. He knows things don't always turn out the way they should."

IT'S NO surprise that Vigoda can project this insight. He struggled for 25 years as an actor, earning a living and playing some good roles but never receiving the serious attention his better known peers got.

ABE VIGODA

"Abe Vigoda," says Abe Vigoda, "... knows the meaning of what the man is going through ... He's been through it, so he knows it."

Vigoda says he knew he wanted to be an actor from the time he was 6 years old. But it wasn't until after World War II, with money from the GI Bill, that he was able to afford training.

VIGODA landed his first professional job in 1947 and launched a career that seemed certain to be limited to supporting roles in stage plays.

What finally turned things around for Vigoda was a key role in the movie "The Godfather" as Tessio, the friend who betrays Don Corleone.

The movie was released in the spring of 1972 and Vigoda suddenly found himself in demand. A rash of Mafia and bad guy roles followed in films and TV cop shows. Then in 1974 a guest appearance on "The Sandy Duncan Show" brought him to the attention of the "Barney Miller" producers, who were then casting their new series.

NOW the wrinkled face and bushy eyebrows are known to television watchers throughout the country and Vigoda confides with disbelief that his income is now at a six-figure level.

Talk of his recent good fortune brings out another difference between actor and character — Abe Vigoda is an optimist. Says he of success: "It happened in my middle age. It's amazing.

"So I say to anyone, whether you're an actor or a lawyer or a carpenter, never give up. You can make it any time in your life. Success doesn't happen just in your youth. It takes perseverance and belief in yourself — and, above all else, hard work."

A look at Nielsen 'family'

(Rarely does the public see how A.C. Nielsen conducts its TV audience surveys. This is one of those rare views.)

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — When the A.C. Nielsen ratings company asked a Manhattan family to keep a diary of its television-watching for a week, the young man on the phone accepted readily.

He wanted to see how the system works, so he didn't tell the company that the man they were looking for — his grandfather — had been dead 11 years.

He only explained that his home had three residents and three black and white TV sets.

And so it came to pass that the 21-year-old man, his 23-year-old sister and their 43-year-old mother were mailed Nielsen diaries. The diaries covered a period from 6 p.m. on Thursday, March 18, to 1:59 a.m. on Thursday, March 25.

They had become a Nielsen family in America's largest, richest television market.

NIELSEN says it mailed 3,700 diaries to willing viewers in the New York area in March.

Each home to which the diaries were sent, Nielsen says, represents 3,200 households. The responses only will affect the ratings, programming and financial fortunes of New York area stations.

They aren't part of the national Nielsen surveys of viewing habits, which are done in two ways. One is with an Audimeter, hooked to TV sets in 1,200 homes. It records what is watched, but not who is watching.

The other method is a diary kept by 2,400 persons across the United States. Each diarist records who is watching what and when. Each diary is personally delivered by a Nielsen agent who gets from each household data dear to advertisers — age, sex, education, income, that sort of thing.

Nielsen says the national diaries cover 31 weeks of viewing, with only a third of the 2,400 homes filling in diaries on a given week. The rest have to wait their turn.

BY CONTRAST, our New York area Nielsen family only got to fill in the diary for a week, no more. The family's fun ended March 25. The results of the survey won't be available to Nielsen subscribers until this week.

The family put down their age, sex, race, the non-English languages they speak — Czech and French, in this case — and the language they speak when together, English.

They also noted the number of TV sets in their home, that all three sets worked and that one was plugged in to both cable TV and to Home Box Office, a pay TV operation supplying recent movies and special shows.

And they put down that they can watch programs on seven VHF channels — three stations being

Trouble in paradise for Lord

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press

Jack Lord, Hawaii's most famous cop, flew to his onetime home town of Los Angeles for a brief visit and he was angry.

"We've been kicked out of our studio," said Lord, whose own nature doesn't stray far from the tight-lipped Steve McGarrett of "Hawaii Five-O."

He referred to the fact that the television company had been bumped out of its studio by the National Guard, which had leased out the property since the early days of the television series.

JACK LORD

"ANY OTHER state of the union would have given us the property for $1 a year," continued Lord. "But not Hawaii. Now we've got to find another location for the indoor sets.

"We probably won't be able to establish another studio in time to start the ninth season on May 10, so we'll have to 'vamp' by going to Hong Kong for a two-parter. Except for one show we filmed partly in California, this will be the first time we have ever shot outside Hawaii."

Unlike some series stars who merely appear on the set and read their lines, Lord has always taken an intense interest in "Hawaii Five-O." Some say his interest was too intense, and the early years of the series were marked by friction between star and production personnel. He nagged for better actors and directors, sharper scripts, fidelity to the McGarrett character.

His persistence has paid off.

"Do you realize that we're the longest-running dramatic series in the history of television — after 'Gunsmoke' and 'Bonanza'?" he cited proudly. "When we started out in 1967, we were the only police show on the air. Now there are 23 — which is too many."

ODDLY, McGarrett started out to be a detective at one of the big Waikiki hotels. But in the planning stages that concept ran into what Lord called Lafferty's Law — named after its originator, Perry Lafferty, until recently a CBS executive on the West Coast.

"Perry had the theory that the hero of a dramatic series should have life-

A look at how Nielsen conducts its surveys

network-owned — and four UHF channels.

For their help, they received a "token" of Nielsen's appreciation — four quarters.

WE HAVE given them false names for this article — the 21-year-old will be called "Jack," his sister "Jill," and their mother "Prudence."

What sort of jurors were they? Ideal, from one standpoint: Their age span was 21 to 43. The networks consider viewers aged 18 to 49 the most desirable audience. Such folks usually have more money to spend than other age groups.

Two other pluses: Each was employed and each was attending college, a good combination of spending power and better-than-average education.

A check of their diaries showed that Jack, Jill and Prudence had, over a week's time, watched a total of 42 hours of TV. Nielsen says that was about the average for a household in 1975.

But the networks didn't fare too well. The jurors saw only 12 hours of network programs, only 3½ hours of that in prime evening time, and they watched no daytime network shows at all on weekdays.

THEY ALSO proved no fans of local TV news programs offered by Fun City's six commercial stations. They didn't watch any. Nor did they watch any early-morning network show, not even NBC's "Today" show.

But they did watch 10½ hours of non-network shows on cable TV or pay TV on the set in Jill's room, while 6½ more hours went for noncommercial public TV programs on station WNET-TV here.

The remaining 13 hours were spent watching local entertainment shows on the commercial network-owned or independent stations.

PRUDENCE was the big public TV buff in the house. She watched 5½ hours of such public TV shows as "The Adams Chronicles" and "Bill Moyers' Journal." Her 2½ other hours were spent on Sunday, watching a pro tennis match on NBC by day and "60 Minutes" at night on CBS.

Six of Jack's 18 TV hours were spent watching pro or college basketball games on cable TV. He also spent another six hours watching "Star Trek" reruns on independent station WPIX.

He logged but four network hours — one night of NBC's "Tonight" show, and on a Monday night the "CBS Evening News" and ABC's "Buster and Billie" movie. He also watched one night of "Adams Chronicles" on public TV, and a movie for an hour on WNEW, an independent outlet.

JILL, WHO works until midnight five days a week, spent only 5½ of her 16 viewing hours on network shows — four nights of NBC's late-night "Tomorrow" show, one hour per show, and an hour's worth of NBC's 90-minute "Saturday Night" program.

She also saw ABC's half-hour "Make a Wish" kid show on Sunday. Another 4½ hours went for two recent movies on pay TV, the rest on a one-hour local talk show and late-night movies on commercial stations.

She didn't watch any public TV, mainly because she was working during the prime-time hours the better shows of public TV are aired.

PRUDENCE, a divorcee who works as an executive secretary and is studying economics at Hunter College here, was asked why the bulk of her viewing involved public TV instead of commercial programs.

"Because I find the programs are so much better," she said briskly.

We asked the three Nielsen jurors one last and no doubt foolish question: Do they consider themselves typical viewers?

"Obviously not," said Prudence, the public TV fan.

"I hope not, I really hope not," laughed daughter Jill.

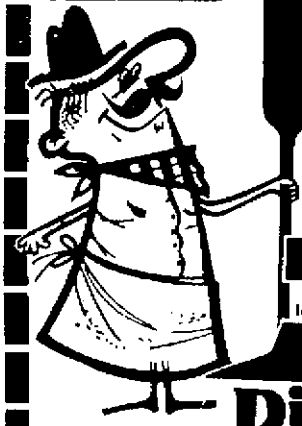

Brother Jack was most emphatic that he wasn't a typical viewer.

"No way, because I know some typical viewers," he said. "And they turn on the tube and they sit there, and anything that plays they watch.

CAROL LAWRENCE and Monty Hall join Juan Cantu, 10, to remind viewers of the 19-hour Variety Club Telethon '76, starting at 11 p.m. Saturday on Ch. 5. Funds raised will aid the show business group's projects for handicapped children in Southern California.

Trouble in paradise for Lord

or-death power over what happens," said Lord.

"That seems to hold true, whether the hero is a marshal, a detective or a surgeon."

Lord and his wife, Marie, were in Southern California on one of their four-times-a-year visits. Hawaii is now their home and will be forever, he asserted, despite the inhospitality on the studio rental.

"I love the islands; they are so fresh and clean and washed by the gentle rain," he said.

"MY ONLY regret is that I can't see Marie for eight months. That's the kind of schedule we have. It's necessary to shoot 24 shows back-to-back without a hiatus. The reason is that we have an entire crew on subsistence, so we can't afford to lay them off.

"When we start a season we must have 13 scripts ready to go. It takes a lot of doing to keep the scripts up to a consistent quality, and I must say that Philip Leacock, the executive producer, and Doug Green, the producer on location, do a fantastic job. We discard one script out of four — actually pay the writer off without using his work. It's better to do that than to do a script we don't believe in."

How much longer can "Hawaii Five-O" continue?

"I'd like to carry it to the tenth year, no longer. What then? I'd like to direct a picture and have responsibility for the whole canvas, not just contributing colors as an actor."

CLAUDE AKINS thinks the series in which he stars, NBC's "Movin' On," is partly responsible for the soaring interest in citizens' band radio.

MASTERPIECE THEATRE (28), 9:00 p.m. — "Sunset Song." Set in a small farming community in northeast Scotland in the early 1900s, the story concerns the only daughter of a stern farmer and his long-suffering wife, who is forced to choose between her love of the land and her love of learning. Six-part drama by Scottish author Lewis Grassic Gibbon.

RICHARD MULLIGAN, as Thomas Jefferson, stars on the historical drama series "The Rebels" at 3 p.m. Sunday on Ch. 4.

What some people won't do to turn back the clock!

From face-lifts to mod clothes, the relentless pursuit of eternal youth is big business today. And this week John Hambrick will explore it all in a whimsical yet factual series of reports.

He'll look at plastic surgery, hair transplants, wigs, perms . . . the whole works.

Tune in for a very uplifting experience.

The BIBLE Says

J. T. Smith

MIRACLES HAVE CEASED #1

For the next few weeks, we are going to be discussing the subject of Bible miracles, and the so-called miracles of today.

One of the first things that we must understand is that the word "miracle" is used in such a loose sense today that almost everything that is a little out of the ordinary is classified as a miracle. Thus, it is absolutely essential to our study that we understand what a miracle is. A miracle is a demonstration of supernatural intervention, either directly upon an object or person or through some person or agent, in which no natural force is responsible for the effect produced. In order to be able to study with us effectively on this subject, you will need to keep this article with this definition of what a miracle is. Thus, a miracle either transcends natural law or suspends it in order to achieve an effect designed by the Lord.

I know of no one who believes the Bible who does not agree that all three dispensations were ushered in by miracles. Creation and the beginning of all things came as a result of miracles. When we read the first three chapters of Genesis we see that these things which began with miracles were to continue to exist — but not because they were continually brought into existence by a miracle, but because God began what we refer to as the "law of nature," that is everything bringing forth "after its own kind."

As we read the first three chapters of Genesis, we observe that there was more than one person with the power to perform in this creation. "And God said let US make man in OUR image, and after OUR likeness" (Genesis 1:26). Thus, all three persons in the Godhead (Father, Son, and Holy Spirit) were instrumental in creation (Genesis 1:2 and John 1:1-3).

Also when we read the first five books of the Old Testament, we learn that the Mosaic dispensation was ushered in by a number of miracles (burning bush that Moses observed that was not consumed; ten plagues; waters of the Red Sea; giving of the ten commandments at Mt. Sinai, etc.) No Bible believer will deny that according to our definition, all these were miracles.

A TOUCH OF CLASS

Most of our pools are more than $3995

Because . . . most of our customers want a complete pool with accessories and trim that make their pool unique.

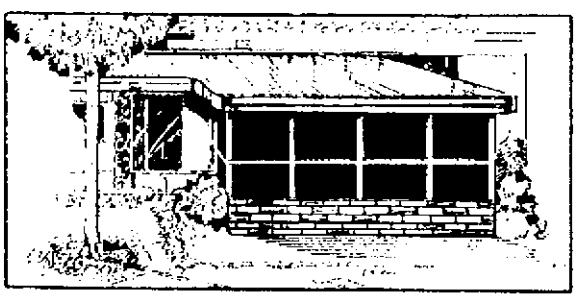

You will be delightfully surprised at just how competitive our prices are.

It is reassuring to know that you are dealing with a non-franchised company that is financially sound and has been in business over 22 yrs. Call for free estimate.

SPECIAL

DISASTER: HOW & WHY (7), 7:30 p.m. — 1933 So. Calif. (Long Beach) earthquake. Dr. George Fischbeck hosts.

PRINCESS IDA (28), 7:00 p.m.—A performance of Gilbert and Sullivan's "Princess Ida" by Gilbert and Sullivan Society of Houston, Texas, and the members of the Houston Symphony Orchestra. A biting satire on the women's education movement of Gilbert's day.

MOVIE (4), 9:00 p.m.—"Law of the Land." After two dance hall girls are slain, a frontier sheriff and his four young deputies conduct a tension-filled hunt to prevent the attacker from striking again. Jim Davis, Don Johnson, Charlie Martin Smith, Cal Bellini and Nicholas Hammond star. World Premiere Drama.

2 producers

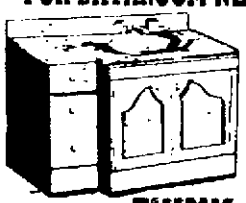

James Heinz and Douglas Green have been appointed producers of "Hawaii Five-O," which will begin its ninth season on the air next fall.

Heinz will be based in Hollywood. Green will be based in Hawaii, regular filming location for the CBS production. Both will report to executive producer Philip Leacock.

A DAREDEVIL airplane wing walker, played by actress Lee Purcell, infatuates John-Boy (Richard Thomas) on Thursday night's repeat episode of "The Waltons," at 8 on Ch. 2.

CHUCK ROWE

month, said he has gotten propositions from many female viewers, by mail and phone, but indicated that he isn't the sort of guy to follow up on such things (certainly not, if a photo isn't enclosed). He is, however, a bachelor, but has been married and has a daughter that lives with her mother near Seattle.

Chuck grew up in the town of Chadron, Neb. (population about 5,000), and competed in football, basketball and track (100-yard dash) in high school and at Nebraska State University, which is in Chadron. He studied electrical engineering in college this father and an uncle are electricians), but quit school after two years when the radio station he was working for offered him a full-time job. He continued in radio, chiefly as a newscaster, until 1966, working at stations in several states, including Wyoming, Idaho and Oregon.

Ten years ago, he shifted from radio to TV newscasting when he landed a job at KCBY in Coos Bay, Ore., and then worked at KXTV in Sacramento as an anchorman for a couple of years before moving to WLS-TV in Chicago.

Chuck would appear to have a bright future as a TV newscaster, regardless of what kind of future is in store for "MetroNews, MetroNews." At least, he likes to think that life can be beautiful.

Presents . . . Solarian®

Solarian from Armstrong the sunny floor that shines without waxing

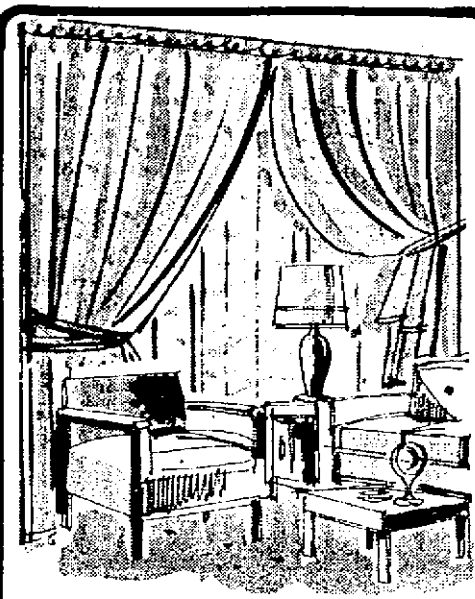

Solarian's high shine comes from its Mirabond® wear surface, a special formulation that will retain its gloss — without waxing — far longer than any ordinary vinyl floor.
It's also easier to keep clean. Spills, tracked-in dirt — even black heel marks — come up easily.

Approx. $1.94 for a 9 x 12 Room Installed

TV MOVIE TIPS

TODAY

"You're Never Too Young," 3 p.m., Ch. 2 (1955). Dean Martin, Jerry Lewis, Diana Lynn. Theft of a large diamond and the search for it by police and thief, create background for a zany Martin and Lewis escapade.

"Bus Stop," 7 p.m., Ch. 9 (1956). Marilyn Monroe, Arthur O'Connell, Hope Lange. Comedy drama of a collection of travelers who arrive at some truths about themselves while snowbound at an Arizona bus stop.

"Gold," 9 p.m., Ch. 7 (1974). Roger Moore, Susannah York, Ray Milland, Bradford Dillman. Drama of international intrigue of miners who are trapped underground by a raging current of water from a broken dam in So. Africa as financiers scheme to control the gold market.

MONDAY

"A Girl Named Sooner," 8 p.m., Ch. 4. Lee Remick, Richard Crenna, Don Murray, Anne Francis, Cloris Leachman, Susan Deer. Story of an 8-yr.-old waif who is taken into the home of a childless couple and enriches their lives immeasurably.

"El Dorado," 8:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1967). John Wayne, Robert Mitchum, James Caan. An angry gunfighter sobers up a drunken sheriff to settle an old score.
(Due to mature subject matter, parental discretion is advised.)

"Go Ask Alice," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1972). Wm. Shatner, Andy Griffith, Ruth Roman, Jamie Smith-Jackson. This film is the true story of a teenage girl caught in the vicious web of drug addiction and is based on her anonymous diaries.

TUESDAY

"Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1965). (Pt. 1). Bette Davis, Olivia de Havilland, Joseph Cotton, Agnes Moorehead. A woman returns to the family mansion to help her cousin, an aging, demented ex-Southern belle, who is re-living the murder of her married lover many years before. (Pt. II shown 3:30 p.m., 4/28)

"The Delta Factor," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1970). Mickey Spillane spy drama of an innocent man, framed for a robbery, who makes a deal for his freedom: either return to prison or rescue a scientist held captive in the Caribbean.

WEDNESDAY

"Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte," 3:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (Pt. II). See Tuesday, above.

"Catlow," 11:30 p.m., Ch. 2 (1971). Yul Brynner, Richard Crenna. A cattle rustler/gold robber is sought by both the Apaches and the Mexicans who would like to see him dead. His only hope for survival is the Marshal, a former war buddy, who would like to see him hang.

THURSDAY

"Law of the Land," 9 p.m., Ch. 4. Jim Davis, Don Johnson, Charlie Martin Smith, Barbara Parkins. A frontier lawman and his young deputies make a frantic search to identify a psychopath with a deadly vendetta against prostitutes.

FRIDAY

"Mrs. Sundance," 9:30 p.m., Ch. 7 (1973). Elizabeth Montgomery, Robert Foxworth. When Etta Place, the widow of the Sundance Kid, hears that he did not die with Butch Cassidy, she heads for their old hide-out, not knowing that she is in jeopardy from bounty hunters.

SATURDAY

"That Darn Cat," 8 p.m., Ch. 4. Dean Jones, Hayley Mills. Full-length Disney film of a quick-tempered Siamese cat whose propensity for roaming through the neighborhood at night provides the occasion to stumble upon two bank robbers and their hostage in hiding.

"Future Cop," 8 p.m., Ch. 7 (1976). Ernest Borgnine and Michael Shannon star in a comedy/drama of an old-line street cop and his young rookie partner who is an android.
